SERIOUS STRIKE OCCURS IN PORT OF NICARAGUA FOR WHICH AMERICAN MARINES LEAVE TOMORROW

Senator-Elect Smith Balks at Committee Probe

CHALLENGES RIGHT TO PROBE PRIMARY UNTIL GIVEN SEAT

Defiance Comes Just Before Chairman Reed Ends Investigation. Report Due Tuesday.

INSULL TESTIFIES ON CONTRIBUTIONS

Magnate Tells of Giving $237,925 and Wants To Have Contempt Citations Recalled.

Washington, January 7.—(United News.)—Senator-Elect Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, today challenged the right of the senate investigating committee to "try" him for alleged excessive primary campaign expenditures, until he has been seated as a senator just as Chairman James A. Reed, democrat, Missouri, closed the committee's investigation.

Reed said the report would be submitted to the senate probably Tuesday for action on the Smith case. Smith's defiance came after Samuel Insull, middle western utility magnate and a Smith backer, had testified fully as to his $237,925 contributions to various factions in the 1926 Illinois campaign. Insull and his lawyer, Samuel Schuyler, attempted by this action to have recalled citations charging contempt of the senate because they refused to tell of these contributions last year.

Challenge Made By Attorney.

Smith's defiance was announced by Oscar Carlstrom, Illinois attorney general, who challenged jurisdiction of the committee over a man elected to the senate but denied his office pending investigation.

John Daley, Illinois state senator, appearing for Smith, protested that Illinois was being deprived for her senate representation.

Smith, who attends with a delegation of friends and backers, then made a personal statement repeating the defiance. To keep faith with the people, Smith said, "is to me a greater thing than to be senator."

"I cannot become a party to an unwarranted precedent, nor to any pretended inquiry as to my personal fitness for association with the distinguished men now composing the senate of the United States," Smith said.

Reveals Senate Ambitions.

"Great as my ambition to sit in the senate may have been, and keen as my regret may be, for the denial of my right to admission to this body, the duty I owe to the people who have honored me is the thing of highest importance in my life. To keep faith with this people is to me a greater thing than to be a senator.

"The citizens of Illinois know that if they are a free people of a sovereign state they have the right, upon the day and in the manner prescribed by law, to choose of their own free will whomsoever they please to send as their representative to the nation's capital. They know if they are restricted in this choice by will, the caprice or even the conviction of any power on earth or other than themselves, that they are not free, but are the bondsmen of tyranny.

"I am here as their carefully on-

Costa Rica Crowd In Grave Danger As Lindy Lands

San Jose Field So Thronged Air Ambassador Makes Four Attempts To Alight.

THROWS OUT NOTE TO CLEAR SPACE

Frantic Welcomers Are Finally Moved to One Side and Lone Eagle Alights.

San Jose, Costa Rica, January 7.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was welcomed to Costa Rica today by a crowd so frantic in its greeting that he was compelled to throw written instructions overboard from his airplane to get the crowd out of the way before he could land.

The flier, arriving from Managua on the sixth leg of his Central American tour, made three attempts to land before he finally touched ground at 2:18 p. m., central standard time.

The confused and excited crowd, the largest ever assembled in Costa Rica, pushed aside the police and scattered over the field, apparently ignorant of their danger. Lindbergh skimmed 30 feet over their heads trying to land the third time dropping overboard a map of Guatemala on which he had written:

"It will not be possible for me to land until the crowd has moved over to the side of the field. Only officials can remain upon the field itself."

Police and officials managed to get the crowd over to the right of the air field and on his next attempt Lindbergh landed gracefully and safely. He was greeted by cheers and hurrahs, the shout of the crowd coming as if from a single throat.

Flies Over Volcano.

Before coming to earth, the American aviator flew over the volcano Poas, about 15 miles from the city, and then sped across San Jose flying above the presidential palace and the American legation. Enthusiastic cheers from the inhabitants of the capital marked his progress from the city to the aviation field.

Here had gathered one of the largest crowds in the history of the city and shortly before noon there was practically no room for the newcomers. All eyes eagerly scanned the horizon watching for the historic plane winging its way so swiftly from Nicaragua.

The Sabana flying field presented a most colorful spectacle, with women spectators gaily dressed in summer attire and carrying brightly colored umbrellas. The flags of the United States and Costa Rica fluttered in the breeze, adding to the brilliancy of the scene.

Crowd Given Bulletins.

Bulletins announcing flier's progress over various cities began arriving shortly after Colonel Lindbergh hopped off from Managua and each report added to the crowd's enthusiasm. When he finally appeared and prepared to land the enthusiasm could not be restrained and the spectators

FLORIDA WOMAN KILLED BY FALL IN HOSPITAL HERE

Mrs. A. P. Roberts Opens Window, Lifts Screen and Plunges Six Stories to Her Death.

Mrs. A. P. Roberts, of Cocoa, Fla., was fatally injured Friday night when she plunged from a sixth story window of Wesley Memorial hospital, it was learned Saturday. Mrs. Roberts died two hours later.

Arriving at the hospital Friday morning for an operation Mrs. Roberts was given a room on the sixth floor of the hospital and a private nurse was assigned to duty. The nurse stepped out into the hallway to speak to another nurse for a moment about 9:30 o'clock at night, and, hearing a noise went back into the room.

Mrs. Roberts was missing when the nurse re-entered the room, the window was wide open, and a look out of the window revealed her lying on the ground below. Mrs. Roberts was rushed to the operating room and an effort made to save her, but she succumbed to her injuries two hours later. She had opened the window and lifted the screen while the nurse was absent. The patient is said to have been mentally irresponsible at the time. She had come to the hospital for a minor operation.

The body was taken in charge by H. M. Patterson & Son and was sent to Cocoa at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night.

$14,000,000 SPENT FOR ROAD BUILDING

Chairman Holder's Annual Report for 1927 Shows Construction of 600 Miles.

Road construction work costing approximately $14,000,000 was completed in Georgia in 1927, the improvements including nearly 600 miles of paved highways, more than two miles of bridges and about 375 miles of grading, according to a report made by Chairman John N. Holder, of the state highway board, submitted to the board Saturday.

Chairman Holder's report is as follows:

"Today the work of the state highway board for the year 1927 comes to a close. It has been the most remarkable year in the history of the state highway department. It is the first year that the state highway board has had sufficient funds with which to carry on a comprehensive program of road construction on the state aid system.

"There has been spent this year for construction up to December 31, $13,624,690.09. There has been completed this year, 2.2 miles of bridges; 590.8 miles of paved roads and 373.04 miles of grading and surfacing with local material.

"The total amount of bridges constructed to date on the state aid system is 145,987 linear feet, or 27.6 miles. The total amount of roads constructed on the state aid system, in round numbers, is 4,000 miles, of which 1,211 miles have been paved.

Total Amount Spent.

"The total amount of money spent by the state highway board since its organization is $58,945,515.95. The overhead charges for 1927 are $417,-

BANDITS BALKED IN ROBBERY PLAN WOUND WOMAN

Mrs. H. Becker Taken to Hospital in Critical Condition—One Grocer Escapes.

An attempted grocery holdup at 180 West Pine street was thwarted early Saturday night by the screams of two small girls, but may cost the life of their mother, Mrs. H. Becker, who was taken to Grady hospital in a dangerous condition with a deep knife wound in her head.

Mrs. Becker was standing near the entrance in the store operated by her husband when two negroes entered. One of the bandits covered Becker with a pistol and, as the girls standing near by began to scream for help, the other intruder grabbed Mrs. Becker, dragged her outside the store and slashed at her several times with a knife.

The negroes then hurried to an automobile and escaped without obtaining any cash or groceries. Call Officers E. E. Brackett and M. D. Cartwright investigated.

B. Stein, operator of a grocery at 384 East Linden street, reported to police Saturday night that he had been held up by two negro bandits and robbed of $65 in cash. He was alone in the store at the time, and three customers had just departed when the negroes entered. Call Officers J. A. Brown and C. E. McCrary were told.

Drug Store Robbed.

The Dixie Drug company, at 332 Houston street, was entered Saturday night by burglars who escaped with a quantity of tobacco and perfumes.

Three rings and $15 were taken from the home of Mrs. H. P. Harris, at 931 Dundee avenue, by burglars late Saturday afternoon.

A quantity of clothing was taken from the home of P. B. Hopkins, 590 Glen Iris drive.

The Nix pool room, at 225 Auburn avenue, was burglarized and $82 was taken.

J. F. Reed, operator of a grocery, at 281 Techwood drive, reported that burglars entered his place and took a quantity of candy and tobacco.

Some hungry thief took a can of oysters and some fish from a truck belonging to A. Fugazzi, while it was parked on Decatur street, late Saturday afternoon.

D. J. Burcell reported to police Saturday night that he was held up by three negroes and robbed of $22 as he entered his home at 952 Mathews street. He said two of the negroes held him up with pistols, while another waited in a parked automobile nearby with the motor running.

Pickpockets Busy.

R. B. Kelley, of Decatur, Ga., reported that his pocket was picked of $134 Saturday morning while he was on a Whitehall street car. He said that he cashed a check for $134 in West End and when he got off the street car at Baker and Peachtree streets, his money was gone.

J. A. Barlow, of 587 Washington street, had his pocket picked of $12.50 Saturday afternoon as he was walking along Broad street near Alabama street.

SMITH IS EXPECTED TO 'AMAZE' DINERS

Democrats Mystefied by N. Y. Governor's Intentions rh Annual Jackson Day Banquet.

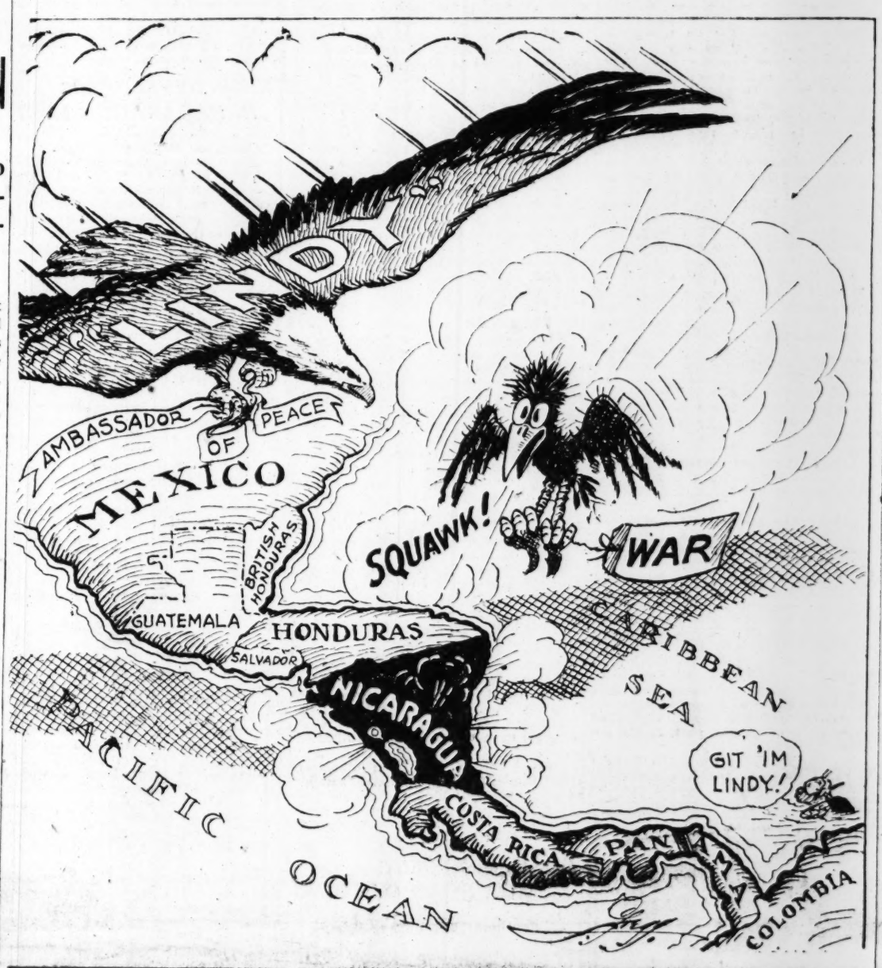

BY SAM W. SMALL
Staff Correspondent.

Washington, January 7.—(Special) There is in private democratic quarters here today an accredited report that the Jackson day dinner party Thursday evening next will be amazed by a letter from Governor Smith of New York. One version is that he will announce his irrevocable decision not to be considered as an available candidate for nomination to the presidency. Those who credit that version say that his recent message to the New York general assembly presaged such a decision, as they read between the line of it.

It is also said that Governor Smith

SUNKEN S-4 YIELDS TEN MORE VICTIMS

Seventeen Bodies, Including Those of Two Georgians, Removed From Ill-Fated Craft.

Provincetown, January 7.—(AP)—The sunken submarine S-4 gave up the bodies of 10 more victims today making a total of 17 that have been recovered out of the crew of 40 aboard the craft when it was rammed and sunk by the coast guard destroyer Paulding three weeks ago today.

Nine of the bodies recovered today were found in the engine room, as were the seven that had been removed from the wreck previously. The tenth was found just inside the door of the motor compartment. The bodies were recovered by 15 divers, working in five relays of three men each, who carried on their search from morning until night.

Officers of the salvage fleet tonight expressed doubt that any more bodies would be removed from the wreck until after the submarine has been raised.

Would Delay Salvage Work.

Divers reported that it was unlikely that additional bodies remained in the engine room and that while there might be others in the motor compartment they would not be removed unless they were found to be in such positions as to interfere with the work of the divers who are preparing the submarine for unwatering, so that it can be raised by means of pontoons.

It was generally agreed by officers of the salvage fleet that the engine room, in which 16 of the 17 bodies so far recovered were found, had not been flooded until divers let in water in entering the wreck and that the victims had not been drowned but had probably died from chlorine gas poisoning.

All the bodies were in good state of preservation except that one had a bad bruise on the face and another a large bump on the side of the head. One of the bodies was dressed in a heavy leather jacket, in the pocket of which was found a half eaten raw potato. Another was clothed only in cotton underwear, one sock and one shoe. The rest were dressed in blue denim.

Two Other Bodies Located.

Divers Thomas Edie, William Carr and C. L. Applegate found four bodies within a few minutes after they entered the engine room this morning. They also located two others but had to return to the surface before removing them. Joseph Eiben, Raymond

GordonShrine Heads To Ask $25,000Fund

Aid of Atlanta Council and Fulton and DeKalb Counties Urged.

Realization of plans to convert the John B. Gordon home in DeKalb county into a memorial shrine to the Confederate hero in the near future was seen Saturday following a meeting of the association in city council chamber at which organization was perfected and plans laid to raise the $25,000 necessary for purchase of the property.

The city of Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties will be asked to contribute $5,000 each towards financing the project. The proposal will be laid before the finance committee of the Atlanta council when it begins formation of the January finance sheet this week, it was announced by Mrs. Kate Green Hess, first vice president at large, who presided in the absence of ex-Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, president.

GEORGIA ART EXPO SLATED NEXT WEEK

100 Exhibitors To Take Part in Event Sponsored by Davison-Paxon Company.

BY LOYD A. WILHOIT.

What rank do the sons and daughters of Georgia hold in the world of art?

That question will be answered graphically next week when the Davison-Paxon company stages an exhibition of strictly Georgia art on the sixth floor of its great department store building on Peachtree street.

This exhibition will consist of works of artists born in Georgia or residents of the state one year and will be composed of original oil, water color or pastel paintings, drawings in black and white, etchings; sculpture (not over 30 inches high); orig-

HUSBAND NAMED HAMMER SLAYER

Lee Wood, 26, Charged With Murder Following Death of Wife, Injured on Roswell Road.

A bill charging murder in the first degree was drawn Saturday in the solicitor general's office against Lee Wood, 26, following the death late Friday night of his wife, Mrs. Delia Wood, from head injuries received last Sunday morning when Wood is alleged by police to have struck her with a hammer. The bill will be presented to the grand jury at Tuesday's session.

Additional evidence involving an alleged robbery career of Wood and J. L. Wilder, the latter having made an alleged confession naming the husband as Mrs. Wood's assailant, will be presented to the grand jury with the bill, police said. According to the alleged confession of Wilder, police said, jealousy was Wood's motive for striking the woman with the hammer.

Mrs. Wood died at Grady hospital without regaining consciousness, her skull having been fractured by heavy blows. Her two male companions, Wood and Wilder, at first said that Mrs. Wood had been injured in an automobile accident on Roswell road near the Chattahoochee river, but Wilder is alleged to have confessed later that an altercation arose between Wood and his wife, during which Wood led her from the car into a thicket and struck her with the hammer.

Both Wood and Wilder are held by police under a blanket charge of suspicion while further investigation of Mrs. Wood's death is made, pending Tuesday's session of the grand jury. Detective Lieutenant T. Shaw and Detectives S. A. Smith and J. A. McKibben discovered a bloody claw hammer while searching the vicinity of the alleged attack, and also found a woman's slipper and signs of a struggle near where the automobile was ditched, they said. Mrs. Wood had lost her right shoe when she was admitted to the hospital, it was said.

Mrs. Wood is survived by her father, H. J. Ledford, of Fairburn, Ga. Funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Roswell Baptist church. Interment will be in the churchyard, with Blanchard Bros. in charge.

ASSASSINS ATTACK PRESIDENT DIAZ

Managua, Nicaragua, January 7.—(United Press.)—An attempt was made last Sunday, it was learned today, to assassinate President Diaz of Nicaragua.

While the president was returning from his hacienda in the coffee district, a group of about 30 men, armed with machetes, attempted to stop the motor car in which he riding.

Several of the men threw themselves in front of the car, but the chauffeur, putting on all speed, drove over their bodies and escaped.

Managua, Nicaragua, January 7.—(AP)—Airplanes returning from Quilali this afternoon with marines wounded in fighting with rebel forces under General Augustino Sandino were fired on by the rebels. No hits were registered, but the machines were forced to fly high.

The attention of marines in their conflict with the rebel general today was turned to a strike at the port of Corinto, just as the first American wounded arrived after a clash with the rebel forces in the department of Nueva Segovia.

The situation in Corinto had become so serious that Colonel Louis Mason Gulick, commander of the American marine forces in Nicaragua, felt it necessary to leave today by airplane for the port. While there he will confer with Admiral David F. Sellers, who arrived at Corinto with additional marines.

The same landing field that Colonel Gulick and America's good-will ambassador, Colonel Lindbergh, used in departures today witnessed the arrival of the first American wounded from the two clashes with Sandino at Quilali, that resulted in six American dead and 28 wounded. Among those who arrived today from the distant battle field through the air were Captain Richard Livingston, who commanded the patrol that took Quilali, and Lieutenant Merton A. Richal.

May Cut Communications.

At Corinto, a strike of stevedores, attributed to sympathy with General Sandino, has caused considerable anxiety. Depredations and disorder near the port raised the fear that railway communication between the capital and the sea might be cut.

Wilson and C. T. Mattox, who were next to go down to the wreck recovered these two bodies shortly before noon.

The next relay of divers, Thomas Campbell, Frank Crilley and George Baker, took three additional bodies from the engine room before they were relieved by Divers John Kelley, William Wickshire and Daniel Burd. Kelley found the last body just inside the door of the motor compartment under an oxygen bottle. The door of the motor compartment was open, Kelley reported, and he had no difficulty in entering. Divers James Ingram, Charles Scott and Patrick Burns were next sent down with orders to enter the control room of the submarine.

Ingram said the door of the control room opened easily and that the compartment was flooded. He found the passageway clear almost to the forward end, but wreckage near the officers' ward room prevented him from reaching the forward door. Ingram said that he saw no bodies in the control room. He discovered a piece of board about two and a half feet long and a foot and a half wide close to the control room door. The board was hauled aboard the Falcon but officers were unprepared to say whether it had any significance.

Will Clear Wreckage Away.

Officers of the salvage fleet said that the task of the divers now would be to clear up the wreckage in the control room so that they could adjust the valves there preparatory to attaching airlines to the control room and engine and motor compartments for unwatering the sunken submarine.

As the bodies of the ten victims recovered today were brought to the surface the flags flown by the vessels of the salvage fleet were lowered to half mast. The bodies were taken aboard the U. S. S. Bushnell and draped in flags, and were later transferred to the destroyer Mahan, which sailed tonight for the Boston navy yard. On arrival at the navy yard the bodies will be taken to the Chelsea Naval hospital for identification.

Weather conditions were favorable for diving and the divers worked for eight hours. The air was clear and the sea warm although the temperature at the bottom was as low as 34 early in the day. It was planned to resume operations tomorrow by sending divers to complete the work of clearing away the wreckage in the control room.

DEFENDANT NAMED AT NAVY INQUIRY.

Boston January 7.—(United News.) For the first time since the S-4 inquiry opened, a defendant has been named.

Lieutenant Commander John S. Baylis, of the coast guard destroyer Paulding, was declared defendant after he had testified today that he never had seen a submarine submerged in the Cape Cod area "until we were in collision with the S-4 when she emerged suddenly on our port bow."

In declaring Baylis defendant, Rear Admiral Richard H. Jackson, president of the court of inquiry, explained the step was taken as a matter of course following first judicial notice of the fact the collision had occurred.

Resume Hearing Monday.

After luncheon recess, court was adjourned until Monday at the request of Commander Leroy Reinberg, counsel for the coast guard, who explained that the changed status of Baylis made it necessary for him to prepare a case on his client's behalf.

The Paulding's commander, today's only witness, gave testimony regarding his ship's course prior to the collision which resulted in the sinking of the submarine on December 17 with a loss of 40 lives.

Baylis testified that on the afternoon of the disaster he was hunting rum-runners near Provincetown. The Paulding, he said, was making 18 knots an hour. In answer to a question by Commander Leslie E. Bratton, judge advocate, he testified that this amounted to about 600 yards per minute.

In accordance with his usual procedure, the witness said, he was on the bridge. After identifying a schooner off Race Point, he ordered a southwest course which would carry the Paulding past Wood End, the outer extremity of the measured mile test run for submarines.

Did Not Know S-4 Was Near.

He said he did not know submarines were operating in those waters. He had seen nothing to indicate that there were submarines in the vicinity.

Under examination, Baylis said he had seen submarines at various times operating in Long Island sound. On one of these occasions, when he saw two submarines, there was a mother ship accompanying them and flying the customary submarine warning flag.

Asked if he observed any naval vessels in the vicinity of Provincetown, Baylis replied he saw none. The nature of his work required careful scrutiny of all vessels, and officers were on the bridge to identify unrecognized ships, he said.

After changing his course at Race Point and proceeding toward Wood End, Baylis said he looked across the low finger of land which forms Long Point and saw northeast storm warnings displayed on the mast on Monument Hill, Provincetown.

In connection with the naming of Baylis as a defendant, Admiral Jackson explained to newspapermen that this was routine procedure in naval inquiries into collision cases. It implied no culpability on the part of the defendant, he said.

Jackson said Lieutenant Commander Roy K. Jones of the S-4, the other party to the collision, would not be named defendant because he lost his life in the accident.

NAVY PREPARES TO BURY SUBMARINE VICTIMS.

Washington, January 7.—(United News.)—As the wrecked submarine S-4 gave up more of its 40 victims today, the navy prepared to bury its heroic dead with full military honors.

The submarine's commander, Lieutenant Commander Roy K. Jones, will be buried Monday with several other officer-comrades in Arlington national cemetery.

Only the blare of a bugle will sound in reverence to the men who gave their lives for their country as "Taps"—the farewell tune is played.

High government officials, friends, relatives and comrades with whom the dead men served, will be in the long procession as it proceeds first to the Fort Myer naval chapel.

The bodies of James Johnson White and Fred Henry O'Shields, other members of S-4 crew will be sent to their homes at Rockmart, Ga., and Atlanta, Ga., respectively.

HOUSE VOTES PROBE OF DISASTER.

Washington, January 7.—(United News.)—The house of representatives today approved an investigation of the S-4 disaster. It adopted the Butler resolution which authorizes President Coolidge to appoint a special investigating committee. The resolution was adopted unanimously and will go before the senate next week.

The resolution was amended to require public hearings. A similar resolution is expected to be passed by the senate early next week. Approval of the investigation was preceded by heated debate during which a demand was made that Secretary of Navy Wilbur resign. It was also charged that the investigation will be a "white wash."

INSURANCE PAID FAMILY OF VICTIM.

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Three weeks to the day after the sinking of the S-4 off Provincetown, the veterans' bureau forwarded a $10,000 insurance check to the beneficiary of one of the submarine's ill-fated crew.

Prohibited by law from divulging the beneficiary's name, the bureau would only say that the money had gone to the family of one of the S-4's officers. Claim for the insurance was presented to the bureau Thursday.

Dinner Host Gets Damages

:: Court Holds Chefs Are Liable for Poor Cooking ::

When Cook Burns Hare Pie

Paris, January 7.—(AP)—Cooks who spoil food in France are liable to damages, a French court has ruled. Not only must they pay for the ruined materials, but also for the damaged feelings and public humiliation of the host.

This legal interpretation of a cook's responsibility follows the historic example of M. Vatel, cook to King Louis IV, who in 1671 killed himself by leaping on his sword when he realized that the fish he had served the French monarch was badly cooked through his negligence.

It took the prominent criminal lawyer, M. Alexandre Zeaves, to get this principle of jurisprudence established in law. He won his suit against a neighborhood pastry cook who prepares dishes and caters to people in need of help in serving elaborate dinners. The lawyer charged that in burning a hare pie the cook had rendered his dinner party "a terrible failure."

Last Saturday Zeaves had a gathering of distinguished theatrical people at his table ready for a helping of game pie, which he had announced as something very unusual, prepared from an ancient recipe. His cook suddenly came into the dining room pale and excited and whispered the bad news. Zeaves swore vengeance and sought redress in court. The pastry cook's only defense was "accidents will happen."

The court, however, ordered him to replace the cracked crock, pay for the game and most important of all, soothe the host's feeling and salve his wounded pride by handing over 40 francs ($1.60) as damages for injuring the host's reputation as a person at whose dinners the food was excellent.

$14,000,000 SPENT FOR ROAD BUILDING

lowest overhead the state highway board has had since its organization.

"Never in the history of the state highway department has more efficient work been done, than in 1927. The accounting department is well organized and operates now at practically the same cost when the state highway board handled less than half the amount of money it now handles.

"All the departments of the state highway department have become more efficient and a spirit of cooperation exists among the membership of the state highway department that is the best that has prevailed since the organization of the department.

"The commitments for 1928, including the Coastal highway, are, in round numbers, $2,400,000.

"There was let to contract on December 21 $3,100,000. Projects that will be constructed by county forces will amount to $1,500,000. There will be available for construction in April, $2,500,000. There will be available for construction in August $1,500,000.

Border-to-Border Roads.

"While, as you gentlemen know, we have done our best to carry out the law to the letter as well as we could by building roads connecting county seat with county seat, yet in 1928 the state highway board, as you know, has a program of budget that will give to the state aid system four great paved highways leading from state border to state border.

"On the route from Atlanta to the Florida line, a distance of practically 400 miles, every mile of road has either been paved or is under contract to be paved except in Turner county, where the county with its forces is preparing the roadbed for paving, which will be let in April. The letting of this project in April will provide a paved road from Atlanta to the Florida line. Also in April will be let to contract paving projects from Marietta to the Tennessee line, which will complete the paving of the highway from the Tennessee line through Atlanta and Macon to the Florida line. There will also be let to contract in April the project from Swainsboro to Piney Bluff, which will complete the paving of the highway from Augusta to the Florida line, a distance of practically 230 miles.

"All of the Coastal highway is now under construction except a small section near the Florida line where a gravel base has been built and only the surfacing remains to be done.

"The road from Atlanta to the Alabama line at West Point is under construction and the paving of same will be completed some time in the spring.

Atlanta-North Carolina.

"The road from Atlanta to the North Carolina line is either paved or will be paved during the year 1928. The link of road from Lawrenceville to Buford is now being constructed by the county forces of Gwinnett county and from Gainesville to the White county line or to the Habersham county line will be built by forces of Hall county in cooperation with the state highway board. Thus you see that by the end of 1928 these four great highways will be paved from state border to state border.

"As stated to you above, this is being accomplished in strict accordance with the law by cooperating with the counties in building roads from county seat to county seat.

"Within three more years Georgia will have a system of paved highways that will serve every section of Georgia. Of course, this does not mean that all highways will be paved on the state aid system but every section of the state will be served by that time with a hard-surfaced road.

"At the conclusion of this year's work permit me to express to each of you my sincere appreciation for your manifestation of good will toward me and for the friendly cooperation which you have given me in discharging the duties which have devolved upon me. I trust that each of you will continue to enjoy the blessings of life and that next year will be the greatest and happiest of your existence. It shall be my purpose to give to the state highway board the very best service of which I am capable and to help to build durable roads at minimum cost on the state aid system.

"For each of you I entertain sentiments of good will and high personal esteem. May the blessings of the Heavenly Father rest upon you and yours, is my earnest wish."

STRIKE DEVELOPERS IN NACARAGUA PORT

rines was available for duty in the region and it was considered likely that they would be posted at strategic points along the railway. This railway, the only one in Nicaragua, connects Managua and other points of the interior with the sea.

Sixty men, well armed and well mounted, attacked the laborers on a plantation at La Cabrera De Ameya, advices from the district of Chinandega stated. The bandits plundered the district and committed various depredations.

Since Ameya is directly across the bay of Estero from Corinto, it was feared that an attempt might be made to blow up the bridge connecting Corinto to the mainland, thus cutting off the seaport of Parril.

The strike of stevedores in Corinto has caused anxiety since approximately 65 per cent of the foreign commerce of Nicaragua passes through Corinto. The customs collector said that he believed the strike was in sympathy with the rebel activities of General Augustino Sandino. It is thought that the attack on the plantation was staged by sympathizers with the strikers.

More Bombing Planned.

The air section of the marine garrison at Quilali was in excellent shape for bombing attack upon the Sandino rebels. Six new pursuit planes have reached there and additional men were massed for the drive against Sandino. The marines were well supplied with food and ammunition.

Sandino's present location was a mystery. The country affords many hiding places for the rebel bands. Once spotted by the planes in their patrols, the bands are bombed and likely hiding places attacked from the air.

Most of the towns in Nueva Segovia are in the hands of the marines. Reinforcements will be installed in additional towns as they are taken over.

The national guard, under General E. R. Beadle, is being increased. The recruits will be put through a stiff course of training.

THREE CRUISERS TO CARRY MARINES.

Washington, January 7.—(United News.)—Three cruisers were detached from the Atlantic fleet today and ordered to pick up part of the 1,148 marines leaving the United States Monday for Nicaragua.

The "Devil Dogs" were concentrated today at Charleston, S. C., and Hampton Roads, Va., on the east coast, and San Diego, Calif., on the west, the cruisers Trenton, Raleigh and Milwaukee, sailing south with the Atlantic fleet for battle maneuvers, will take aboard 250 of the fighters at Charleston.

Major-General John A. Lejeune, marine corps chief, will leave with the Charleston group to spend two weeks in the central American republic reviewing American forces and perhaps visiting the mountain wilderness of Neuvo Segovia, where about 3,000 marines and native constabulary are to be concentrated on the task of wiping out the rebel leader, Augustino Sandino, and more than 1,000 well-armed guerilla fighters.

Marine headquarters said a mounted battery, consisting of four 3-inch guns, will go with the reinforcements, to be used against the revolutionaries in the rugged mountainous country.

Well Outfitted.

In the force leaving the east coast will be 40 officers in addition to Feland, Dunlap and Sanderson, of which three are majors, 12 captains, 13 first lieutenants and 12 second lieutenants. Two chief gunners are included in this east coast force.

The west coast force, under command of Major H. C. Pierce, will have besides the 467 men, 19 officers, of whom five are captains, eight first lieutenants and six second lieutenants. There will also be one chief gunner.

Outfitted as no Central American expedition ever has been before, the new marine contingent will have 24 naval medical officers and 70 hospital corps men accompanying them.

The forces to embark at Hampton Roads and Charleston were gathering today from eastern points as follows: Annapolis, 5; Boston, 15; Dover, Del., 5; Great Lakes, 5; Fort Mifflin, 5; Hampton Roads, 30; Newport, R. I., 10; Hingham, Mass., 10; New York, 25; Norfolk, 65; Philadelphia, 5; Portsmouth, 20; Charleston, S. C., 20; Key West, 5; New Orleans, 25; Paris Island, 257; Pensacola, 10; Indianhead, 10; Iona Island, 5; New London, 5; Quantico, 92; S. Charleston, W. Va., 10; Washington, 15 and Yorktown, 2.

Another group will embark at Hampton Roads, bringing the east coast force to 681 officers and men. At San Diego, 467 will board several navay destroyers and cruisers.

The San Diego and Charleston forces will go to Corinto, on the Pacific coast of Nicaragua. The Hampton Roads detachment will go to Bluefields on the Atlantic coast.

2,454 Marines at Front.

With arrival of the new force, a total of 2,454 marines will be in Nicaragua. Some will be distributed over the country as guards, training the Nicaraguan guardia nacionale, but the main body will converge against Sandino.

Command of the entire Nicaraguan marine force will go to Brigadier General Logan Feland, who will leave from Charleston with LeJeune and Lieutenant Colonel C. R. Sanderson. The two battalions leaving Monday will be under direct command of Colonel R. H. Dunlap, who sails from Hampton Roads.

On arrival in Nicaragua, the new force will be organized into one regimental headquarters company of 67 men, one regimental service company of 147 men, and two battalions to be designated as the first and second battalions, consisting of 467 men each with a total of 934 men.

These units will be known generally as the 11th regiment, its eight companies to be known as the 2d, 14th, 46th, 47th; 40th, 52d, 55th and 57th companies.

SANDINO PATRIOT, SAYS BRAZIL PAPER.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, January 7.—(AP)—Commenting editorially on the Nicaraguan situation the newspaper Correio da Manha says that the name of the rebel general, Sandino, must be included among the chief personalities in the history of the Americas.

The paper criticizes Latin-American governments for their silence while the United States maintains a battlefront in Nicaragua making a cowardly attack on a small group of patriots under a new Bolivar. Of the battle of Quilali, when marines took Sandino's headquarters from him, the paper says gang men from the greatest American power were routed.

Nicaraguan intervention is described as the greatest international crime of the present day, and attention is called to the approaching Pan-American conference in Havana, which the paper says must discuss the situation or admit itself a costly bit of usefulness.

ART EXHIBITION SLATED NEXT WEEK

designs in textiles, rugs, tapestries, book plates and architecture, block prints, handweaving from original designs, feather fans, wood carving and inlay and pottery.

So far as is known, this is the first time a southern commercial institution has sought to bring to public attention the talent that lies within its own state, and Mrs. Miriam D. Crew, in charge of the exhibit, stated that the response of Georgia artists—both those living in this state and in other states—has been gratifyingly prompt and willing.

100 Artists Enter.

More than 100 of these artists, she added, have sent in from one to nine exhibits each, and in view of the fact that the exhibit is juried, the display will comprise the best talent of this state and its choicest creations.

The works of art will be on display from January 16 through January 25. At 2:15 o'clock each afternoon on the sixth floor of Davison-Paxon company there will be given free to the public a gallery talk by some outstanding man or woman on the following subjects: "The Marriage of Art and Commerce," "Architecture of Today," "Effect of Art on Our Everyday Life," "Evolution of the Small Home," "Interior Decoration," "Pottery—History of with Demonstration," "Handicrafts," "Color and Design—Science of and Uses," "Paintings, Various Mediums, Value in Home." Speakers and the complete program will be announced later.

While certain of the objects of art on display will be for sale, no commission will be charged for any exhibits sold and the artists will receive in full the amount paid.

"This exhibit distinctly follows the spirit of the age in helping to spread a general appreciation of artistic things and the fundamental principles of good taste, for it is believed that it will appeal to a large number of people who, while they may have artistic tendencies, never have the time to visit an art gallery," Mrs. Crew said Saturday.

"Great department stores of today, in their commercial relations, are a growing factor in their influence upon public taste and are working hand in hand with art museums. Cooperation between those who devote themselves to the creation of artistic things and those who are interested in selling only that which is in good taste will advance the quality of our applied art and increase the demand of the public for those which show skill in applying the principle of beauty to a point where it will become a national asset."

Cash prizes have been offered, and their awarding will be decided by a committee that has been appointed from the Atlanta Art association. These awards will be made by the advisory board, consisting of J. Carroll Payne, J. J. Haverty, Mrs. Frank Inman, Dr. M. L. Brittain, Mrs. R. K. Rambo, Wilbur Kurtz, Mrs. C. M. Jerome, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, Miss Jessie Muse and others.

The Atlanta Art association has helped in every possible way to make the exhibition a success, and Mrs. Crew declared that a large portion of the credit is due to this body for its splendid cooperation and assistance.

New Engine Tested.

Philadelphia, January 7.—(AP)—Tests of a new type air-cooled airplane motor were made at the navy yard today by Lieutenant Arthur Gavin. The motor was installed in a giant Martin bomber and develops 550 horsepower. Gavin took the plane up 11,000 feet and remained for a half hour.

COSTA RICA CROWD GREETS LINDBERGH poured through the lines of police and swept on the field.

As ever alert to the danger of hitting spectators, the flier lifted the Spirit of St. Louis from the ground three times before he finally came to a halt.

President Oreamuno and Roy T. Davis, American minister to Costa Rico, were on hand to greet the American flier.

THRONG CHEERS "LINDY" AT MANAGUA.

Managua, Nicaragua, January 7.—(United News.)—A huge crowd gathered to cheer Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on his way today as the aviator took off in the Spirit of St. Louis for San Jose, Costa Rica.

The farewell drew a throng rivaling that of Thursday's welcome. Lindbergh came to the flying field shortly after 10 a. m. and tested his plane's motors. He shot into the air at 11:03 a. m. (11:48 a. m. eastern standard time.)

A 210-mile stretch of picturesque scenery lay between the flier and his goal. He was to pass over Lake Managua and then over Costa Rica's tall mountains and volcanoes.

At one point in his journey he could fly high enough to see the Pacific ocean at his right and the Atlantic at his left.

PLAN TO ESTABLISH NEW AIR ROUTE.

New York, January 7.—(AP)—A survey of the possibility of a commercial air route between North America and the Latin-American territory traversed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on his present good-will flight will be undertaken next week by three planes, flying in relays, it was announced today by the Pan-American Airways, Inc.

A Fairchild plane will leave New York Tuesday for Key West, bearing Captain C. B. D. Collyer, of the Aviation Service corporation, which specializes in aerial map making and surveying. From Key West Captain Collyer plans to fly to Cuba in a trimotored Fokker, one of the planes engaged in the regular Key West-Havana air mail service.

In a Sikorski amphibian plane of the S-36 type he will follow a route tentatively announced as passing from Cuba over the Gulf of Mexico to southern Mexico, thence through Central America along the line of Colonel Lindbergh's tour, and continuing as far as the Magdalena river in Columbia, with an extensive exploratory flight over Venezuela.

FATHER ALSO HONORED IN CONGRESS.

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—The aspersions cast upon Colonel Lindbergh's father as compared to the honors heaped upon the son by the house of representatives have been recalled to the house by Representative Vale, farmer-labor member, Minnesota.

A poem and an article eulogizing the paths hewn by the two, and recalling the almost single-handed fight of the father while a member of congress against the money trusts and his opposition to the entrance of America into the world war were read on the floor by the Minnesota representative.

NEW U. S. PROGRAM INCLUDES MEMORIAL FOR WEST POINT

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—The erection at West Point of a $2,000,000 world war memorial building is contemplated in a $6,090,000 building program for the military academy submitted to congress today by the war department.

Chairman Morin, of the house military committee, to which it was referred, announced that he would introduce a bill the first of the week to place the proposal before the committee in legislative form. The memorial building, in addition to providing space for housing war relics, would contain a large assembly hall.

Guest of John D.

Ormond Beach, Fla., January 7.—(United News.)—Rev. Patrick J. Lennon, of St. Cecelia's church, New York, arrived here today for a two weeks visit with his old friend, John D. Rockefeller.

COTTON MEN WILL HELP U. S. EXPERTS MAKE STANDARDS

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Representatives of 18 of the principal cotton growers', manufacturers' and shippers' associations and of the cotton exchanges, including New York, New Orleans and Chicago, have been invited by the department of agriculture to be here January 16, when cotton will be selected for use in making practical forms of staple standards under authority of the cotton futures and cotton standards acts.

A number of bales of each length of staple will be selected and put away for use in preparation of practical forms for future distribution.

SINCLAIR ATTACKS U. S. JURY ACTION

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Picturing Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil operator, as "the object of the most lawless conduct of government," Martin W. Littleton, his counsel, today asked Justice Frederick L. Siddons, in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, to expunge a grand jury presentment accusing the oil man of conspiracy. Justice Siddons took the motion under advisement.

The presentment, returned a week ago without the usual accompanying indictment, charged Sinclair, William J. Burns and five associates with having conspired to obstruct justice in the employment by Sinclair of Burns detectives to shadow the Fall-Sinclair trial jury. Littleton who asked that the presentment be expunged on the ground the jury had no authority to present it, said that should the document be allowed to stand there was no way for those named to defend themselves against the charges.

"Constitution Evaded."

"The constitution has been evaded, flouted or openly violated," declared Littleton, "in order that Sinclair might be struck a blow—generally in the back."

Peyton Gordon, district attorney, opposed the granting of the motion on the ground that the grand jury was within its rights and had no other course to pursue when it returned the presentment. Gordon, who had refused to draw indictments based on the presentment, also argued the court was without power to expunge the document.

MORNINGSIDE LEAGUE IN FIRST 1928 MEETING

With the newly-installed president, E. Stephens, presiding, the Morningside Civic league held its first meeting of the year Friday night, with an enrollment of about 100 members. Reports of committees and subcommittees were read.

The report of the improvement committee resulted in the appointment of a subcommittee to take subscriptions for the purpose of creating a fund for the protection of the residents of that section with regard to building restrictions.

A great part of the time was occupied in a discussion of the Morningside school, questioning the feasibility of the proposed location at Rock Springs road and Highland avenue, and also the feasibility of a septic tank for its sewage accommodations.

Slim-Hipped Flappers Found

:: THIN MAIDS LIVE LONGER THAN STOUT SISTERS ::

Healthy as Girls of Gay '90's

Washington, January 7.—(United News.)—Flat chested, narrow hipped flappers of today are just as healthy as their more buxom sisters of the gay '90's—perhaps healthier—according to the United States Public Health service.

The thin, stylish, modern girl can expect to live longer than the stouter women of the Gibson girl days, as persons of normal weight can expect a longer life now, the medical experts of the service said today. Women and girls who keep their figures down to the slim vogue by dieting, avoid overweight, which produces high blood pressure, they added.

Too stringent a diet, however, is bad. The health service's recommendation is "eat anything desired but don't gormandize. Don't eat quite as much as you want, to keep weight within a reasonable figure."

Regarding smoking and drinking, the federal doctors contend women do not injure their systems with these habits any more than do men. The habits affect both sexes deleteriously but are not extremely harmful if used in moderation, they added.

Flapper wives who expect to become mothers can smoke without fear of injuring the baby, provided smoking is not in excess, but drinking is positively taboo, the physicians said.

The fat or stout women of today, however, have one advantage of the slim ladies—they do not get so cold in the winter.

Women in general suffer from the cold less than men because they have several more layers of fat tissues under the skin.

Stou persons, however, suffer more in warm weather than do the slim ones.

Limbs and necks exposed to cold air become accustomed to the exposure, too, and the winds of winter have no ill effects.

BALDWIN COUNTY PRIMARY ENTRIES CLOSE SATURDAY

Milledgeville Ga., January 7.—Much interest is manifest in the forthcoming primary for election of county officers in Baldwin county which will close on Jannary 14.

All present county officers have announced for reelection as follows: Ordinary, W. H. Stembridge; sheriff, S. L. Terry; coroner, C. I. Newton; secretary, Otto M. Conn; tax collector, Benjamin Bass; tax receiver, Briscoe Wall; clerk of court, J. C. Cooper; county commissioner, Dr. O. F. Moran; county school superintendent, P. N. Bivins.

Dr. S. A. Boone has announced as a candidate for county school superintendent, the place now being held by P. N. Bivins. M. C. Harrington, a prominent farmer of Hopewell community, and W. D. Giles, of East Baldwin, are opposing Dr. O. F. Moran for county commissioner. Other announcements are expected before the entries close.

FIRE DESTROYS SCHOOL IN NORTH CAROLINA

Wilmington, N. C., January 7.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin late Friday night destroyed the Green Sea school building and contents in Horry county, S. C., according to information reaching here late today. Two residences nearby were slightly damaged. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

LATIN-AMERICAN FRANKNESS URGED TO END TROUBLES

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Greater understanding and frankness between the United States and Latin-American countries were advocated as the means of solving difficulties and removing causes of friction between this country and her southern neighbors, by various speakers at a foreign policy association luncheon today.

F. R. Kellogg, counsel for numerous industrial and financial interests in Latin-America, said misunderstandings would continue unless at the forthcoming Pan-American conference, Latin-America adopts a policy of protecting American lives and property. Such a policy, he said, would do more than anything else to bring about a peaceful understanding between South America and the United States.

LAST RITES TODAY FOR W. B. JOHNSON

Funeral services for W. B. Johnson, 72, who died Friday night at his home, 135 Meade road, Decatur, from injuries received September 4, 1927, when a buggy he was driving on College avenue was struck by an automobile, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of A. S. Turner in Decatur. The Rev. A. J. Moncrief will officiate and interment will be in Decatur cemetery.

16 STRIKERS' FAMILIES OUSTED FROM HOMES

Pittsburgh, Pa., January 7.—(AP)—Sixteen families of striking union miners were evicted from Vesta Coal company houses in Washington county today by deputy sheriffs and company police.

William Feeney, international organizer for the United Mine Workers at Charlerio, said the families were evicted in violation of an agreement with the coal concern which stipulated they might remain until next Monday noon. Company officials said such an arrangement was made with only four families and that they were permitted to stay until Tuesday of next week.

It was added that those evicted today were given notice to leave last June 30, and that more would be put out of the houses within a few days. The houses, it was said, were needed for men employed in the Vesta mines.

The effects of the families were placed along the highway and some of it was still there tonight, union officials said, pending removal to union barracks now under construction. The miners and their kin went to the homes of relatives and friends.

INTERNATIONAL LAW ADVISORY BODY IS ORGANIZED

Cambridge, Mass., January 7.—(United News.)—An American advisory committee on the codification of international law was organized here today under the direction of the Harvard Law School faculty.

The committee will seek cooperation of America's legal scholars to place before the first conference for the codification of international law, a systematic statement of America thought on the subjects on which codification will be attempted—nationality, territorial waters, and responsibility of states for damage done in their territory to the persons or property of foreigners.

SUMMERVILLE ELECTS EUGENE TAYLOR MAYOR

Summerville, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—In today's municipal election Eugene S. Taylor, local attorney and business man, was elected mayor of Summerville without opposition. John D. Taylor, Dr. O. A. Selman, George D. Espy and Colonel Wesley Shropshire were elected councilmen from their respective wards without opposition. J. F. Pless, mayor for the past two years, declined reelection and none of the old councilmen asked another term.

Georgia Press Council Plans Made in Macon

Wacon, Ga., January 7.—Preliminary plans for the Georgia Press institute, which will meet in Macon February 15, 16, 17 and 18, have been formulated here at a meeting of the committee on arrangements.

The institute is being held for all newspaper workers in Georgia who care to attend.

Work during the four days at the institute has been divided into three sections. During the mornings, class hours from 8:31 to 1 o'clock will deal with various problems of the newspaper world, such as the feature article, reporting, editorial writing and headwriting. Classes will be led by teachers of journalism in schools of the state.

Addresses and round table discussions will occupy the attention of the institute during the afternoon sessions. Round table discussions will be held on principles and ethics of journalism, the county newspaper and the editorial page. There will also be open forums held during the afternoon sessions on business methods, advertising and cost finding.

The night meetings of the institute will be filled with addresses from various leaders in national thought throughout the country. Plans have already been made for a joint debate at one of the meetings between two leading state figures on the vexing problem of state financing.

David Lawrence, publisher of the United States Daily, is slated to deliver an address to the institute Friday night. "Fuzzy" Woodruff, of the Atlanta Georgian, is also to deliver an address, as will Miss M. Virginia Garner, head of the department of journalism at Wesleyan college.

Members of the arrangements committee are John Paschal, managing editor of the Atlanta Journal, chairman; Miss Emily Woodward, president of the Georgia Press association, ex-officio member; Miss M. Virginia Garner, Edgar E. Folk, Hubert Dyer and Mark F. Ethridge.

SKELETON HIDDEN BY STUDENT STARTS POLICE INQUIRY

Baton Rouge, La., January 7.—(AP) What local authorities looked upon as a murder mystery was dissolved ludicrously here tonight when John Noto, business man, rushed to police headquarters and informed officers that fragments of a human skeleton found today in the city dump heap were parts of a discarded skeleton his son, Joe Noto, had brought home from the medical school of the University of Mississippi.

Noto, a former basketball star at Louisiana State university, is now attending Loyola university of Chicago.

FORMER GEORGIAN NAMED POLICE HEAD IN TENN. FEUD TOWN

Chattanooga, Tenn., January 7.—(AP)—Mayor Alan Kelly, of South Pittsburgh, announced today the appointment of Will Wilkerson, of Chattanooga, as chief of police to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James Conner, one of the victims of the Christmas night street battle in that city between city and county officers.

Wilkerson is a native of Georgia but has been a resident of Chattanooga several years.

MILTON WINSLETTE BURIED IN ALBANY

Albany, Ga., January 7.—(Special.) Milton Whitfield Winslette, 35, died Thursday night at the home of his brother, D. A. Winslette. He had been ill for several weeks.

Winslette was reared in Putnam county but has made his home with his brother in Albany for the past seven years and was associated with him in building and contracting work. He served in the United States navy for eighteen months during the world war.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. D. W. Winslette, of Eatonton, Ga., and eight brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at Albany, with interment in the Albany cemetery.

STATESBORO YOUTH ON NICARAGUA PATROL

Statesboro, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—William Rigdon, son of Mrs. D. B. Rigdon, of this city, is an enlisted man on the Tulsa, an American patrol boat on duty in the Nicaraguan waters.

Since last February this boat has been on duty in the Nicaraguan waters, and vicinity, patrolling and searching for concealed munitions. During the height of the revolution, a detachment of sailors was on duty ashore in Nicaragua. Besides young Rigdon, 12 other Georgia boys are serving on the Tulsa, among them, James L. Reeves, Henry P. Sanders, Henry C. Sinyard, all of Atlanta.

CHANGES IN TAX LAWS EFFECTIVE

Beauty parlors and horse traders are among local tax payers hardest hit by new levies which became effective January 1, according to a summary of new tax laws issued Saturday by W. S. Richardson, Fulton county's tax collector.

Changes in corporation and occupational taxes made by the last general assembly increased the tax on Georgia's beauty parlors from $10 to $25 and eliminated a clause which allowed horse traders to pay a Fulton county assessment and thereby escape taxes in other counties where they operated.

Hereafter horse traders will be subject to tax in the counties in which they trade, Mr. Richardson believes.

New taxes imposed by the last legislature are as follows:

Auto Parking Tax.

Tax on auto parking places in Fulton county is $50, the amount being fixed according to population. On trucks and trailers used for transportation of freight for hire, the tax is $25. Those vehicles used in agricultural service are excluded.

A new tax of $100 has been assessed against all persons vending commodities at baseball parks in cities of more than 40,000 population.

The tax in Fulton county on amusements offered in other than licensed theaters is $50, the rate being fixed on county population.

In Fulton county all plumbing and tinning contractors have been assessed $25. This amount is also fixed by population of various counties.

Fish Peddlers' Tax.

A tax of $10 on each vehicle peddling fish and sea food is now in effect, when the peddlers are non-resident, while bowling alleys, shooting galleries and like amusement places are taxed $50 in Fulton county, and in other counties according to population.

Changes in old tax statutes were made as follows:

Advertising—Old rate 75 cents for each location; new rate $1 for each location.

Auctioneers—New rate $100 on auctioneers selling by auction any kind of goods, live stock; whereas the old rate specified different classes of auctioneers and different rates.

Automobile and Truck Dealers: There is no change in the amount of tax, but there is a provision that the service station in connection with the automobile agency, which is exempt from garage taxes, will be subject to this tax if any work is done on cars other than those sold by the dealer.

Motor Buses: The new rate on motor buses is fixed at $25 on each bus with a passenger capacity of seven or less, and on each bus of more than this capacity the rate is $50; buses used in transporting school children are exemp from either of the rates specified.

Cemetery Tax.

Cemetery Companies: The tax on cemetery companies has been increased from $50 to $100.

Circuses: The tax on circuses is based on the number of cars used in the transportation of the circus.

Sideshows: The new rate on sideshows provides that the rate is per da·· the amount has not been changed.

Directories: The tax on directory companies has been reduced from $125 to $25.

Pressing Clubs: The rate on pressing clubs has not been changed; but the new law provides that any person, firm or corporation engaging in any dry cleaning business shall also be subject to the tax on dry cleaners.

Electric Contractors: This tax is increased from $10 to $25.

Gas and Oil Trucks: The tax on trucks selling gasoline or oil from wagons or trucks has not been changed, but the words "in each county" have been eliminated.

Lightning Rods: The tax on persons, firms or corporations engaged in fitting or erecting lightning rods has been reduced from $50 to $10.

Legislative Agents: Upon each person registered under the act of the general assembly approved April 11, 1911, the tax is now $250, the old rate $100.

Machines: Check protectors and domestic ice machines retailing for more than $10 has been added to the paragraph covering adding machines and the rate has been fixed according to the population, the tax in this county being $100.

Rate on Typewriters.

Typewriters: The new rate is fixed according to the population in the different counties, but there is no change in the rate in Fulton county.

Machines (Slot): The provision that not more than $100 shall be required of any one person in any one county for any number of machines operated has been eliminated.

Musical Instruments: Dealers in radios and radio supplies is subject to the tax on dealers in musical instruments and the rate is fixed according to the population, the tax in Fulton county is $100.

Peddlers: An amendment has been made to the tax on peddlers, exempting peddlers of perishable farm products raised on Georgia farms.

Safes and Vaults: The old tax act read: "Upon all agents or agencies selling safes or vaults, etc.;" the new act reads "Upon each person, firm or corporation or agents thereof selling safes and vaults, etc." The tax rate is unchanged.

Cafes and Restaurants: The tax rate is unchanged except that there is a minimum charge of $5, which was not effective heretofore.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.—(adv.)

Ex-GobMayor Finds Dry Laws

:: Decides U. S. Needs "Helluva" Shaking Up ::

Beat Cook's Pole Trip as Joke

Newburyport, Mass., January 7.—(United News.)—If Mayor "Bossy" Gillis had his say, Al Smith would be president, Secretary Wilbur, of the navy, would be "canned," and Chicago's Mayor Thompson would be given a congressional medal.

Having placed his municipal house in order during his first six days in office by shaking up the police and fire departments and "firing" a few street department employees, the titian-haired ex-sailor turned to higher things today and told the United News his views on some of America's popular problems.

"Bossy" has very decided opinions on almost every issue, including not a few about which, he admits, he knows approximately nothing.

As for world peace, here's how the mayor looks at it: "I think the United States ought to mind its own business. It's got enough to do just looking out for its own affairs. It ought to look out for itself and to hell with the rest of 'em."

"Bossy" disclaimed any familiarity with the Nicaraguan situation, but remarked that he supposed "America's armed forces—the service boys—must go down there and protect the big boys' interests."

If Smith isn't elected president, "Bossy" is a "false alarm" as a political prognosticator.

"Sure Smith'll win," he said, with the same confidence he exhibited a few weeks ago in predicting his own election. "I'm a rock-ribbed republican, but I'm all for getting rid of Cal Coolidge and his law and order business."

"Bossy," who doesn't smoke, chew or drink, but who makes up for this straight-and-narrowness by a wholesale use of profanity, thinks prohibition is "the biggest joke since Cook discovered the pole."

"Anyone with half an eye could see that prohibition is a flop," he observed. "Why, they're peddling liquor all over this town, and Newburyport ain't the worst place on earth, either.

"Hell's bells! give 'em hard liquor and lots of it. What's the harm?" As a last resort, "Bossy" would substitute for the present prohibition law the Canadian system of regulating liquor sales.

America's greatest need today is "a helluva shaking up of the army, navy and marine corps," the mayor declared. As for the navy, "they ought to tie the can on Wilbur and let men like Magruder, Mitchell and Sims take hold of things," he said.

"What do you think about companionate marriage?" he was asked.

"I don't know much about that," "Bossy" replied, "but I strongly favor trial marriage. Hell, if you don't like 'em, send 'em back. If you bought an automobile and you didn't like it you wouldn't keep it, would you?"

GORDON SHRINE TO ASK $25,000

adopted with only a few changes. The association already has been chartered by the state of Georgia and work of raising the needed funds will get under way within the next few days. Constitution and by-laws were prepared by Homer Watkins, prominent attorney.

A. E. Wilson, attorney, reported that an option has been secured on the property, and that it could be converted into a memorial shrine at a small cost. The old home and approximately 10 acres of the estate are involved in the transaction.

The Decatur branch of the Fourth National bank was selected as depository for the association, and the following finance committee was named: J. Howell Green, chairman; Mrs. John K. Ottley, Scott Candler, Mrs. Preston Arkwright and Scott Hudson.

Following are those named to complete the required number of directors:

Pleasant A. Stovall, Savannah; Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta public schools; Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. A. H. Brenmer, Augusta; Mrs. Trox Bankston, of Covington, president of the Georgia division U. D. C.; Dr. Samuel Green, Atlanta; G. Gunby Jordan, Columbus; Mrs. Oscar Palmour, College Park; Mrs. S. V. Sanford, Athens; W. Brown Hayes, Atlanta; Dr. A. I. Branham, of the American Book company; Mrs. Howard H. McCall, Atlanta; Mrs. M. E. Judd, Dalton; Mrs. Stafford Seidell, president Atlanta chapter U. D. C.; Alfred F. Green, Atlanta; Mrs. J. E. Hays, Montezuma; Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, first vice president National U. D. C.; Mrs. W. A. Ozmer, Decatur; Mrs. Wellington Stevenson, president DeKalb county chapter League of Women Voters; Mrs. H. G. Parks, Atlanta; Mrs. R. L. Turman, president Atlanta chapter League of Women Voters.

The following new members were enrolled: Ex-Congressman William D. Upshaw, C. H. Blunt, Decatur; Dr. Samuel Green, Alfred F. Green, F. G. Hughs, Decatur; E. F. Candler, Mrs. Oscar Palmour, College Park; Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, Mrs. C. W. Butler, Miss Katherine Rogers, Willis A. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon H. Shearer, Mrs. Jane L. Langley, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ripley, Bayne Gibson, ex-Senator Hoke Smith, Mrs. A. E. Wilson, Dr. A. I. Branham, Mrs. Joseph Smith, Mrs. H. G. Parks, Mrs. Amelia R. Woodhall.

Proposal to establish the John B. Gordon memorial was launched about ten years ago by the Kirkwood Civic league. Mrs. A. I. Branham was president of the civic body at that time and has been one of the leaders in the movement.

Another meeting of the association will be held within the next few days to make plans for pushing the campaign to finance the project.

SMITH EXPECTED TO "AMAZE" DINERS

is not assured of his acceptability to the party at large by the comments upon his message in the newspapers of the country as they are reported to him. Another view phoned over from New York city this afternoon is that Governor Smith is unwilling to be the agent of continued factionalism in the party and believes the need of harmony and solidarity in the campaign of this year is sufficient reason why he should renounce his chance for the presidential nomination and heartily support whoever may be chosen to lead the party's fight.

Still Another Version.

Yet another version is that Governor Smith's letter will gratefully acknowledge the national committee's invitation to attend the dinner and speak to the guests, but will state that he has not authorized anyone to announce him as a candidate for the presidential nomination, that he has taken no personal step to achieve that distinction, and as a loyal democrat will abide by any decision the representatives of the party make when in national convention.

But the opinion is strengthening here in high democratic circles that Governor Smith will not be a consenting candidate before the convention.

Speculation is rife among democrats as to where the June convention will be located. It is reported that the Smith people are favoring Chicago. That fits in with the rumor of Smith's possible withdrawal of his own name from candidatorial consideration. It also fits the understanding that if the Smith people have to shift from him to some other person they will go to Governor Ritchie and not to Senator Jim Reed. Because they think Reed may have more popular boosters in Detroit than any other candidate, they are against the Henry Ford metropolis as the convention city.

Cox Goes to Miami.

Another report is that Governor Cox has gone to Miami to round up that city's bid for the convention and is using his prestige and influence with committeemen to secure their support for the Florida city. As yet Cleveland and San Francisco do not appear to have much real strength in the committee membership.

Judge Adamson, of the New York customs court of claims, filed his resignation therefrom with the president today and it was accepted with expressions from the chief executive of his high appreciation of the faithful services rendered to the country by the distinguished Georgian. Judge Adamson retires upon full pay during his future life and will probably return to dignified ease in his Georgia home.

INVITATION TO SPEAK ACCEPTED BY REED.

Philadelphia, January 7.—(AP)—Political observers were anticipant of some clarification of the democratic presidential nomination situation with the announcement today of United States Senator James A. Reed's acceptance of an invitation to speak at the Jackson day dinner here Monday night.

The acceptance of the invitation by the Missouri senator, who is chairman of the special senate committee investigating the claims of Senator-elect William S. Vare to a seat in the upper house of congress, is believed by many to presage some definite pronouncement from him regarding his own status in the presidential race.

Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan and leader of the dry wing of the democratic party in Pennsylvania, who recently voiced support of Governor Smith, of New York, for the nomination, is scheduled as one of the speakers at the dinner, as is also Congressman John A. Boylan, of New York, an ardent Smith supporter.

M'ADOO ALSO ACCEPTS INVITATION TO TALK.

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—William G. McAdoo has accepted an invitation to speak at the Jackson day democratic dinner here January 12, but, unlike most of the other speakers, he will not appear in the role of a presidential candidate.

Instead, he is expected to draw upon the experiences of the 1924 democratic convention in Madison Square Garden to give point to a warning that the party must not indulge in another such a contest over the nomination if it hopes to win in 1928.

Governor Smith, of New York, who was Mr. McAdoo's chief opponent at the Madison Square Garden convention, has declined to attend the dinner, at which outstanding democratic presidential possibilities had been asked to discuss the issues of the day.

When McAdoo was asked today whether he would attend the dinner as a candidate, he replied: "No, as an ex-candidate."

CAPITOL VIEW LEAGUE TO HEAR CANDIDATES

Candidates for the post left vacant on the Fulton county commission by the death of the late Charles G. Turner will make a bid for votes of the tenth ward at a meeting of the Capitol View Civic league at 8 o'clock Monday night, it was announced Saturday by John C. Mackey, president

OUSTED EMPLOYEE HUNTED AS AUTHOR OF BLACKMAIL NOTE

Memphis, Tenn., January 7.—(AP)—Police announced tonight that they are looking for a discharged employee of Clarence Saunders as the "ghost man," who demanded $5,500 from the chain grocery owner in a letter received by him yesterday. The letter threatened "disaster to him and his family," if he failed to meet the demand.

While the threatening letter was signed "the three ghost men," Saunders indicated there may have been only one.

SUITOR SHOOTS WIDOW, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Cambridge, Mass., January 7.—(United News.)—His love spurned, Manuel Kaplan, 45, shot and seriously wounded Mrs. Fannie Siegel, widowed mother of three children, in a store here late today, and then committed suicide with the same weapon.

According to police, Kaplan, formerly Mrs. Siegel's "star boarder," became enraged when she ignored his attentions. The shootings occurred after the couple had quarreled in the store. Mrs. Siegel was taken to a hospital, where her condition was reported serious.

FINANCE COMMITTEE WILL MEET MONDAY

Members of the finance committee of city council will begin drafting the January finance sheet at 10 o'clock Monday morning, it was announced Saturday by Councilman A. J. Orme, chairman of the committee.

Delegations from practically every department of the city government will appear before the committee asking for appropriations.

Claims for funds are many times the amount of money which will be available. The city's income will approximate $10,000,000, but requests will total $30,000,000.

BANQUET IS PLANNED FOR TRAVELERS' POST

A program of music and fun has been arranged by members of the woman's auxiliary of post "B," Travelers' Protective association, for a banquet to be staged Tuesday night at the Atlanta Woman's club, it was announced Saturday by Mrs. Sam N. Freeman, president. Press Huddleston will preside. Husbands of members of the post will be special guests of honor.

E. F. Johnson, assisted by Mrs. W. W. Moore, have arranged a program of entertainment.

Rich's mandolin club will be a special feature of the musical offerings.

W. O. STAMPS SPEAKS TO ATLANTA SALESMEN

People of the United States consumed $23,019,019,543 worth of food in 1924, according to statistics released Saturday for information of members of the City Salesmen's association by W. O. Stamps, of the H. L. Singer company, who quoted the figures in an address before the organization.

The salesman of today must be a good business man, courteous, refined, a good mixer and as always a live wire, according to Mr. Stamps, whose address marked the beginning of a series of educational lectures designed to aid those engaged in distributing goods through the Atlanta market.

W. W. Moore, president of the association, presided.

Next Saturday morning J. C. Harrison, J. A. Massey, T. L. Smith and two other members of the association will speak on "Just Among Ourselves of Things Our Employers Must Not Know."

SALESMEN INDORSE HARRISON CANDIDACY

Unanimous indorsement of the candidacy of J. E. Harrison for Fulton county treasurer subject to the county democratic primary of March 7 was voted Saturday by more than 50 salesmen at a meeting at the Atlanta city hall.

Mr. Harrison is known as the dean of Atlanta grocery salesmen, is a past president of the City Salesmen's association, and has been a successful leader in several membership drives of local post "B" Travelers' Protective association.

Steps towards selection of a campaign manager and an executive committee were taken at the meeting and perfection of the organization is scheduled for next Saturday.

Envoy's Son in Crash.

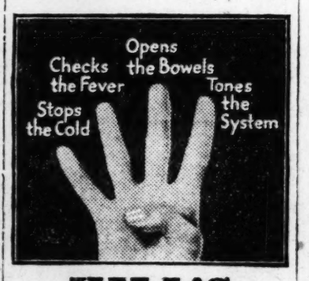

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—The police department reported tonight that an automobile driven by Henry A. Howard, 14-year-old son of the British ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, had struck and injured a 12-year-old girl as she was alighting from a street car.

Vet Trainman Dies.

Cleveland, Ohio, January 7.—(AP)—There was gloom and deep mourning in the hearts of the men who man the Erie railroad today, for Louis W. Berger, 87, brakeman on the Erie for 65 years and "dean of them all," was dead.

Halliburton, Noted Author,

:: TRAVELER TO TELL OF WORLD ADVENTURES ::

To Be Guest of Presidents

Richard Halliburton, world famous adventurer and author of two of the most popular travel books of the year, will be the guest of the Presidents' club of Atlanta at a dinner at 7 o'clock Friday night, January 13, at the Hotel Biltmore, it was announced Saturday.

In addition to being a famous writer, Mr. Halliburton is a noted lecturer. Among the books he has written are "The Royal Road to Romance" and "The Glorious Adventure."

In seeking adventure he has followed ancient paths. He swam the Hellespont as did Lord Byron and Leander; he has climbed Olympus, Stromboli, Vesuvius and Aetna; he has run the marathon over the original course, and has made a pilgrimage to the grave of Rupert Brooke, famous English poet who gave his life in the fighting at Gallipli, and whose body lies in a little, lonely isle of Greece.

Mr. Halliburton graduated from Princeton at the age of 21, and within two years had achieved fame as a round-the-world adventurer.

At the Presidents' club dinner, to which a number of guests will be invited, he will deliver his celebrated lecture on his romantic and somewhat poetic experiences in interesting spots of the world.

Hissing American Tourists

:: Will Make Effort To Get Money Spenders Back ::

Cost France Millions in 1927

Paris, January 7.—(United News.)—With the new year, France has launched an expensive publicity campaign to bring back the American tourist and his gold.

One week, during August, 1926, while the decline of the franc was at its height, angry Parisians unburdened themselves by hissing at sight-seeing cars loaded with pleasure-seeking Americans, and otherwise making it plain to tourists that they were not welcome.

That week has cost France 50,000,000 francs ($2,000,000) already, in lost tourist trade, and the national economic council fears that unless the country spends upward of 50,000,000 francs in advertising her traditional hospitality, the American tourists will continue to stay away from France in droves.

M. Leon Auscher, vice president of the touring club of France, making a report on the tourist situation, said: "The past season was bad in France. The statistics of the steamship companies show there were as many tourists in Europe last year as in former years. But the hotel keepers can testify that the majority of them made but brief stops in France. They went to Germany, Switzerland, Italy and Austria."

These countries were quick to snap up the rich American travel trade which France, by her treatment, drove out of the country. Germany means to keep up the steady inflow of American tourist gold and is spending 90,000,000 francs annually on travel propaganda. Italy is spending 25,000,000 francs and Switzerland 75,000,000.

In spite of the American Legion convention in 1927, which brought 22,000 A. E. F. veterans and their friends during one month, the summer tourist season was a flat failure, as fear of renewed hostility kept Americans out.

The annual report of earnings of the seven great French railway systems reflects the lack of tourist travel. During the week of August 13 to 19, the earnings were more than $1,500,000 less than the corresponding week in 1926, a decline of 11 per cent.

Yet, despite the knowledge that France has suffered a decline in tourist trade and that organizations are going to spend a fortune to regain it, a few French newspapers have renewed their anti-American campaign.

Grounded Ship Floated.

Miami, Fla., January 7.—(AP)—The Belgian merchant marine training ship L'Avenior which went aground on the Little Bahama banks with 64 cadets aboard, passed south off Miami Beach late today, en route to Key West in tow of the tug Warbler, which pulled her free.

Autoist Beaten.

Jacksonville, Fla., January 7.—(AP) W. E. Park, young Jacksonville businessman, was in a hospital tonight recovering from wounds received when he was beaten about the head with an automobile crank by an old man whom he had given a lift.

HAPGOOD WEDS SACCO-VANZETTI COMMITTEE HEAD

Boston, January 7.—(AP)—The marriage in New York last week of Powers Hapgood, of Indianapolis, Harvard graduate and radical, and Miss Mary Donovan, of Boston, secretary of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee, both of whom achieved wide notice through their activities in the Sacco-Vanzetti case last summer, was disclosed tonight in a letter received from Miss Donovan by Aldino Felicani, of the defense committee.

Both Hapgood and Miss Donovan were arrested several times on charges resulting from the public demonstrations in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti and a prison sentence, from which an appeal has been taken, now is hanging over Miss Donovan. The date and place of the wedding were not disclosed in the letter.

TABERNACLE REVIVAL ENTERS SECOND WEEK

Judge Roscoe Luke, of the Georgia court of appeals, will begin the second of a two weeks' revival service at the Baptist tabernacle at 7:30 o'clock tonight, it was announced Saturday by the Rev. Dr. Will H. Houghton, pastor.

Judge Luke has spoken to thousands despite the cold wave which greeted the start of the campaign last Sunday, and with predictions for moderate weather it is believed the attendance will be more than double this week.

He is being assisted in the service by Charles Butler, noted evangelical soloist and choir director, and Miss Lillian Butler, accomplished pianist.

Earthquake Recorded.

Santa Monica, Cal., January 7.—(AP)—A sharp earthquake shock was felt here at 2:52 p. m., today. No damage was reported. The shock lasted several seconds and was of sufficient force to rattle crockery on shelves.

AUTO ACCIDENT FATAL TO HARRIMAN'S SON

Great Neck, N. Y., January 7.—(AP)—Alan Harriman, son of a prominent New York banker, who thought himself only slightly injured in an automobile accident yesterday, died suddenly today of a blood clot on the brain.

Found under his overturned automobile yesterday, the 29-year-old son of Joseph Harriman, founder of the Harriman National bank, lay unconscious for an hour while the technicality of a county line held an ambulance from coming to his aid. Taken to the office of a physician he regained conscious and was told that he was merely suffering from shock and a sprained ankle.

WIFE OF NEW YORK GOVERNOR UNDER KNIFE AT HOSPITAL

New York, January 7.—(United News.)—Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the governor, was resting easily at St. Vincent's hospital tonight after undergoing an operation for a sudden attack of acute appendicitis.

Mrs. Smith, who was Miss Catherine A. Dunn before her marriage, was rushed from the gubernatorial suite at the Biltmore hotel to the hospital. The operation was performed while the governor and other members of the family in New York waited at the hospital.

A bulletin issued by Dr. Raymond T. Sullivan at 8:30 p. m. said: "Mrs. Smith was operated upon for acute appendicitis at 5:45 p. m. The operation was successful. The present condition of the patient is most satisfactory."

The governor remained at the hospital.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches of all sorts are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

CHAPLIN'S FORMER BUTLER MURDERED

Salt Lake City, Utah, January 7.—(AP)—Don Salovitch, of Los Angeles, slain yesterday near Manti, Utah, by Sheldon Clark, 25, of Manti, was identified today by Clark as a butler formerly in the employ of Lita Grey Chaplin, screen actress.

Clark confessed he beat Salovitch over the head with a hammer, inflicting fatal injuries. The attack occurred while the two were en route here from Los Angeles in Salovitch's automobile. The slayer said that Kono, Japanese butler for Charles Chaplin, screen star and former husband of Lita Grey Chaplin, had loaned Salovitch $2,500.

He also declared that Lloyd Wright, Chaplin's Los Angeles attorney, had advanced $15,000 to Salovitch in connection with the Chaplin divorce case. He gave no further details on this point.

Will Reenact Murder.

Clark cleared up the identity of his victim while being returned to Manti, 130 miles south of here, to reenact the struggle in which Salovitch was killed.

Sheriff Clifford Patten expressed the belief that robbery was the motive of the slaying and declared he would demand a first degree murder charge against the youth.

When arrested, Clark had $2,169 in cash on his person which the sheriff believes was taken from Salovitch. The slain man's pockets had been emptied with the exception of a California driver's license and clipping of a newspaper interview with Salovitch in which he told of being a former opera dancer, a movie actor and heir to a $6,000,000 estate in southern France.

Disbelieves Slayer's Story.

His grandparents were named in the interview as Rudolph H., and Emaline Tartare, of the French nobility, and it was said a sister, the Duchess of Marland, had promised him $2,000,000.

Sheriff Patten said he placed little credence in the story of Salovitch's inheritance and noble lineage.

In his confession, Clark declared he killed his companion after the latter had become offensive and attacked him with a hammer. He said he knocked Salovitch down with his fists, wrested the hammer away and struck him twice on the head with it. Salovitch died without making a statement.

Clark was graduated from the Manti high school as an honor student two years ago. He said his parents were separated and that his mother lives in Los Angeles.

Leap Year Spinsters Chase Blushing Kansas Bachelors

:: JUDGE PUBLISHES NAMES OF ELIGIBLE MEN ::

Emporia, Kan., January 7.—(United News.)—Emporia's blushing bachelors, armed with bold dignity but clearly worried, awaited the onslaught of leap year amazons tonight while Judge R. Wilton Riegle, wholesale matchmaker, complacently waited for a rush of business at the marriage license bureau.

The spinster army moved secretly if it moved at all, but there was a reason to believe that fleetness of foot, or the ability to say "no" and make it stick, alone could save the men. Judge Riegle, who is married, published a list of 100 eligible bachelors, and Emporia hasn't been so wrought up since William Allen White opened fire on the Ku Klux Klan.

The eligibles, ranging in years from 20 to 87, scanned the list, held a meeting, protested, and appointed Deputy Sheriff Dave Wright spokesman, commander-in-chief, and grand guardian of the safety of the unwed male.

Wright announced the whole business was a joke and a "silly hoax," but Judge Riegle thought differently.

"Most of these men are good fellows and some of them have money," he explained. "They ought to be married and I hope my list of eligibles will lead to at least a score of weddings.

"Early indications are favorable. The select members of the list have received letters and telephone calls from ambitious but unmated women.'

The judge said he could get up as good a list of unmarried women. Such a course, however, he considered as "undiplomatic."

"Anyway I don't think it will be necessary," he said.

But the bachelors stood on their slogan: "Millions for defense but not one cent for matrimony."

TWO MEXICAN FLIERS DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Mexico City, January 7.—(AP)—The Houston Chamber of Commerce good-will party, flying in two planes, arrived here from Tampico this morning, landing at Valbuena airfield. The first plane arrived at 11 o'clock and the second at 12:10.

Two civilian aviators in a biplane used for aerial advertising were killed shortly before arrival of the second plane, crashing from a height of 1,500 feet.

The dead were Joquin Sapico, a Spaniard, aged 25, who was formerly with the Spanish aviation corps in Morocco, and Sebastian Cortarsar, 19 whose home was in Orizaba. The latter was a passenger student in the plane.

The dead aviators had no connection with the Houston good-will party, whose planes made a successful landing at 11 a. m. and 12:20 p. m., respectively.

The cause of the accident is not known, but several thousand persons gathered at the field saw the plane side roll and drop. Cortarsar jumped without a parachute, but Sapico remained in the plane.

EMORY STUDENTS PLAN MEMORIAL TO T. W. CONNALLY

Emory University, Ga., January 7. A memorial service honoring the memory of Thomas W. Connally, late president of Emory Alumni association and member of the class of 1902, will be entered into by the entire student body of Emory university and many alumni of Atlanta at 12 o'clock chapel service Tuesday, January 10.

Robert S. Parker, Atlanta attorney, will deliver the memorial address.

Dr. W. E. Person, vice president of the Alumni association, will preside. Lauren Foremen, a member of the executive committee of the association, will read resolutions of the Alumni association.

J. H. Therrell, class of 1926 and president of Omicron Delta Kappa, of which Connally was a member, will read resolutions in behalf of that organization. Emile J. ("Sandy") Clower, president of the student body, will offer resolutions for the students in memory of "Little Tom," as Connally was known.

Gale Damages Town.

Ketchikan, Alaska, January 7.—(AP) Sweeping out of the southwest at a velocity of 70 miles an hour a terrific windstorm today wrought havoc in the town of Ketchikan. Scores of buildings were damaged while three residences were tossed into the storm-lashed waters of Tongass Narrows. No loss of life was reported.

COOLIDGE LEAVES FRIDAY FOR CUBA

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—As a good-will ambassador extraordinary, President Coolidge will leave Washington next Friday on a trip to Havana, which he hopes will demonstrate the friendly feeling of the United States for all the republics of the western hemisphere.

The immediate purpose of the journey, the first outside of the United States for Mr. Coolidge since he became president, is to make the opening address of the Pan-American congress. In the background, however, is the desire to impress upon the representatives of the more than twenty nations who will greet him that the United States holds no imperialistic designs in its relationship with the countries south of the Rio Grande.

In addition to two members of his cabinet—Secretaries Kellogg and Wilbur—the president will be surrounded at Havana by a delegation of men whose names have for years been well known in American public life. The delegation, which will represent the United States at the sessions of the congress after Mr. Coolidge has left, will be headed by Charles Evans Hughes.

The two secretaries and Mr. Hughes will make the trip south with Mr. Coolidge as will Henry P. Fletcher, ambassador to Italy; James Brown Scott, an authority on international law; Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford university, and Morgan J. O'Brien, a former federal judge of New York, all members of the delegation.

Oscar W. Underwood, former senator from Alabama, and Dr. L. S. Rowe, director of the Pan-American Union, other members, will reach Havana beforehand and the whole party will be joined there by Ambassador Judha, who recently was assigned to Cuba, and Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, who complete the American representation.

The president will be away from Washington for six days. Leaving Friday afternoon, he will journey on a special train of ten cars to Jacksonville, Fla., for the only stop other than for train operating purposes, on the way south. He will make an automobile tour of the city and then continue by train to Key West, where he will embark on the battleship Texas early Sunday morning. The crossing will take about six hours.

The arrival in Havana harbor of the Texas, accompanied by a convoy of destroyers, will be the beginning of a round of brilliant functions. The president and Mrs. Coolidge will live at the national palace as guests of President and Senora Machado.

The two presidents will ride together in a state procession Monday morning to the congress hall, where Mr. Coolidge will open the meetings with an address. He will take leave of Havana Tuesday some time before noon, and on the way north to Washington he hopes to stop at Miami for a brief visit.

"SOUTH AMERICA" WILL BE SUBJECT OF EMORY LECTURE

The fourth of the student lecture series at Emory university will be held in the auditorium at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, January 10. Harold Rollo Tomlinson, author and writer, will speak, and his subject is "South America and Its Attitude Toward the United States."

Earlier in the season the lecture association, headed by Bowden Palmer, Atlanta, has presented three other speakers on widely different subjects. They were Strickland Gilliam, humorist; Miss Nellie Verne Walker, sculptoress, and Norman Hackett, Shakespearean actor.

Tomlinson, a descendant of Scottish-English ancestry, was born in a little cabin on a south Georgia farm. After his college training, he attended the University of Edinburgh, at Edinburgh, Scotland. During the war he saw active service overseas.

His first commission over there after the war was to report on the Irish revolution for the London Spectator. He also spent a great deal of time lecturing in England and the English-speaking countries.

On his return to America he was engaged by the New York Herald to go to South America and write his opinion of the attitude of the South American countries toward the United States. He is just returning to the United States.

STUDENTS WRECK WINDOWS IN BIG SNOWBALL BATTLE

Chicago, January 7—(AP)—Casualty lists at Northwestern university tonight after the annual student snowball battle stood at two injured with more than 200 broken windows lending cold and color to the scene.

The annual scrap between fraternity men and the "open-house" legion waged throughout the day until late this afternoon, when police squads answered a riot call and dispersed the mobs after the assault on dormitory windows. The two injured victims, William Morrow and George Van Eaman, were cut about the head and face by flying glass from broken windows.

WANTS FEDERAL AID IN SWAMP DRAINAGE

Jacksonville, Fla., January 7.—(AP) A bill providing that the federal government cooperate in the drainage of swamp and overflowed lands will be introduced in the senate on his return to Washington, Senator Park Trammell declared here last night prior to leaving for the capital.

The bill, which will be general in its character, is intended to cover the Everglades drainage problem, Senator Trammell said.

"Heretofore," Senator Trammell said, "congress has repeatedly refused to give cooperation to reclamation projects except those where the federal government owns the major part of the lands, but after some years of advocacy of a change of policy in this respect, I feel hopeful that congress is beginning to see the merit of this cooperation."

FUNERAL RITES TODAY FOR MOTORMAN MOON

Funeral services for E. W. Moon, 37, of 1566 Bankhead avenue, operator of the southbound street car that figured in a head-on crash on the Marietta line last week, who died at a Marietta hospital Friday afternoon, will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon from the Poplar Springs Baptist church. The Rev. W. S. Pruitt will officiate and interment will be in the churchyard. The funeral party will leave the residence on Bankhead avenue, at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Moon is survived by his wife, two sons, Johnnie and E. W. Moon, Jr.; three daughters, Misses Louise, Pauline and Catherine Moon; a sister, Miss Ella Moon, and his mother.

Judge Warns Wives To Beware Middle-Aged Man's Sweetie

:: Lindsey Says "Old Man's Darling" Has Faded ::

Denver, Colo., January 7.—(United News.)—A new suggestion for the betterment of domestic relations has been made by Judge Ben Lindsey, of "companionate marriage" fame.

"Tell the women of America to beware of the middle-aged man's sweetie," Judge Lindsey declared in an exclusive interview with the United News. In making this statement the veteran of 28 years' service in the Denver domestic relations court agreed with L. F. Naftzger, of the American divorce colony in Paris, that the first and from the fifteenth to the twentieth years of married life are the most difficult.

"Some day someone will change the old saw about 'An old man's darling' to 'a middle-aged man's sweetie,'" Lindsey said. "It should be the part of a woman who marries a man of the same age during the late teens or early twenties to know how to retain her sex attraction if she would avoid 'the middle-aged man's sweetie.'"

The jurist went on to explain that the difficulty was largely of a biological nature.

"The man retains his sex vigor while the woman either losses it or becomes indifferent to it," he said. "It is to be expected that a great deal of friction will come during middle age in the effort to adjust the changed biological relationship."

JURY CALLED TO PROBE WEST MURDER IN OHIO

Painesville, Ohio, January 7.—(United News.)—The Lake county grand jury Monday will begin consideration of the case of Velma West, pretty 21-year-old Perry, Ohio, housewife, who has confessed to killing her husband, Edward, with a hammer.

A dozen witnesses already have been subpoenaed by County Prosecutor Seth Paulin and more may be called early Monday. Homer Harper, Painesville attorney, will assist in prosecution. Among the witnesses who are expected to testify are James West, brother of the slain man and discoverer of the body; Sheriff Edward T. Rasmussen, to whom Mrs. West confessed; Coroner O. O. Hausch, Dr. H. H. Spencer, retained by the state as an alienist, and Mabel Young, of Cleveland, at whose home Mrs. West attended a party after the slaying.

No attempt will be made to have Mrs. West released from jail since her parents believe their daughter is better off for the present in her jail cell.

SOVIET POLICE ARREST GANG IN MURDER PLOT

Odessa, Ukraine, January 7.—(AP)—Members of the Gaypayou, Russian secret service organization, today arrested a gang charged with the murder December 28 of Signor Cozzio, Italian vice consul. The prisoners will be tried by a revolutionary tribunal.

The vice consul was murdered by robbers who took all his clothing from his body and even wrenched a gold plate from his mouth.

EMORY TO MEET WOFFORD COLLEGE IN FORENSIC FRAY

Emory University, Ga., January 7. Professor N. A. Goodyear, chairman of Emory University Debate union, has announced that Emory will engage Wofford college January 20 in the university auditorium in the first debate of the new year.

David A. Lockmiller, Athens, Tenn., and Robert Elliott, Fayetteville, Ga., will represent Emory. They will support the negative side of the subject, "Resolved That the United States should cease to protect by force of arms her foreign investments, except after formal declaration of war."

Professor Goodyear announces that Emory will engage more than fifteen teams during February and March, ten of which debates will be on this subject. The Emory debate schedule is the heaviest in the history of the school this year.

YOUNG BOY KILLS MOTHER BY SHOT WITH "EMPTY GUN"

Salt Lick, Ky., January 7.—(AP)—Everett Stamper, 9, accidentally shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Henry Stamper, 32, at the home of his grandfather, the Rev. Frank Stamper, near here.

According to the story, the boy picked up the gun which was placed in a corner of the room, and not knowing that it was loaded, pointed it at his mother. He was unable to tell how the weapon was discharged. The entire charge entered Mrs. Stamper's body and her death was almost instant.

ILLINOIS SENATOR BALKS AT PROBE

sidered and lawfully made choice for senator. Therefore, in their name and with full authority from my state and my people, I protest against any invasion of their rights and demand that their choice of a senator be respected, and that the senate of the United States keep the faith of the constitution which created it by giving to the representative of Illinois the seat justly due him.

Will Not Make Compromise.

"If the senate shall not comply with this demand I will have the consolation of knowing that Frank L. Smith refused to compromise the rights of those who have trusted and honored him, even though he might thereby have lost a seat in this august and historic assembly."

C. J. Doyle, personal attorney for Smith, announced the Smith statement concluded his voluntary appearance before the committee and the hearing was closed.

Earlier in the day Insull described to the senate primary investigating committee his $237,925 contributions to various factions in the 1926 Illinois primary election campaign.

Insull sought thereby to purge himself of the charges of contempt of the senate, brought against him a year ago when he refused to tell where $40,000 of his contribution money had been expended.

Answered All Questions.

He answered all questions of the committee, and disclosed that his contributions were paid from a cash drawer which contained $190,000 borrowed from the Commonwealth Edison company. He later repaid the money, without interest, and took up an informal "I. O. U." which he had given to E. J. Doyle, vice president of the company, Insull said.

The magnate said he gave $20,000 to Charles F. Francis, publicity man for the Small-Ludin Cook county organization and $20,00 to George F. Harding, candidate for county treasurer and a leader in the "Harding organization." That accounted for the $40,000 and Insull said he was able to give testimony because Francis and Harding had released him from pledges of secrecy.

Senator-elect Smith, of Illinois refused to submit to trial by the senate primary election investigating committee.

Through Attorney General Carlstrom, Smith made known to the committee his intention of contesting the jurisdiction of the committee to act on his plea for a seat in the United States senate.

Partly Cloudy, But No Rainfall Over Week-End

Partly cloudy skies with no threat of rain and continued rising temperatures will prevail in Atlanta over the week-end, C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist of the local station, announced in the forecast for today. The return to warm weather will be experienced throughout the state, in agreement with conditions over the whole country, the weather man said.

Aided by largely fair weather, the mercury column today is scheduled to ascend from a minimum of 44 degrees to the 60-degree level. The temperature range Saturday was from 41 to 55 degrees.

Although the local forecast bars rain, the general Washington report for the state includes showers for today.

DEPOSITS IN LOCAL BANKS SHOW GAIN OF $11,308,644,04

Remarkable growth of Atlanta banks in the past few years is shown in a compilation of statements furnished by the eight Atlanta banks, in response to the comptroller's call of December 31, 1927, which shows combined aggregate resources of all banks of $217,492,374.85, as compared with the same total of $206,184,730.81 on the same date of 1926.

Total deposits of these institutions in 1927 was revealed as $184,968,422.37 contrasting with deposits in 1926 of $171,582,404.95. Loans and discounts of the banks amounted in 1927 to $122,120,842.35 with a total of $126,061,125.13 in 1926.

$22,000,000 GOLD SHIPPED FROM U. S. TO FOREIGN LANDS

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Twenty-two million dollars in gold was on ship board today consigned from New York to foreign countries.

A fifteen million dollar cargo was started for South America in the vaults of the steamer Vauban. The gold was in 300 little kegs. Of the total, $6,000,000 was consigned to Rio Janeiro, a like amount to Buenos Aires, and $3,000,000 to Montevedeo.

The liner Suffren delayed her sailing from noon today until midnight to take aboard $7,000,000 in gold consigned to the Bank of France by the Guaranty Trust company, of New York. The gold shipment was delivered to the pier in an armored automobile and placed in a special compartment amidships under guard

WHEN KIDNEYS HURT DRINK MORE WATER

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—(adv.)

GAMBLING 'ADVOCATE' IN FLORIDA VOTE RACE

Miami, Fla., January 7.—(AP)—Paul M. Beacom, Miami real estate operator and race track owner, today announced his candidacy for governor on a platform mainly built around passage of laws to allow operation of pari-mutuels.

He denounced, in a formal statement, any proposal which would lay the state of Florida as a whole liable to taxation for drainage of the Everglades or tax any land not actually to be drained, for that purpose. By innuendo he suggested that some law enforcement officers of Florida are allowing gamblers and bootleggers to operate without interference, and declared that should he be elected "no officer of the state of Florida would accept bribes from gamblers and bootleggers and retain his position."

Local option in the matter of racing and financial ventures on the outcome of such contests are advocated. Beacom is president of the Pompano Horse club, which has announced that it will start a race meet at the Broward county track January 14.

HOUSE COMMITTEE SEEKS $4,000,000 FOR AIR STATIONS

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Expenditure of $4,283,726 for new construction at army air stations would be authorized under the James bill reported by the house military committee.

The bill was not amended except for a change suggested by Representative Wurzbach, republican, Texas. His amendment provided for the acquisition by the war department of a new aviation field at San Antonio, Texas, at which would be concentrated the activities conducted at Kelly and Brooks fields. Sale of Brooks and Kelly fields would be authorized.

MADDOX PLEDGES FIRE PROTECTION

J. W. Maddox, candidate for county commissioner to fill the unexpired term of the late Charles G. Turner, Saturday in a statement declared that if elected he would begin a movement to properly protect thickly populated communities outside Atlanta with fire stations and equipment, under an act passed by the 1922 general assembly.

Mr. Maddox's statement follows:

"I have been from one end of the county to the other in both directions, and from the expressions I have received, I believe the people intend to elect me county commissioner next Thursday, January 12, for which I am truly grateful.

"I think it not improper at this time to again express the principles for which I stand, and which I shall see are put in effect when I enter upon my services.

Authorizes Fire Service.

"I have found that in 1922 the general assembly of Georgia passed an act, which is shown in the code of 1926, as section 848 (2), authorizing the installation of fire service in thickly settled communities outside the limits of Atlanta. That section reads as follows:

"'Counties of this state having a population of 150,000 or more, according to the United States census of 1910 or any future United States census or official census of the state of Georgia, be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to purchase or lease land or buildings, equipment and supplies and to employ persons for the purpose of maintaining a fire station and fire apparatus for the protection of the citizens and property of such county. The determination of all questions with reference thereto, as well as the equipment and maintenance thereof, shall be under the supervision of the ordinary, board of commissioners or other authorities having charge of the fiscal and administrative affairs of said county. Acts 1922, page 108.'

"When I am sworn in as county commissioner, I shall begin at once a movement to make this provision of our law effective, so that thickly populated communities shall no longer be the helpless victim of destructive fires, without any sort of protection. I shall not discriminate in favor of nor against any section, but shall accord to all sections and all people equal protection.

"I was born in Fulton county—have lived here all my life. What small property I have been able to accumulate has been by the unaided efforts of my wife and myself. I am interested in the welfare of the people and the protection of property.

Record in Office.

"My fellow citizens have honored me from time to time with positions of trust, and I have faithfully performed my duties thereby imposed, I served six years (two terms) as alderman of the city of Atlanta. For more than five years I was a police commissioner, during two of which I served as chairman of the board, and I am now serving my second term as a member of the board of education.

"I am proud to state to you that nearly all of my associates in council and on boards are giving me their active support in this race, because they believe in me and my sincerity, many of them stating they also believe I have the ability to carry out my promises.

"I am not less proud of the fact that I have the almost solid support of the police and fire departments of the city of Atlanta, from the chiefs to the last supernumeraries. And the school department is no. the less loyal to me. You may ask them if you have any doubt of the truth of these statements.

"The people are entitled to have a business-like administration of their affairs, and I shall give it. This county should not be in debt, and the taxes should be lowered. Education should be supported, and health promoted. Highways should be constructed and maintained. I feel that my twenty-four years' experience in the construction and maintenance of highways at my own expense fully justifies me in saying that I am qualified to conduct the public works department of the county, the most expensive of any department of the county, in an economical and efficient manner. Recreation should not be neglected. Every interest, every section, every person, should have a fair deal.

Asks for Support.

"It has been and will be impossible for me to see even a small percentage of the people in the short time between now and the election. So I take his method of addressing you, asking your support and pledging you a progressive and economical administration of your affairs.

"I ask you to come out and vote for me next Thursday, January 12, between the hours of 7 a. m. and 3 p. m. in the county precincts and 7 a. m. and 6 p. m. in the city. (County precincts close at 3 p. m. and city precincts at 6 p. m.)

"In conclusion, permit me to say that if you do not know, ask somebody who does, and I will risk my fate in your hands when they tell you that I will do what I promise to do.

"I will serve your interests when you elect me, and from the assurances given me I am confident you will do that very thing.

"J. W. MADDOX."

Georgia's 1928 Industrial Expansion Shows Promise

Confidence in Georgia's industrial resources and in the state's possibilities along industrial lines in 1928 was expressed in the annual report of the utilities information committee of Georgia, as submitted by L. A. Magraw, vice president and general manager of Macon public utilities and chairman of the committee.

In addition to being a bureau of information for those seeking facts regarding the utilities of Georgia, the utilities information committee is an organization dedicated to the building of a more prosperous state. The committee is maintained by most of the public utility companies (power, gas and street railway) operating in Georgia.

"This committee's interest in the material advancement of Georgia is second to none. The companies, representing millions of dollars invested by thousands of small investors in Georgia's possibilities, are dedicated to public service. They are here to stay—in prosperous and lean years alike. They cannot pull up stake and move to other fields; they are an integral part of the country; fixed, immovable. They must serve," Mr. Magraw sets out in the report.

"The committee in the six years of its operation has endeavored to give worthwhile and effective support to every agency working for the upbuilding of the state—the Georgia association, state department of agriculture, chambers of commerce, women's clubs, state geological department, newspapers, the state department of public welfare, social agencies—and every organization which operates for improved conditions," the chairman added.

One of Georgia's problems is to reduce the number of farmers and increase the number of industrial workers, or rather, to improve, from an industrial standpoint, the ratio between the numbers engaged in the two fields. At present the ratio is 75 to 25, in favor of the farmer. It should balance, or lean toward the industrial side, the committee believes.

Introduction of industry into agricultural territory invariably improves conditions in the territory, and to accomplish this is one of the major purposes of the committee, as one means to bring about improved conditions, the report states.

The committee expects to see registered this year greater progress than in 1927, when Georgia advanced far in manly directions, according to the report.

State-Wide Auto Owners Association Is Organized

The formation of a statewide motor car owners' association, to be affiliated with the American Automobile association, and to be known as the Georgia State Automobile association, is announced by officials of the Atlanta Motor club. The local club, together with the Chattahoochee Valley Motor club, of Columbus, and the Savannah Motor club, have joined forces in perfecting the organization for the purpose of giving residents in every part of the state the full benefits which A. A. A. members in other sections of the country have been enjoying for years past.

William Candler, president of the Atlanta Motor club, and one of the most consistent workers for the civic interests of the state, is president of the new body. Other officers include Columbus Roberts, of Columbus, and Edgar L. Wortsman, of Savannah, vice presidents; Leland J. Henderson, of Atlanta, secretary; J. Sherrard Kennedy, of Atlanta, treasurer, and A. W. McKeand, executive director.

The principal objects of the association, as outlined by its officers, are to advertise the state and its places of tourist interest to the world at large; to establish a complete service organization along every main traveled highway for the benefit of state and national members; to urge the completion of dependable, all-weather roads over every trunk highway and the proper marking of these highways for tourist interest and guidance; and an extensive program of benefit to the individual member.

Membership in A. A. A.

The state association members will also hold membership in the American Automobile association, which is regarded by local motor circles as of the highest significance. The A. A. A. has a membership of over 1,000,000 prominent motorists in every part of America, and practically all tourists of standing are members of that body. It maintains extensive publicity channels for the information of its members, and the Georgia S. A. A. expects to render a service of tremendous benefit to the state at large by advertising the attractions of the state through the medium of these bulletins, road maps and other material.

Individual benefits offered to members include emergency road service, automobile accident insurance, nation-wide touring service, membership card bond and identification, stolen car rewards, legal advice, accessory discounts and other appealing features which, it is claimed, will greatly exceed the annual dues.

Such privileges have long been accessible in Atlanta through the Atlanta Motor club, but the membership of the local organization is limited to this immediate area. Smaller cities have found it impossible to maintain such clubs because of the high overhead costs of maintaining offices and information bureaus.

The Georgia State Automobile association plans to carry these privileges down to the small cities and towns through the means of branches set up in each county. The state has been divided into five districts, with a district manager in charge to give full-time service to the people of that district.

Improving Motor Conditions.

Through the means of a county committee organization, it is proposed to take important steps in improving automobile conditions in each locality. In addition to the county chairman, there will be committees on membership, highways, touring, publicity, safety education and beautification and marking. In this manner, data dealing with attractive scenic and historic spots will be assembled for distribution through state publicity channels to draw tourists to each section; local highways will be beautified and properly marked for the convenience of travelers (apart from the excellent system of direction markers already supplied by the state highway department), and other necessary local matters of interest to the automobile owners of each county will be promoted.

One of the first of the statewide activities of the association is to be the establishment of authorized service stations along all through motor routes entering the state, for the convenience of A. A. A. tourists from distant points. Dealers in gas and oil, tires and accessories and storage garages will be offered the official emblem of A. A. A. service upon contracting to perform service according to the standards of the national organization.

Another will be an immediate publicity campaign through A. A. A. channels to counteract widely current reports in distant states that Georgia highways are almost impassable in bad weather. As rapidly as data can be assembled, a state map showing all highways with their condition and relation to points of tourist interest will be prepared and circulated through all clubs of the national body. A membership campaign will also be undertaken, and it is hoped to have the majority of the state well organized by next fall.

Upshaw Invited To Participate In Smith Debate

Former Congressman William D. Upshaw received an invitation Saturday from John J. Murphy, of the democratic state committee in Massachusetts, to debate with some representative democrat of the north the negative side of the question "Resolved that Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, should be the presidential nominee of the democratic party in 1928."

The debate is to be held in Sommerville, Mass., an historic suburb of Boston, which is now considered a part of the New England metropolis.

Mr. Upshaw immediately wired Mr. Murphy that previous engagements prevented him from accepting the dates suggested, but he added that February 14 would be the earliest possible date he could accept.

SECRETARY HOOVER URGED TO ATTEND EDUCATIONAL MEET

Responding to an invitation to address the Georgia Education association in Atlanta on April 9, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has written that a definite answer could not be given so far in advance, Jere A. Wells, president of the association, announced Saturday. The secretary had been urged to accept the invitation by civic and educational organizations through Georgia.

Speakers who have accepted invitations include Miss Cornelia Adair, president of the National Education association; Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette college, Pennsylvania; Dr. Edwin Mims, of Vanderbilt university; Dr. O. G. Brim, Ohio State university; Dr. E. C. Branson, University of North Carolina, and Dr. R. L. Cooley, supervisor of vocational education, Milwaukee, Wis.

HILDERBRAND HEADS CLASS AT SOUTH SIDE

L. L. Hilderbrand was elected to head the Bible class of the South Side Baptist church at a recent business meeting of the class, according to announcement Saturday. Other officers are Luther Stevens, vice president; Mrs. T. B. Thrailkill, secretary; Mrs. J. L. Pope, treasurer; H. G. Gloar, teacher; Mrs. J. T. McCullum, assistant teacher; Mrs. H. G. Gloar, pianist; C. W. Campbell, choir leader, and Mrs. Belle Drake, corresponding secretary.

SAWTELL PRESIDENT OF MORRIS PLAN CO.

Announcement of the election of T. R. Sawtell, prominent Atlanta business man, as president of the Morris Plan company, of Atlanta, was made Saturday by directors of the company following a special meeting.

Mr. Sawtell succeeds the late W. Woods White, founder of the Morris Plan company, who died on December 22 after a brief illness. Mr. Sawtell was associated with the organization of the company 17 years ago and has been closely in touch with its affairs. He has assumed charge as president of the institution, the principal business of which is making loans to salaried people and wage-earners. The company was organized as a means of combating "loan sharks," who were particularly active in Atlanta when Mr. White founded the Morris Plan company.

Directors of the Morris Plan company are a group of prominent business men who became associated with the institution because of its public service and who devote much time to its affairs. They are J. R. Bachman, John A. Brice, E. C. Calloway, Sol B. Kaplan, W. M. Francis, Dudley Glass, Thomas K. Glenn, Victor H. Kriegshaber, Robert P. McLarty, Brooks Mell, Brooks Morgan, John Paschall, J. Carroll Payne, Hollins N. Randolph, J. T. Rose, John A. Whitner and George Winship.

CLARK UNIVERSITY CHORUS WILL GIVE CONCERT ON JAN. 16

The Clark University chorus and orchestra will be heard in concert at 8 o'clock Monday night, January 16, at the Wesley Memorial church, it was announced Saturday.

A program of classical selections, folk songs and negro spirituals will be presented by a chorus of 80 voices, with orchestral accompaniment of 35 instruments. Professor Frederick Hall, head of the music department of the university and noted composer, will direct the concert.

LAYMEN'S SOCIETY OF A. M. E. CHURCHES IS STARTED HERE

Organization of a laymen's society of African Methodist Episcopal churches in the city was effected at a recent meeting of representatives, as the nucleus of what is hoped will develop into a state-wide laymen's association.

It was pointed out at the meeting that while several efforts have been made, no association of this nature has been successful. It was stated that the purpose of such an organization was to study and care for the business affairs of the churches and institutional properties.

Meetings of the laymen's society will be held at the colored Y. M. C. A. every Friday night at 8 o'clock.

WALTER HARWELL, MARSHAL, IN RACE FOR TAX RECEIVER

Walter E. Harwell, Saturday formally announced his candidacy for tax receiver of Fulton county to succeed W. H. Abbott, incumbent, who voluntarily retires from this office January 1, 1929.

Mr. Harwell has served Atlanta as city marshal for the past eight years.

WALTER E. HARWELL.

In the discharge of his duties as marshal he has made many friends.

He is the son of the late J. H. Harwell, who served the city as alderman and councilman for many years and was mayor pro tem at the time of his death.

MERCHANTS TO HOLD ANNUAL MEET JAN. 28

The annual dinner-meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association will be held on the night of January 28 in the ballroom of the Biltmore hotel and preparations are being made to accommodate about 500 persons, according to C. V. Hohenstein, executive secretary of the association.

Each member of the association is entitled to one free ticket, but may purchase additional tickets at $2.50 each.

Plans are being made to make the forthcoming event the best and most successful dinner in the history of the association and many of the city's leading business men have accepted the association's invitation to be present.

A specially-prepared musical and entertainment program has been arranged to enliven the occasion while the dinner is being served, after which a special reception honoring the various trade lines making up the association will be held.

Past presidents of the association have been appointed as a special nominating committee and will name the new officers at the annual meeting, which will follow the dinner.

MEMBER OF EMORY FACULTY TO SPEAK AT LAWYERS' MEET

Dr. R. S. Leadingham, member of the faculty of the medical school of Emory university, will deliver a lecture on "Penalties of Age" at the monthly meeting of the Atlanta Lawyer's club at 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Kimball House.

In addition to the address of Dr. Leadingham, an interesting entertainment program has been arranged, including a musical program under the direction of Mrs. Charles A. Howland, contralto soloist of the Central Presbyterian church. She will be accompanied at the piano by J. Gordon Moore.

President William G. Grant asks that all members be prompt in attendance.

McPherson Authorities Arrange for Monthly "Georgia Products" Menu

Military authorities at Fort McPherson have "stepped in line" with the state campaign to increase the consumption of Georgia products and Saturday announced that all of the organizations of the twenty-second infantry have volunteered to feature Georgia products exclusively in their menus for Monday, January 9, and the first Monday in every month thereafter for the ensuing year.

Menus have already been planned and drawn up and include only food which can be produced in the state. Included on the menus are Savannah oysters, Augusta pork, Athens sage dressing, Americus gravy, Valdosta celery, Dublin potatoes, Muscogee yams, Cairo sugar, Macon field peas, Albany pecans, Chattahoochee river water and country products such as butter, milk.

Mess Sergeant Joe Rinkanous and Cooks Albright and Powell prepared Company A menu. This company is commanded by Captain Robert Joerg, Jr. Mess Sergeant Bert Watson compiled the menu for Company B, which is commanded by Captain Stanley G. Blanton.

HANAN & SON OPEN STORE ON PEACHTREE

Hanan & Son, makers of Hanan shoes, will open an exclusive store at 170 Peachtree street about March 1, according to announcement Saturday by John R. Laycock, eastern general store manager. This store will be under the same general management as other Hanan stores throughout the eastern part of the United States.

"It is our purpose to give to the citizens of Atlanta," Mr. Laycock stated. "As fine a shop as possible, where shopping will be made convenient and pleasant. Hanan shoes and Hanan hosiery, for both men and women, will be featured, not only in correct fashion, but in outstanding value."

The building to be occupied by Hanan & Son at 170 Peachtree street is the property of Dr. W. L. Champion and was leased for a period of 15 years through the Draper-Owens company and Harry J. Crider. The building is in process of extensive remodeling under supervision of Pringle and Smith, architects.

You Can't Afford To Ignore This Alarming Condition

Why gamble with privation—why take chances with the security and comfort of those who are dependent upon you?

Read these headlines:

"Hit-and-Run Drivers Kill One, Injure One."

"Auto Injures Aged Man."

"Johnson Dies as Result of Crash."

"Seven Hurt in Auto Accidents."

These headlines were clipped from issues of The Constitution during the past few days, the same papers which have told of the death of six persons and the injury of a score more in a collision of street cars on the Marietta line in Atlanta.

The growing wave of traffic accidents is an actual, daily menace to you. Are you protected against the peril? Is the comfort of your family safeguarded?

The Constitution offers its readers the famous $7,500 travel accident policy issued by the North American Insurance company, of Chicago, an old and reliable concern which already has paid more than $53,000 in claims to Constitution policyholders.

The policy, which costs only $1.25 per year, provides for payment of sums ranging from $7,500 in case of death resulting from certain accidents; heavy cash payment for permanent injuries and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the stated accidents. And the cost is only a fraction of a penny a day.

A train wreck, a crash of automobiles, the speeding wheels of an oncushing car or a burning building may leave you a victim of the ever-growing wave of accidents today.

In this paper appear regular advertisements supply full details of the great offer. Watch for them.

This $7,500 travel, $2,000 auto and $1,000 pedestrian accident policy is issued only to subscribers of The Daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of a subscriber's family between the ages of 17 and 70 at $1.25 per year.

One who is now taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution or will subscribe for same through carrier in Atlanta or suburbs, through an out-of-town carrier, monthly or otherwise, is a subscriber and is eligible.

Those taking The Daily and Sunday Constitution by mail, either through a postoffice or rural route delivery for one year are eligible by paying $1.25 per year per policy above the subscription price.

In spending applications for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation. If beneficiary is desired, full Christian name must be given and relation of same to the insured.

HEAVY EQUIPMENT ORDER IS PLACED BY SOUTHERN ROAD

Concrete evidence of its faith in the soundness of business conditions in the south has just been given by the Southern railway system by a large order for locomotives and cars to be delivered during the spring and early summer of 1928, it was announced Saturday by Vice President R. H. Pegram.

The order which, according to Mr. Pegram, is the largest ever given by the Southern, includes 68 locomotives, 55 of the Mikado type and eight of the Mallet type for freight service and five of the Pacific type for passenger service; 3,000 coal cars, 2,500 of the hopper-bottom type and 500 of the gondola type; 2,250 automobile box cars, 250 ballast cars, 200 caboose cars, and 25 all-steel mail and baggage cars for passenger train service.

Purchase of the automobile box cars, which will be of the large dimensions now required by shippers of automobiles, is of particular interest in Atlanta on account of the location in this city of the Ford assembly plant and the new General Motors plant now under construction, both of which are on the Southern's tracks.

PUBLIC PERMITTED TO SEE 'BEN'S' BODY

Benton Harbor, Mich., January 7.—(AP)—With the exception of county law and health officers, the body of "King" Benjamin Purnell, founder and late leader of the House of David colony was viewed for the first time this week since his death on December 16 by non-members of the colony.

Coroner Fred H. Martinie, at whose mortuary Purnell's body is undergoing extensive embalming processes, revealed today that he had invited several Benton Harbor business men to view the body to set at rest rumors that it is that of another aged colony leader. The body previously, however, had been identified as Purnell's by Martinie, Dr. C. N. Sowers, the cult leader's physician, and George H. Bookwalter, Berrien county prosecuting attorney.

Martinie declared that all those who have viewed the body have identified it as that of Purnell.

The cult leader's body was removed to Martinie's establishment only after the expiration of the legal limit allowed under state law for the holding of a body while colony members waited for an expected "resurrection."

DIRECTOR NAMED FOR ART MUSEUM

Engagement of Roland J. McKinney, graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago, and for five years director of the Davenport Iowa Municipal Art gallery, as director for the High Museum of Art, was announced Saturday by Mrs. Charles Jerome, secretary of the museum.

Mr. McKinney is expected to assume his duties Tuesday, and on his arrival, the resignation of Mrs. Jerome as secretary will become effective. Mrs. Jerome tendered her resignation several months ago, but agreed to remain in office until arrival of the director.

Mr. McKinney has studied under many prominent men, including Wellington Reynolds, De Forest School and Leopold Seyffert. He has spent some time abroad acquainting himself with the operation of foreign art galleries and also is familiar with important American galleries.

Spalding Sets Primary Date As February 29

Griffin, Ga., January 7.—(Special.) The Spalding county democratic primary will be held in Griffin Wednesday, February 29. This was decided today by the executive session in their meeting. Rules adopted by the committee include election by a plurality vote and set the assessments against candidates for each office.

The polls in Griffin will open at 7 o'clock and close at 6. In the county precincts the polls will open at 10 o'clock and close at 6. Candidates were given until February 1 to pay their entrance fee and file their candidacy for offices. Practically every office in the county is to be filled and two or more candidates for each office are expected.

Judge Will Taylor and Colonel Steve Wallace anounced for ordinary Saturday. These being the only official announcements so far.

Boy Reunites Parents Before Dying on Chair

Columbus, Ohio, January 7.—(United News.)—Stark tragedy—the electrocution of their 17-year-old son, Floyd, for a double murder—brought about the reconciliation of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hewitt, of Conneaut, Ohio, today.

The Hewitts have been estranged for years, but today they stood side by side in a Columbus mortuary and viewed the body of Floyd, who paid the supreme penalty at the state penitentiary last night. The couple were brought together yesterday by Floyd, who pleaded with them before going to the electric chair to forget old enmities and become reunited.

Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt will accompany Floyd's body to Conneaut tomorrow where funeral services and burial will take place. Young Hewitt was executed for the murder of Mrs. Fred Brown and her five-year-old son.

Middle Georgia Fair Heals Will Attend Meeting in Columbus

Milledgeville, Ga., January 7.—The directors of the Middle Georgia Fair association here will meet at the courthouse Tuesday night, January 17, for the purpose of completing plans for the attendance of the local fair officials at the annual meeting of the Association of Georgia Fairs in Columbus, Ga., on January 19-20.

President D. H. Dunaway has announced that practically the entire board of officials and directors of the Middle Georgia Fair association are expected to attend the Columbus meeting.

The following officials have already signified their intentions of attending: President B. H. Dunaway, Vice President F. W. Hendrickson, Secretary C. B. McCullar, Treasurer J. T. King and County Agent E. A. Nesmith, as well as several members of the board of directors.

PEERLESS MOTOR CO. ELECTS TWO OFFICERS

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Robert M. Calfee, attorney for the Peerless Motor Car company, today was elected chairman of the board of directors. L. R. German has been made general manager. No president was elected to succeed Edward Verlinden, who resigned Thursday after differences are reported to have arisen among members of the board.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT WAVERS AT STANFORD

Palo Alto, Calif., January 7.—(AP)—Issuing a warning that student government at Stanford university is wavering in the balance, Fred Speers, editor of the Stanford daily, the student newspaper, today quoted President Ray Layman Wilbur, of the University, as stating that "during the last quarter there were more violations of the honor system and of regulations concerning drinking" than ever before in recent times.

REMUS TO REMAIN IN INSANE ASYLUM

Lima, Ohio, January 7.—(AP)—George Remus, acquitted by a Cincinnati jury of slaying his wife, Imogene, and committed to the state hospital for the insane here, will remain in the hospital quietly for a time at least, under observation of hospital physicians and three Lima doctors to be employed by Remus.

This much was definitely known of Remus' plans ultimately to free himself from detention. Just when the habeas corpus proceedings by which the former "king of bootleggers" hopes to effect his removal from the hospital will be filled remains as matter of conjecture.

Delays Hearing on Writ.

Charles H. Elston, Remus' chief counsel, and Francis W. Durbin and D. C. Henderson, Lima attorney, retained by Remus on his arrival here from Cincinnati last night, indicated rather definitely that a writ of habeas corpus would be sought but would not say when. It was believed the proceeding would begin early next week.

Dr. W. H. Vorbau, superintendent of the hospital, said today that Remus was being put through the regular preliminaries of the institution. He said Remus was very dignified and quiet and that his conduct was exemplary.

Under ordnary course of events, Dr. Vorbau said, it will take "several months" to determine Remus' sanity. He is being kept at present in a ward with several other inmates.

Remus still has one court action pending in Cincinnati—a hearing set for Monday on an appeal to the common pleas court from the decision of Judge Lueders holding him insane.

SENATE TO PONDER CHANGES IN TARIFF

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—For the first time in years the senate is going to take up the tariff Monday but as it is without power to initiate revenue legislation the move seems destined to be just an expression of opinion regardless of the outcome.

Republicans in the house, where tariff legislation must originate, are heeding the will of the administration against any revision now of the controversial import schedules and no action there this session is in sight. However, the proposal asking the senate for a declaration in favor of general downward revision of the tariff rates comes from the republican side—Senator McMaster, of South Dakota is its author—and with the anticipated support of an almost solid democratic vote its sponsor. Believes it will be adopted.

Gets Right of Way.

Leaders have given the McMaster resolution right of way for Monday and early action is anticipated although this favored subject of political debate is expected to prove tempting morsel for the orators and for those anxious to lay the groundwork for some campaigning next fall.

Senator McMaster declared today he expected to win considerable support for the resolution also from the republican side of the chamber. While his resolution would call for a general slash in tariff rates, the South Dakota senator made it clear that he did not intend for any cut in the schedules affecting agriculture.

The action of the senate on the tariff compares with that taken a year ago when a resolution asking immediate tax reduction was defeated in the senate. Even had the senate adopted the resolution it could have gone no further on its work toward tax legislation which had to initiate in the house.

FALLING SNOW KILLS 4 IN HILLS OF AUSTRIA

Bregenz, Austria, January 7.—(AP)—Two avalanches in the Vorarlberg district, former Austrian crown land, have resulted in the death of four skiiers.

The first, on the Euerser See, buried three skiiers, Herman Craemer, an engineer; his wife, Clara, and Hans Rein, a business man. The second occurred near Cabagulmer, where three skiiers were buried, and two of them rescued. The third, Joseph Gregel, a merchant of Meran, was killed, and his body had not been recovered tonight.

DOWNS ASKS AID TO CHECK DECLINE IN FREIGHT RATES

New Orleans, January 7.—(AP)—Improved business and more effectual operation eventually will lose the railroads' economic fight to the continued decline in freight rates unless business interests of the United States aid to stop the reduction, asserted L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central railroad, speaking here tonight.

Downs addressed the Traffic club at its annual dinner. The downward trend of freight traffic is solely responsible for the railroads not having earned a fair return on their investments during recent years, declared Downs.

MAIL SACK SLIT, CONTENTS STOLEN IN FORT VALLEY

Fort Valley, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—The sheriff and officers of this county are on the trail of suspects who entered the baggage car of the Perry train, to which the mail from the Atlanta train had been transferred, and cut open the sacks believed to contain parcel post matter for Perry and stole all the contents.

Capitol View Lodge Plans Watermelon Feast Monday Night

Watermelon cuttings are popular entertainments during the summer, but it remained for the Capitol View Civic league to announce that a January watermelon cutting will be a special feature of its meeting at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in the Masonic temple, corner Dill and Stewart avenues.

Charles M. Ford, former alderman from the tenth ward, and an active civic league worker in Capitol View, has secured two large melons to be served to honor guests.

Candidates for the Fulton county commission have been invited to outline their platforms at the meeting, it was announced.

DANGER OF FLOODS IN MIDWEST FADES

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Unless the rainfall within the next three months is considerably above the average, hopes are held that there will be no recurring floods in the Mississippi area this spring by Harry C. Frankenfield, senior meteorologist and chief of the river and flood division of the weather bureau.

"Last year at this time the ground was saturated and the rivers were rising," he said, "but at present the Mississippi and Ohio rivers are out half full and the ground is comparatively dry. March can still be reckoned a dangerous month, but there is little danger unless there is a radical change. The winter's rainfall to date has been intermittent, and presented no disposal problem."

DEMOCRATS ACT TO PASS FLOOD LEGISLATION.

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—While the house flood control committee continued its hearings on the problem, the democrats in the senate organized today to facilitate the enactment of legislation to prevent future disastrous floods in the Mississippi valley.

The democratic senators agreed to concentrate their efforts in assisting the committees in the two branches of congress in their formulation of the legislation. They asked the republican senators to support the efforts of the committees and Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican leader, said senators of his party would be willing to cooperate.

Colonel Charles L. Potter, of St. Louis, president of the Mississippi river commission, was the only witness before the house committee. He explained the flood control plan formulated by his commission and declared that the commission's plans for flood control works were based on the great inundations of the past instead of "speculating on a future possible maximum flood."

Reid Opposes Measure.

If the federal government takes over control of the Mississippi river's flood, it will end the danger of blood shed among people of the valley who patrol their levees with armed guards during each period of high water, in the opinion of Chairman Reid, of the flood control committee.

"If the marines in Nicaragua shot at each other they would be immediately stopped from such acts—why should the people in the valley not be prevented from shooting at each other?" Reid asked.

NATIONAL AUTO SHOW OPENS WAR OF PRICES

New York, January 7.—(AP)—A price war among manufacturers of the less expensive automobiles increased interest in the twenty-eighth annual national automobile show opening today for one week.

Grand Central palace has been transformed with flowers and foliage into a country setting for display of the latest creations of forty-three manufacturers of passenger cars, in addition, there are displays of new truck models, shop equipment and accessories.

The greatest interest probably centered in the exhibits of the Chevrolet, Whippet and Star cars, generally viewed as rivals of the Ford for supremacy in the low-priced field. The Ford Motor company will have a show of its own opening Monday in Madison Square Garden.

One of the national show's surprises was the debut of three new models bearing the name of Durant, products of Durant Motors, commemorating the silver anniversary of the entrance of William C. Durant into the automobile industry.

Reappearance of the Durant name on a motor car was taken in trade circles to be a sequel to Mr. Durant's announcement last summer that he was coming back as an active factor in the automobile industry. His company has been producing the Star and Flint cars.

Another debut was that of Paige cars under the new name of Graham-Paige, marking the entrance of the Graham Brothers, light truck manufacturers, into the passenger field. The Graham brothers recently purchased the Paige plant.

Practically every booth in the passenger vehicle section displayed one or more new models, making in the aggregate the greatest number of new creations ever introduced at one show.

STATE TO RETURN CIVIL WAR FLAGS TO N. CAROLINA

Trenton, N. J., January 7.—(AP)—Two battle torn and blood-stained Confederate flags captured by New Jersey troops in the War Between the States are to be returned to North Carolina at the state courthouse here next Thursday.

Governor Moore and Grand Army of the Republic veterans will present the flags, carried into battle by Tar heel troops, to General Albert Cox, Raleigh, representing the southern state.

'Billy' Sunday Flays Mexican Racing Resort

St. Louis, Mo., January 7.—(United News.)—Billy Sunday, who recently announced he would run for president if both major parties nominated anti-prohibitionists, arrived here today for a seven-week revival and revealed that his interests are not restricted to the United States alone.

"If I were God for about 15 minutes," he said, "I would wipe Tia Juana off the map." Tia Juana, a Mexican resort just south of the California border, is a center of horse racing and gambling, and an oasis for thirst-stricken Americans. Sunday expressed characteristic opinions on other subjects. They included:

"Companionate marriage is one of the rottenest things ever promulgated. Its barnyard marriage.

"Prohibition is God's blessing to this country.

"The chief trouble with the country is materialism.

"The youth of today is no worse than that of any other age.

"The south is the most religious part of the country. There is more reverence for God down there than anywhere in America.

"St. Louis is no worse than any other large city."

HONOR STUDENTS FETED BY CLUB

Seventeen honor students of the Lanier High School for Boys were recently honored at a luncheon given in their honor by the Macon Kiwanis club.

The luncheon came as a fitting climax to a very successful fall term at Lanier and was attended by those students making an average of ninety or above for the school months of last year.

Honor students present were:

Robert Williams, R. Hudson, Jack Feagin, Thomas Parker, A. Bailey, Joseph Clisby, William Quillian, Jr., W. Foreman, Billy Stubbs, E. Burts, Floyd Royster, Furna Lott, E. W. Lacey, Francis Hall, John Harrison, Furman Smith, John Frierson.

After the presentation of the honor students Mrs. R. K. Hines, president of the Parent-Teacher association at Lanier, spoke a few words in commendation of the records made by the boys, at the same time thanking the Kiwanis club for the invitation to be their guests.

'Grand' Palace To House Pretty Bride of Prince

Washington, January 7.—(United Press.)—A palace in Tokyo bigger and grander than the white house will be the future home of a little Japanese girl who is in school here.

Setsu Matsudaira, 16, daughter of the Japanese ambassador here, is the girl. Her engagement to Prince Chichibu, brother of Emperor Hirohito, of Japan, has just been announced in Tokyo. Coaches at the Friends' school here said Miss Setsu is "the loveliest, most charming girl in school."

Society received the announcement cheerfully, commenting that it was probably not only a state engagement, but also based on love, which started during the prince's visit here last year. Both Setsu and her fiance have been educated in the English-speaking countries.

Some interpreted the engagement as an indication of the modernistic trend in Japanese life.

Miss Matsudaira has mastered the English language excellently in her three years here, her friends say. She enters into all school sports, baseball, basketball and hockey, and is quite proficient at tennis and basketball.

No commoner's daughter ever has married royalty in Japan heretofore. Both Ambassador Matsudaira and his wife, however, are of lines which have been powerful and well known in Japan.

BRITAIN TO SETTLE WESTERN CANADA WITH EX-SOLDIERS

London, January 7.—(AP)—A plan, formulated after that of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and other American revolutionary chiefs in 1783 to populate the great west with members of the disbanded revolutionary army, is the little proposal of the overseas settlement committee. This was revealed on the departure for Canada today of E. T. Crutchley, financial adviser of the committee.

The oversea committee discloses that hundreds of soldiers now in their last few months of service are being trained at Chisledon, Wiltshire, in modern methods of farming and will be sent to Canada in May to till and cultivate large areas of fertile lands.

ENGLAND TO PROBE 'WAR LIQUOR' LAW

London, January 7.—(AP)—The stringent British liquor restrictions, inaugurated during the war, are in for a grilling.

The wartime regulations still are in effect and permit the serving of drinks in public houses only eight to nine hours daily. In various quarters through the land longer hours are being demanded for their sale.

Those behind the movement for modification of the law contend that enforcement is entirely out of date.

Will Name Commission.

As a consequence the government has promised to set up a royal commission to inquire into the present licensing laws, especially regulations affecting clubs and hotels.

The club owners are demanding reasonable time to consume their own property on their own premises, for years hotelmen have been cherishing the grievance that no distinction has been made by restrictive legislation between first class hotels, accommodating visitors from all parts of the world, and the little "pub" on a back alley corner.

The association of conservative clubs, which has a national membership of more than half a million, has vigorously renewed its campaign to gain modification of the present restrictions.

Favor License Act Change.

Modification advocates point out that the conservative club vote alone constitutes 20 per cent of the total electorate and there is a huge unorganized vote of patrons of licensed houses, both men and women, who likewise are looking to the government to end what they term "constant irritation" caused by the restrictions.

The association's official Gazette says the omens are not unfavorable for the government's introducing a bill at its next session to remove some of the more glaring anomalies of the licensing act.

PRISONERS 'RAZZ' HICKMAN IN JAIL

Los Angeles, Calif., January 7.—(AP)—Manifest ill feeling toward William H. Hickman among prisoners in the county jail prompted jailers today to keep the confessed slayer of Marian Parker constantly behind barred cell doors.

Mutterings in prisoners' row reached a climax when a photograph of Hickman was suspended from the accused youth's cell door by a string. The head of the photograph had been cut around and a stout cord tied about the neck with a hangman's knot.

Jailers Show Concern.

Jailers did not attempt to conceal their apprehension for Hickman's safety and plans were in consideration for placing heavier guards about his cell. Prisoners in tank 16, near the tier where Hickman is confined, were responsible for the "hanging" of the photograph.

Some of the same prisoners, it was revealed today, recently fashioned clubs from broom handles and were holding them in readiness when the improvised weapons were discovered. Jail guards said their intended victim was Hickman.

Fears Other Prisoners.

The accused youth has showed great fear the last few days, jailers said, of his fellow prisoners who glare at him whenever opportunity affords.

Defense preparations for Hickman's sanity trial January 25 were at a standstill locally here today, while Jerome Walsh, chief of counsel, was en route to the middle west to obtain depositions in support of Hickman's plea that he was insane at the time of the kidnaping and murder. Young Hickman formerly lived in Kansas City and Hartford, Ark.

SEVEN-YEAR STOP TO IMMIGRATION ASKED BY BLANTON

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—A prohibition for seven years against all immigration except seasonal labor from Canada and Mexico and a material strengthening of existing immigration laws, including certain provisions of the La Follette seaman act, was proposed today in a bill of Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas.

Chairman Johnson, of the house immigration committee, announced he would seek to increase by $500,000 the $925,000 appropriation carried in the labor department supply bill for deportation of aliens during the fiscal year beginning next July.

BOY, 16, NAMED BY LITTLE GIRL, 9, ENDS OWN LIFE

Rahway, N. J., January 7.—(AP)—Thomas McPhail, 16, hunted since Thursday for an attack on a nine-year-old girl near Branchville, shot a bullet through his brain here today when a policeman sought to arrest him on suspicion.

The boy ended his life early in the morning and until late afternoon his body lay unidentified in a morgue. The only clue the police had to his identity was the words: "I'm Tom," whined when Patrolman James Alvers seized the boy, who has been discovered lurking behind a tree.

Descriptions given to state police led to identification by his uncle, Stephen Douglas.

TREASURY SURPLUS IS CAMPAIGN FUND, DEMOCRAT CHARGES

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Postponement of tax reduction constitutes "a decision to use the surplus as a republican campaign fund," Representative Black, democrat, New York, said today in charging that President Coolidge wants to keep the treasury surplus available as "political pork."

"This is the golden opportunity for Dawes," he continued. "If he demands that the senate proceed to consider the tax bill, he will jump into the lead for the honor of being beaten by Governor Smith."

FIRE IN BUILDING NEAR WHITE HOUSE INJURES WATCHMAN

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Fire broke out in the large building housing the department of interior three blocks from the white house today after the clerks had quit work, but it was confined to the awnings where the blaze started.

One of the watchmen, E. D. Brady, received severe burns of the hands in fighting the fire which caused considerable excitement but little damage.

NICARAGUA REBELS THREATEN PARLEY

Havana, January 7.—(United News.) Injection of the Nicaraguan question into deliberations of the sixth Pan-American conference will be opposed strenuously by the conservative delegates, it was indicated today.

Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban ambassador to the United States and one of the leading Cuban delegates, deplored that the issue should be raised on the eve of the gathering which had given promise of being harmonious.

"The Nicaraguan government," he said, "has the right to tell the world not to interfere so much in its internal affairs because it is always painful for every country to see outsiders fomenting disturbances in their own land.

Nation Must Solve Problem.

"I believe the question is absolutely a Nicaraguan question and became so from the moment the government of Nicaragua asked the United States to intervene, and certainly so from the moment the contending parties fully agreed on that policy.

"Not only is the Nicaraguan question outside of the agenda of the sixth Pan-American conference but it is entirely outside of the international field. It is purely a domestic Nicaraguan issue and any interference by the Pan-American conference would be a limitation of the sovereign rights of Nicaragua."

Nevertheless, officials in Havana are apprehensive lest the Nicaraguan question disturb the conference here. Havana newspapers continued today to carry extensive news dispatches and editorial comment bearing on the Nicaraguan situation.

Favors Delaying Conference.

El Comercio of Cienfuegos said:

"If President Coolidge is going to send reserves to the American troops of intervention in Nicaragua the sixth Pan-American congress should be postponed, or at least the nightingales of the Yankee delegation should be kept from pronouncing their flowery canned speeches, wherewith they intend to rock us to sleep.

"President Coolidge should suspend his trip to Cuba if he orders the wholesale slaughter of Nicarraguan rebels. That President Diaz, the chief executive through Yankee imposition, should praise Coolidge and decorate the American marines for killing his compatriots does not make the shameful acts being committed in Nicaragua any less hideous.

"The entire mess is a crime which has entered a still more grave and painful situation with the Coolidge order for American reserves to be sent to Nicaraga while preparing his trunks to come to Havana to address the Pan-American conference delegates, telling them that the United States will always give its neighbors cordial, affectionate and respectful treatment."

ALDERMEN VANISH TO TIE UP COUNCIL

Cohoes, N. Y., January 7.—(United News.)—The Cohoes aldermanic rebellion was still in progress tonight as police admitted failure in their efforts to apprehend three members of the common council who disappeared to prevent that body from organizing.

A move to have Governor Smith remove the absentees from office on the ground of "wilful misconduct" also met with failure when Mayor Daniel Cosgro and the remaining three members of the council hurried to the capitol at Albany to find that the chief executive was out of town.

Mayor Issues Order.

The council has been in session since Tuesday. The order to arrest the recalcitrants, who, it was said, opposed the reelection of Charles J. Neeson, the mayor's choice for president of the council, was issued Wednesday. A short adjournment and several recesses were the only breaks in the continuity of the meeting.

The mayor and six members of the council are all democrats.

The "vanishing trio," Mrs. Katherine Hogan, Edward Fisher and William Trombly, were reported to have been seen at Pittsfield, Mass. A check-up of hotels and the house of a fraternity of which the male dissenters are members failed to disclose their presence there, however.

It would be necessary for the police to capture only one of the fugitives to complete the quorum of four aldermen necessary for legal organization.

'Queen of Gems' Picks Out Plane For Ocean Hop

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., January 7. (AP)—Miss Mabel Boll, of Paris and New York, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., known as the queen of diamonds because of the profusion of gems she habitually wears, picked out her plane for an overseas flight today after a test hop in "Mrs. Lindbergh's plane."

Miss Boll, who was reported to have offered Charles Levine $25,000 for a seat in his plane when he was thinking of flying back to America, rode for 40 minutes in the Ford cabin tri-motored plane Mrs. Lindbergh's party flew to Mexico City and back. Her pilot was Harry Brooks who piloted Mrs. Lindbergh. Levine accompanied Miss Boll.

After landing Miss Boll said she would use a plane of this type and make for an attempted ocean flight in April with a pilot still to be selected. During the flight she wore two large diamonds, many small ones and a few odd ropes of pearls for good measure.

WILBUR CALLED TO REVEAL PLANS FOR BIGGER NAVY

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur and his "principal advisers" will be called before the house naval committee next Wednesday for questioning on the administration's $725,000,000 warship building program. Questioning of witnesses will be limited in an effort to expedite procedure.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, ranking republican committee member, declared today that he believed the program should be approved as soon as possible, but announced he would endeavor to have a definite time for completion of the construction written into the bill.

LAST CIVIL WAR VETS TO ATTEND A DANCE

New York, January 7.—(AP)—The last three veterans of the civil war left in the old guard of the city of New York will turn out in full-dress uniform for a night and morning of dancing at the 102d anniversary ball on January 27 at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. The average age of the three is 85 years.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS IN MACON

History of Winship School

FOUR SCHOOLS FOR MACON PUPILS IN 60'S

Indicative of Great Growth

During the sixties there were in Macon four schools for white children and two for negroes. Two of the schools for white children were held in church buildings, one in a two-room house and one in a Central railway building.

They were under the care of the county board of education. The members of this board were Joseph Clisby, L. N. Whittle, E. Winship, R. W. Cubbedge, J. T. Nisbet and Commissioner W. D. Williams.

On September 19, 1872, these men and others met to plan for the organization of the "Board of Education and Orphanage of Bibb County."

The organization was completed October 11, 1872. When the new board began its work it had neither school nor desks.

$70,000 in 12 Years.

At the end of 12 years there were schoolhouses valued at $70,000, and furnished with improved desks.

Secured lots and buildings made a splendid monument to the memory of the resourceful energy of the board.

Emory Winship, for a long time vice president of the board, died in April, 1888.

Four years later it became necessary to build a school in west Macon. A lot was purchased on Huguenin Heights, and the four back rooms of this building were completed in time to be occupied on April 3, 1892.

In remembrance of Mr. Winship's faithful service and zealous support of educational interests, the school was named in honor of the man who was such a prominent figure in Macon's school activities.

Rooms Are Added.

Three years later, in 1895, four front rooms were added to the building, but only two were used at first.

The population of the neighborhood increased so rapidly that the district has been cut five times without greatly reducing the size.

The old Winship school is now very old. It was started in 1892, making it about 29 years old. Because of its age it was decided that a newer and larger school be built in order to accommodate all of the pupils in this district. A lot was purchased first on Montpelier avenue, but after the burning of the Clisby school it was decided to build a still larger school than at first planned, so as to take the Winship pupils also. There was some discussion as to whether the new school should be named Clisby or Winship. The decision was that the Winship school was the older and the new one should be named after it.

Although the new school has all of the most modern improvements, the pupils of the old Winship were very sorry to leave it. In time, however, it is hoped that the new school will be loved as well or better than the old one and the knights of Winship will fight for its glory the same as ever. The work of the principal, Miss Emma Smith, who died in 1921, and of the teachers will be remembered with love and appreciation. In 1921 Miss Smith was given the principalship of Fort Hawkins, another of Macon's beautiful schools.

In 1919 the attendance of Winship school, then on the corner of Winship and Johnson avenues, became so large that it was necessary to send out three grades to a cottage on Mercer campus. During the term there the Clisby school was built on Cherokee Heights. It was opened November 11, 1911, with four rooms accommodating all seven classes.

This rapidly became a full eight-room school, with large attendance. On January 5, 1920, directly after the holidays, it was totally destroyed by fire.

Within two weeks' time the old Nisbet building was overhauled and on January 19 the children made their initial trip in trucks to school.

That term and the next the children attended school there, going and coming in trucks. No one but the teachers and parents can imagine even slightly the joy with which the children hailed a school without trucks. However, all felt grateful that the entire terms were spent without accident.

New School Opened.

On September 19, 1921, the new Winship school was opened, though not fully completed till Christmas. The teachers of Clisby school and of old Winship school were elected for the new Winship school, with Miss Jessie Rice as principal.

It is one of the best schools not only in the city but in the state. It is looming up, the one great interest in the district; the cooperation of the whole community is noticeable in making Winship school second to none.

Emory Winship, for whom our school is named, was born in Forsyth, Ga., June 8, 1829. He was a son of Isaac Winship and Martha Pearson Cook Winship. His mother was a sister of Philip Cook, who commanded the Doles-Cook brigade after the death of General Doles, who was killed in the battle at Cold Harbor, Va. She was born at Fort Hawkins, and loved by all who knew her—especially the old Confederate veterans. She inspired and aided more than any one person in the erection of the Confederate monument on Mulberry street and the headstones on the soldiers' graves at Rose Hill cemetery.

Wesleyan Trustee.

Emory Winship was a member of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, and at the time of his death was a valuable member of the board of stewards and also a trustee of the Wesleyan Female college. His services in both of these were important and valuable.

He was one of the most modest of men, a conscientious Christian gentleman, and faithful in the discharge of every duty. He loved his fellow men and abounded in the helpfulness of all in need. In this he was liberal and kind, truly never letting his left hand know what his right hand did.

He married Miss Elizabeth Alexander. He died at his home on College street, April 8, 1888, at the age of 59 years. His widow passed in 1918.

They had a large family of children, of which the beloved Dr. Winship is one. He is an honored physician in this city and is taking a great interest in the building of our new school, and has children who attend it.

Macon High School Girl Wins State Insurance Prize

Note: Miss Dorothy Tucker, a senior in the Lanier High School for Girls, won first prize in the fire prevention essay contest under the auspices of the Macon Fire Insurance association. Her contribution also won first prize in the all-state contest. The essay follows:

"Long ago, so the Greeks say, when the world was young, the gods had bestowed gifts on every creature but man. So Epimetheus, a god, brought fire from heaven as a gift for man. By this he was to conquer earth, sea and air. Man has conquered earth, sea and air, but he must now conquer fire itself. Fire has robbed man of his home, often and has taken away his loved ones. Its danger is ever present—a demon lurking behind the least of our careless actions, ready to leap forth with its suffocating flames and greedily lick up its innocent victims.

"When Mrs. O'Leary carelessly left the lantern to be kicked over by the cow, thus starting the mighty fire of Chicago 56 years ago, she was illustrating too well our great enemy—carelessness. That we may prevent future fires let's never drop burning matches or cigarette stubs. Matches should always be kept in a match box. When striking matches we should strike them away from us. Matches should be kept out of the reach of children. They should never be carried loose in the pocket.

"In regard to lamps and candles, we should use heavy, flat-based ones. This will prevent overturning. Lights should be put out when leaving the house. The fact that a good grade of oil will often prevent fires is usually overlooked. Above all, fill lamps by daylight always. Keep lamps out of the reach of curtains and things that take fire easily. Gas lights should never be covered with globes. Never use paper lighters, as burning fragments fall, resulting in serious fires.

"The heating and wiring system is often neglected. Pipes passing through walls should be protected from contact with the wall by a metal box, called a thimble. The floor and woodwork should be protected. Rust holes in flues are dangerous. Sparks escape through the tiniest holes. Clothing should not be dried around stoves. Wires ought to be detached at the sockets. The short circuit in the wiring system often causes dangerous fires. The system should be inspected at intervals. Rubbish is a source of fires. It should be burned in metal holders. Oily rags should be kept in metal cans. Leaves ought to be buried—not burned. Camp fires should be put out. Kerosene and gasoline should not be kept in the house. Matches should never be struck around filling stations or automobiles. Flashlights should be used in place of matches when possible. Open fires ought to be inclosed by a screen. Christmas cheer and fun can be conveyed without things that cause fire. Metal tinsel and asbestos flakes are safe tree decorations. Electric lights are better than candles. Then, doing our part of being careful, can't we slay this demon?"

This is the first issue of a weekly Macon school page and is begun for the purpose of arousing interest among school children of Macon in their respective schools.

The purpose, too, is to advertise the Macon schools. To do this the editor must have the cooperation of every high school and grammar school principal and teacher. The Constitution hopes to have this page every Sunday.

Any and all criticisms will be greatly appreciated.

WINSHIP TEAM MAY WIN CUP

BY RAYMOND HAMRICK.

Winship school is very proud of her volley ball teams this year. The Winship boys have won every game played, some of the games being scheduled with exceptionally strong Macon teams.

Those on the team are: Bonnie Thomas, Robert Reagan, Clarence Mercer, Fred West, Horace Rainey, Derry Minton.

Mrs. Weir, principal of the John Burke school, has offered a cup to the team in Macon which goes through the season undefeated and at present it looks as if the Winship boys have a good chance to win this trophy. The team that wins two years in succession will get the cup and so Winship will have to go undefeated next season.

The cup for this year was presented to the team Wednesday night, December 22, and was delivered to the winners before the entire school.

GIRLS HAVE TEAM AT WINSHIP.

The girls of Winship have done their share towards holding up the volley ball honors of the school.

The girls' team is composed of the following: Elizabeth Mosley, Viola Napier, Edith Jones, Mary Benford, Evelyn Harrington, Mary Cornell, Jewell McGee, Avis Miller.

Out of six games played the girls have won only three games, but this seems to be a fair record as this is the first time a girls' volley ball team has been attempted at Winship.

ORCHESTRA PRAISED BY MACON LEADER

Miss Annie Watson's second grade orchestra of Winship recently gave a performance at the regular Saturday morning children's matinee at the Capitol theater.

The orchestra made a big hit with Mr. Stranger, director of the Capitol orchestra, and he gave them much commendation.

WOMAN NOVELIST DECLINES CHANCE TO AID LA FOLLETTE

Madison, Wis., January 7.—(United News.)—Zona Gale, novelist and playwright, has declined to run for delegate-at-large from Wisconsin to the republican national convention.

Miss Gale was nominated on the La Follette slate at a recent conference at Milwaukee. Henry Ellenbecker, of Wausau, another La Follette nominee, also was understood to have withdrawn, and it was reported a third La Follette choice would do likewise.

Product Values Soar.

New York, January 7.—(AP)—An increase of nearly $200,000,000 in the value of Tennessees manufactured products, in the past five years, was described by Governor Henry H. Horton tonight in a speech before the annual Jackson day dinner of the Tennessee society in New York.

M'ANDREW'S TERM IN CHICAGO EXPIRES

Chicago, January 7.—(AP)—Immediately subsequent to the termination of William McAndrew's term as superintendent of Chicago schools, the board of education will open its campaign to rid the schools of what it calls "objectionable" texts.

McAndrew's term expires tomorrow. Actually he has had nothing to do with the direction of the schools since he was suspended last August 29 on a charge of insubordination. His trial has continued since that date, and will proceed after his contractual relations end, counsel for the board has declared.

J. Lewis Coath, board president, said McAndrews' successor will be named soon, adding that possibly all in the city's teaching staff would be permitted to take an examination for the office. He must be a Chicagoan, Coath has asserted.

The retirement of McAndrews ends the fight on him instigated by William Hale Thompson last spring during his campaign for mayor. McAndrew, he accused, lent his office to the dissemination of British propaganda in the schools.

The board of education finds its chief objection to text books among histories used here. Its investigation to start next week will aim to restore heroes and revolutionary incidents not included. The deletion of these, board members say, and Mayor Thompson affirms, was deliberate and the work of pro-British organizations and influence.

Changing in reading, arithmetic and geography text also are needed, said Coath, who alluded to many of them an obsolete. Coath leaves Junary 15 for a trip to New York, Philadelphia and Boston to study schools conditions.

300 U. S. MARINES BOARD TRANSPORT BOUND FOR CHINA

San Diego, Calif., January 7.—(AP) Bound for Shanghai, China, the naval transport Henderson sailed from here today with 300 United States marines aboard. The men are to be used as replacement troops for the third and fourth regiments of troops at Shanghai and Tientsin.

Also aboard the Henderson were 414 bluejackets who are to be assigned to duty with the Asiatic fleet and the China patrol. Another force of approximately 500 marines is scheduled to depart Monday on board the ammunition carrier Nitro for Nicaragua. With the departure of these men, there will remain barely a skeleton force at the San Diego marine corps base.

Winnipeg Students Forbidden To View Hanging of Nelson

Winnipeg, Man., January 7.—(AP)—Students of Manitoba university who attempt to witness the hanging next Friday of Earle Nelson, the "Dark Strangler," from the upper windows and roofs of university buildings will be expelled, school officials said today.

The announcement was made after the authorities learned a number of students had planned to watch the hanging from the university buildings which overlook the jail yard where the gallows is to be erected.

CHAMPION TUNNEY WRITES STUDENTS

Champion Gene Tunney has many friends over the United States.

Recently he made a life-long friend of a boy in Atlanta by presenting the young fellow with a pair of autographed boxing gloves.

And now, Tunney has added hundreds of Macon youngsters to his list of followers.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Richard K. Hines, president of the Parent-Teacher association at Lanier High school for boys, sent the champion a personal letter on behalf of the organization to stop over in Macon and speak to boys of the school. Gene's answer, coming several days ago, said:

"I regret that the great volume of correspondence delays my replying to your kind letter of October 1, which only came to my attention today.

"To the boys of Lanier High school I should like to convey the following message:

"Play the game of life in a sportsmanlike manner. Never take advantage of anyone. Be fair, honest and respectful of all. Accept your responsibilities as duties and always perform your duties. Be clean of mind and clean of spirit and with the will to win, you cannot fail.

"Sincerely,
"Gene Tunney."

Girl Arrested 57 Times Lauds Detroit's Jail

Atlantic City, N. J., January 7.—(United News.)—Speaking as a connoisseur of jails, Miss Helen Dasher has paid Detroit a signal compliment. Detroit owns her favorite jail.

Although only 25 rather pretty and modishly dressed, Miss Dasher, according to the police, has been arrested 57 times in 12 different states and has served sentence in 14 jails.

"Give me the Detroit city jail every time," the feminine exprt remarked while en route to the county jail at Mays Landing today. "It's the best—a handsome building, good food, comfortable beds and nice double sheets."

The "perfect jail," she continued, would have these qualities, a well-stocked library and plenty of blankets.

Miss Dasher was assigned to the Mays Landing jail, presided over by the gallant Sheriff Cimino of Lilliendahl trial fame, for six months. An Atlantic City banker, whose name the police suppressed, caused her arrest on disorderly conduct charges after taking an automobile ride with her.

MILLIONAIRE GIVES WIFE HUGE SUM; AGREE TO SEPARATE

Chicago, January 7.—(AP)—The domestic troubles of Nathan C. Brenner, millionaire steel manufacturer, and his wife, Lottie, were adjusted today when the couple agreed to separate after Mr. Brenner settled $610,000 of his $2,000,000 estate in his wife's name.

There will be no divorce, their attorneys said, but they will live apart. They were married 31 years ago. The settlement was a sequel to two suits Mr. Brenner filed against his wife charging she had tried to defraud him of $750,000 while he was out on the coast. The suits were dismissed.

Mother!

Child Gets Sick, Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."—(adv.)

GEORGIA'S G. O. P.'S FAVOR COOLIDGE

Georgia republicans will meet in convention here March 3 to elect four delegates to the national republican convention at Kansas City on June 12.

Selection of the convention date was made Saturday at a called meeting of the state central republican committee, Roscoe Pickett, chairman, presided.

"Draft Coolidge" was the prevailing sentiment among the delegates in informal post-session talk. The Georgia delegation likely will go to the convention uninstructed, Mr. Pickett said, adding that he could make no prediction where the Georgia vote would be cast. Sentiment has not yet crystalized, he declared, although Lowden and Hoover were receiving much discussion among the voters.

Women delegates virtually were agreed that the party should find some way to draft Coolidge for another term. Next to the president they liked Lowden and Hoover, although there was some talk about Dawes.

The state central committee will meet here again on March 2, the day before the state convention, to transact pre-convention business.

Columbus Papers To Pool Forces For Gala Edition

Columbus, Ga., January 7.—(AP)—Of interest to publishers and as a demonstration of a practical public spirit, the Columbus Ledger and the Columbus Enquirer-Sun announced today that the two newspapers would publish jointly a special centennial edition. Since each newspaper is under different ownership, this step toward unifying civic sentiment and enthusiasm for the Columbus centennial celebration this spring, is a most unusual one for competing newspapers to take.

The centennial is scheduled for the last week in April.

HARDMAN TO SPEAK AT FARMERS' WEEK MEETING IN ATHENS

Governor L. G. Hardman will be principal speaker at the twenty-first annual farmers' week and marketing conference, which will be held in Athens, Ga., January 23-28, it was announced Saturday by Andrew M. Soule, president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

Other speakers on the program include Charles M. Snelling, James A. Hollomon and M. L. Duggan, state superintendent of education.

Prizes amounting to $1,000 will be awarded the winners of the five-acre corn contest on the last day of the meeting by H. Lane Young, executive manager of the Citizens and Southern National bank.

DR. JOHN OLMSTED, FORMER ATLANTAN, DIES IN NEW YORK

News of the death of Dr. John C. Olmsted, former well-known Atlanta physician, who died Friday at his home in Rhinebeck, N. Y., was received here Saturday by friends. The body will be brought to Atlanta Wednesday for funeral services and interment.

Dr. Olmsted came to Atlanta from New York in 1878 and for 40 years practiced as a physician here, endearing himself to a large circle of friends. In 1880 he married Miss Sallie Edwards, of this city, who died some years ago. Dr. Olmsted retired in 1918 and went to Rhinebeck, N. Y.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later from the undertaking establishment of H. M. Patterson & Son.

RECEPTION PLANNED FOR MRS. LINDHEIM

Discussion of plans for the arrival and entertainment of Mrs. Irma Lindheim, national president of Hadassah on February 2, who comes to the city in the interest of Zionism and to stimulate a drive for new members, featured a meeting of the Atlanta chapter of Hadassah Tuesday, January 2, at the Jewish Women's club.

The dancing of Miss Tootsie Dunbar, talented young Atlanta dancer, was a highlight of the entertainment program.

WEST END CIVIC CLUB PLANS NEW MOVEMENTS

Adoption of resolutions placing the West End Civic club on record as indorsing appointment of adequate police to protect vacant property about the city, the erection of a branch of the Carnegie library in West End next year by an appropriation from city council and the extension of the proposed Lee street boulevard from Park street toward the heart of the city, featured the monthly meting of the club.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted by the club and plans discussed toward carrying out the movements. Mrs. Jesse Manry, president of the club, presided.

CuredHisRupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 481-A Marcellus Ave., Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

K.C. HOTEL OWNERS HIKE G. O. P. RATES

Kansas City, January 7.—(AP)—Hotel rates in Kansas City for the republican national convention next June will be 25 per cent higher than normal, under an agreement reached today between the subcommittee of the republican national committee and local hotel managers.

Wililam M. Butler, chairman of the national committee, pronounced the arrangement entirely satisfactory and said an agreement had been reached that prices of meals would not be boosted during the convention. Ralph Williams, national committeeman from Oregon; Roy O. West, of Illinois, secretary of the national committee, and LaFayette Gleason, New York, secretary of the convention, were named as a committee to assign rooms.

Committee to Meet in April.

The subcommittee adjourned late today to meet here again in April at the call of the chairman.

The agreement on hotel rates came after a several hour conference at which the hotel men first presented a plan for "increased capacity rates" which would have meant double charges for rooms large enough to accommodate two beds.

Suggested plans to lease two floors of the new Midland theater building as convention headquarters were dropped when it was found the management was unwilling to hold the space open until June. Later the committee took under consideration the old University club building at Eleventh street and Baltimore avenue.

Three Bids for Broadcasting.

Arrangements for broadcasting the proceedings of the convention were left in the hands of J. Henry Roraback, national committeeman from Connecticut, who will receive applications and make recommendations to the committee.

Three applications for broadcasting privileges were received today coming from the National Broadcasting company, the Chicago Tribune station WGN and the Kansas City Journal-Post.

An expected application from the Columbia Broadcasting company was not presented, but it is expected to be made later.

KENTUCKY LAWMAKERS BACK HOOVER.

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—The three republican members of the Kentucky house delegation today declared in formal statements that they favored the nomination of Secretary Hoover for the presidency by the republican party.

The three, Representatives Thatcher, Robson and Mrs. Katharine Langley, all expressed the view that the Kentucky delegation to the republican convention would support the commerce secretary. Mrs. Langley said that Mr. Hoover was especially popular in Kentucky because of his flood relief work.

FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT WILL SPEAK AT EMORY

Emory University, Ga., January 7. Plans for the citizenship conference to be held at Emory university February 15-18 include speakers of national reputation. A committee composed of Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory, honorary chairman; Dr. T. H. Jack, active chairman; Dr. Cullen B. Gosnell, director, and Dr. R. H. McLean, Mercer G. Evans and R. B. Nixon, committeemen, are in charge of arrangements.

Among the notables scheduled to attend are Franklin D. Roosevelt, former democratic nominee for the vice presidency; Dr. James W. Garner, professor of political science at the University of Illinois; Dr. Howard Odum, dean of the school of social science at the University of North Carolina and editor of Social Forces; Dr. E. C. Branson, professor of rural social economics at the University of North Carolina; Dr. W. W. Alexander, of Atlanta, secretary of the interracial commission; Adamantios Polyzoides, distinguished Greek newspaperman of New York city; Mrs. R. L. Turman, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, and Professor Willis A. Sutton, Atlanta.

"The purpose of the conference," states the announcement, "is to promote political education and to arouse greater interest in governmental affairs."

NEW BIBLE SERIES TO START TODAY AT TABERNACLE

The teacher training class of the Baptist Tabernacle with Mrs. L. O. Langston as teacher, will begin today the study of a new series of lessons known as the "Synthetic Bible Course." In addition to the Bible course, R. R. Ritchie will conduct a course in leadership, using "Tralle's Psychology of Leadership" as the text-book.

These two courses are said to offer unusual opportunities for young people, in the matter of thorough Bible study and are, according to A. G. Sullivan, superintendent of teacher training for the Tabernacle, equal to similar courses taught by leading Bible institutes in other cities. A large number of young people have enrolled for both courses.

The classes will meet in a specially equipped room from 9:30 to 10:45 o'clock each Sunday morning.

W. H. E. BRYANT DIES AT HOME IN TOCCOA

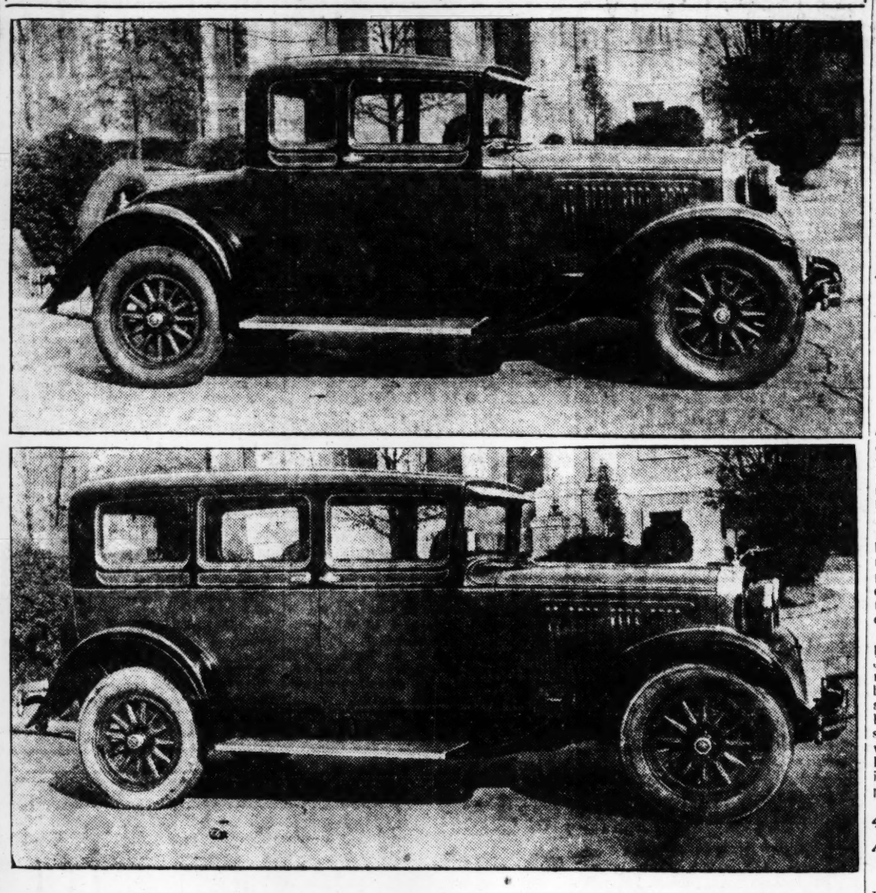

Toccoa, Ga., January 7.—W. H. E. Bryant, for many years a resident of Atlanta, died Saturday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. R. W. McNeely, at Toccoa, Ga., at the age of 41. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at the home, by the pastor of the First Methodist church. Interment will be in Toccoa cemetery.

Mr. Bryant was reared in Toccoa and later went to Atlanta. He was a steward at Wesley Memorial for many years and a loyal church worker. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. R. W. McNeely, Toccoa, Ga., and one brother, John G. Bryant, Birmingham, Ala.

SEMINOLE COUNTY ROAD WORK RUSHED

Bainbridge, Ga., January 7.—According to County Attorney H. G. Bell, the right-of-way to Seminole county adjoining Decatur on the west has been completed. Five miles of grading has been completed with two additional miles of grading progressing rapidly and as soon as the latter is set, pouring will begin, thus starting hard-surface highways for this county early in the new year. The northwestern travel coming south will divert this way when paving on both sides of the Alaga bridge is finished. Alabama has completed paving up to the bridge on the Alabama side.

The Victory Six by Dodge Brothers

Standard coupe top, four-passenger sedan bottom. These are two models of the "Victory Six" announced by Dodge Brothers the past week. They introduce some entirely new features to autodom and according to reports from every section of the country, went over in fine form. These cars are being featured in a special display all this week by the Lambeth-Eskridge Motor company, 456 Peachtree street, Dodge Brothers and Graham Brothers distributors for the Atlanta territory.

REALTY COMMISSION MAKES $3,955 PROFIT

Operations of the Georgia real estate commission for the fiscal year ending December 31 resulted in a net income of $3,955.30, with gross receipts from licenses issued to brokers and salesmen totaling $17,420.32 and disbursements reaching $13,465.02, according to the annual report announced Saturday by Miss Mary Bradford, secretary and treasurer.

The principal income of the commission came from licensing of brokers, this item yielding $10,947.79 of the total revenue, the report showed. Salaries for maintenance of the office staff and an inspector constituted the largest expense item with an outlay of $5,481.75. An additional expenditure of $1,300 was made as compensation to the three members of the commission.

Callender & Bussey Drug Store Enjoys Splendid Patronage

Enjoying immediate popularity at its opening at Peachtree and Cain streets on November 24, the Callender & Bussey drug store is planning to meet increased demands of its patrons with the additional development of Atlanta's new retail center, according to Dr. J. H. Callender and Dr. T. N. Bussey, of the new firm.

Both of these druggists have been in business in Atlanta for the past 15 years or more, having operated stores at Tenth street, Pershing Point and Buckhead, where Dr. Bussey now has a store. J. N. Beasley, who for years has operated Beasley's drug store on Peachtree Place, is associated with the new firm.

The Callender & Bussey store—installed in entirely renovated quarters in the first floor of the Masonic temple building and outfitted with handsome fixtures and a complete stock—offers 24-hour service and has adequate motorcycle delivery. Directly across the street from the new J. P. Allen store, it is in the heart of one of Atlanta's most rapidly growing centers of retail trade.

OSWEGA, N. Y., WOMAN IS SOUGHT IN ATLANTA

Police were requested Saturday to locate Mrs. Alice Mahannah, or her son, Jessie, who left Oswega, N. Y., last March and are believed to be in Atlanta, for the purpose of notifying Mrs. Mahannah that her son, William Scoville, is dead. Chief of Police James L. Beavers received a letter from Mrs. Elsie Taylor, of Oswega, asking that Mrs. Mahannah be notified of the death. Sergeant R. P. Burnett was assigned to locate the woman and her son.

Thomas, of the Brunswick circuit. The convicted slayer's motion for a new trial scheduled to be heard this morning, was continued until January 14 by Judge Thomas.

Atlantan Heads $100,000 Plant In Tallapoosa

Tallapoosa, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—Completion of the organization of the Georgia Steel and Iron company, the new $100,000 manufacturing plant for Tallapoosa, has been announced following a meeting of stockholders held in the offices of the Bird-Potts company of Atlanta.

Announcement has been made following the meeting that work of putting in new sidetracks and other improvements at the plant will begin early in February, and it is expected that the new plant will be in full operation during the spring of 1928.

George Bird, of Atlanta, will be president of the new concern, and D. J. Garvin, president of the pig furnace company at Rock Run, Ala., will be the vice president. A. L. Jackson and A. V. Howe, both of Tallapoosa, have been elected as treasurer and secretary, respectively. Main offices will be located in Tallapoosa, and Harry C. Jackson, of Atlanta, will be in charge of the operations of the plant.

4 MORE JURORS CHOSEN AT HILL MURDER TRIAL

Ottawa, Ill., January 7.—(AP)—Four additional jurors were sworn in here today at the trial of Harry Hill, accused of shooting his mother and burying her body beneath the basement of her home. Four others were obtained earlier in the week.

Doty Starts Serving Time In "Worst" Prison in France

:: SENTENCE IS REDUCED TO FOUR YEARS ::

This is the sixteenth of a series of articles by Bennett J. Doty, American boy whose valiant service in the French Foreign Legion, and his subsequent desertion, imprisonment and release have made him a figure of world interest. Doty relates his remarkable experiences and describes life in the famous legion from the "inside," as it is lived by the private.

BY BENNETT J. DOTY.

(Written exclusively for the Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance. Copyright, 1928, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Eight years! You don't realize what that means at first. But when you go to sleep and awake saying to yourself "eight years," the full import begins to reach you.

August 10, 1926, I was moved from Damascus to Beirut. I said goodbye to Harvey, Weisser and Lass. The Beirut prison was clean and commodious, with good gendarmes and good food. There were a number of Arab prisoners under sentence of 10, 15, 20, 50 and 90 years, and even life.

Harvey Joins Him in Beirut.

Harvey and the two Germans soon were brought to Beirut. Then we were taken aboard ship, for Marseilles, and on September 1 we arrived at Marseilles. As we passed the Chateau d'If, I thought how as a boy in Memphis I had read of that old French prison in "The Count of Monte Cristo."

We were lodged in the fortress of St. Nicholas, directly across from Fort St. Jean, foreign legion headquarters in Marseilles. We remained there 15 days, then went to the military prison of Albertville in Haute Savoie.

Corsicans Ideal Jailers.

The guards at Albertville were mostly Corsicans. A wild people, having no love for the French, they make ideal jailors. But as prisoners go, Albertville was not so bad. The food was neither good nor bad. The beds were clean and the place free from vermin.

Albertville had been a monastery in ancient times, and the old bell was still used to get us up. The prisoners at Albertville manufacture uniforms for the army. I had never sewed in my life; even in the legion I used to get my "buddy" to sew on my buttons. We were expected in prison to make three pairs of pants each a day, but I was never able to do this.

Wrote Home Regularly.

We did not have to work Saturday afternoons or Sundays. Every other Saturday afternoon we bathed. We were allowed two free letters a month to any point in France, and if we had money for stamps, we could write as many as we had time to. I wrote to my father and mother continuously.

My father assured me he was doing everything possible. He had retained Charles Campbell, Jr., an attorney in Paris, and they hoped to obtain commutation of sentence. And December 8 I was informed four years had been knocked off my sentence.

France at that time was in the throes of financial reform. Someone got the idea of abolishing all military prisons and transferring their inmates to the civilian penitentiaries. The idea was adopted. The order went forth to transfer the occupants of Albertville prison to Clairvaux. I had heard of Clairvaux, even in Damascus. French civilian prisons are reputed to be the worst in the world, and Clairxaux was the worst prison in France.

DANDRUFF

A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—(adv.)

Chrysler—third in volume of sales for 1928; third according to sales records of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce

New Chrysler "52" — Six body styles priced from $725 to $875. Great New Chrysler "62" — Seven body styles priced from $1095 to $1295. Illustrious New "72"—Ten body styles priced from $1495 to $1795. New 112 h. p. Imperial "80" — Fourteen custom body styles priced from $2795 to $6795.

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax. Chrysler dealers are in position to extend the convenience of time payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. All Chrysler cars have the additional protection against theft of the Fedco System of numbering.

In 42 months Chrysler, due to splendid public endorsement of its products from their very introduction, has come from 27th to 3rd place.

Of the 43 motor car manufacturers in the N.A.A.C. all but two, far longer established, have been outsold by Chrysler.

The order of precedence is determined by the dollar volume of sales in the twelve-month ended July 1st preceding the National Show.

In the forty-two months since the introduction of Chrysler the public has purchased more than eight hundred and fifty millions of dollars' ($850,000,000) worth of Chrysler motor cars.

No other make of car has ever recorded such phenomenally rapid progress.

There can be no more impressive public endorsement of Chrysler performance, Chrysler long life, Chrysler quality, Chrysler value, supplied in four great price fields by Chrysler's four great cars—the New "52," the Great New "62," the Illustrious New "72" and the New 112 h. p. Imperial "80"—America's most powerful motor car.

Prize List for Georgia Entries in Oratorical Contest Is Announced

Interest Already Awakened; Largest Competition Yet Staged Is Expected This Year.

The same list of prizes that have been given in the past to Georgia contestants in the third international and fifth national oratorical contest on the United States Constitution will be offered again this year by The Atlanta Constitution, Georgia sponsors for the contest.

To each of the winners in the district eliminations will be given $15 in gold. The winner at the state meet will receive $100 in gold and second and third place receives $10 in gold each. In addition to these, many local prizes are annually offered in the various districts by the school boards, bar associations and private citizens.

Dr. J. S. Stewart, of Athens, head of the Georgia High School association, is in charge of the contest. Dr. Stewart says that interest is awakening among the students in all sections of Georgia, even this early, which presages a greater amount of interest in the declamations than has ever been known before.

The students in Georgia high school, under the age of 19, all of whom are eligible to enter the contest, are advised to go to their school superintendent and have him outline plans.

In addition to this, it is hoped that the lawyers in each school district will aid the schools and contestants by furnishing reference books on the two subjects, which are: "The Development of the Constitution" and the "Present Significance of the Constitution." Students are warned, however, that the final orations must be original, since they must be put to the acid test of publicity and competition.

As yet actual dates for the beginning of eliminations have not been decided, but it is planned to have the school contests completed by March 16. The plan in this state, as in all other regional divisions of the nation, is to have each school select its best representative. This boy or girl will represent that school in the district meeting, to be held by or about March 30. Then the best in each district, each of whom will receive the $15 in gold prize offered by The Constitution in addition to other privately offered prizes, will meet in the state finals. The one winning in this meet will represent Georgia in the zone finals, to be held in Raleigh, N. C., May 11.

In the contest this year there will be eight zones. The winner in each of these zones will meet in Washington on May 25 for the national finals. Each zone victor, however, will receive a 12 weeks' trip to Europe with expenses paid. The itinerary of this trip this year includes the Olympic games to be held at Amsterdam during the summer.

In addition to the United States, the contest this year includes England, France, Germany, Canada, Mexico and Japan.

HOGG AND AKIN DENIED NEW TRIAL BY SIBLEY

A new trial on charges of possessing 258 gallons of liquor was denied Robert H. Hogg and Carl Akin Saturday morning by Judge Samuel H. Sibley in United States district court. Paul Lindsey, attorney for the two defendants, immediately filed notice of an appeal to the court of appeals. Hogg and Akin were convicted in federal court at Gainesville.

William H. Mills, war veteran, was sentenced to 18 months in the federal prison on a plea of guilty to charges of possessing and selling morphine and cocaine, while seven liquor defendants were given fines on pleas of guilty. Mills, who claims to have been wounded several times in France, asked Judge Sibley for a jail sentence instead of a federal prison term, but the request was denied.

Liquor defendants were fined as follows: Mrs. Mary Hogan, possessing five gallons, $50; Aaron Stephens, of Tate, transporting nine gallons, $10; Hobart Reece, of Dawson county, consolidated cases of transporting 75 gallons and 83 gallons, $200; Henrietta Smith, possessing one quart, $10; Roy Glazner and Mrs. E. M. Henderson, possessing 40 gallons, $20 each, and Jim Howard, possessing one gallon, $15.

In United States commissioner's court Saturday morning, Judge L. S. Ledbetter bound over Jesse Franklin and C. C. Campbell under bond of $300 each on charges of possessing half a gallon of liquor and parts of a still, and Charlie McCants, of the rear of 71 West Twelfth street, under $200 bond for possessing 15 gallons of whisky. Franklin and Campbell were arrested near Centerville, in Gwinnett county.

FINE RECORD MADE IN MARKSMANSHIP BY 22D INFANTRY

Superior marksmanship of the twenty-second infantry, located at Fort McPherson, rang up a higher "regimental percentage qualification" for the local outfit than any competing regiment, according to figures for the 1927-1928 season of the regiment which were released Saturday. The percentage of the twenty-second was 98.62, while the nearest competitor was the fifty-seventh infantry, Filipino organization stationed at Fort William McKinley, near Manila, with a percentage of 98.53. The next regiment was the twenty-seventh, with an average of 98.32.

The twenty-second leads all of the 19 other regiments whose qualification season reports were published in a recent issue of the Infantry Journal, according to advices from Fort McPherson. In a comparison of figures based on the average score per man in the regiment, however, the twenty-second did not fare quite so well, as it was fifth in line with an average score of 282.07, the highest being the fourteenth infantry, Fort Davis, Canal Zone, with a score of 289.70.

Colonel George F. Baltzell, commander of the regiment, supervised the firing. Lieutenant Colonel Walter O. Boswell is executive officer, and Major John H. Hester commands the second battalion.

BABY HEALTH CENTERS ANNOUNCED FOR WEEK

Baby health centers for this week as announced Saturday by Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, are as follows: Stewart Avenue nursery, Monday; Lackie Street school, Tuesday; Fair Street school, Wednesday; Forrest Avenue school, Thursday, and the James L. Key school, Friday. All centers open promptly at 1:30 o'clock.

SMALL LOAN BODY MEETS THURSDAY

Seventh annual meeting of the Georgia Industrial Lenders' association will convene Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the Atlanta Athletic club, with members from all parts of the state, prominent judicial figures and several officials of national financial organizations whose branches are members of the association, in attendance.

Election of officers and the reading of several technical papers before the association will feature the business session of the convention, lasting from 10 o'clock until 12 o'clock, when luncheon will be served.

The afternoon session, beginning at 1 o'clock, will feature addresses by Judge Richard B. Russell, Judge L. F. McClelland, of the municipal court; B. S. Barker, secretary of the chamber of commerce; E. F. Moore, southern supervisor, Beneficial Operations bureau; W. P. Woll, of Chicago, Ill., president of the Popular Finance corporation, and Major J. L. R. Boyd, of the Legal Aid society.

Madison Is President.

Officers of the association are A. B. Madison, of Augusta, Ga., president, who will preside; Edward M. Steimle, of Atlanta, secretary, and J. A. Schmitt, of Savannah, treasurer.

Mr. Schmitt, who is manager of the Personal Finance company in Savannah, will address the convention on "Credit Standards, and When An Application for a Loan Should be Rejected." A. G. Jones, of Augusta, will read a paper, "Advantages of Technical Training as Given by the Industrial Lenders' Technical Institute of New York City."

The business session will be followed by a banquet and dance at the East Lake Country club at 8 o'clock. An elaborate entertainment program has been arranged under the direction of Paul Crutchfield.

Entertainment Program.

Entertainers will include Paul and John, "Disciples of Harmony"; Sears-Roebuck "Foundation Four" quartet; Janet Kelly in songs and dances; Fred Brigman, basso; Mrs. W. A. Wallace, pianist; Fred and Paul, blackface comedians, and a big minstrel after-piece presented by members of the association.

In explaining the purpose and creation of the Georgia Industrial Lenders' association Saturday, Mr. Steimle, who is manager of the Atlanta branch of the Popular Finance corporation, said:

"The Georgia Industrial Lenders' association was organized July 7, 1921, in Atlanta, immediately after the enactment of the first statute that really regulated the business of money lending in the state. Its membership is exclusively of individuals of corporate lenders, licensed by the state banking superintendent to make small loans, that is, loans from $10 to $300.

Georgia Was Leader.

"Georgia was one of the first states in the union to enact what is known as the Uniform Small Loan law, framed by the Russell Sage foundation on the findings of a commission of economists, sociologists and financiers, for the protection of borrowers of small sums from extortionate interest rates.

"This law not only fixes the interest at a fair rate, but provides for a proportionate reduction of principal and interest in a series of monthly payments, so that the loan is, as it were, automatically repaid, thus eliminating one of the chief evils of the unregulated loan business, the payment of exorbitant interest from month to month with no reduction in the principal.

"The purpose of the organization is to insure a strict compliance with the regulative law by its members and to use every endeavor to rid the small loan field of unscrupulous lenders."

COMPLETION OF WORK ASKED FOR COURTLAND

Members of the executive committee of the Courtland Street Improvement association will appear before city council Monday to ask that an appropriation be made in the 1928 finance sheet sufficient to complete the city's portion of the Courtland street improvements, it was announced Saturday, following advocation of the measure by Wade H. Davis at a meeting of the association.

The project, which incinded widening, grading and paving of Courtland street from Edgewood avenue to Ponce de Leon avenue, was approved by the city several years ago and was expected to be completed during 1927 Mr. Davis stated. Lack of available funds on the part of the city made it possible to finish only the first unit, up to Forrest avenue.

Authorities have indicated that the second unit, from Forrest avenue to Ponce de Leon avenue, will be completed this year on the same basis as the first unit, which called for grading by the county, widening by the city and payment for the paving by property holder under the baby bond issue.

Members of the executive committee, which will appear before council, are Wilmer L. Moore, Milton Dargan, Sr., John W. Grant, George F. Willis, newly elected president; J. J. Spalding, Wade H. Davis, John A. Sibley, M. M. Davies, E. M. Moffett, new secretary and treasurer; W. Brown Mayes, J. J. Haverty, H. Warner Martin, P. M. Snook, Ed F. Bond, W. H. Kiser, James L. Dickey and John M. Slaton.

At its recent meeting the association passed a resolution expressing regret of the death of Edmund W. Martin, and paying tribute to his services as president of the organization.

Seaboard Official Says Industries Ask For Dixie Locations

The industrial department of the Seaboard Air Line is being besieged with inquiries from the northern and western states for locations of various types in the south and in Georgia—particularly cotton mill locations—according to B. C. Prince, freight traffic manager.

Mr. Prince was in Atlanta late last week presiding over a meeting of freight traffic representatives of the Seaboard at the Biltmore hotel. Business plans and prospects for 1928 were discussed at the gathering.

Mr. Prince said he looks with an optimistic eye upon the forthcoming year. He predicted a resumption of building in the south, accompanied by a general improvement in business.

CHAMBER PLANS ANNUAL MEETING

Formulation of plans for the annual meeting of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, scheduled to be held during the last week in January, when newly-elected officers will be installed and yearly reports presented, began Saturday, according to announcement by officials. A definite date for the meeting has not been set.

At the same time, announcement was made of election of John E. Smith, well-known Atlanta automobile dealer, as director of the chamber to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Milton Dargan, Jr., to the presidency.

In addition to Mr. Dargan, the officers who will be installed at the annual membership meeting are Philip H. Alston, William Candler and Horace Russell, vice presidents; Henry W. Davis, treasurer, and B. S. Barker, secretary and executive vice president.

The chamber completed the year 1927 with 306 new members added to its roster, averaging nearly one for every business day in the year, it was stated.

The announcement of the election of the following new members was made Saturday: Akins Furniture company, Byron Akins; Bardwell Sales company, M. G. Bardwell; Dr. B. T. Carter; Cobb Heard Furniture company, H. A. Heard; C. F. Dieter; Dorsey, Shelton & Dorsey, C. D. Dorsey; Hooper & Hooper, Frank A. Hooper, Jr.; Buxton L. Layton; Marmon-Atlanta Motor company, W. C. Denny; Marshall & Pendergrast, J. B. Pendergrast; Massell Realty company, Sam A. Massell; Rosier Bros., R. T. Walters; The Rushton company, W. W. Rushton; Scoville Mercantile company, F. C. King.

DOWELL TO SPEAK AT BAPTIST MEET

Dr. Spright Dowell, president-elect of Mercer university, will be the principal speaker at the dinner meeting of the Baptist deacons and pastors of Atlanta at the Baptist Tabernacle at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening, January 16. The meeting will be the first of four similar dinners during 1928 for the purpose of fellowship among the Baptist leaders of the city. Several hundred laymen and more than 50 local Baptist pastors will be present.

The dinner will be served in the dining parlors of the Tabernacle. Charles W. Outlaw, is in charge of the local details for the dinner. Judge E. D. Thomas will serve as toastmaster. Rev. W. Lee Cutts, pastor of Capitol View Baptist church, will offer the invocation. Dr. W. H. Houghton, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, will pronounce the benediction.

Governor L. G. Hardman and Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, both Baptist deacons, will make brief addresses at the dinner. Other prominent laymen nad preachers also will speak briefly. Hugh Willet, president of the board of trustees of Mercer university, and a deacon in the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, will introduce the principal speaker of the evening, Dr. Spright Dowell.

Louie D. Newton, president of the Atlanta Baptist council, is calling the meeting and will have charge until Judge Thomas take over the gavel. Deacons and pastors who have not sent their requests for reservations to Mr. Outlaw have been urged to do so at once.

Local Students Will Be Guests Of Rotary Club

A large group of students of Oglethorpe, Emory and Georgia Tech who are sons of members of civic clubs throughout the state are expected to attend the meeting Tuesday afternoon of the Atlanta Rotary club, it was announced Saturday by officers of the organization.

Invitations have been sent to every student to be present at the meeting, in line with the recent plan adopted by the Inter-Civic council, which is composed of representatives of the Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions' and Exchange clubs of this city, to assist in making the out-of-town boy and girl students feel "at home" here.

Preparations have been made by the Rotarians, it was said, to accommodate the body of students expected at Tuesday's meeting, which will be held at the Capital City club.

This is the first definite step in the plan of the council toward entertainment of the "stranger students," and it will be followed from time to time by home dinners given by Atlanta citizens to students in colleges here whose homes are in other parts of the state.

Object of Plan.

The plan, which was suggested to the council by Cator Woolford, one of the outstanding figures in educational activity, and Colonel J. C. Woodward, chairman of the educational committee of the chamber of commerce, has as its ultimate object the permanent locating of Atlanta college graduates in Atlanta. Colleges were requested to furnish the civic organizations with lists of students whose fathers are members of some civic club, and in this way the individual club members hope to get in touch with the out-of-town student.

Mr. Woolford explained that his idea was to give the stranger-student a better glimpse of the real Atlanta life.

"Let them see more of the city," he urged, "than the college campus, the streets and the theaters. Let us welcome them into our homes and make them feel that we like them and want them."

The stranger student, however, whose father is not a member of a civic organization, will not be forgotten. Members of the clubs whose representatives comprise the council have been asked to invite their sons and daughters at college here to bring such students to Sunday dinners.

CONFUSION IN NAME OF HOLD-UP VICTIM

The fact that there are two men residing at LaGrange, Ga., who pronounce their names practically the same, although the spelling is different, brought inquiries Saturday to C. W. McDade, an uncle of Carl Edmondson, a doctor, as to whether the latter was the man who was robbed Friday night in the shadow of the state capitol. The man held up and relieved of $110 by two armed bandits was Karl Edmandson, a druggist, of LaGrange, as reported in The Constitution Saturday morning, and not Mr. McDade's nephew. The similarity in names, Mr. McDade said, had caused some confusion.

JUDGE ADAMSON TO RETIRE JAN. 18

Judge Willim C. Adamson, of the United States court of customs and a distinguished Georgian, has been granted retirement by President Coolidge, according to news received in Atlanta Saturday.

Judge Adamson will retire about January 18 and, according to plans announced, while he was a recent visitor to Atlanta, he and Mrs. Adamson will tour Europe, the Mediterranean and Palestine and will later move to their old home in Carrollton, Ga.

The noted jurist is 73 years of age, having been born on August 13, 1854. He was eligible for retirement on full pay upon attaining the age of 70, but has preferred to remain in active work for the past three years.

When a former member of the house of representatives from the fourth Georgia district, he was the author of the famous Adamson act relating to railroad labor. He served in congress for more than 20 years from 1897 to 1919.

Shortly after his reelection in 1917, however, he resigned from the sixty-fifth congress in December of that year, upon his appointment as a member of the board of the United States appraisers customs court, with headquarters in New York city. This was a life appointment with the privilege of retiring when he reached the age limit.

In returning to Carrollton, he goes back to the home county he served as solicitor general and later as judge, and the district from which he was elected to congress.

AUTO CHASE NETS BIG LIQUOR HAUL; 'RUNNER' ARRESTED

Capture of 153 gallons of corn whisky and arrest of a man who gave his name as J. P. Jones, of Alpharetta, was effected early Saturday morning after Fulton county officers had chased a sedan through one of the city's most fashionable residential sections.

The automobile was first sighted on Briarcliff road, near Ponce de Leon avenue, by County Policemen Cal Cates, A. A. Stovall and B. H. Hughes. A race ensued, during the course of which Officer Hughes leaped to the running board of the fleeing car and brought its driver into submission with a "head lock," police reported.

Jones was lodged in Fulton tower in default of $1,000 bond.

Improvement Body In South Fulton To Meet Tuesday

Election of the executive committee and new officers of the South Fulton Improvement league, a political group which has been active in county affairs for the past few years, will feature the first 1928 meeting of the organization, to be held at 8 o'clock next Tuesday night in the Junior Order hall, at Orchard Knob.

At this time the league will shape its program with regard to the county election, set for March 7. In view of the importance of the forthcoming spring primaries, officers of the league urge all members to attend, together with other interested parties.

PADEREWSKI SALE TO OPEN JAN. 26

Sale of tickets for the concert of Ignace Jan Paderewski, noted pianist, to be given at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night, February 1, will open January 26 and continue until the day of the concert, at Phillip & Crew Piano company, 181 Peachtree street, according to an announcement Saturday by Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, president of the Atlanta Music club.

Although the concert is three weeks off, Mrs. Moore said the interest already aroused is astounding and a heavy demand in tickets was seen.

All out-of-town reservations will be made in order of reception, and reservations must be accompanied with checks. Best arena seats are $4 and good seats in the dress circle may be had at from $3.20 to as low as $2. Balcony seats will be $1.50.

These prices are set by Mr. Paderewski personally, and the music club is unable to make a special rate for students. The club will gladly set aside, Mrs. Moore said, blocks of seats for clubs, schools and colleges provided such requests are made early enough. Those desiring blocks of seats should address their communications to the Atlanta Music club, 1150 Peachtree street, N. E.

Requests have already been received from the Mu Phi Epsilon sorority chapters at Shorter and LaGrange colleges and from individuals in Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi.

It is thought probable that Mr. Paderewski will include some modern music on his program, although no definite announcement to this effect has been made.

Cigarette Industry Makes Real Progress, "Old Gold" Makers Say

The war gave use of cigarettes a tremendous impetus, but since the close of the world conflict cigarette consumption—both among men and women—has increased more than during the war period.

This is the statement of officials of the P. Lorillard company, who Saturday attributed the above fact to progress which has been made in production of cigarettes.

"Take our own brand, Old Gold, for instance," the officials said, "we know definitely that Old Golds have won many people, both men and women, to the use of cigarettes, who never used them before, or if at all, only part of the time. The reason for this is that when we decided to manufacture a popular priced domestic brand of cigarette we set out to secure something that would be regarded by a large number of smokers as a distinct advance in cigarette smoking.

There was a tendency on the part of many smokers to complain of a cigarette cough. Tests determined that the use of coarse and raw tobaccos had a tendency to irritate the membranes of the throat. So we decided on the use of only the choicest leaves of well-aged tobaccos, then developed a further process to eliminate throat irritation. Next we found that women particularly complained at times of 'smokers' breath.' By proper blending and further processing, we succeeded in producing in Old Gold a cigarette that eliminates 'smokers' breath.' To show the popular reception which our product has met sales of Old Golds are constantly increasing."

ATLANTA UNIVERSITY WILL HEAR HERSHAW

Professor L. M. Hershaw, of Washington, D. C., former principal of the Gate City negro public school, on Houston street, in this city, will be the principal speaker at a public meeting at Atlanta university at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

A chorus will sing by request a part of the cantata "Holy Night," which was given last Sunday and the university orchestra will furnish music for the occasion.

PLANS FORMED FOR GREATEST OPERA SEASON

Music Festival Directors Enthusiastic Over Outlook for Presentation of Metropolitan Stars.

ATKINSON HEADS OPERA COMMITTEE

Chairman, C. Howard Candler and Robert S. Parker Will Confer With Gatti-Casazza.

Plans to give Atlanta this year the most brilliant and, in many respects, the most varied program of grand opera ever held here were formed at a meeting held Saturday in the office of H. M. Atkinson, president of the Atlanta Music Festival association, when it was voted unanimously to engage the Metropolitan Opera company for a week's engagement here in April.

Directors of the association attended the meeting and were enthusiastic over the prospects for a successful season of opera. Facing better conditions than were faced last year, with a general revival in good music sweeping the country and with the local season established on the firmest footing in its 18 years' history, the directors voted unanimously in favor of offering opera for its nineteenth year.

Mr. Atkinson was named to head a committee to go to New York next week to confer with the Metropolitan Opera company officials relative to the new season. On the committee were also named C. Howard Candler, vice president and treasurer, and Robert S. Parker, secretary and attorney.

Mr. Atkinson, Mr. Candler and Mr. Parker will hold their first meeting in New York some time next week with Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Edward Ziegler, assistant general manager. It probably will be several weeks before it is possible to work out details so that a contract can be signed. Directors of the Music Festival association of Atlanta will insist, however, that only the greatest operas in the Metropolitan's repertoire

Eugene Haynes Offers Site for $100,000 Building at New Course.

Eugene V. Haynes Saturday offered to deed the city of Atlanta a plot of ground in Haynes Manor, valued at $100,000, facing the proposed Bobby Jones golfing course in Peachtree Creek Memorial Park, on condition that the city raise $100,000 for construction of a clubhouse on the property. Mr. Haynes suggested that the home fund of $50,000 declined by Bobby Jones be contributed by the donors as a nucleus for the clubhouse fund and that the building be named after the great golfer.

Under the proposal of Mr. Haynes, the city would donate $25,000 and the county $25,000 to add to the $50,000 Jones home fund. Mr. Haynes already has deeded to the city 36 acres as his contribution to the new memorial park. The plot of ground offered for the clubhouse is 300 feet square, located on the highest portion of Haynes Manor, directly in front of the entrance of the proposed golf course.

The offer of Mr. Haynes follows announcement by Bobby Jones, Atlanta's world champion golfer, that he would not accept the fund raised to buy him a home in token of the esteem of his friends and admirers.

John A. White, chairman of the city park commission, expressed great optimism over the idea, and said that he hoped donors of the Jones home fund would agree to transfer their donations to the construction of the proposed clubhouse.

"The new municipal golf course should have a clubhouse in keeping with it," said Mr. White. "At some time, such a clubhouse must be built. If it would be possible to obtain the $50,000 raised by friends of Bobby Jones, for the purpose of giving him a home, I feel that the city of Atlanta and Fulton county should undertake to raise the remaining $50,000 and thus give to this city one of the finest and most up-to-date clubhouses in the country."

Scott Hudson, president of the Atlanta Athletic club, and chairman of the Jones home fund, said that it was problematical whether the donors to the Jones home fund would be willing to turn over their gifts for the purpose of building a clubhouse. While the committee in charge, he stated, would be glad to give the park commission a list of the donors, it did not feel at liberty to apply the funds in any way other than that specified, and immediately would return all amounts to the various donors.

Leading Atlantans To Urge Necessity Of New Terminals

Committee of Five Is Named by Mayor Ragsdale To Appear Before Public Service Board.

MELL WILKINSON NAMED CHAIRMAN

Legal Viewpoint of City Will Be Presented to Commission by City Attorney James L. Mayson.

Atlanta's claims to a new Union station to afford adequate and modern terminal facilities will be championed before the Georgia Public service commission January 17, by a committee of the city's most prominent citizens in addition to City Attorney James L. Mayson.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, who has been a staunch supporter of the move for a new station, Saturday appointed a committee of five to appear before the commission when railway companies answer a rule nisi ordering them to show cause why they should not provide an adequate and convenient terminal to replace the old, worn out station.

Mell R. Wilkinson is chairman and associated with him are Rolling H. Jones, chairman of the board of Fulton National bank; Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the board of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank; J. Sid Tiller, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, and Milton Dargan, Jr., president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Answers Requested.

Mr. Ragsdale made his committee appointments by letter and asked those who were named to communicate with him by letter stating whether they could serve.

Every force at the command of the present city government will be employed to obtain a new station. Civic clubs, business, financial and labor leaders will aid in every way possible.

Mr. Mayson will represent the city before the public service commission in a legal capacity, while the committee which the mayor has named will show the necessity of a new station from the viewpoint of Atlanta citizens and business interests.

Erection of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts is expected to act as a stimulus to building and improvement activity in the viaduct area, and replacement of the present antiquated and wornout station is imperative, it is pointed out.

Structure Inadequate.

The present structure is wholly inadequate to meet the demands of the large volume of business transacted there or to provide convenient terminal facilities for a traveling public, those favoring a new station declare.

Officials of railroads entering and leaving the station have made preliminary surveys preparatory to making improvements there, it has been announced, but members of the Georgia public service commission feel that these improvements should be started as soon as construction of the viaducts now under way will permit.

No suggested improvement has met with such popular demand since construction of the proposed new viaducts was first agitated. Leaders in every walk of life have openly supported the proposal and the commission has taken the matter up with a view of bringing it to a head next week.

COAL HEADS 'COOL' ON PEACE PARLEY

Fate of Ohio Governor's Attempt To End Long Strike Still Is Uncertain.

Columbus, Ohio, January 7.—(AP)—Whether Governor Donehey's proposed "peace conference" between Ohio coal operators and striking miners will be held was problematical tonight as the operators withheld acceptances or declination of the executive's invitation.

President Lee Hall, of the United Mine Workers, district No. 6, announced this morning the miners would accept the governor's invitation to participate in a conference here Monday, January 16. Dispatches from Cleveland, however, quoted J. L. Good, secretary of the Ohio Coal Operators' association, as saying the association would "await receipt of Governor Donehey's appeal before making any reply."

Several other attempts to arrange a meeting between the two groups have failed.

Governor Donehey's letter addressed to Mr. Hall and to S. H. Robbins, Cleveland, president of the Ohio Coal Operators' association, said the executive "had reason to believe" that large elements on both sides of the mine wage question were ready to make concessions to secure a settlement.

The governor said reports from his personal investigations indicated that the inoperative period in the Ohio mine field since April 1, 1927, had resulted in children of the striking miners lacking proper food and clothing, and in some instances the children "are actually at the point of starvation."

SENATE INQUIRY INTO BRIBE PLOT IN MEXICO ENDS

Committee Prepares Final Report on Authenticity of Hearst "Slush Fund" Documents.

Washington, January 7.—(United News.)—The senate committee investigating alleged Mexican documents published by Hearst newspapers finished its inquiry late today and began preparing a report to the senate on the authenticity of the documents.

It was indicated that the report also might contain suspicions of the committee as to the fabricator of the alleged Mexican state papers which experts agree are forgeries. Miguel Avila, Hearst agent who procured the papers, and John Page, former Mexico City correspondent of the Hearst newspapers, were the final witnesses.

Denies Writing Is "Strange."

Page, who negotiated purchase of the documents, testified at his own request, denying that Spanish words he had used in a statement written for the committee were peculiar. The same words written in the same way occurred in the disputed papers.

Avila, questioned concerning his previous testimony about obtaining the documents from Mexican government clerks, said if anyone had forged the documents it must have been Francisco Tobias, the clerk from whom he obtained them.

Avila said he had been in the Mexican as well as the American army secret service, although he denied that he belonged to both at the same time.

Avila said he never read the documents he obtained until they were published in the Hearst newspapers, eight months later.

"Why didn't you read them?" Senator Robinson of Arkansas asked.

"I didn't have time." Avila replied.

63 CONVENTIONS BOOKED FOR 1928

Indications Point to Notable Year in Atlanta's Growth as South's "Convention City."

Pointing to the records of the Atlanta convention and tourist bureau, which shows that 63 conventions, conferences and similar events are booked for Atlanta during the remaining weeks of 1928, Fred Houser, head of the bureau, stated Saturday that present indications are for a notable year in Atlanta's growth as the convention city of the south. More meetings are being booked daily, he said.

Subsequent to the meeting of the convention bureau's board of directors on December 14, meetings were booked for 1927 that brought that year's total up to 339. This was an average of more than one for each working day in the year, with each convention, in addition, often lasting from two to five days, the executive explained.

Among the conferences and trade meetings booked for the week beginning Monday, January 9, are the following:

January 9-10, sectional meeting of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company. Paint, varnish and Duco divisions. This meeting will bring jobbers and salesmen from the southeastern territory for a two days' meeting at the Biltmore hotel. Officials of the company from Philadelphia will be in attendance. Gilbert Little, district manager, is in charge of arrangements.

January 9-10 will also witness the meeting of the American Bakeries company salesmen, with an attendance of around 60. Leroy Rogers in charge.

On January 10-11 the Southeastern Accounting conference will meet at the Henry Grady hotel. E. C. Becker, of the Atlanta & West Point railway, is secretary of this association.

The Georgia Industrial Lenders association will meet at the Atlanta Athletic club on January 12 with about 100 in attendance. A banquet at the East Lake Golf club on Thursday night will complete their meeting. A. B. Madison, of the Master Loan service, is looking after local arrangements.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass company will hold its annual sales conference at the Ansley hotel on January 12 and 14.

Oil Well Blazes.

Monroe, La., January 7.—(AP)—The Gulf Refining company's Milsap No. 1 gas well came in afire late today and tonight had not been capped. The heat from the burning well was so terrific that workers could not approach within 300 feet of it.

U. S. JUDGE WINS FIGHT TO HOLD CAROLINA POST

Senate Judiciary Committee Votes To Recommend Confirmation of Hayes' Appointment.

EXTORTION CHARGE FILED BY ENEMIES

Jurist Testifies in Own Defense as Hearing Closes—Denies He Failed To Enforce Dry Laws

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Confirmation of the nomination of Johnson J. Hayes, of Greensboro, as federal judge of the newly created middle district of North Carolina will be recommended to the senate judiciary committee.

Announcement that favorable action on confirmation would be taken was made late today by Senator Overman, democrat, North Carolina, chairman of the subcommittee, which heard the protests filed by citizens of the district to retention of Hayes on the bench. He is now serving under recess appointment.

The principal charges against Hayes were that he was corrupt as a practicing attorney, used his office as solicitor of the seventeenth judicial district wrongfully to extort money for compromises in cases where he should have acted as prosecutor, and winked at violators of the prohibition laws.

Hayes Not Cross-Examined.

Following testimony of Hayes in his own behalf, J. W. Rayland, of Marion, who appeared as counsel for the protestants of confirmation of the nomination, conceded the committee would act favorably on the appointment.

When Hayes had concluded, Ragland declined to cross-examine him, stating to the committee that he was "sorely disappointed with the manner in which the case was presented."

"I have done the best that I could under the circumstances," Ragland said. "I came into the case as counsel at a late hour, therefore was handicapped. I was disappointed that certain witnesses who we expected did not appear and I was disappointed in the testimony of certain witnesses who did take the stand."

Senator Overman called for an executive session of the committee and the announcement that favorable action would be recommended on the nomination was made in less than ten minutes.

Charged With Extortion.

High points in the charges against Hayes were an alleged extortion of $1,000 as a compromise in an alleged assault case which, it was contended, he should have prosecuted and his alleged failure to prosecute offenders of prohibition laws.

All cases cited by the protestants were discussed and explained by Hayes while he was on the stand to show that he was not guilty of charges read into the record. Several cases were offered as illustrations that he did not use his office wrongfully and he cited several cases where such action would have resulted profitably to him in a monetary way, if he had so chosen to conduct his office in that manner.

Answering charges of improperly dropping criminal actions against alleged offenders of prohibition laws while solicitor, Hayes declared that he never nolle prossed a case except in open court, where his reasons for such action were stated openly and placed in court records.

In explaining the case where Hayes was charged with wrongfully settling by compromise a charge against Dr. L. A. Hauser, for assault, he declared that he accepted Hauser's statement that he was not guilty of any criminal action and the law firm of Hayes & Jones agreed to endeavor to settle with the woman and her husband to avert civil action.

Denies Taking $250 Bribe.

With reference to the charge that he had demanded $250 to keep information from the grand jury relative to the case, Hayes said the money had been demanded of Hauser by the law firm, but it was used as a credit on a note they had for collection and was not asked for or used as a bribe.

At the conclusion of his testimony, several letters from prominent jurists and attorneys of North Carolina were read, indorsing Hayes for the federal bench.

"No living judge who held courts in the seventeenth district, where I served as solicitor," Hayes declared, "has failed to either come here and appear personally or written letters indorsing me for the federal bench."

Farmer Slain Seeking

WEST WEIR SOUGHT FOLLOWING DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Facts of Son's Death

Jefferson, Ga., January 7.—(AP)—West Weir, a farmer living near here, was being sought tonight following the slaying of a neighbor named R. L. McDougal, Sr., and the death of the latter's 17-year-old son, who was slain while hunting with Weir today.

McDougal was shot down by Weir when he went to the latter's home late today looking for his son, R. L. McDougal, Jr. A Mr. Whitmire, McDougal's son-in-law, who accompanied him on the search for the boy, said that Weir spoke a few words when McDougal asked the whereabouts of his son, answering that he did not know.

Whitmire said that a few more words were exchanged, before Weir opened fire on McDougal.

After the elder McDougal had been slain, an extended search for the boy was instituted and his body was found in the woods not far from Weir's home. The top of the boy's head had been blown off and his broken shotgun was found nearby.

Sheriff R. M. Culberson, of Jackson county, was unable to say whether the boy had been accidentally shot, or was slain intentionally by Weir.

PROSPECTS OF AGREEMENT ON WAR PACT WITH FRANCE ARE NOT CONSIDERED BRIGHT

HIGH TIDE FAILS TO RAISE THAMES TO FLOOD STAGE

Thousands Gather Near Banks of Stream in London, Fearing Repetition of Dreaded Overflow.

London, January 8.—(Sunday)—(AP)—The night high tide, dreaded as likely to bring a repetition of yesterday's disaster, in which 14 persons were drowned, passed without serious developments.

All streets in the flood and danger zone were barricaded with heavy clay and earth fortifications early this morning and residents had been warned to prepare for emergencies, but a favorable westerly wind helped to keep the water in bounds.

Thousands of persons gathered on the banks of the Thamas to witness possible developments. Lambeth bridge was barricaded and all inhabitants of basement rooms in the section had evacuated them.

Many Carried Babies.

Many parents carrying babies were seen last night proceeding to a refuge provided for them by the mayor at Westminster.

Thousands of riverside dwellers were unable to sleep until after the hour of high tide was past, because of fear that yesterday's horrors would be repeated.

High tides driven by a violent gale from the North sea met the flood waters of the upper Thames valley early today and wrought the city's worst flood disaster in living memory.

Crashing through the protecting wall in two places and overflowing its banks at a number of low spots, the river swept into hundreds of dwellings and drowned fourteen persons and threatened the lives of thousands. Tonight police and residents along the swollen Thames watched and guarded against a recurrence of the destructive overflow, which the authorities assert will remain a threat yet for several days.

The subsidence of the gale, however, and the return of the high tide this afternoon without a repetition of the disaster, leads to the belief that such recurrence is hardly likely.

Relief Organization Busy.

While relief organizations are caring for hundreds of destitute and homeless, and the police are clearing away the wreckage of the flood, no authoritative estimate as to property damage has been made, although this undoubtedly will reach staggering figures.

Probably the outstanding loss occurred in the Tate Gallery, officially styled the National Gallery of British Art, where 15,000 Turner drawings are among the damaged or ruined art treasures. The Turner wing contains, in addition to this vast number of drawings, numerous finished and unfinished paintings by the great artist.

Notable structures affected by the flood are the houses of parliament, the Tower of London, Waterloo hospital, St. Thomas hospital, Blackwall Tunnel, Chelsa power house and Woolwich arsenal. The hospitals were affected only in the basements.

Water Menaces Palace.

Within a few hundred yards of the stately houses of parliament and the venerable Westminster Abbey, and across the river within a stone's throw of Lambeth palace, official residence of the archbishops of Canterbury since the days of the Plantagenets, there are dwelling places crowded together, where many thousands of London's poorest find shelter. Upon these the flood waters came swiftly in the night.

So sudden was the inrush that the inhabitants hardly had time to put on their miserable semblance of outdoor wear. Plunging into the dark streets, they found them flowing like canals, the murky waters already

Ruth Weeps Helplessly

:: UNABLE TO EXPRESS HER MISERY ::

As Day of Doom Nears

Ossining, N. Y., January 7.—(United News.)—Nearing a hurried execution, a hurried prison funeral, a hasty interment as required by law a day short of the decent interval reserved for non-felons, Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder wept helplessly in her Sing Sing death cell tonight.

She found no words to express the misery which has overtaken her at last. Realization has come. The placidity and poise she has displayed since she and Henry Judd Gray were on trial for murdering her husband, Albert Snyder, have deserted her. They have left her nothing, not even the fine, flowing phrases about penance and readiness to meet God which come from the little man who will almost certainly follow her to the chair Thursday night.

Feels "Awfully Bad."

"I feel bad—I feel awful bad," was as near as Mrs. Snyder could come to describing the personal horror of her position.

There seemed but one hope that she will escape death—through intervention by Governor Smith—and that hope seemed small. Three alienists are to examine Gray and Mrs. Snyder early next week. They will make their report to the governor. It is unlikely that his announcement will be made before the day of the execution.

Although Mrs. Snyder moaned and groaned and was a picture of mental anguish—and although Judd Gray sat quietly and staring at the wall of his cell, life at Sing Sing maintained its even routine.

The prison pays little attention to the impending executions. They are in no way unusual, prison officials say. Warden Lewis E. Lawes made an announcement—routine to him, but bitterly sad to families of the two convicted murderers of Albert Snyder—that funerals of the two would be in the prison the day after the executions.

Only after the funerals will the bodies be given over to the families of the two, and then they must be buried within a day. That is the law, Lawes commented, and it will be carried out just the same in the Snyder-Gray executions as in any other.

Keeper to Calm Ruth.

John J. Sheehey, principal keeper, who has seen every execution since 1914, said it would be just another execution. "There will be no trouble about this. We'll calm Mrs. Snyder down all right. She'll go in there on my arm."

There had been fear expressed that Mrs. Snyder would collapse before her call to the death chamber and there had been considerable discussion as to whether she would be carried, inert, into the death chair.

Mrs. Snyder has absolutely given up hope tonight. She carried on for some time and often remarked against the prison rule that forbade use of any language that guards could not understand. Her mother had been in the habit of conversing with Mrs. Snyder in the native tongue—Norwegian.

"Warden Lawes is angry with me and won't even let my mother talk to me in her own language," she said.

She likewise commented against Lawes' announcement that a story appearing in a New York tabloid newspaper under the signature of Mrs. Snyder had been sent out of the prison without authority. Two of Mrs. Snyder's attorneys have been barred from visiting her as result of this.

Denies Writing Stories.

"They accuse me of sending out stuff for newspapers. I wrote on some pieces of paper, but I did not know what it was for," the convicted woman said.

Gray takes the approach of execution philosophically. He visits with very few people and reads a great deal. He has little comment to make, guards say.

There seemed little likelihood that a move by Edgar F. Hazleton, Mrs. Snyder's attorney, would stay the execution. He has asked that a suit over cancellation of a $95,000 insurance policy, which Albert Snyder held, be continued until the day after the execution. Hazleton said this suit was not intended to stay the execution.

All plans for the execution have gone forward. It will be witnessed by 20 newspapermen and four physicians. It will be at midnight Thursday, coming within limit set by the supreme court that the executions be during the week of January 9.

FULTON POLITICAL POT BOILING AWAY

Special Election Coming Thursday and County Primary Set for March Seven.

With the special election to fill the post left vacant because of the death of the late Charles G. Turner only five days off, and date for Fulton county primary definitely set for March 7, county politics began to hum Saturday with prospects that several active campaigns will be initiated this week.

The year 1928 will be a political year in the United States and especially in Georgia where voters will select their choices from the president to small city jobs.

James W. Maddox, school commissioner from the fifth ward; Dr. William L. Gilbert, who served on the commission for seven years, and W. E. Dunn, Jr., are contenders for the position to be filled at the special election Thursday for county commissioner. All three candidates reported their campaigns are in good condition and predicted victory. Predictions were that a light vote will be cast in the election.

Date for the county primary was set for March 7 at a meeting of the county democratic executive committee Saturday morning at Fulton county courthouse, and a subcommittee of five was named to set the entrance fees and work out other details for the regular primary. Entry lists close at noon February 6, in accordance with a ruling of the committee.

Claud C. Mason is exofficio chairman of the subcommittee and associated with him are Albert Howell, H. F. West, J. M. George and George L. Bell. They will hold a meeting Monday.

The election will be held in accordance with the Neal primary law, and votes will be consolidated at noon March 8 by the committee.

Walter F. Stewart and Captain George M. Hope, whose terms as Fulton county commissioners expire this year, will be candidates for reelection, it is reliably stated, although neither of them has made a formal announcement. A third post probably will become vacant in the event of the resignation of Edwin F. Johnson to offer for tax receiver, an office now held by William H. Abbott, who will not offer for reelection.

Among others who will seek the three places on the commission are Dr. A. H. Cochran, former alderman

$212,232 LIBRARY BUDGET APPROVED

Council Committee Adopts 1928 Figures Which Show Increase of $102,590.38 Over 1927.

Formal approval of the Carnegie Library budget of $212,232 for 1928 was unanimously voted by the library committee of city council at its meeting at the Carnegie Library, according to announcement Saturday. The budget was previously adopted by the library board and was reviewed by members of the library committee, meeting with the finance committee of the board.

The budget calls for a maintenance fund of $127,232, which is an increase of $17,590.38 over what the library had in 1927, and permanent improvements to the extent of $85,000, including $25,000 for extension of the book stack at the main library, $30,000 for a library building for the Uncle Remus branch and $30,000 for a building for the Inman Park branch. Last year's budget was $109,641.62, all of which was used as a maintenance fund.

Attention was called to the rapid growth of the work of the library and the cramped condition of space for readers at the main library. The need for more book storage space, for a larger personnel and for an increased scale of compensation for library employees was stressed.

Members present at the meeting of the committee, who agreed to go before finance committee of council in a body to ask for the library's budget, were Raleigh Drennon, chairman; Oscar Williamson, J. T. Ozburn, Ellis B. Barrett and Everett Millican. Members of the library board meeting with the committee were P. E. Glenn, president; Mrs. George A. Matson, secretary; Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, chairman finance committee of the library, and C. A. Pounds, finance committee of the board.

EXPERIENCE AIDS "COMMON SENSE," DAVIS DECLARES

Boston, January 7.—(AP)—A new definition of common sense was given by Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war, in an address tonight at the annual banquet of the Alumni Association of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"Common sense," he said, "is intuition backed by experience."

ACTION THIS YEAR MAY BE PREVENTED BY NEW PROPOSAL

French Suggestion That Treaty Be Limited to Aggressive War Held Impractical.

2 NATIONS CLOSE ON ARBITRATION

Separate Pact Replacing Former Agreement Will Soon Be Ratified, It Is Believed.

Washington, January 7.—(United News.)—Disagreement between France and the United States over the nature of a treaty to outlaw war may prevent action this year on the proposed pact.

Negotiations will continue, based on the French note made public today. But prospects of an agreement are not bright, unless Paris is willing to come closer to the American proposal than the latest note indicates.

The French note proposes that the anti-war declaration, suggested by the United States, shall be limited to "aggressive" war. In the opinion of the state department that change would rob the declaration of much of its value.

Fear Trouble Ahead.

Moreover, the state department thinks the difficulties of defining aggression are very great, and it does not desire to be drawn into commitments on that subject.

The original proposal by Foreign Minister Briand last June called for an actual outlawry-of-war treaty between France and the United States, to prevent armed hostiliti : for any cause whatever.

In reply Secretary of State Kellogg proposed an anti-war declaration through a treaty of all the powers, which would have moral effect but would not be legally binding. The United States did not desire to enter into an anti-war treaty with France or any other one European power without extending the declaration to include all powers interested.

While France and the United States are far apart on the anti-war treaty proposal, they are close to an agreement on the new Kellogg-Briand arbitration treaty, to replace the Root arbitration treaty expiring February 27.

Arbitration Pact Separate.

The arbitration treaty is entirely separate from the proposed anti-war treaty, though its preamble expresses abhorrence of war. The treaty provides for possible conciliation and also for compulsory arbitration of all juridical disputes excepting those affecting internal affairs, a third party, or the Monroe Doctrine.

French Ambassador Claudel has received the French reply on the arbitration draft treaty, which will be delivered late Saturday or Monday to the state department. The reply is understood to make several suggestions for amplications of treaty provisions which are said to be acceptable to the United States.

Copies of the Kellogg arbitration draft were also sent last week to Great Britain, Japan and other countries whose Root treaties expire this year.

REPLY MADE PUBLIC IN FRANCE.

Paris, January 7.—(AP)—M. Briand's reply to Secretary of State Kellogg on the proposed Franco-American agreement to outlaw war, made public today, is interpreted as meaning that the agreement must be signed first by these two countries and the other powers may come in afterward.

The French press supports that viewpoint. It points out that the French foreign minister when he pro-

LOSS OF OFFICERS WHO REFUSE BRIBE IS ATLANTA'S GAIN

While zealous officers of the law refuse to receive various sums offered them for likewise various purposes, the good old city of Atlanta most emphatically does not!

That was proved Saturday in the police court of Recorder Murphy M. Holloway in the case of Henrietta Johnson, a negress arrested for violation of the prohibition law, after officers discovered a quart of whisky at her residence on West Hunter street.

After the negress had been held for the state court in $100 bond Officers E. I. Hildebrand and J. R. Norton, who made the arrest, told the judge that when they arrested her she offered them $25 to let her go. The officers refused.

"Well, Henrietta," said Recorder Holloway, "we'll just let you pay the city the $25 in the form of a fine."

ROBBERS SEIZE $4,000 IN RAID ON N. C. BANK

Asheboro, N. C., January 7.—(AP)—Forcing an employee into the vault at the point of a gun, three robbers looted the Bank of Bennett, of $4,000 shortly after noon today, and escaped in an automobile.

Choosing a time when Keller Andrews, assistant cashier, was the only person in the bank, two of the robbers entered leisurely and suddenly flashed their guns on him while their companion remained outside in the automobile. Forcing him into the bank vault, they turned the combination on the safe and were in the act of scooping up the money in sight when J. A. Purvis, cashier, entered.

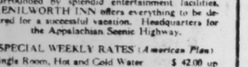

After covering him with their weapons the bandits demanded that he open the vault. When Purvis succeeded in working the combination he was shoved in with the assistant cashier and the lock was turned again.

TRAINS TO STOP, WORKMEN PAUSE, TO HONOR HUGHITT

Chicago, January 7.—(AP)—Every freight and passenger train on the Chicago and Northwestern system will come to a stop for one minute at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning as a mark of respect for the late Marvin Hughitt, who was for many years president and chairman of the board of directors of the road.

At the same time the hour set for the funeral o fthe veteran railway chief, who died yesterday, every employee of the railroad will pause in his work for one minute.

Superintendent Sends Message to Pupils

TO THE BOYS AND GIRLS OF ATLANTA—

My Dear Boys and Girls: The Christmas and New Year season has passed. I sincerely trust that every one of you enjoyed the holidays to your heart's content. The one great serious purpose before us for the next few weeks is the successful ending of the first semester of the school year. On January 28 the first half of the year 1927-28 will pass into history. The grades written on our report cards and placed on our permanent record cards will stand there as silent witnesses for, or against, us for all time to come.

Only recently three different boys from the Atlanta public schools tried for the Rhodes scholarship. The complete record of those boys while in high school made up a part of the application forwarded to the scholarship committee. Day after day the office of the superintendent is asked to report on the grammar school and high school record of boys and girls who are applying for positions or seeking promotions. The record you make for the semester ending January 28 will do you good or injury through all the years to come. My plea to you is that you should make this record a good one. The knowledge gained, a well-trained mind, the consciousness of duty done and a good record will all help to make life happy and successful.

From the kindergarten through the normal school I trust that each student will make for the first semester a record of which he, his family and friends and the school system may well be proud.

Always your friend,
WILLIS A. SUTTON,
Superintendent of Schools.

Boys' High R.O.T.C. Adopts War Dept. Record System

Boys' High school activities resumed regular routine work with unusual ease, following the return of the student body to school after the holidays. Active preparation for the city-wide spelling test occupied the center of interest, and as Boys' High has no regular spelling course the real work had to be done by the students individually. Some remarkable records were made, and all who scored 100 per cent on the test are to be rewarded with a holiday next Friday, January 13.

Basketball practice has been under way for several weeks now, and Coach Johnston is rapidly developing a splendid team. There is any amount of material from which to pick his best five, and the Boys' High 1928 squad can be counted on to give its opponents a run for their money.

The recent adoption of the standard system of war department records in the military office has made this feature of the school the most up-to-date in the city. Drill work is now carried on under established schedules, each company following a program which varies for every organization. The same subjects are covered by all students, and include both practical and theoretical work.

Semi-final examinations, the bane of the high school student's existence, are scheduled for the last three days of week after next, January 18, 19, 20. All students are now busy with their preparations for meeting these tests, and the school is in a furor of scholastic activity.

TWO QUIZES ENDED BY SENATE BODIES

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—The senate ended two of its innumerable investigations today, the hous shoved another on the ways, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, fired a solid shot across the bows of a third and brought it to an abrupt halt.

The net result was a certain net loss of one of the inquiries on the legislative board, while the status of another—that of the Reed slush fund committee investigating into the fitness of Smith to hold office as a senator from Illinois—remains in doubt. Senator "Jim" Reed, chairman of the committee, will see about that later.

House Votes S-4 Probe.

The house, working while the senate remained in recess, performed the only legislative task of the day by adopting a resolution authorizing a special commission to investigate the S-4 disaster. But the senate committees furnished the main interest of the day.

To begin with, the Reed committee called a session to give Mr. Reed his day in court. Down the hallway, Johnson Hayes, North Carolina federal judge, tok advantage of his day in court and by producing numerous witnesses who testified that he was no friend of the bootleggers, which resulted in the inquiry being discontinued.

In another senate office building committee room John Page, Hearst reporter, and Miguel Avila, procurer of purported Mexican documents, underwent another grilling by Senator "Dave" Reed's committee. This ended the Mexican investigation.

I. C. C. Continues Inquiry.

The senate interstate commerce committee also went along investigating the advisability of confirming nominations to the federal radio commission, with the end not yet in sight. Menatime the senate democrats, in conference, asked their leader, Robinson, of Arkansas, to select a committee to keep an eye on the flood control legislative situation.

On the house side, the irrigation committee speeded up consideration of Colorado river legislation. Other committees did likewise with flood control and a number of minor questions, and Representative White, of Maine, started a movement to give the radio commission another year of life—to prove itself, as he put it.

BIDS SOUGHT FOR NEW U. S. AIR MAIL ROUTE

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—A call for bids within two months on air mail routes connecting eleven of the large industrial cities of Michigan and two Indiana cities with the transcontnental and New York-Chicago overnight air mail service was promised today by post office officials after a conference with a large delegation which detailed the needs and advantages of such service.

DRY UNITS WARNED NOT TO BREAK LAW

Washington, January 8.—(AP)—A word of caution again has been passed by the prohibition bureau to its agents not to violate the law in their efforts to enforce the law.

A new manual of instructions, just issued by the bureau, forbids agents to search a private dwelling without a warrant and defines a dwelling as a residence hotel, apartment, or boarding house that is not occupied transiently. Searches may be made of other premises, the rules provide, if the agent has reasonable grounds to suspect violation of the prohibition law.

The manual points out that the Willis-Campbell act makes it a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment for any federal officer to search a private dwelling without a search warrant.

Warned About Firearms.

Particular stress is laid on the unnecessary use of firearms. The promiscuous flourishing and display of firearms is prohibited," the manual declares, adding that "a weapon should never be drawn on a person except in self-defense or to prevent the commission of felony."

"The unwise and unwarranted use of firearms by officers in the past has caused the bureau considerable embarrassment and resulted in much unfavorable and harmful publicity. An officer should remember that he would be held strictly accountable and personally responsible for the fatal result of any use of firearms by him."

Agents are advised to center their efforts on breaking up the sources of liquor rather than devoting time to minor offenses. The manual recommends that where local laws are adequate and local officers efficiently carry them out, the small cases should be left to their attention.

RUM LADEN UNDERSEA CRAFT SEIZED.

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—The ingenuity of rum-runners in Florida waters to defeat prohibition enforcement was disclosed to the prohibition bureau today when it was advised that a rum laden undersea craft had been seized.

It was described as a peculiar, cigar-shaped motorless vessel that floated by an arrangement of aircells underneath the surface of the water on a towline from a speed boat. In case of pursuit, the tow line was disconnected and when the surface vessel was overhauled there was no liquor aboard. Later, the rum-runners would attempt to recover their submerged cargo.

Within a short time federal officers expect to bring their announced drive against prohibition violators in Florida with the winter colonies as the particular target. Men and equipment are being moved steadily into Florida both by land and sea.

WALTER D. KENT OF GRIFFIN DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Griffin, Ga., January 7.—(Special.) Walter Dewey Kent, 28, died at the Griffin hospital late Friday from injuries received in an automobile wreck near Senoia Thursday, when he was returning to Griffin from Newnan in company with Tom Harden. It is thought that the steering gear locked. The car went over a 40-foot embankment, hurling Kent out. Harden was shaken up but not injured enough to be taken to the hospital.

Kent was a well-known resident of Griffin, having many friends throughout this section. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie Kate Kent, a 2-year-old son, his mother, Mrs. Fannie Kent, four sisters, Misses Myrtice, Ora Bell, Estell and Fannie Kent, all of Griffin, and one brother, Tommy Kent, of Key West, Fla.

Funeral services will be held at the Third Methodist church in Griffin Sunday morning at 10 o'clock with the Rev. W. J. Tolbert officiating. Interment will be in the churchyard.

POMEROY NAMED G. O. P. HEAD IN NEW JERSEY

Trenton, N. J., January 7.—(AP)—Hamilton F. Kean, who is expected shortly to announce his candidacy for United States senator, has resigned as republican national committeeman for New Jersey. The state committee yesterday named Daniel E. Pomeroy as his sucessor.

GEORGIA AVE. PUPILS FORM RESOLUTIONS

Most of the Georgia Avenue children are not afraid of the cold and come to school in smiling good humor on this first school day of the year. The little New Year must have surprised himself when he took the mercury for such a decided drop. Coming to school with the weather just one above zero made us feel as if we were mistaken about thinking that we lived in the "Sunny South."

High six has just come back to school with a New Year's resolution to work very hard the rest of the term to get promoted to junior high.

Low six was glad to see snow this morning. We were all glad to come back to school Monday. Everyone had a smile on his face. We were glad to have a new pupil, Dorothy Terrell.

We are enjoying the use of our auditorium as the portable is too cold to stay in at the present.

Low two has made some lovely New Year calendars.

High one pupils are studying seasons and days of the week in a time project.

W. W. BECK INJURED; POLICE SEEK AUTO

Police Saturday were looking for the driver of a hit-and-run automobile which struck down and seriously injured W. W. Beck, 52, of 1432 Allegheny avenue, as the latter was crossing the street near his home late Friday night. Mr. Beck, who was removed to his residence, is under the care of his family physician.

Beck was bowled over by a light automobile which bore Georgia license 47-655, witnesses told Patrolman Burnett. Records at the state capitol, the officer avers, show the tag to have been issued to J. M. Sawyer, of 1005 Edgewood avenue.

Police who went to this address were told that Sawyer had moved to Delta place, the street number beinng unknown.

Miss Pearl Frong, of 845 Stewart avenue, was recovering Saturday from bruises and lacerations suffered Friday night in an automobile collision at the Poplar and Forsyth street intersection.

Miss Frong was driving her machine north on Forsyth street when it became entangled with another car, operated by J. C. Oliver, of 111 Walton street. The injured woman, given first aid treatment in a near-by drug store, was taken to her home.

Police booked reckless driving charges against both drivers.

A grape fruit peel in Fair street Saturday morning resulted in the injury of Oliver King Knox, negro, of 995 Martin street, when the front wheel of a bicycle he was riding skidded and threw him into the side of a city construction department truck.

F. P. Phillips, of East Lake, was driving the truck at the time of the accident. Knox was rendered unconscious, but his injuries are thought to be slight.

Brown Badly Injured.

W. G. Brown, of 180 East Pine street, was badly injured early Saturday night when a truck he was driving collided with a touring car at Houston and Howell streets. He was taken to Grady hospital, where physicians stated that he would recover.

According to information given Call Officers E. W. Ginn and S. B. McGarity, the driver of the touring car disappeared immediately after the accident. The truck was going south on Howell street at the time of the accident.

PEDESTRIANS FRIGHTEN PAY ROLL BANDIT AWAY

Columbia, S. C., January 7.—(AP)—A daring attempt to hold up a pay roll messenger at pistol point in front of the state office building failed today when the masked holdup man lost his courage at the appearance of spectators and dashed away.

The pay roll sought was that of the R. L. Bryan Printing company, which occupies quarters across Sumter street from the office building. W. R. Dent, an employee of the Bryan concern, was later taken in custody by police in connection with the affair and it was understood a second man was being sought.

The holdup man stepped from behind a tree and demanded the pay roll with drawn pistol. Almost simultaneously, however, a woman and two or three men came out of the Bryan plant's entrance and he dashed away.

Hardman To Attend Dedication Ceremony At New Playground

Governor L. G. Hardman has accepted an invitation to take part in the dedication exercises of January 29 of the new playground at the state school for the feeble-minded at Gracewood, in Richmond county, it became known Saturday.

The Elks of Georgia began a movement to provide and equip a playground for the state institution following the failure of the legislature to provide funds, and more than $3,000 was raised.

The invitation was extended to the state's chief executive by B. C. Broyles, secretary of the Atlanta lodge of Elks.

John F. Malley, of oBston, exalted ruler of the grand lodge of Elks, will take part in the program, and Governor Hardman will accept the playground in behalf of the state of Georgia.

Members of the Georgia railroad band will furnish music for the occasion and high officials in the Elks over Georgia will have an important part on the program, it was stated.

RABBI WISE NEW HEAD OF AMERICAN ISRAELITE

Cincinnati, January 7.—(AP)—Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, of New York, today became the new publisher and editor of the American Israelite, a national weekly newspaper for Jewish people, founded by his late father, Dr. Isaac M. Wise, on July 15, 1854. He is pastor of the Central Synagog, of New York city.

LEE FIRST GRADE ADOPTS MOTTO

High one has made its 1928 motto: "Let us keep giving, not with gifts, but with love and pleasure to others."

High two has been very busy making 1928 calendars.

High three misses its teacher, Mrs. Connally, very much, she is sick, but it hopes to have her back soon.

High four pupils are all striving very hard to make their grades in February.

High six has had twelve pupils absent this week, but it hopes to have them back with the class soon.

MARIST COLLEGE PLANS BANQUET

Marist college gridiron warriors are to be honored at a banquet January 25, when the next captain of the squad will be named. The occasion will be one of unusual interest, and will assemble the entire squad for an enjoyable evening, at the Atlanta Athletic club.

Students of the school are now busily preparing for the semi-final examinations, which are to take place on January 24 and 25.

TWO MEN KILLED IN FREIGHT WRECK

Fort Payne, Ala., January 7.—(AP) Two unidentified white men were instantly killed here early this morning when fourteen cars on a through freight train on the Alabama Great Southern railroad were wrecked in the Fort Payne yards. A broken rod on a tank car loaded with syrup is believed to have been the cause of the wreck which took place on the main line and has tied up all traffic through here.

The two men killed were believed to have been hoboes as all members of the train crew have been accounted for.

Dr. Quillian Suggests Annual "Georgia Day" For National Capital

Dr. Garnett Quillian, a member of the Stephens memorial committee and a leading figure at the unveiling of the statue of Alexanled Stephens in the Hall of Fame in Washington, D. C., last month, has suggested that an annual "Georgia Day in Washington" be observed.

Dr. Quillian stated that such a day will offer to a selected number of students from the senior classes of the many educational institutions in the state, the educational and inspirational value of a trip to the national capital each year.

It will also enable many citizens, through a special railroad fare, to make the journey, he stated.

SAVANNAH PLANS BANKERS' MEETING; TO BEGIN MAY 24

Savannah, Ga., January 7.—(AP)—Haynes McFadden, of Atlanta, secretary of the Georgia Bankers' association, here today to arrange a date for the convention to meet in Savannah, announced that the convention will be held May 24, 25 and 26.

This is one of two state-wide conventions for which dates are to be fixed in Savannah today. The state convention of the T. P. A. will probably be held May 4 and 5. This date is to be definitely fixed today at a meeting of the executive committee.

ANNIE MAUD MILLER BURIED IN MONTEZUMA

Montezuma, Ga., January 7.—Funeral services were conducted at Cedar Valley Thursday afternoon for Annie Maud Miller, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Osie Miller, who ided Wednesday night after an illness of only two days. Diabetes was assigned as the cause of her death. She attended the Montezuma school and was in the second grade.

WOUNDED MONTEZUMA LAD IS RECOVERING

Montezuma, Ga., January 7.—Hastings Pike, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pike, who live near Montezuma, is recovering from painful wounds received during Christmas week when he was accidentally shot while rabbit hunting. The full load of the gun fired at short range entered his hip and has caused intense pain but his condition is not considered serious.

Junior Red Cross Receives Gifts From Foreign Lands

Reports at recent council meetings of the Atlanta Junior Red Cross show that remarkable progress has been made by the unit during the past few weeks, adding anew to its already outstanding record.

The grammar school council met last Wednesday, January 4, in the classroom at Rich's. The attendance was gratifyingly large, and much business of importance was carried out. The council voted to stress thrift during January, and a number of plans along this theme were presented. All old Christmas seals and wrappings are to be saved for use in packing foreign offerings next season. The saving of tinfoil is to be continued, and the members have been asked to save all old shoes, so that the Red Cross can use them. The chapter plans to repair these shoes and use them in the Red Cross program of helping needy families.

The high school council was entertained at the Hoke Smith Junior High school. Here a large number of representatives braved the icy weather to attend the meeting, which proved a most successful one.

The Junior Red Cross of the city has received numerous letters from foreign countries during the last week, thanking the students for their gifts at Christmas time. Letters from Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, Belgium, France and Japan were received, in addition to individual gifts to schools. Tenth Street school was the recipient of a beautiful portfolio from Japanese students, and the Atlanta chapter is now the proud owner of an interesting Bulgarian gift, including pictures of the school which the chapter sponsored at Christmas, and samples of weaving from the school.

The tinfoil campaign has been very successful, and only recently the sale of two months' accumulation of tinfoil resulted in the addition of $61.80 to the Junior Red Cross fund.

G. H. S. Students Speak To Junior High School Seniors

Girls' High is once more on the job and back at work after the all-too-short Christmas vacation. And it is not nearly so difficult as we thought it would be, to settle down to the brass tacks of Latin, French and the like, after the romance of the Christmas parties and dances. There is a special incentive for work at this time, for the semi-finals loom perilously near.

The city spelling tests were given before school Thursday morning. Of course all the girls did their very best, and are awaiting the results with bated breath. Last year the school made an extraordinarily splendid record on the tests and we are hoping to repeat the triumph this year. The spelling work has been stressed at this time, and class time has been devoted to it in the English classes. Therefore, we are expecting big things of ourselves.

During this last week, various members of the student body visited all the junior high schools for the purpose of welcoming the February graduates to Girls' High, and to try to let them know something of the new school to which they were coming. In their talks to the junior high students, the girls spoke of all the activities open to the Girls' High student, the splendid reputation of our school, the college records our graduates have made and also of the record for attendance which Girls' High has maintained. The present record is 93 to 95 per cent, and we are most proud of it. The various courses of study were outlined for the benefit of the students-elect, and some of the school traditions pointed out. In this way, our February entrants will have a very good idea as to what kind of a school they are entering, and just what standards they will have to fulfill. Virginia Heard, a junior, gave a talk over WSB on the same subject, which we feel sure was appreciated by all listeners-in.

HERRIN TRIO CONVICTED OF BANK ROBBERY PLOT

Taylorsville, Ill., January 7.—(United News.)—The three Shelton brothers, notorious southern Illinois gangsters, were found guilty late today of attempted robbery of the Kincaid, Ill., Trust and Savings bank.

The three brothers are Carl, Bernie and Earl. They directed a gang in opposition to the Birger gang in southern Illinois. Charlie Birger, leader of the rival gang, is under death sentence for murder.

GEORGIA TRADE BODIES TO HOLD MEET IN DECATUR

Decatur, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—The Georgia Commercial Secretaries' association, composed of representatives of every chamber of commerce and board of trade in the state, will hold its 1928 spring convention in Decatur on February 24 and 25, it was announced Saturday by Marvin A. Allison, secretary of the Decatur chamber. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Candler.

Lincoln McConnell, general manager of the Macon Chamber of Commerce, held a conference at the Atlanta chamber Saturday with B. S. Barker, executive president, and Allison to make preliminary arrangements for the meeting and fix the date.

TOY PISTOL BURNS RICHLAND CHILD; DIES OF LOCKJAW

Richland, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—Charles, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clontz, died last night from lockjaw, resulting from powder burns received during the holidays from a toy pistol.

The lad was sick some five or six days and suffered most intense agonies at times, his sufferings were so severe that it was necessary for the attending physicians to administer drugs to relieve his pains. He was buried in Lumpkin this afternoon.

TWO COMMERCE MEN APPOINTED TO STATE JOBS

Commerce, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—Hal C. Carrington for many years successfully engaged in business in Commerce, Ga., recently sold out his mercantile business and accepted an apopintment in the office of the state industrial commission. He was appointed by Governor H. G. Hardman.

Another appointment of a Commerce citizen recently made is that of George L. Carson, Jr., to position in the state treasury department.

Carson, while having been born and reared in Franklin county, has been a resident of Commerce for many years.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS CRASH IN AIRPLANE

Madison, Wis., January 7.—(AP)—Two University of Wisconsin students crashed in an airplane that fell on ice-covered Lake Mendota here today.

The extent of their injuries was not known. The students were Timston Kratz, Louisville, Ky., senior captain of the university swimming team and national breast-stroke champion, and Fred Burbank, Sioux City, Iowa, a freshman.

Burbank suffered probable fatal injuries. The engine of the plane, which went into a nose dive, was on top of him when those who saw the crash got to the wrecked plane, about 250 feet off the university campus shore.

Kratz was not believed fatally injured. The plane, flying low at the time of the accident, was from the Pennco airport. Kratz was piloting.

Education Is Major Incentive

:: Other Types of Students in Minority, Says Skiles ::

To Collegiate Youth of Today

While there are students who go to college solely for the reputation of being collegiate, and others who matriculate for the athletic and social phases of school life, a real desire for education continues to hold its own as a major incentive to the youth of America, in the belief of Dean W. Vernon Skiles, of Georgia Tech.

Dr. Skiles asserted Saturday that although it is more or less true that nowadays American colleges and universities enjoy a much larger student enrollment than in past generations, because of greater school activities, both social and athletic, it should not be lost sight of that a large majority of modern students are sincere in their efforts at education.

"The student," he declared, "who enters college merely for the purpose of having a good time or for the idea of getting a degree solely for the prestige of it, rarely goes further than his sophomore year."

"Boner" Misses Much.

On the other hand, the dean said, is the student who takes no part whatever in school activities. "This type," he said, "goes through college, devoting his entire time to lessons and consequently misses a great deal of that college atmosphere which he is entitled to and should benefit by. At the same time he fails to contribute to the fraternal spirit of the school."

In the case of Georgia Tech, however, the dean added, by far a preponderance of those matriculating carry out their intention of finishing their education, and the number of those leaving school before the full course is comparatively small.

Realizing the serious bent of its thousands of students, Georgia Tech has come to the fore among the educational institutions of the country in its interest in obtaining employment for those who receive their training there. The alumni association of the school, according to R. J. Thiesen, its secretary, devotes all time possible toward this end, and soon will begin preparations for placing this year's graduates and other of its students desirous of going to work at the end of this year's academic work.

Letters to Employers.

In this connection, Mr. Thiesen explained, his office will send out hundreds of letters to prospective employers outlining the availability of Tech men highly skilled along various technological lines, and in this manner facilitate the tedious task so often complained of by personnel managers of large concerns in their efforts to secure expert employees.

The alumni association, Mr. Thiesen pointed out, has so specialized in the work of assisting both the student and the prospective employer in "getting together" that large organizations all over the United States each spring flood the association with inquiries regarding the availability of Tech men. To further facilitate this work, the association each spring sends to each student a qualification questionnaire. This questionnaire is filled out by the student desiring employment and is then turned over by the association to the Georgia college placement office, which is maintained by various colleges and universities in Georgia and contiguous territories.

Other Organizations Cooperate.

In addition to the placement office, which acts as the principal clearing house for trained students, other organizations cooperate with the alumni association. The attitude of executives of business concerns in Georgia, Mr. Thiesen asserted, is to give preference to graduates and students of schools in the state. As a result, fully 75 per cent of the graduates of Georgia Tech are placed within the state, which is steadily bringing about an increased standard of efficiency among the personnel of Georgia's many industries and other organizations.

Chief among the out-of-state corporations which each spring evince interest in the coming graduate of Georgia Tech are large electric concerns, such as the General Electric and Westinghouse companies, which, Mr. Thiesen said, not only keep in touch with his office by mail, but often send personal representatives to Atlanta for the purpose of interviewing students recommended by the alumni association or the placement office. As a result of these interviews five and not infrequently as many as ten Tech men are often engaged by the large organizations and a higher course of practical training is given them, following which their employers assign them to good positions in this section of the country.

STATE SCHOOL HEAD FIGURES IN CRASH

M. L. Duggan, state superintendent of schools, narrowly escaped death Friday night when his automobile collided with a machine said to have been driven by H. B. McCoy, of the Peachtree Arcade building.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Decatur street and Piedmont avenue. Neither driver was injured and slight damage was done to the machines.

AIR MAIL ROUTE TO OPEN APRIL 1

Actual operation of the New York-Atlanta air mail service may be expected by April 1, according to a letter received Saturday by Postmaster E. K. Large from G. S. Childs, general manager of Pitcairn Aviation, Inc., holders of the contract.

Mr. Childs said that the department of commerce has assured him the airway will be lighted and ready for travel by March 1, and that a month of test flights will be necessary before any mail is carried.

Pilots of the mail service must become thoroughly familiar with the route both by day and by night and under all sorts of flying conditions, and each pilot must land on each of the 30 or more emergency landing fields along the route in the test flights, Mr. Childs said. The pilots must also spot landmarks along a path some 50 miles wide to protect them from losing their way in case of storm or fog conditions.

"From the postoffice department's experience in establishing the transcontinental line, this department is in thorough sympathy with our program for preliminary flying and agrees that it will take about a month from the time the department of commerce has completed its work until we can make the initial air mail flight," Mr. Childs said.

WILLIAM L. GORDY IS ALUMNI LEADER OF ALPHA KAPPA PSI

William L. Gordy was elected president of the Atlanta alumni chapter, Alpha Kappa Psi, commercial fraternity with chapters throughout the United States, at the regular monthly meeting during the past week. Other officers are James C. Shelor, vice president; C. H. Betts, secretary, and Charles Perry, treasurer.

J. D. Sparks, retiring president of the local chapter, who has been appointed secretary and treasurer of the grand chapter, will leave Atlanta to take up his new duties at the fraternity headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Sparks is an alumnus of the University School for Boys and Georgia Tech.

Alpha Kappa Psi is one of the oldest and largest national commercial fraternities and, in Georgia, has chapters at Georgia Tech, Emory university and the University of Georgia.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

HUBNER.

The presentation of this little book of collected poems, by Major Charles W. Hubner, beloved Atlanta poet, is in response to an earnest wish that these beautiful poems be collected and published in book form for the benefit and the pleasure of his countless friends.

Poems of "Faith and Consolation" is the title of Major Hubner's new book, the publication of which brings a real pleasure to its many readers. His writings carry no flaws—there is too much of love and the sweetness of life there—there is faith and sympathy for his fellowman and the same sincere kindness that has characterized his long life of 93 golden years.

He dedicates the book to his children: "As a heritage of the best part of my spiritual life, its longing to promote whatsoever is true, beautiful and good."

The first poem in the book is a tribute to Major Hubner, by Frank L. Stanton, between whom a very strong love existed:

IV.

Strong in the faith on which his hope is stayed,
With love to light his art,
He fronts the future—pilgrim unafraid,
With holiness of heart.

V.

In every storm for him a star that leads
Where shiny feet have trod,
And in a lily's litany he reads
The dreams that are of God.

Among the beautiful poems by this much-loved poet is "At the West Window:"

At the West Window of old age,
Dreaming I sit, and look
On Sunset's glory; page on page,
Memory reads Life's book.
For many years she's written it,
A wondrous book it seems
Of soul, heart, mind, a story fit
For thought, though write in dreams.

Gone are the sunset's golden gleams,
Night comes, my dreams are done,
But brighter than are all my dreams,
One star shines still—but one,
Whose splendor can all dreams outshine,
Though glorious they are,
Whose light divine was ever mine,
Faith's glorious guiding star.

Among the leading comments from some of America's best-known literary writers are the following:

Clarence Edmund Stedman: "Friend, Paul Hamilton Hayne's comments upon your works are generous and well deserved." Whittier wrote: "I thank thee heartily for your wonderful and touching verse on the burial of our lamented friend, Hayne, they are lines that will live." Longfellow gave special praise to Mr. Hubner's tribute to Bayard Taylor, of this poem Oliver Wendell Holmes said: "Such a warm tribute—such a token passing between the two sections of the country makes us feel that it is, and we trust it always to be, one in heart as in name—America!" Alexander Stephens was a great admirer of Major Hubner's work and he wrote that the "Ode to Bernard Mallon" was one of the most beautiful and touching eoniums of the kind." "A poet of purity and spirituality, Mr. Hubner's thought soars hig ." was the comment of the late Senator Thomas Watson.

Major Hubner received from the University of Virginia a beautiful memorial medal in recognition of his distinguished service to the memory of Edgar Allen Poe. Joel Chandler Harris said: "It is as a writer of lyrics that my friend Hubner is at his best."

"Peace on earth, good will to men"—
Diviner words ne'er flowed from tongue or pen!
Good will to men, and peace upon the earth."

NEW FICTION RECEIVED.

The Midnight King. By George Delamare. This is a biographical novel of Ludwig II of Bavaria. It is the first book by the author to appear in the English translation. It is translated from the French by I. Louis Bierman. It was published in Paris under the title of "Le Roi De Minuit." (Rae D. Henkle Co., New York.)

Cannibal Nights. By Captain Raabe, who is perhaps the only man now living who ever sailed under the "doubtful flag." Readers of the story who are familiar with the circumstances say that there is not an untrue fact in the book.

It is a wonderful story. It is a tale that will make a man forget the cares of the world when in his own library—it is a story that will please the seeker after information or be lover for entertainment. Captain Raabe has lived what other men dream about and he has woven it all in his story entitled "Cannibal Nights." (Payson & Clarke, Ltd., New York.)

PATHFINDER OF THE SEAS.

Matthew Fontaine Maury. Pathfinder of the Seas. By Charles L. Lewis, U. S. Naval academy. Foreword by Commander Richard E. Byrd. This is a story every American should know. The following is a simple summary of the contents of the book in writing of the "Pathfinder of the Seas:"

"Virginian, seaman, astronomer, hydrographic expert, author, traveler and exile—always a great American."

This biography is based upon full and accurate records. It bears the stamp of authenticity. It is the story of America's greatest achievement in the conquest of the seas, and of "a man who in defeat won everlasting fame." In writing of Maury the following facts should appear:

It was Maury's articles in the Southern Literary Messenger that prepared the way for the founding of the U. S. Naval academy.

Humboldt described that Maury's researches in oceanography constituted a new department of science, the physical geography of the sea. And there are any number of other things for which he received numerous decorations, medals and degrees, etc.

It is a very handsome and valuable book and should be in every school as well as public library. It is published by the U. S. Naval institute, Annapolis. Price $6.

BOOKS OF VALUE.

Taxation. Life insurance: Its economic and social relations. By Harry J. Loman, Ph. D.

The Economics of Life Insurance. By Solomon S. Huebner, Ph. B.

The Law of Salesmanship. By E. Paul Huttinger, LL. B.

Wills, Trusts and Estates. By James L. Madden, M. A., J. D.

Education and Philanthropy. By John Alford Stevenson, Ph. D.

These books represent a series of life insurance studies, edited by Solomon S. Huebner, professor of insurance and commerce, University of Pennsylvania, and the dean of American College of Life Underwriters. Appleton's books. Price $2.50.

MEDICAL BOOKS.

Cancer Control. Report of an international symposium held under the auspices of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Lake Mahonk, New York. Published by the Surgical Publishing Co., Chicago.

Troubles We Don't Talk About. By Dr. J. F. Montague, a well-known specialist. This book should have been written years and years ago for the sake of suffering humanity. It is written in understandable language and its mission is to do good. (Lippincott's Book, Philadelphia.)

THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER BOOK.

Laddergrams. By J. E. Surrick and L. M. Conant with illustrations by C. J. Coll. Laddergrams stimulate the imagination, they draw on your better knowledge of the English language, and are the best antidote for a dull afternoon ever invented.

"Laddergrams" promises well to be the successor to crossword puzzles and question books. We believe it will have attained as great a vogue, for "Laddergrams" has a fresh, intriguing appeal.

This game is a severe challenge to your mental nimbleness. As you scramble down the ladder from Bride to Groom, or from Laugh to Frown, you experience a very dizzy, thrilling, entertaining descent.

Not the least of the attractions of this book are the fifty clever drawings for the "Laddergrams," by Charles J. Croll. (J. H. Sears & Co., New York.)

The Revolt of the Birds. By Melville Davisson Post. It is a tale of adventure and mystery in the China sea over which hangs the haunting charm of an old legend. It is a strange, unusual tale for lovers of romance. (Appleton's Book.)

The Foundations of Modern Civilization. By Harrison C. Thomas and William A. Hamm. This small book presents the foundations and origins of our present-day civilization. It is the first of a series of three volumes that survey humanity's past with all the "skill and sympathy of the modern historian." (Vanguard Press, New York.)

POETRY AND DRAMA.

Love Conquers All. There is nothing nobler in the world than the love that brings happiness to life.

The Joys of Fellowship. The richest privilege that is accorded to man is good fellowship whether it be at a club gathering, a camp fire or at a friendly gathering in one's home. (George Sully & Co., New York.)

Sonnets to an Imaginary Madonna. By Vardis Fisher. The poet is a student of Nietzsche and Shopenhauer—a realist in the literal sense of the world. Up to this time few American poets have employed the sonnet as a stanza unit for a book-length narrative. (Harold Vinal, New York.)

Green Acres. By Vivian Yeiser Laramore. This little volume contains a collection of poems which are beautiful in their simplicity. The author is a southern woman whose work has received its share of praise. (Harold Vinal.)

The Late Adventure. Poems by Lena Hall. "Miss Hall is concerned with the beauty of the visible landscape around her." . . . "She has been caught up by a whirlwind of color . . . she has sensed the law back of the external world and has given thanks for what she has received (Harold Vinal, Inc., New York.)

MAGAZINES FOR JANUARY.

The Antiquarian, a magazine which the lover of art and antiques finds most attractive, presents for this month a picture in colors on its front cover "Barnum's Museum, New York, 1855." The leading article with its most attractive illustrations is "Antiques in a New Jersey Home—Within the Old Cummins House," home of Dr. G. Wyckoff Cummins, former professor of Yale university, are assembled many historical pieces of furniture of colonial and early American days and relics of other eras. By Albert R. Beatty. The story of these antiques is most interesting.

Colonial and Early American Earthenware—Many pieces have the name of the maker stamped in, but much of it came from England. The story with illustrations is by W. Oakley Raymond. "Early Silver as a Table Decoration," by Edward Wenham; "Spanish Furniture," by Francis Wrigley; "An English Drawing Room in New York," by Nevill-Walpole, and other interesting articles.

Scribner's for January has for its frontispiece "The Greene Mansion, New York," by Lowell L. Balcom; "Vieux Caree—Sketches of Old New Orleans," by George Wright; "National Origins—Deportations—What Must Congress Do? Honolulu, The Peacemaker; "We Southerners," by Grover C. Hall; "A Portrait of Andrew W. Mellon," by Leopold Scyffert, and the serial, "The Greene Murder Case," by S. S. Van Dine, is continued; "O'Meara, the 'Mayflower,'" and "Mrs. MacLirr," by Don Marquis, author of "The Old Soak," will catch the eye of his many friends who will delight in its originality, and several poems, among them being Nineteen Twenty-eight.

A volume with the pages yet uncut,
And silence nestling within the leaves,
Immovable, mysterious, closely shut,
Here Fate the future marvellously weaves.

What will transpire no mortal man can know—
What welcome changes, or what things to fear;
What this sealed book contains of joy and woe,
At the grim outpost of the dying year.

We can but hope that destinies unborn
Breed less of murder, tyranny and lust;
Strong to resist each lacerating thorn,
Buttressed by Honesty—Handmaid of Trust.

Mistake in Shipping Will Result in Big Refrigerator Sale

A highly unique sale—that of a carload of refrigerators in early January—will get under way Monday morning at the Satterwhite Furniture company, 306 Peachtree street, N. E., officials of the company explaining that a mistake in shipping is the cause for the event.

"We had placed our order for a carload of refrigerators with a well-known manufacturer," they said, "and due to some error at the factory, the shipment came to us at this time instead of at the early spring date set for delivery. Neither this firm nor the manufacturer wished to incur the expense of storage, and so we decided to sacrifice the entire shipment in the special sale."

The factory which made the mistake in shipping has assumed the loss which will be incurred in the sale, Satterwhite officials added, and one of its special representatives will be here to supervise clearance of the entire lot of refrigerators.

GOD'S CARE—Though I walk in the midst of trouble, thou wilt revive me:—and thy right hand shall save me.—Psalm 138:7.

PRAYER—"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee."

WE MUST KEEP FAITH.

Whatever color may be put upon the circumstances in Nicaragua that invited the presence of our United States marine forces in that country, and however much we may deplore the duty of participating in the internal troubles of any other nation, the plain fact is that our soldiers and ships are down there now because of an agreement by Nicaragua's contesting parties that our forces shall supervise and insure a fair election between them in the latter part of this year.

President Coolidge, regardful of our legitimate American interests in that revolution-raging country, sent Colonel Stimson, an able and trustworthy diplomatist, down there to estimate the realities of the situation and our proper relations to it. He negotiated the agreement above mentioned and brought about the ad interim armistice.

Now another so-called "revolution for independence" has been staged by an irresponsible roving bandit, Sandino by name, who has somehow and somewhere obtained the means to subsidize a gregarious gang of guerrillas. He has defied the pacific truce and dared to make war upon our marine guardians of it, killing 16 and wounding 40 of them, without a provocation or a civilized principle to justify him.

The case as it now stands is not one to be paltered with. The insult and outrage upon our marines must be punished and their recurrence made perilous to any who might attempt to repeat them. We have pledged our faith to the responsible people and authorities of Nicaragua to preserve their peace and protect them in choosing a constitutional government. That faith must be kept. After that is done we can honorably claim the right to come out of Nicaragua and stay out as long as our proprietary rights there are honestly respected.

THE LOGICAL SITE.

Establishment of a national home for army and navy veterans of all wars, in Atlanta, as provided in a bill introduced by Senator Harris, of Georgia, would provide a comfort and ease for declining years commensurate in some degree with the debt the country owes the men who have devoted their lives to her defense.

The south, of course, offers the best location for such a home. Men and women of advancing years from all parts of the country are turning more and more, when their financial situation permits, to this section as the home of their quiet old age.

The equable climate and the pleasant conditions of life in the south attract people seeking ease and comfort as no other part of the country. It is only reasonable that the government, charged with the responsibility of caring for the aging ex-soldiers and sailors of its armed services, should give them the opportunity to enjoy these advantages.

And no better place could be selected than Atlanta with its combination of southern and metropolitan advantages, its commingling of the delectable old and the aggressive new southland.

Atlanta will warmly welcome such an establishment and guarantee to make its inmates hospitably welcome upon their arrival.

The United Spanish War Veterans and other organizations which have actively sought such an establishment here for the past three years deserve the commendations and support of all of us.

THE SOUTHEAST'S HANDICAP.

One of the most interesting and instructive revealments made in "A Commercial Survey of the Southeast," just issued by the United States department of commerce, is the statement that in the southeastern states, which include Georgia, "retail merchandising is progressing as rapidly as the business of the southeast can get away from its dependence on long-time credit and establish itself on a cash or short-time basis."

That reads like an extract from fully half a hundred editorials printed in The Constitution in the years since the great deflation of 1921.

The greatest desideratum of our commercial relations, whether in the city or the farming area, is to become emancipated from the long-time credits that seduce so many of the people and leave them practically shorn to their hides financially after their pre-Christmas settlements.

The survey offers some evidence that we are experiencing a gradual and hopeful approach to the short-time credit basis. It notes changes in retail marketing for cash and the expansion of trading which has come with increasing industrialization and improvement in agricultural conditions. Particular phases of the transformation are the elimination of many cross-roads stores, the concentration of customers in retail trading centers, localization of jobbing, decrease of wholesale supply houses, and new developing sources of cash income.

That last phase is the essential one that qualifies and amplifies all the others. It is the one most important to the farmers and merchants and bankers of the state. The more they disentangle from the yearly-credit habit and learn the economy of cash, or 30-day credit accounts, the sooner they will feel the economic freedom that will make them all prosperous and happy.

To easily and early reach that desirable condition is why The Constitution has so ardently and continually urged the Georgia farmer to produce on his land those things that can always command a fair price and enable him to market monthly enough of them to pay his 30-day accounts at the stores, or better still, sell them for spot cash and buy by the dollar-on-the-nail plan.

That way lies the path to the economic independence of the southern people and the enrichment of the most naturally opulent region of the nation.

ATLANTIC AIR LINERS.

Recent news dispatches from London tell that reservations are now being made for the first trans-Atlantic flight of a giant dirigible liner, with accommodations for one hundred passengers.

Nothing more striking in the story of man's conquest of the air has developed than this. The achievements of Lindbergh, of Chamberlin, of Byrd and others, pointed the way to the new pathway for humanity. But they did, at best, but point the way. When a dirigible is so far developed, when a trans-Atlantic air service is so completely financed and arranged, that bookings for the first sailings are calmly and phlegmatically accepted, just as bookings for an ocean liner, the day of regular air travel can truly be said to be merely around the corner of current history.

Nearly all of us now living will undoubtedly survive to see the time when air passage over the Atlantic will be a commonplace of travel.

Truly man's ingenuity progresses fast and we of the twentieth century live in the most marvelous age of terrestrial development.

ON WITH THE CACKLES.

Francis Kamper, chairman of the marketing committee of the Georgia association, draws attention to one of the state's greatest opportunities when he writes the state bureau of markets declaring that Georgia alone can consume ten times the amount of eggs and poultry she now raises.

There is opportunity for substantial profits in the poultry raising business, conducted on large scale, and there is, too, opportunity for worth-while thrift and an interesting hobby to the backyard raiser of fowl.

The entire production of Georgia eggs, even though it is substantially increased, can be marketed in this state, Mr. Kamper said, and added that with improved marketing facilities there is even greater opportunity in this line.

The cackle of the hen and the crow of the rooster are the harmonies of prosperity to many hundreds already and there is no reason why thousands more should not share in the money which is available for this product. The day should come when busy flocks of chickens will attract the admiring notice of tourists in every barnyard of the state.

And, for the urban dweller, there is health, interest and substantial profit to be made from the smaller flock which flourishes in the backyard.

THE "HIT-AND-RUN" DRIVER.

Once again an Atlanta family mourns at the bier of a loved one, slain by the cowardly recklessness of a "hit-and-run" motorist. Once again the city extends to the sorrowing ones its sympathy, while at the same time impotently raging at the cowards who ran down the aged man and sped away, too skulking to face the consequence of their own rashness.

Words cannot condemn too strongly the driver, be it man or woman, who flees from the scene after an accident in which the car he drives has been involved. The English language does not contain a designation too damning for such a one.

Street accidents are always sad and regrettable, regardless of the responsibility of the parties involved. Campaigns of safety and education to reduce the hazards of our highways cannot be overdone.

But when the autoist races madly away after striking the victim, as occurred on Washington street on Thursday night, he makes of his deed a dastardly act, regardless of the extenuating circumstances which might have been considered had he been man enough to stop and render what aid he could to the injured, and to accept the responsibility which is rightfully his.

No coward in modern life is greater. No retribution, if caught, can be too drastic.

THE DEMOCRATS AND OHIO.

In discussions of party possibilities the question is frequently put: "Can a democrat hope to carry Ohio?" And the answer usually is that he cannot. Ohio is listed as one of the "solid republican north." In 1912 and 1916 her electoral votes were given to Woodrow Wilson, but conditions politically were not then normal, so those elections are not counted as precedents.

Very shrewd Ohio democrats are agreed that even Governor Vic Donahey could not do the trick as a presidential candidate.

Then the question comes up: "Can Al Smith, if nominated, have any chance to drag Ohio into the democratic column?"

That brings back the fact that in 1922 the wets in Ohio succeeded in staging a referendum on a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize the sale of wine and beer. The result was 719,050 votes in favor of the proposition and 908,522 against it—a majority against it of 189,492.

Since then there may have been some increase of wet sentiment in the state, probably well divided between the parties, but scarcely so much as to enable a wet democrat to carry the state over a dry republican. In 1920 Harding beat his fellow-Ohioan, Cox, by 404,985, and in 1924 Coolidge beat John W. Davis by 698,242, though getting fewer votes than Harding had in 1920.

The probability is that the democratic managers of next year's campaign will not look upon Ohio as a good hunting ground for party game.

Ohio has two republican senators of the United States and in the house delegation of 22 members 18 are republicans and only 6 are democrats.

Furthermore, most of those republicans and two-thirds of the democrats are listed among the drys in an overwhelming dry house of representatives.

Consequently, assuming that the democrats are going to nominate for the presidential offices men who are either pronounced wet, or very strongly lean to that persuasion, it may be taken as a foregone fact that Ohio will not be found in the democratic column at the finish of the race.

WHY NOT OUTLAW THEM?

The deaths and casualties in these years of peace by disasters to submarines and airplanes, in this and other countries, are so many and horrifying as to raise universal questionings concerning them.

If they are to be generally accepted as war machines it will continue to be necessary to maneuver with them for purposes of training and more effective utilization in the emergencies of war. And, of course, the price of the training and experimentations must be paid in almost daily tolls of heroic and precious lives. For whoever voluntarily ventures into the air or underseas in one of those devices is psychologically heroic.

The main issue, however, must soon come to be that of an international agreement to outlaw the submarine and the bombing plane as engines of war.

Many appeals and efforts are being made around the globe to induce a protocol of universal peace between the nations. Perhaps the advocates of that ancient and yet acute hunger of sane humanity might be much advanced by an earlier agreement that, when a war does come, no nation shall be free to employ the submarine or the death-raining airship.

Agreements are already existing by which many barbarities of early wars are no longer permissible to civilized nations when they engage in the decivilizing business of mutual destruction. Recent efforts to outlaw poison gas waves are examples of general public sentiment against the more revolting phases of war. Then, what good reason can be urged against a proposal to outlaw the submarines and the bomb-buzzards and that far, at least, abolish the savageries of war?

MEXICO SHOWS US.

In recent years there have been many devices proposed, even in congress by legislative aids, for securing larger domestic usages of cotton. The results, so far, are encouraging and cotton is now being used in many forms and processes unthought of, or unavailable, so late as a decade ago. These new uses are withdrawing many thousands of bales from our annual export surplus.

One of the uses of cotton that is strenuously urged is that of weaving a fabric strong and cheap enough to take the place of the jute bagging now almost wholly used and almost as wholly imported from India.

There are only two mills in America that fabricate cotton bagging from jute butts. The owners of those mills operate jute industries in India and are even now transferring their bagging factoring to India in order to avail themselves of the extraordinarily low wages paid to labor in that country.

It has been demonstrated that the cotton crop of the south can be more safely baled in cotton bagging with savings in tare and the excessive deduction of 6 per cent made on that account in the English markets, and in costs of both land and ocean transport. In the long run, with jute bagging embargoed, the price of cotton bagging will be absorbed in the above savings.

Up to date the obstacle to the use of cotton bagging has been the puzzle of how to get it into the necessary general employment. Now Mexico has taken a step with reference to one of her export products that should be an illumination and an example to our national legislators.

One of the profitable export products of Mexico is beans and those beans are now sacked and shipped out of Mexico in foreign-fabricated sacks. In order to stimulate and protect home textile industries the Mexican government has decreed that after March 24 of this year "the exportation of beans from Mexico will be permitted only when they are packed in sacks made in Mexico of Mexican fibers."

That looks like the make of key that would unlock our cotton bagging situation. It would be perfectly feasible and constitutional to enact that the exportation of cotton from the United States will be permitted after a certain date in the future, and not far ahead, only when such cotton is wrapped in bagging made in the United States from fibers grown in the United States. Why not?

SMILING THROUGH.

Thrice blessed is the optimist; for him the "sun may be shining tomorrow, although 'tis cloudy today." Cares and vicissitudes may get him down, but he comes up smiling, feeling certain better times are just ahead.

Just a little optimism would have spared, for a life of happiness, Albert Robertshaw, a Massachusetts baker, who, according to a recent news dispatch, became despondent because he had lost his job, and, seeing nothing in the future to relieve the calamity that had befallen him, shot himself an hour before a letter arrived from California carrying the information that oil land in which he had invested years ago had suddenly become so valuable as to make him wealthy.

Coincident with this news item there appeared an interview in which a celebrated authority stated that suicide is not only increasing, but that more men than women are guilty of taking their own lives.

That men should be more prone to commit suicide may be due to the fact that upon them falls the larger part of the responsibilities of life, so when disaster comes they let thoughts of "ending it all" predominate until they bring about the act.

The mind has such far-reaching possibilities in determining the state of our health, happiness and prosperity that we should at all times, even in the midst of deep distress, endeavor to guide our thoughts along optimistic lines.

The happy thought may be only a "day dream," but it is cheerful and uplifting, whereas the pessimistic thought may lead to calamity just a moment before the sun of prosperity breaks through the clouds.

Anyhow, we know who started the motor war.

Prince Carol's coups have failed but a coup awaits him in his native land.

E. L. Doheny had to get into the picture done in oil!

1927—A Review.

Of course, we all, more or less, have been in the business of reviewing the past year. For the next few weeks we will be flooded with statistics made up from a hundred different viewpoints. Each man gathers his own statistics from the viewpoint of his dominant interests. These figures are easily secured from secretaries and treasurers. But the really difficult task is to interpret facts and figures, even after they have been accurately tabulated. Figures themselves "do not lie," but even honest people can take the same figures and give them such totally different interpretations.

I have been reading, as many of our people have, many financial statements from our business world, showing the enormous increase of our wealth during the past year. It is the story of an ever increasing prosperity. By a simple division of millions of population into billions of wealth it is quite plain that there is an adequate income for the necessities of life and a nice surplus for luxury and culture for every person in this glorious land. But even the most superficial observer of life know sthat this is not true. This golden tide of prosperity has not apportioned itself according to any of our laws of averages.

How Much or How Many?

The genuine lover of the people of his country is not satisfied with knowing the sum total of the wealth of the nation, but is anxious to know how fairly this wealth has been distributed. The tragedies of the world are revealed in striking contrasts of light and shadow. Luxurious homes too often form a social antithesis to the hovels of poverty. Life's panorama is too often vividly portrayed in those jingling lines from Mother Goose:

"Hark! hark! the dogs do bark,
The beggars are coming to town,
Some in rags, and some in tags,
But some in velvet gowns."

It is the contrast between the "rags and tags" and the "velvet gowns" which must give us pause. Some are driving in luxury, while others drag their weary footsteps along the way. Some have their lives broadened and brightened with every advantage of culture, while others stand well-nigh blind before the shut door of opportunity. Some walk where beauty enriches and delights their souls, while others move amidst the discordant and inharmonious ugliness of life. With all of our statistics piled in golden Ossas and Pelions before us—despite our universal ballot and our forms of political democracy—we must face the truth, there can be no genuine democracy unless the processes of our social life are making the blessings of life more accessible to the great multitude of the people. So, as we look back upon the year 1927 and try to interpret its significance we must ask, not how much prosperity, but how many people have participated in life's advantages.

Crime and Prosperity.

In reading the meaning of the past year in terms of the nation, it is always misleading to think of individuals, or groups, special sections, or classes. For example, no one can read the story of the crimes committed in the year 1927 in the United States, without a feeling of profound depression. It would not be difficult to prove from the number of these crimes, their boldness, and often their abnormal cruelty, that as a people we are rapidly deteriorating. Yet this would be a most superficial judgment. One might easily take statistics from this same year and this same people of deeds of heroism, of evidences of sympathetic liberality, of increased numbers and efficiency of religious, philanthropic, and educational organizations to prove that we are rapidly moving toward some glorious millennium. The truth is that the good and the bad, even the worst and the best, ever stand in striking contrast, and even challenge and evoke the expression of each other. Righteousness is all the more beautiful in the presence of unrighteousness, and vice seems even more vicious in the presence of virtue. However, I should be terribly misunderstood if it should be thought that I was for a moment discounting the terrible significance of the ever increasing expression of lawlessness and crime in our nation. It calls, not for panicky exaggeration, but for the clearest and profoundest study. We must not shut our eyes to the fact that the unprecedented material prosperity, of which we boast, brings with it an inevitable temptation to the weak and undeveloped personality. There is so much ease and luxury, pleasure and power, flaunted in the faces of those who are limited by provery and ignorance, and yet easily within reach of the lawless hand. A pistol and an automobile makes the cash register and the bank vault accessible to any daring immature youth, who believes that money is the supreme prize of life. One question which we must face first of all is, whether as a nation we are not teaching our youth that money is the supreme prize of life.

God or Mammon.

These meditations also suggest, as one glances back at the political history of our country for the year, whether this money-motive has not also dictated our governmental policy. Would not a careful reading of our recent political history convince us that the fundamental purpose of government, is to furnish material prosperity for the nation? It is true that our political leaders still prattle the phrases of pious patriotism, but business prosperity is the test of our domestic policies and the diplomacy of the dollar determines our international relations.

Once again, as we enter a new year, we must face the issue whether we shall master, or be mastered by, our material wealth. The fields of a nations, as well as of an individual, may yield so bountifully as to tempt it to say, as it builds new barns, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for thyself. Eat and drink." Is there a God who may one day say, "This night shall thou soul be required of thee?"

Winter Strawberries Cost Five Dollars a Quart—No Twelfth Night For Dead Children's Christmas Trees—Kicking Eliminated in Crowded Subways.

BY CHARLES ESTCOURT, JR.

(Copyright, 1928, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

New York, January 7.—A dozen stores, possibly a score, do quite a business in strawberries here, all winter long. They are located in the Grand Central zone and up Madison avenue, the customers hailing from Fifth and Park avenues and the silky Sixties. The price this winter has been up to $5 a quart basket, in shops that seem to be patronized because they charge the most. It is necessary to send the maid for them early in the morning, otherwise the day's supply is gone.

Strawberries from the south are carried through the winter by the exclusive fruit shops and the groceries that have the character of department stores, their stocks being so extensive. They keep a dozen distinct kinds of caviar, including Rafco Zermistaya Malossol, at $22 for 16-ounce jar, and 17 kinds of prunes, 20 kinds of dog and cat food and 21 kinds of salt. They would be ashamed to run out of hearts of palm or Hawaiian Poha jam, or Bigarreaux in the menthe flavor.

AN OLD SOLDIER CRAVES HARDTACK.

In vain has Kenith Campbell hunted for army hardtack in New York city. Hankering for a tin of this celebrated biscuit, which he devoured in quantities as a soldier of the A. E. F. in France, where he was decorated for bravery on the field of battle with the thirty-seventh division, Mr. Campbell has searched high and low for hardtack here, but without avail.

The groceries have Oubijt Beschuit, Majornas Spisbrod, Pain Hypoazote and Agar Agar, but no hardtack. It is not listed even in the handsomely bound catalog of 344 pages which is published with pride by a grocery offering orange blossom, cactus flower and lavender honey from Syria, linden blossom honey from Russia, hymettus and hybla honey in jade green jars from Greece, Bijenhoning heather honey from Holland and Zita-Mez Akacia honey from Hungary.

CHRISTMAS TREES LAST LONGER ON GRAVES.

By order of the women folk, tired of sweeping up dry needles, thousands of Christmas trees have been undressed and tossed out into the street, where they look forlorn and desolate indeed.

Only on Staten Island, outside New York, in the Moravian cemetery, do they still stand upright, on the children's graves. Here their colored balls and tinsel still catch the winter sunshine and tinkle faintly in the wind that sweeps across the brown slope.

Of all the Christmas customs that have place in the diversified Yuletide of New York City, this one is surely the most affecting. As twilight falls on Christmas Eve, mothers and fathers and sisters and brothers troop to the graveyard, plant the small trees in the small mounds, decorate them with tenderest care, sometimes even lighting candles.

A brave show all of the little graves make, with their pretty trees and holiday wreaths and flowers, but the bravery of the families that keep up this custom has impressed The Skyliner more on his January walks over the bleak hills in the borough across the bay. It strikes him that these parents must possess a sure and beautiful faith in the hereafter of their departed children, or they couldn't trim Christmas trees on their graves on Christmas Eve.

NO ROOM IN SUBWAY TO KICK.

The girl friend is a lightweight, speaking physicallly, and mentally honest, so she should be believed. Accept her assurance then that against her will she has just traveled, standing up, and without her feet touching the floor of the subway train, the quarter of a mile or so between Times Square and the Pennsylvania station.

It was in the evening crush hour. She simply got wedged into the crowd and was lifted, with no space to kick. There she stayed, up in the air, feet in space, caught fast in the mob.

All the long history of transportation, from the invention of the wheel to airplane service, can hold nothing more preposterous, more disgraceful to community life, than the subway congestion that is still increasing, as 1928 opens, in this, the largest and most scientifically complicated city ever developed.

BETWEEN JUNGLE BEAST AND AVENUE.

Walter P. Herrick, park commissioner, pacing the floor of his office while he dictates a letter, looks out of the east window of his office and sees a Fifth avenue bus. Reversing, he reaches the west window and finds himself face to face with a hippopotamus.

This office is in the old Central Park arsenal, between the avenue and the menagerie. In the summer, when windows are open, and the telephone receiver is off the hook, both the sound of metropolitan traffic and the call of the wild carry over the wires from the commissioner's desk.

"Sorry," says Mr. Herrick, "you'll have to repeat that. The lions were roaring."

To take this $8,000-a-year post adjoining the jungle beasts, Mr. Herrick, affluent lawyer and traveling companion of Mayor Walker, forsook an office in the financial district and devoted almost all of his time to directing the care of the parks, which job even includes some of the duties of the late Noah.

EVERYTHING ANTIQUE IS IMPORTED.

It's a fact that New York city has the appearance of growing newer and newer every year. The proportion of old-style, seasoned buildings seems smaller than a decade ago. A young semi-skyscraper city has risen out of the old town.

And the old town was old only by American standards. The brownstone front was razed before the last of its first family had departed, and even the red brick dwellings of Washington square are young as compared with the years of the city. Only in the walls of a few colonial houses, preserved now as museums, may be found any vestiges of the New York of the American revolution. To this a few churches are the sole exceptions, and they all came after the name of New Amsterdam had passed.

So in this metropolis of young buildings and people—because the really old people that one sees are comparatively few—all of the objects of any true antiquity are imported. And by contrast these objects appear terrifically old. Where else would Cleopatra's needle, that ancient shaft of the Nile, look so ancient as it does across from the infant apartment houses of Fifth avenue? Where could the skeleton of the brontosaurus convey the impression of vast age that it has in the natural history museum here?

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Jim Reed Boom and the Rough Waters It Must Go Through.

Washington, January 7.—(Special.) Close friends of Senator Reed, here in the capital to look after his interests, are counting on the eventual support of the Georgia delegation in the national convention. They do not visualize those delegates ever lining up to help put Governor Smith over for the presidential nomination.

Exactly what tenable grounds the Reed boosters have for their expectation are not yet delineated upon my map of the possible situation next June. I know that the senator has received many letters from persons in Georgia who voice their hope that he will be the nominee and they may have the gratification of voting for him in the general election. But I have not learned that enough of those letters are from men likely to be potential in framing up the delegation to warrant the conclusion that Georgia can be yet counted as a certain Reed bailiwick.

No Reed Rally As Yet.

The plain fact is that as yet Senator Reed cannot be considered more than a "favorite-son" entry. His Missouri friends have announced that they will give him the delegation from that state. That may be taken as of course. Beyond that there has been no positive or promising sign that the delegation of any other state will be committed to him.

Reed was born in Ohio, but Ohio's delegation, we have just learned, is to be pledged to Pomerene, or otherwise to Governor Donahey, should he suddenly loom before the convention as a better Ohio possibility than the ex-senator.

Reed passed his youth and arrived in his profession as lawyer in Iowa, which state lies immediately north of Missouri, but the Iowans have their tentative "favorite son" in ex-Secretary Meredith. Iowa is also strongly "dry" and not likely to back Reed except on a choice between two "wet" evils.

* * * *

But One Rainbow in the East.

Looking eastward from Missouri the Reed lookouts can scarcely see more than one faint rainbow of promise. It bends over Michigan and is dependent from the uncertain theory that Henry Ford is favorable to Senator Jim and will make a real effort to have the Michigan delegation pledged to him. But it remains to be demonstrated how much the democrats of Michigan are amenable to the wishes of Henry Ford, whose personal political status is one of the unsolved puzzles of the day.

It is not believable that Uncle Tom Taggart and his Hoosiers will be discovered marching to the convention in the Reed column, and "Boss" George Brennan, of Illinois, will allow the delegates of the "Sucker" state to be such suckers as to support Reed against Governor Smith, who is Brennan's beau ideal of the brand of wet candidate the democrats ought to send to the country.

* * * *

No Flags in the West.

Turning toward the west one can see no flaming Reed flags flying from democratic poles. Kansas is right at Reed's elbow, but there is no record that he has ever charmed the democrats of that vagarious arena where John Brown, St. John, Bill Peffer, Sockless Jerry Simpson and Mary Ellen Lease have cavorted and made mosaic history. Kansas is likely to back Congressman Ayres or some other "dry" who goes down to the last ditch.

Northwest of Missouri lies Nebraska, and ex-Governor Charlie Bryan will doubtless lend its delegation. One can hardly imagine "Brother Charlie" sounding his saxaphone from the Reed band-wagon.

Then south is Arkansas and southwest is Oklahoma, and from neither of them has yet been heard the sound of a Reed instrument.

* * * *

Still, One Never Can Tell.

The survey thus stated does not look propitious for Senator Reed's candidacy for the nomination, assuming that he is really in the running for it; but one never can tell surely in advance what will happen in a political game.

It is not only possible, but quite expectable, that a situation will come about when Senator Reed will stand out as the one and only man who can "stop Al Smith" and consolidate enough votes to secure the nomination.

Things like that have happened in other national conventions of both parties. One such occurred in the democratic convention at Cincinnati in 1880 and another like it in the Baltimore convention of 1912. So it is easily within the range of chances that Reed may yet outrun Smith in the home-stretch.

* * * *

Heavy Handicaps To Carry.

The backers of Senator Reed are beginning to realize that he has several heavy handicaps to carry.

In the first place is the formidable antagonism of the radical drys of the party. On all available occasions they have bracketed him with Governor Smith and Governor Ritchie and declared all of them as wet impossibles. Such statements have come from most respectable and influential political and church spokesmen and cannot be "laughed off" easily. How strongly that sentiment of antagonism can affect the convention is as yet only a matter of conjecture.

Then, Senator Reed is not overly popular with the western farmers, because of his opposition to the McNary-Haugen and other forms of farm relief legislation. He is a fighting enemy of anything that carries the color and taint of socialism, or of subsidy.

* * * *

The Women Do Not Like Him.

Again, the women voters of the country do not like Senator Reed, and are not dumb about it. He was strongly opposed to the woman suffrage amendment and said many bitter things about "the female of the species" in politics. The active women politicians have not forgotten them nor forgiven them.

And, then, when the maternity and child welfare measures were debated in the senate no one fought them more vehemently and powerfully than Senator Reed. He opposed them on the ground that government has no right to invade the home and put official agents in authority over the God-given rights of motherhood. Nothing more brilliant and eloquent has ever been said upon the floor of the senate than the eulogy of the divine character and offices of a mother than Senator Reed's speech in the maternity bill debate.

* * * *

Ultra-Wilsonites Oppose Him.

There remains a large body of ultra-Wilson worshipers who have not forgiven Reed for his opposition to some of the policies of that president. Some of those Wilsonites are still strongly influential in democratic and doubtful states and can, if they concert to do so, make the road to the nomination very rough for the Missourian.

On the other hand, Senator Reed's friends claim that he was sincerely in line with democratic traditions and precedents in opposing the policies he did, and that the national electorates of succeeding years have indorsed the positions he occupied. Nevertheless, his alleged "insurgency" yet rankles in the hearts of the implacable Wilsonians.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

BY DR. S. PARKES CADMAN.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Do you not think that the law should be changed so that no alimony should be allowed to a wife where there are no children, except in actions for divorce on account of adultery?

Your question can be stated as follows: If a wife establishes to the satisfaction of the court that her husband's conduct renders cohabitation with him unsafe or improper should she be denied alimony simply because there are no children? My response to this question would be in the negative. The matter should be left to the discretion of the court, to be exercised in view of the circumstances in each particular case. Failure to bear children is not necessarily the fault of the wife. I am informed by judges who sit in cases of marital difficulty that childless marriages are frequently the fault of the husband.

Cleveland, Ohio.

Man naturally heeds his conscience, and the belief in a life hereafter gives him courage to do his daily tasks. Yet in this day of little faith I am most disturbed by the words of Christ on the cross: "My God! My God! Why has Thou forsaken Me?" Again, the very plan of human salvation seems to depend on the sacrifice of Christ's life to propitiate the vengeance of the Creator upon our mortal sins. This is to me only another form of pagan worship. An Abraham of today who would slay his son Isaac to please God would be considered insane.

Wherein lies the difference except as to form?

Various interpretations are given of the words you quote. Some scholars believe they were added to our Lord's utterances on the cross to complete the loud cry with which He died, and taken for that purpose from the twenty-second Psalm. Loisy, the French theologian and exegete, insists that this Psalm dominates the account of Christ's passion. But Loisy is by no means a safe guide.

Yet our Lord's sufferings were often presented to the early church in the language of the lyric named, and details derived from it may have been incorporated into the Gospels. On the other hand, viewed as a whole, this great Psalm is not an utterance of despair but confident trust on God's protecting love.

I believe that these words were actually uttered by the Crucified. One and that they indicate a profound mystery of His expiatory offering which the human mind cannot penetrate. Is not the cross a divine mystery?

Your somewhat crude conception of it as a propitation for the vengeance of an angry deity in no way interprets the death of Jesus as the supreme manifestation of the love and compassion of the everlasting Father for all His children. Compare the historic effect of the crucifixion with that of the ancient legend of Abraham and Isaac. Here is the answer of the redeemed of every nation to your final query.

Charleston, S. C.

In connection with the resurrection of Jesus from the dead and his confirmation of the Scripture record of that event, I have frequently presented a course of reasoning which it seems to me should satisfy any honest inquirer.

The art of embalming human bodies was practiced long before the advent of Christ into the world. In view of the statement of Jesus that he would rise on the third day the Jews were on the alert and, fearing that His disciples would steal His body, they asked for a guard, which was provided. It may be safely concluded that if this wonderful resurrection had not taken place the body of Christ would have been embalmed by the Jews and preserved as a physical denial of the claim of the resurrection.

The body of our Lord has never been produced and no record appears of its having been buried, which would have been the case if He had not risen from the dead. I would be glad to have your ideas on this line of reasoning.

Your reasoning is excellent, but it rests upon the assumption that the enemies of Christ were aware of His forthcoming preeminence and would therefore take steps to defeat it. As a matter of fact, neither His friends nor His foes anticipated His reappearance after death. It was an astonishing and unexpected event which even His intimate associates found most difficult to believe. Only after repeated demonstrations of His actual presence did His followers recover courage and in the faith of His resurrection proceed to establish the church.

I commend to your attention, if it can be procured, a small but worthwhile volume upon this question by the late Bishop Brooke Fos. Westcott, of Durham, England, entitled "The Resurrection Body of Our Lord." It deals at some length with the matters you present.

Annual 'Georgia Day in Washington' Suggested by Memorial Committee

Editor Constitution: The intrinsic value of the recent trip to Washington, D. C., to the students of the various schools of the state, together with the favorable impression which Georgia made at the unveiling of the statue of Mr. Stephens upon the entire nation, has suggested the idea of an annual "Georgia Day in Washington."

The purpose of this letter is to invite an expression from citizens generally throughout the state upon both the value and practicability of such a plan.

While naturally no detailed plan has been perfected, it is suggested very briefly:

First: That the educational and inspirational value of a trip to Washington each year by a selected number of students from the senior classes of the many educational institutions of our state, to the students individually and to the entire state could not be estimated in money.

Second: The railroads will provide a "one fare" round trip, which would enable many citizens, otherwise unable, to make the trip.

The sum of $10,000 would make it possible for some 300 students also to go to Washington—a larger number for a proportionately increased amount.

Third: To invite philanthropists and public spirited Georgians to consider the merits of this proposal and to make liberal subscriptions for this purpose. Should an individual endow this fund, he would not only accomplish untold good, but would for all time perpetuate his own memory.

Fourth: To seek to raise as above suggested the sum of $150,000 or $200,000 as an endowment fund so as to perpetuate this memorial, but to raise within the near future the sum of $10,000 or $12,000 so as to guarantee the trip for 1928.

Fifth: To select from among the contributors a trustworthy commission of business and professional men to receive and direct the expenditure of this fund.

Sixth: Perpetuating the memory of Georgia's two most distinguished sons, to designate the fund raised as "The Stephens-Long Memorial and Educational Fund."

To emphasize the primary purpose of the annual "Georgia Day in Washington" as that of enabling the students and citizens generally to view the statues of Alexander Hamilton Stephens and Crawford W. Long.

Seventh: Since congress is in session in December, and the weather is usually good in Washington during this month, it is suggested arbitrarily, that the first Thursday in December be selected as the date for this "Georgia day," though a different month may be selected from year to year in the discretion of the commission.

Eighth: It is suggested that a similar sum expended in no other way could produce such educational and inspirational value to the young life of the state, and that in no other way could the state of Georgia be brought so prominently or so favorably to the serious attention of the nation.

Finally: The above suggestions are in general the thought of those who are interested in perpetuating the memory of the wonderfully successful event of the unveiling of the statue of Mr. Stephens in Washington on December 8 last.

Naturally many valuable suggestions could be added. We invite constructive criticisms from any who may be interested.

Andrew Jackson, Soldier and Statesman

BY JANE SCOTT WOODRUFF.

In order that we may get a clear-cut impression of this man who was so rare a compound of strength and tenderness, let us turn the pages of history. Here we find that two states contended for the honor of being that of Andrew Jackson's nativity, so close to the border line of what was later the two Carolinas was the old Waxhaw settlement where he was born of good Scotch-Irish parents on the 15th day of March, 1767.

When only 14 years of age he entered the Colonial army and even then displayed that same spirit of patriotic fervor and indomitable will which characterized his maturer years.

After service in the revolution Jackson in 1801 became commander of the Tennessee militia and in the war of 1812 he offered his services with 2,500 troops for the defense of the country. In 1813 his remarkable victory over the Creek Indians who allied themselves with the British was gained. Then in 1814 and 1815 came his still more remarkable victory over the British themselves. Having been put in command of the whole American forces he struck the great blow for American supremacy in the memorable battle of New Orleans.

In July, 1814, Andrew Jackson had been appointed a major general in the United States army and assigned the command of the southern department with headquarters at Mobile. From there with sleepless vigilance he noted the movements of the British upon the gulf coast, at the same time marshalling his forces to resist attack. Word had come to him of the arrival of a squadron of nine English ships in the harbor of Pensacola. Although Spain was at peace with the United States the Spanish commandant of Florida, which was at that time a province of Spain, permitted his territory to become a refuge for the hostile Indians who fell an easy prey to the machinations of British agents, from whom they received instruments of warfare, supplies of food and clothing and all such emoluments as generally accrue to allies in war.

Aided By Spaniards.

Later there came to General Jackson at Mobile the disturbing news that the British flag was floating with the flag of Spain over one of the Spanish forts on Pensacola bay. It was at this juncture that Jackson, with his comprehensive military vision, suspected New Orleans would prove to be the main point of attack; so after strengthening the garrison at Fort Bowyer, south of Mobile, he began to make preparations such as would fortify the Crescent City against any British onslaughts.

His own forecast of the situation had strong support in a message from the governor of Louisiana to the effect that the British fleet, then in the West Indies, was about to sail with New Orleans as the objective of their expedition. This news had reached the ears of Governor Claiborne through the celebrated Captain Jean Lafitte, leader of the reputed Pirates of the Gulf, who was overcome by a feeling of patriotic love and loyalty even though he and his followers had been outlawed by an edict of our government.

After disclosing these plans of the British navy, Lafitte and all his allies promptly offered their services on the condition that the government would accept their enlistment and remove from them the ban of outlawry. This was all done in time and it is recorded that no recruits of Jackson's army rendered more valiant and effective services during the stirring campaign which culminated in the decisive victory of Sunday, January 8, 1815, known as the battle of New Orleans.

In connection with this stupendous victory when the very air was vibrant with ringing cheers of men and a great throng had gone to his hotel to do him honor, it is related of the hero that when he appeared upon the balcony to acknowledge their applause he bore tenderly in his arms his adopted son, Andrew Jackson, Jr., then a tiny baby. He had caught the sound of the child's cry from an adjoining room, and no appeal of the helpless ever went unheeded by this gentle-hearted man of iron will. To this little babe, the son of Rachel Jackson's brother, Severn Donelson, whom they adopted when he was only three days old, this childless couple gave a devotion as thorough and beautiful as if he had been their own.

New Epoch.

Having had a glimpse into the military achievements of General Jackson may we turn another page of history and find that his accession to the presidency in 1829 a new epoch in American life had its beginning. Already there had developed a transition from colonialism to nationalism and democracy as a result of the second war with England. Now a new and unique personality had been called to take the helm of government, while this new political policy steadily gained adherents. "Andrew Jackson," as one of his historians relates, "was a typical representative of the new democratic ideas, both political and social, and was eminently fitted by his character to give direction to them."

It is further said of this period in American history that the differences of wealth had not become a disturbing element, there being only three millionaires in the country: Lawrence, of Boston; Astor, of New York, and Girard, of Philadelphia. So it was upon fertile soil that the seeds of democracy fell and germinated.

This democratic movement spread into many directions, while new and powerful forces were for the first time coming into play. Almost everywhere there was an extension of suffrage among men, the lights of law and science commenced to shine more brightly, while the development of American literature had its beginnings.

Most absorbing is the history of these times which were no less critical than the days of the revolution. It was a period when both our national life and our government were in the process of making, and as we contemplate the chief factors in the molding of the great America that is ours today, there rises before us the stalwart figure of that intrepid soldier, constructive statesman and gentle-hearted man with will of iron—Andrew Jackson.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

KEEP YOUR HEAD COOL AND YOUR FEET WARM.

Well, well, this is only Thursday, but I know how Robinson Crusoe felt when Friday came.

Mr. Vilhjalmur Stefasson remarks:

"No one in any of our parties has ever, so far as I know, suffered the slightest ill effect from indefinite exposure to damp. I may not say it in so many words, but you can infer from the descriptions that we waded day after day in ice water when we were traveling over the ocean in summer."

So I am not the only nut on the island. There's Mr. Stefansson—he doesn't mind wet feet either. I wish some of our dry old fossils here at home, medical as well as near medical, would enrich their libraries with copies of Stefansson's "The Friendly Arctic" and "My Life With the Eskimos" and spend a delightful two weeks with this stimulating author.

Although Mr. Stefansson's writing leave little room for doubt about his view of the question. I asked him the other day just what his present belief is in reference to the effect of wet feet, and he said:

"I don't want to pretend to decide anything, but certainly all my evidence, whether from experience or observation, is completely negative. I have never seen any connection between wet feet and head colds."

Naturally, I take great delight in quoting any sound judgment about this, but especially when it is the opinion of a man of Stefansson's class. You see, it is quite customary among the old fogies here at home, medical as well as lay, to assume that my ideas and teachings about this are "queer" or "peculiar" and hence not to be taken too seriously by people who have more respect for tradition than they have for knowledge and experience. Mr. Stefansson, too, is, or was, deemed a bit "queer" by some or all of the other arctic explorers. They cherished a traditional belief that a white man could not live off the country up there in the frozen north, but Stefansson shattered that tradition by living up there for five years. So I consider him an authority on the question of the relation of wet feet to health, an authority whose opinion outweighs all the old fogies theories thout this. Besides averring that all his evidence is negative, he dilates a bit:

"When we lived with the Slavey and other Athabasca Indians, there was seldom a day when the feet of all the Indians we had with us were not wet all day. I had Eskimo footgear and my feet were never wet while I was with the Indians, but I do not remember that there was any difference between us as to catching cold. This occurred only when there were epidemics and they usually came in spring or fall. We caught cold when we met strangers and not when we happened to get wet."

The Indians had wet feet all the time because they wore moccasins, and moccasins, says Mr. Stefansson, are about as waterproof as blotting paper. The Eskimo footgear consists of sealskin boots which are quite waterproof.

Ronald Amundsen, in his book, "My Life as an Explorer," still insists there ain't no sech animile as the giraffe—referring to the possibility of "living off the country" in the far north he declares he would not try it himself as he would consider it sheer suicide. "I do not believe it can be done." Amundsen concedes that "there is just enough colorful truth in what Stefansson says to make his statement sound plausible." To the layman reading both authors Stefansson's story is certainly convincing, while Amundsen's bitter complaint about the way in which the Italian Nobile tried to take some credit for the airship journey over the pole somehow lacks plausibility. Anyway, thanks to Mr. Stefansson for relieving this dreadful sense of isolation.

Now with such an ideal man Friday, and myself doubling in the role of the parrot, I'd be quite content with the situation if I could only get somebody's goat.

Still and all, I am bound to admit that I am not particularly fond of wet feet or cold feet unless they are pickled pigs' feet. Cold feet never feel very comfortable, be they your own or some one's else. Wet feet are not so bad, but I am not to be construed as recommending wet feet for anybody—I merely maintain that however unpleasant wet feet may be they never injure anybody's health; and the very worst possible consequence of cold feet is frostbite.

Health, as I understand it, is not just being at the moment free of illness and able to get about under one's own power. That's an obsolete conception of the state of well being. Health is the capacity to live actively, positively, and to enjoy every moment of it. That comes nearly being a definition of happiness, too doesn't it? Well, it should, for what is happiness but positive health? If you can think of a positively healthy individual being unhappy, pray don't mention it, for it only goes to show you are a pessimist. Let's agree that my definition is absolutely waterproof. Health is happiness. Very well, then, can anybody be quite happy with cold feet? No, of course not, at least not if he knows his feet are cold. A dead man is happy, if he was a good man, no matter how cold his feet. But certainly a live one isn't entirely happy if he is suffering with cold feet, and so it is strictly within my province to tell the world how to keep its feet warm.

No small order, that, but I'll do my best with it.

1. Wear wool hose, or silk with double layer on feet, and if the feet sweat too much write old Doctor Brady for instructions for correcting that trouble.

2. Wear virtually the same material as underwear as you wear on the feet, and virtually the same weight of texture.

3. Avoid constriction of foot or leg by tight shoes, stockings, garters and the like.

4. Stir up the general circulation by rolling a few somersaults every night and every morning, in birthday costume.

5. Thick soles on the shoes, pegs or stitched soles instead of nails, and cork insoles, are good insulation for the feet. Rubber, iron and damp leather are poor insulation. Cloth lined overshoes or other foot covering should be given preference to rubbers, if one is troubled with cold feet.

6. Provided one wears proper shoes, that is, shoes built to fit the feet, and roomy shoes, that is, shoes that allow sufficient freedom for one to wiggle the toes and to wear two pairs of stockings if desired, there is probably no other remedy so beneficial for cold feet and red or blue nose as a daily walk of from two to six miles.

7. Warm wool or fur lined gloves or mittens for the hands, in very cold weather, will help to keep the feet warm, through reflex influence upon the vasomotor nervous mechanism which regulates the circulation to the extremities.

Even if all these suggestions are adopted and prove effective, if won't harm the doctoring business any, for remember that cold feet never make anybody sick, only sad.

Al Short To Present Final Show at Howard This Week

MAESTRO AL SHORT

BY ELMO HAMBY.

Al Short is leaving.

The hand that in the past five months has guided the Howard theater orchestra out of the depths of anonymous mediocrity to its position as one of the foremost theater orchestras in the south, will, after this week, direct the musical and stage destinies of the great Capitol theater, Chicago.

When the curtain rings down Saturday night on the farewell show this week at the Howard, "Gypsyland," Al Short will have made his last appearance on the Howard stage.

He will assume the post of managing director of the Capitol theater, and in this position he will produce each week original stage shows, of which Atlanta has seen a number. And every one Atlanta has seen Atlanta has pronounced finer than anything else that has come around the Publix loop.

In musical circles there is an expression to the effect that there really are no orchestras. Each orchestra is but the instrument upon which the conductor expresses his genius and his ability.

Leopold Stokowski took an unheard-of band and with his magic baton made it the famous Philadelphia orchestra. Al Short took the Howard pit orchestra, no worse nor no better than its thousand brothers, and made it into one of the finest stage bands extant.

Such a man is Al Short.

He slipped into Atlanta one Friday afternoon, after another conductor had well-nigh sunk the newly-introduced stage band idea. His predecessor had been publicized to the skies. Outstanding officials of the city had welcomed him, and his name was on every lip.

But he failed.

And in desperation, Publix rushed Al Short, a man with the reputation of being second only to Paul Ash, originator of the idea, to the Howard theater in an effort to save the idea from complete failure in Atlanta.

Mr. Short came in quietly, but in three weeks he had the town by its ear. And the significant fact about this is that he accomplished that highly difficult task without the aid of ballyhoo, advertising or publicity.

Atlanta, the wiseacres said, was sick and tired of "long-haired" music—classical stuff—and no man could make audiences like it. Three men previously had failed at the Howard in the attempt.

They told Al that. And Al accepted the challenge. The following week he presented an overture especially arranged by himself, and it was the hit of the entire program. After that the "long-haired stuff' was a regular feature of the Howard stage band program and it was ever a popular feature.

Nothing daunted him. He announced that his orchestra would present George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," one of the most difficult compositions ever written, and one played by only a scant few of the world's largest orchestras. Local music lovers and critics laughed. He was a presumptuous ass, this Short chappie.

But the fans and the critics came to hear him. Or rather, they came to laugh at Short and his provincial orchestra. The memory of how they went away applauding will live as long as local music survives.

A distinguished trumpet soloist himself, he offered all too few of his solos for the thunderous approval of Atlanta audiences. His magnetic personality held not only those of his personal friends in its grip, but it reached out across the footlights and grasped those who knew only the stage Al Short.

And with the local passing Saturday night of Al Short, one of the most brilliant figures ever to flash across the local musical and theatrical firmament will be gone, but never to be forgotten.

Alamo No. 2.

Sold as a Christian slave to Arab tribesmen!

That is the experience that lovely Claire Windsor undergoes in "A Son of the Sahara," Edwin Carewe's picturization of Louise Gerard's novel, which will be screened at the Alamo No. 2 theater tomorrow.

And what is more, the scene was actually photographed in the old public square of the village of Chetma, Algeria, where is days gone by human beings were actually bartered away as chattels.

The auction block scene is described as one of the most vivid in the picture. A large proportion of the Arab population of the community participated in it.

The incident takes place when Barbara, the heroine of the story, a captive of the band led by the young Sheik Cassim, Jr., is put up for sale in accordance with his threat to his father, his avowed enemy.

But the young sheik loves her and secretly buys her. There is an extraordinary denouement when the young sheik learns that he is in reality Raoul le Breton, a white man, and the plot takes a happier turn.

Bert Lytell plays the leading male role as the young sheik.

Tudor.

Action, and plenty of it, is the keynote of the program scheduled for the Tudor this week. Ted Wells starts it off in his "Straight Shooting," the story of two wandering and, unfortunately, almost starving plainsmen, run off with a hail of bullets when they try to secure food from a wagon train, and who later got into a terrible fight for a mine. Wells is comparatively new to the screen, but he will be remembered for the fast action he furnishes and the high entertainment value of his picture.

On Wednesday and Thursday the Tudor offers "General Custer at the Little Big Horn," this being a dramatic tale of the last fight of the gallant general. Also there has been a story worked into the historical part, which makes the tale all the more thrilling and interesting.

On Friday and Saturday the genial and capable Hoot Gibson appears in "Painted Ponies," the story of a young man who wandered into a town to compete in a rodeo but who, before he finishes, is mixed up in murders, robberies and a whole lot of things. He incurs the enmity of the town's bad man and is framed by that person, finally getting his revenge in a most thrilling manner.

Alamo No. 1.

Monday and Tuesday, Wally Wales, the cowboy prince, presents an acrobatic stunt thriller, "Galloping On." This is the story of an innocent cowboy who served a sentence in the penitentiary for the wrongdoings of another man.

Wednesday and Thursday, Al Hoxie in "Outlaws' Paradise" will meet every demand for action. Al is a member of the law and to catch a holdup gang he disguises himself as a criminal of other parts.

Friday and Saturday, the world's greatest entertainment, Tom Mix, in "The Circus Ace." A thrilling, smashing drama packed with fun, crammed with excitement and jammed with suspense, with California as the beautiful background. Love and laughter, fun and frolic, and all the excitement of a big circus and a western rodeo combined.

Ponce de Leon.

The current bill of screen fare at the Ponce de Leon theater is one of the most noteworthy of that theater's career, with Ricardo Cortez, popular film favorite, opening the week on Monday with his starring success, "By Whose Hand?"

The film masterpiece of all time in uniqueness, "Chang," will be shown on Tuesday only at the Ponce de Leon theater. Two intrepid adventurers, Ernest Schoedsack and Marian Cooper, trekked into the wildernesses of Siam to make this picture of native life in the raw.

Shirley Mason in "Sally of Our Alley" is the feature of Wednesday, with an all-star cast headed by Maria Corda in "Moon of Israel" on the slate for showings Thursday and Friday of this week.

Silverstreak, the dog star, will close the week in "The Snarl of Hate."

Atlanta's Public Schools

What They Are Doing—What They Are Trying To Do.

This is the tenth of ar series of articles on the Atlanta Public schools, prepared under the direction of the Personnel Association of Atlanta. They are published with the view of informing parents and the public about the schools, their aims and their work. The entire system will be discussed.

THE TECHNOLOGICAL HIGH SCHOOL.

No feature of the Atlanta public school system, unless it be the attention given to the health of the pupils and the methods of building up their physical condition, has attracted more attention nationally than the Technological High school, which has increased in scope and importance since its beginning, a quarter century ago.

There is a time in the life of some boys when they grow "tired of going to school." The high school, with additional years of books and more books, with only "more education" in sight, looks dull to them. The student who has developed an especial interest in literature or mathematics or history, may look forward to a college career and desire to prepare for it. But the restless boy who likes to be "doing something" begins to long to use his hands. He is likely to come home with the enthusiastic announcement that he can get a job in a garage, helping repair automobiles. All too often, the appeal of a "job," even though it be a blind alley that leads nowhere, takes him out of school.

Direct Appeal.

The Technological High school makes a direct appeal to the boy with an inclination toward some definite goal, the boy who loves to tinker with the radio or take his father's car to pieces; the boy who finds in himself a talent for drawing or carpentering, or who believes he would like to become an engineer or an architect. He is not "taught a trade" in Tech high, but he is given a chance to do the thing he likes to do, in addition to a great many things he must do if he hopes to reach the top of his chosen vocation.

Atlanta's Tech high, for years housed in whatever makeshift buildings were available, now shares with the Boys' High school a handsome building on Jackson street near Piedmont park, with extensive shops and laboratories and an ample campus. Though the two high schools are in the same location, they are distinct in every way.

Founded In 1903.

In 1903 William M. Slaton, at that time superintendent of the Atlanta schools, caught a vision of the possibilities and need of technical training for the young men of Atlanta and caused a technical department to be established in Boys' high. At first there was not much demand on the part of the boys for the technical course, and the basement of the old Boys' high building at Gilmer and Courtland streets was deemed good enough for the experiment. This was a rather humble origin for the proud Tech high of today. However, a live wire as head of the department in the person of Charls S. Culver, popularized the course, and demonstrated to the people and the board of education that the summum bonum of all education was not confined to the conjugating of Latin verbs, and that it is eminently worth while to learn to do things and to cultivate constructive skill.

Due to the enthusiasm of Charles S. Culver and the foresight of Superintendent William M. Slaton, the department was assigned to the old Marietta Street Grammar school building during the summer of 1909, and was called the Atlanta Technological High school. There were about 110 boys and six teachers the first year. The Marietta street environment was gloomy indeed but, in spite of physical handicaps, the demand for technical training increased and the school grew by leaps and bounds until all available stores, warehouses and dwellings in the neighborhood were required to house the 1,960 boys enrolled in the year 1921-22. The K-6-3-3 plan began about this time and the attendance has not been so large in recent years. There are over 900 boys in school at present.

Its Organization.

There are eight departments: English, foreign languages, mathematics, history, science, shop, drawing, and military.

Tech High is not a trade school. The majority of graduates enter college. At the same time a student may specialize in printing, auto engineering, sheet metal, machine shop or cabinet making in the shop department, or in machine drawing, architecture, furniture design, mechanical or commercial art in the drawing department. A great many graduates of Tech High, without any college training, have made good in all these lines.

There are three diploma courses and one certificate course open to the boys. All the diploma courses prepare for college, and as the school has been continuously on the southern accredited list since 1913, a certificate of graduation, with the recommendation of the principal, will admit to college.

College credit in chemistry, trigonometry, algebra and analytics are earned every year by the more ambitious students.

It has been the policy of Tech High to adapt the curriculum to the student. Not every boy can learn algebra; some fail absolutely in foreign languages. A student who cannot pass or who does not wish a subject required in one of the diploma courses can earn a certificate and perhaps be as well educated and become as good a citizen as his classmate on whom a diploma is conferred.

A foreign language is not required for graduation, but is asmuch as all colleges dequire at least two years of the same foreign language for entrance, nearly all Tech High boys are studying Spanish, French, or German. Quite a few take Latin.

Everywhere people have heard of Atlanta Tech High. The school has sent athletic teams north to Chicago, Dayton and Erie; south to Savannah, Miami, Jacksonville and St. Petersburg; west to Little Rock, Pine Bluff and Houston; east to Augusta, Charlotte, Columbia and Baltimore. These athletic teams have made good impressions by hard playing and clean sportsmanship.

The product of a high school should be well rounded. He should study for mastery—have good scholarship; but this is not all. The importance of health, good citizenship and character should be enphasized at all times, and work and play alike should contribute to the growth of the students in these particulars. Tech High is endeavoring to give a type of training that will produce manly young men, equipped to become constructive citizens.

The Tech High Alumni association, organized recently, went on record as favoring the perpetuation of Tech High as a separate institution, expressing satisfaction in their own training and recommending the same type for others.

FIVE EMPLOYMENT HEADS TO ADDRESS PERSONNEL GROUP

"Following Up the New Employee" will be discussed by five men and women experienced in employment problems at the meeting at 6 o'clock next Friday evening at the Personnel Association of Atlanta, to be held at Rich's tea room. George H. Phillips, the president, will be chairman.

The personnel association is devoting its winter meetings to a series of discussions of employment and training in its various phases. The association, which is composed of about 100 men and women directly interested in employing high school and college boys and girls, has for its principal object the improvement of the "raw material" found in Atlanta and providing opportunity for young people to find positions which lead to places of responsibility. It works in close cooperation with the colleges and public schools.

The speakers, limited to ten minutes each, will be: L. P. Wilson, personnel manager of the Davison-Paxon company; Mrs. Louise Griffith Askew, of the Georgia college placement bureau; W. L. Abbott, of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Mrs. Ira Farmer, of M. Rich & Bros. Co., and Miss Louise Cockrell, of the Retail Credit company.

Salvation Army Wants Old Toys For Poor Kiddies

"Broken Toy Week" will be launched in Atlanta again Monday, after postponement on account of the cold weather emergency last week, and the Salvation Army will collect all broken and discarded toys offered by well-to-do children of the city for free distribution during the remainder of the winter to sick children among the city's poorest.

Arrangements for resumption of the "week" were announced Saturday by Captain W. H. Range, commander of the army's social service and industrial department. This department, during broken toy week, will act as a collecting agency for the relief department of the Salvation Army, which is under command of Ensign McRae, and for other community chest family relief agencies through which the toys will be distributed to needy children as long as the supply lasts after collections are completed this week.

Children who, after two weeks of possession, have grown tired of the pretty and useful things Santa left for them Christmas eve can themselves play Santa Claus to their little poor cousins by telephoning IVy 2224 any day this week.

EDUCATIONAL DRIVE IS PUT UNDER WAY BY PRESBYTERIANS

Members totaling 439,620 of the Presbyterian church in the United States, looking forward to March 11, when the annual every member canvass for funds will be taken, are beginning this week an intensive campaign of education that will present to every member the various benevolent enterprises that this church is engaged in at home and abroad. For the month of January the especial object of study is foreign missions and stewardship. The book, "New Paths for Old Purposes," is being studied along with "Some Stewardship Pillars," a booklet issued by the Presbyterian stewardship department of Atlanta.

The foreign missions committee is making appeal for full payment of $1,398,000, the amount expected from the church in order to do the work projected in Africa, Brazil, China, Japan, Korea and Mexico. Dr. Egbert W. Smith, Nashville, Tenn., is executive secretary of this committee.

Time for the South To Assert Itself

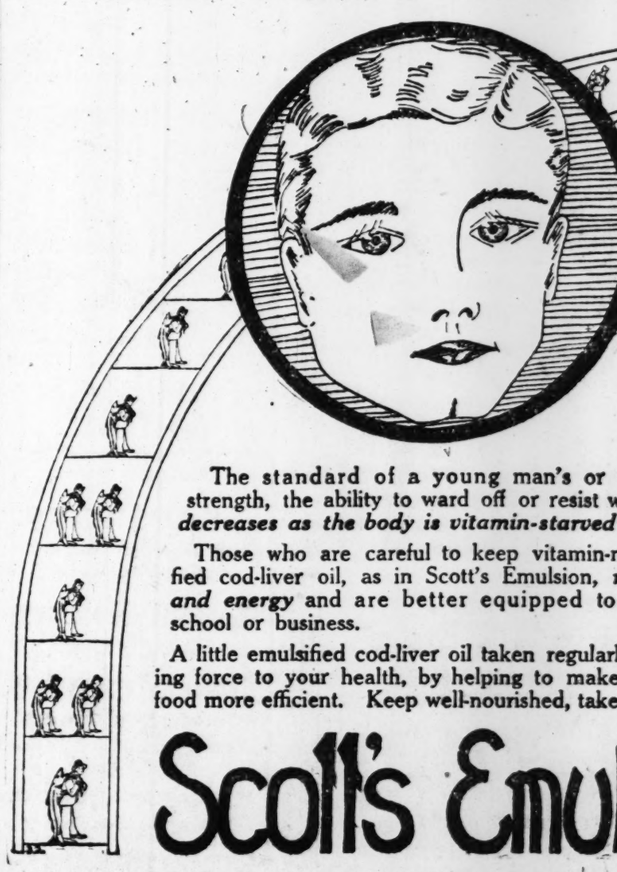

Editor Constitution: I am in thorough sympathy with your editorial of the 1st inst., "The South's Shameful Silence." We have as good, as capable, as seasoned, and altogether as well equipped men of the south as of any part of the nation. The south is representative of all that is best in the country, and is cosmopolitan; and above all the south is representative of that stock of which our constitution and our laws are but the flower. It is the sheet anchor of our free institutions. The people of the United States are fair, and those north, east and west are not afraid of us; and everything considered, I believe that a candidate from Georgia boldly proposed, and fearlessly presented would have as good chance of nomination and as good prospect of election as any other democrat from anywhere. Our senator, Walter F. George, has been proposed. He is presidential timber and in every way worthy, level-headed, fair and fearless. We would have no cause to be ashamed to present the name of Senator George, or for that matter any other honorable sons of the south. Not apologetically, but so as to assure the other delegates that we really mean business; and would certainly have cause to be ashamed of ourselves if we of the south, the sine qua non of democratic success, fail to show our own self-respect by asking for a fair deal.

There are many of our people who hold to the democratic party by tradition, and many who believe that the best interests of the country demand protection. We have held together by party loyalty, but, if the south is not recognized and given a position of leadership, and I say this not that the southern people would threaten our democratic compeers of the nation, but as a bald fact, we will not much longer consent to pull the chestnuts from the fire for others.

The south has become largely a manufacturing section. The tide in that direction is beginning to flow strong. Nineteen hundred and twenty-eight is the year to make the beginning. Postponement until 1932 will not be satisfactory or safe if the solid south is to be preserved much longer.

At Seventeen You Also Need Vitamins

The standard of a young man's or woman's health and strength, the ability to ward off or resist winter colds or coughs, decreases as the body is vitamin-starved or undernourished.

Those who are careful to keep vitamin-nourished with emulsified cod-liver oil, as in Scott's Emulsion, renew their strength and energy and are better equipped to master the duties of school or business.

Desert Pursuit Order Reversed In 'Beau Sabreur'

The desert serves for a new kind of romance in "Beau Sabreur," the new Paramount picture, companion to the world-famous "Beau Geste," to be shown at the Howard this week.

All previous moving pictures have shown the desert sheik desperately pursuing a reluctant heroine. Not so in "Beau Sabreur!" Henri de Beaujolais, surnamed Beau Sabreur, the "Beautiful Swordsman," scorns the adventurous American beauty who follows him out of spite into the stillness and majesty of the Sahara. He mocks at her beauty, declines her friendship, resents her presence on his dangerous and important secret mission. Finally he is called on to save her life, at the cost of renouncing his vow to France.

Here decidedly is a new screen situation, and one which movie audiences will relish. Would you be liable to save the life of a beautiful woman who had forced herself uninvited into your affairs? Would you succumb to her charms and learn to love her so that duty and honor both were forgotten?

That's the thrilling, stormy climax to "Beau Sabreur," and the unexpected working out of the difficulties will furnish patrons with a thrill akin to that of the mystery of "Beau Geste."

A cast of old and new screen favorites carries on the traditions of the stern military organization, the French Foreign Legion, which "Beau Geste" made famous. Playing the title role is Gary Cooper, remembered for "Children of Divorce," "The Winning of Barbara Worth" and several Zane Grey pictures. In his support are Evelyn Brent, who scored in "Underworld;" Noah Beery, William Powell and Mitchell Lewis, long popular with the fans.

For Al Short's final week at the Howard, an especially fine stage show will be presented. It is called "Gypsyland," and is made up of a cast of

WILLIAM HAINES STARS IN NEW FILM AT GRAND

The drama of the making of an officer and a gentleman, "West Point," with William Haines, which has been hailed as one of the big outstanding feature picture hits of the season, will come to Loew's Grand theater this week. This stirring play of youth, romance and laughter was produced on the ground of the United States Military academy at West Point, and as a play it has everything, spectacle, thrill, romance and comedy. Joan Crawford also plays a star role in the production.

It is a story of youth, love and romance—with laughs and thrills, comedy and heart throbs deftly blended into an evening of glorious entertainment. And, of course—there's William Haines.

As the "wise cracking" young football star who comes to West Point to learn, through bitter experience, what the spirit and tradition of the cadet corps means, Haines has an ideal role. He exercises his unique gifts for comedy in the opening scenes, showing his training at West Point, and plays a sensational game of football in the big Army-Navy game, staged during the actual contest.

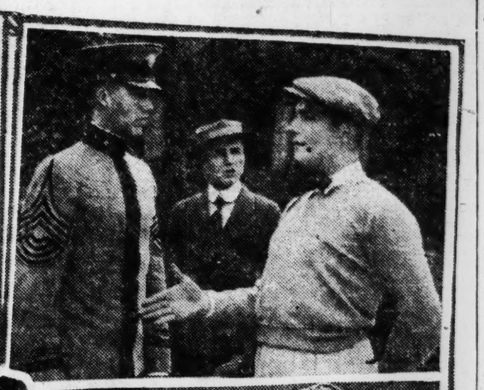

The bulk of the picture was actually taken at West Point, with the cadets as a huge cast. The dress parade and other maneuvers are thrilling and inspiring; the boat scenes, filmed on the famous old "De Witt Clinton" on the Hudson, are rarely beautiful, and the entire spirit of the play is refreshingly new and inspiring in its spontaneous genuineness.

Joan Crawford makes a very charming heroine and one can't wonder at her being the belle of the corps, and Ralph Emerson and Neil Neely, as Haines' cadet associates, are convincing in their roles and uniforms. A remarkably human touch is added by William Bakewell as "Tex," the adoring "fag" of the football star. Others with adequate roles were Leon Kellar, Edward Clayton, Baury Richardson and others. Several army officers, including Majors R. G. Moses and Philip B. Fleming, prove competent actors, and Edward Sedgwick directed the story, an original by Raymond L. Schrock, with his usual deftness of touch.

On the Screen

The cool, proud beauty on the upper left is Florence Vidor, who stars "Honeymoon Hate" at Keith's Georgia theater this week. Jack Holt is starred at the Rialto in "The Warning." William Haines, that adorable cad, is seen in "West Point" on Loew's Grand screen this week. Lower left is a scene from "Beau Sabreur," stirring sequel to "Beau Geste," at the Howard currently. Marceline Day is featured in "Night Life" at the Metropolitan. On the lower right Reginald Denny is amusing himself with the lunch basket and incidentally the young queen who sits beside him. He is starred in "On Your Toes" at the Capitol theater this week.

JAMES J. CORBETT COMING TO LOEW'S

Extraordinary interest in Atlanta amusement and sporting circles surrounds the announcement made Saturday that James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, conqueror of John L. Sullivan and hero of a hundred ring battles, will come to Loew's Grand theater the week of January 16, with his partner, Bobby Barry, as the headline feature of the vaudeville bill that week.

The famous "Gentleman Jim" will pay Atlanta his first visit for a long period of years. From the time he appeared as a raw stripling and knocked out the redoubtable John L. Sullivan in 1892 Corbett has been an interesting figure in the sporting and theatrical world. Corbett held the championship until he was defeated by Bob Fitzsimmons, at Carson City, Nev., in 1897.

During his career, in addition to these battles Corbett fought such men as Charlie Mitchell, Tom Sharkey, Jim Jeffries, Joe Choynsky, Jake Kilrain and Peter Jackson, this battle lasting 61 rounds, which is an interesting comparison with some of the ten-round championship fights of modern days.

After finishing his career in the ring Corbett went on the stage and became a surprisingly able artist. He played leading roles in several plays, was interlocutor for the famous Cohan and Harris minstrels; appeared as a star in several Broadway musical comedies. Now with his partner, Bobby Barry, he has one of the most pleasing acts in vaudeville.

"Bobby" Barry is one of the ablest comedians on the stage and with the famous Corbett he provides a real comedy act. Corbett in no way depends on his fame but provides an act which is highly entertaining from start to finish.

Other announcements of interest concerning the Corbett engagement will be made next week.

Robert Kane is finishing "Mad Hour," which Joseph C. Boyle directed with Allan Dwan supervising. It will be followed by "The Headliner," a story of the Fourth Estate. In "Mad Hour," based on Elinor Glyn's "The Man and the Moment," appear Sally O'Neill, Alice White, Donald Reed, Larry Kent and others.

AL SHORT'S FAREWELL SHOW IS 'GYPSYLAND'

For Al Short's final week at the Howard, an especially attractive program will be offered.

In addition to the screen attraction, Paramount's super-special "Beau Sabreur," the stage show, "Gypsyland," will be presented, and it is said to be of a very high order also. The cast of "Gypsyland" is composed of a group of stars, the equal of which is seldom seen off Broadway.

Miriam Lax, late star of "The Merry Whirl," takes a prominent place on the program. August Werner was formerly a soloist with the New York Civic opera. "The Eight Lenora Dancers" were trained by Mlle. Lenora herself, who is in charge of the dancing division of John Murray Anderson's school of the stage. Chaz Chase, comedian, was recently starred in "Ziegfeld Follies" and in "Follies Bergere," in Paris. It can readily be seen, therefore, that "Gypsyland" boasts a cast which has already "arrived" in a big way.

The balance of the cast consists of George Lyons, "The Gypsy Harpist;" Parker and Lee, "The Gypsy Dancers;" Ron Portman and Morton Sherdahl.

All in all, a great show has been arranged to bid farewell to Al Short, the most popular musical director Atlanta has ever known.

"Snuffles," one of the deadliest diseases of rabbits, is now treated by cod liver oil.

"ADAM AND EVIL" OPENS NEW WEEK AT WEST END

When a beautiful young wife can't distinguish her own husband from his twin brother things are bound to happen. They do—in "Adam and Evil," the new farce comedy showing at the West End Monday and Tuesday. Lew Cody plays the dual role of the twin brothers in this film with Aileen Pringle as the wife.

If you think you have troubles, go to see "Chang" at the West End on Wednesday and you will come away feeling that these are pigmy matters compared to the tribulations of the jungle pioneer trying to establish a home for his loved ones. If you haven't any troubles and just want some thrills, see "Chang" and you'll get them a plenty.

Ernest Torrence has a most unusual role as the laughing villain in "Captain Salvation" which will be shown Thursday and Friday. Among the other stars are Lars Hanson, Marceline Day, Pauline Starke and George Fawcett.

"The Coward," which will be shown Saturday only, is a dramatic tale of the struggles of a young society man, played by Warner Baxter, who goes into the wilderness to make a man of himself. How he accomplishes this and wins a beautiful girl form the highlights of the picture.

LAUGHTER CONTAGIOUS, FILM COMEDY PROVES

Laughter is the most infectious of all human experiences.

An incident during the filming of "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris," the Universal production coming to the Capitol theater for the week of December 16 proves it. William Beaudine, the director, was making a scene in which J. Farrel MacDonald draws the laughter from a large group of extras. The set was surrounded with a fence to keep visitors away and the scene was ordered shot.

Inside, extras laughed their heartiest, while outside, people passed by on their business. As the laughter struck their ears they smiled, for no logical reason at all. While they were within hearing of the mirth, they beamed, but as soon as they got too far away the contagion of joy left them and they became serious again in their pursuit of the fruits of life.

The very contagion of laughter is one of the reasons for the popularity of comedy-drama such as "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris."

The picture was produced with an all-star cast headed by George Sidney, J. Farrel MacDonald and Vera Gordon. Others in the cast are Kate Price, Gertrude Astor, Sue Carol and Charles Delaney.

Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes have completed their cofeatured roles in "Do It Again," with Marshall Neilan directing. It is a circus story with many charming and fascinating scenes and situations involving the life of those who work under the canvas.

Palace.

The Palace theater has an unusually attractive program for the coming week. On Monday and Tuesday Norma Shearer will be seen in her latest starring vehicle, "The Demi-Bride." Miss Shearer plays the role of an unsophisticated French schoolgirl whose rival for the affections of a man, is her own stepmother. Lew Cody is the man and Carmel Myers and Dorothy Sebastian are two women of the world seeking his affections.

On Wednesday, Thomas Meighan will be seen in "We're all Gamblers." On Thursday and Friday will be presented one of the greatest of all sea dramas, "Captain Salvation," with an all-star cast including Lars Hanson, Pauline Starke, Marceline Day and Earnest Torrence.

On Saturday "The Great Mail Robbery," with an all-star cast and the United States marines will be shown.

Ernest Hartsock, organist, is making a big hit with his solos on the Kimball organ and will give several during the week.

'HONEYMOON HATE' ON GEORGIA SCREEN

"Honeymoon Hate" is the title of Paramount's latest release, starring Florence Vidor, and will be shown all this week at Keith's Georgia theater.

"Honeymoon Hate" is different from anything Miss Vidor has ever done. She has been seen in comedies, but never such a fiery characterization as the Gail Grant, accustomed to having everything her own way.

With great Venetian settings, lagoons with gondolas floating languidly over placid waters, the atmosphere of the film gives every desire for love and eventually Gail Grant and Prince Dantarini meet and are wed. The action is a combination of comedy and romance for each of the principals try to dominate the other's will and force their own in the household. The part given to Miss Vidor gives her a great opportunity to display some magnificent gowns and the latest Parisian creations, which should be the delight of the female contingent who view the story of "Honeymoon Hate."

Big Fight Picture Shown on Capitol Screen This Week

Remember the Dempsey-Tunney fight?

Well, of all the foolish questions! But if you really want to see a scrap that is second only to that classic struggle, then be sure and attend the Capitol theater this week, where Reginald Denny is appearing all week in "On Your Toes," his latest feature for the screen.

Denny, the brilliant comedian, known to screen fans throughout the world for his highly entertaining and amusing pictures, gives a performance that beats his former work in such efforts as "Fast and Furious," "Skinner's Dress Suit," and "I'll Show You the Town." It is one of his roles that will long be remembered.

Although he is the star, Denny is forced to show his best efforts in order to dominate the picture, for the supporting cast is made up of a group of really capable players. Barbara Worth, as the leading lady, astonishes by her beauty. She is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful, not to mention skillful, actresses on the screen. Then there were Hayden Stevenson as the prize fighter manager, Frank Hagney as the champion, Mary Carr in another of her famous "mother roles," although this time she had the prefix "grand" before mother; Gertrude Howard and George West.

Denny, as the good-natural prize fighter who was made over from a dancing teacher, is delightful always, and the story injects him into all manner of strange and embarrassing situations. The complications that involve Denny provide more side-splitting laughter than we have seen for some time.

Induced to become a prize fighter by the girl he loves, Denny gives up his feminine pursuit of managing a dancing school. He is always too chicken-hearted to knock out his opponent even though he can easily do so. When he fights for the heavyweight championship of the world, his manager and sweetheart conspire to make him angry and this, combined with the revelation that he is the son of "Young Evans," a champion of other days, helps him win.

Fred Newmeyer directed from the story and scenario by Earle Snell.

GREAT DANCING ACT TOPS NEW LOEW BILL

One of vaudeville's greatest dancing acts offered by the famous Four Diamonds entitled "A Perfect Setting," will be the headline attraction on a vaudeville bill of unusual promise at Loew's Grand theater this week. In this turn such stars as Hughie, Phoebe, Tom and Harold Diamond appear in almost every known kind of dancing. These stars have appeared as the feature attraction with many leading Broadway musical comedies and their work is known wherever dancing is known as of the very high est finish. Among them these dancers possess many championship dancing trophies won in various contests throughout the world.

Also a feature attraction on the new bill is the Oscar Stang orchestra, a musical organization that combines with its musical program a series of skits and songs which rounds out a pleasing act. Oscar Stang is a versatile artist himself and will bring ten musicians, singers, dancers and comedians in his band.

These two acts come to Atlanta fresh from engagements in the biggest vaudeville theaters in the east and are brought here as a part of the "big attractions" policy inaugurated recently by Loew's Grand theater, which has brought the Loew vaudeville standard in Atlanta up to the rank of the best vaudeville theaters in the country.

Norton and Brown, who have appeared here at leading theaters as the headline feature, will also appear on the new bill with their famous "Bug House Fables," one of the funniest song skits in vaudeville. They sing numerous typical songs, most of them with many extra verses and bring a line of clean fun.

Another comedy offering is that of Eddie Stanley and "Ginger," entitled "Absurdities." This is a comedy novelty act full of fun throughout.

The opening number will be presented by the Three Flying Harpers. This will be an aerial casting act of a surprising and sensational kind.

To accompany this great program the big feature picture, "West Point," with William Haines, will be offered.

'NIGHT LIFE' DRAMA NOW AT METROPOLITAN

A dramatic tale of unusual twists and interest is "Night Life" which opens at the Metropolitan tomorrow for the week's engagement.

Set in picturesque Vienna, the plot depicts the adventures of two sleight-of-hand performers, Max and his co-adjutor, Nick, whose nightly magic keeps a beer-drinking Viennese audience in good humor. The world war comes and the two men go. On their return, finding their former rendezvous closed and unemployment everywhere, they make use of their dexterity as a means for a living, relieving wealthy men of their coin with nimble fingers.

Anna, a waif of the street, is caught by Max as she tries to lift his watch. Pleading this, her first offense, she is carried by Max to his lodging house and later he finds work for her. A strong romance develops between the two, to the chagrin of Nick, who sees an interference in his pal's plans. One day Anna sees Max steal a locket from a woman and, realizing he is a pickpocket, she pleads with him to let her give back the jewel. A series of complications ensue as she attempts to rectify the theft and is betrayed by Nick for jealous reasons.

Johnnie Harron gives a good performance as Max and is ably assisted by Eddie Gribbon, as Nick, his pal. Alice Day reaches new heights as the charming heroine.

The picture was directed by George Archainband and has many laudable criticisms to its credit.

Enrico Leide and his orchestra will accompany the story with Mr. Leide's new song, "Down in Your Heart." He has chosen for the overture "The Tin Pan Paradise."

Ben Turpin, in his latest comedy, "Love's Languid Lure," a Pathe scenic travelogue, "Honeymoon Hints," and Metropolitan News and Views will conclude the program.

Walter Rogers has been engaged to portray General U. S. Grant in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," new First National picture starring Richard Barthelmess.

Great Bill Seen On Capitol Stage For Current Week

The Capitol theater will be the mecca for lovers of real entertainment this week with the presentation there of one of the outstanding bills of the season in local vaudeville theaters.

The headliner will be the famous "Parisian Whirl" act, a cyclonic song and dance revue presenting the latest songs and dances to Atlantans in a setting of gorgeous and lavish beauty in setting and costumes. Every performer in this big act is a star of more than ordinary merit, and all together, the present one of the finest turns in variety.

Stanley Chapman, a whimsical humorist, will offer an act called, for no reason at all, "Swissing the Swiss," and incorporated in the act will be Chapman's own individual and characteristic comedy, clever talk, piano and singing and "Swissing the Swiss"—whatever that is!

Edwards and Moris, a comedy act extraordinary promises to convulse Capitol audiences this week with their line of clever gags and jokes presented in attractive fashion. As a comedy duo, Edwards and Morris stand at the head of the list.

The fastest dancing act in all vaudeville is "Snapshots." And "Snapshots" is another reason that argues for your presence at the Capitol theater this week. A gala array of the finest dancers in the country compose the cast of "Snapshots" and their presentation is a real treat.

Canaries who sing "Red Hot Mama" and other sundry ballads are seen in the act, "Canary Opera," which is one of the most pretentious of such vaudeville attractions offered in Atlanta in a long while. It is a collection of marvelously trained canaries who amaze by their talent and ability.

On the screen all this week is Reginald Denny, one of the most popular of male screen stars in "On Your Toes," a rollicking story of a dancing master who becomes a big, tough prize fighter.

On the upper left are the "A&P Gypsies," feature attraction on Keith's Georgia stage this week. The eight girls who seem to be sitting in each other's laps are seen in "Gypsyland" on the Howard stage this week. On the lower left is the Oscar Strang orchestra, Loew's feature at the Grand theater. Next is Master Jay Ward, mascot of the American Legion exodus to Paris, who is also on the Georgia bill this week. On the lower right is a scene from Katherine Laubner's elaborate revue, Parisian Whirl," at the Capitol theater.

'A. & P. GYPSIES' HEAD KEITH GEORGIA BILL

The "A. & P. Gypsies," widely-known record-making organization and radio entertainers are making their initial Atlanta appearance in person at Keith's Georgia theater this week with a program of musical selections that have made them famous over the entire country. They are Brunswick record stars and will present many of their best-known numbers during their stay locally.

The bill this week really contains several acts worthy of headline honors including Master Jay Ward, pride of the American Legion and mascot with the Second A. E. F. when the boys went to France last summer. Jay Ward, "The Typical American Boy," is a living example of the theory of heredity and environment. He is the son of the well-known vaudeville team of Ward and Dooley and appears with his parents. During his trip to Paris with the American Legion, Master Jay Ward hobnobbed with many notables. He was the idol of the boys and the pet of Marshal Foch. He became the "pal" of Clarence Chamberlin, famous flier, who took him up for a trip over the city of Paris. Every "Buddy" of the legion is his friend and the Boy Scouts gave him a rousing reception on his return to America.

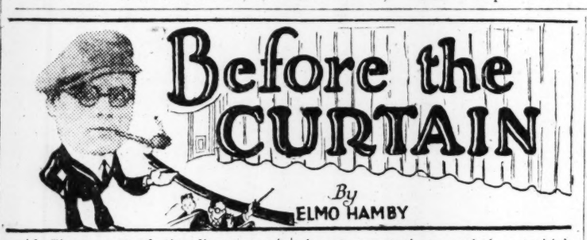

The comedy part of the current program will be handled by Roy Cummings and Irene Shaw, two recruits from the Ziegfeld Follies, with some new capers and comedy antics. Roy Cummings is said to be one of America's greatest comedians and does stunts on the stage that others do not attempt to gain laughs for the audience. Here's one of the biggest of the big time shows.

The Flying Hartwells, two gymnasts who spend their time on swinging ropes, have evolved a line of hazardous stunts that will thrill you and cause you to marvel at their daring and skill. Songs, dances and instrumental musical numbers will be presented by the sisters, Melva, June and Irene. On the screen Florence Vidor will be seen in her latest release from the Paramount studios, "Honeymoon Hate," a farce comedy, which is sure to bring many laughs and which presents Miss Vidor in a character which gives her an opportunity to show that in addition to being able to wear smart clothes, she is a comedienne of ability.

Examination of 600 Porto Rican babies showed that only one had an active case of rickets, and it had been kept in a celler lighted only by electric light.

Before the CURTAIN

By ELMO HAMBY

Al Short, one of the finest musicians, and one of the finest men personally I have ever known is leaving the Howard theater this week after creating for himself a niche in local theatrical circles that can be compared to that occupied by no other musician.

Personally, he is a splendid chap and a true friend. Those others, who like myself, are fortunate enough to be numbered among his friends, are the only ones who can really appreciate the fullness and the steadfastness of his friendship.

Professionally, he is about the finest stage band director in the country. There is a characteristic vim and dash of modern music which is coupled with the elegance and the dignity of the classics in his style of presentation which makes his genius rare and entertaining.

In his stay at the Howard he has made a wide circle of friends in the city, and he has furthered his already famous name in the national musical world by his performance and his remarkable success in establishing the stage band idea at the Howard.

Shicks, Et Al.

An opportunity for flappers and flapperettes of the city to see the closest approach to real desert shicks that the country can offer, will be the presentation the week of December 16 at the Capitol theater of the House of David band, an organization composed of members of the famous Benton Harbor, Mich., sect.

Advance "stills" shows them to have long and flowing beards and to be as fully equipped in head hirsutness as any woman—or rather as any woman was ten years ago. The appearance of the disciples of "King Ben" is slated to be one of the unique treats of the year.

At the Georgia.

Manager Roltare Eggleston's long-awaited and muchly heralded vaudeville bill of all vaudeville bills has arrived in town and will be the current attraction at Keith's Georgia theater. The "A & P Gypsies," famous broadcasting string band of the equally famous grocery chain, will be the headliner on a bill that includes the mascot of the second A. E. F. and three other acts.

The capacity houses which have, since its opening, been the rule at the Georgia, will probably develop this week into super-capacity houses, whatever they are.

More of the Desert.

The Howard screen presentation this week will be "Beau Sabreur," a sequel to "Beau Geste," which was rated as one of the finest pictures of the past year. It promises to contain the love interest the lack of which was bemoaned by the youngest element in "Beau Geste."

It sounds quite E. M. Hullish, with the persistent pursuit of a young French officer across the burning sands by an American heiress.

Oh, these American heiresses!

COMEDIANS SEEN TWICE ON RIALTO PROGRAM

Al Cooke and Kit Guard, as the movies' newest comedy team, are given due recognition on the program for this week at the Rialto theater.

They are in the comedy for the first half of the week, the third episode of the new "Beauty Parlor" series, called "The Last Nose of Summer." The latter half of the week they take the top position as the stars in "Legionnaires in Paris," a comedy of the convention last September of the American veterans' organization.

The feature picture for the first three days of this week at the Rialto is "The Warning." It is a fighting melodrama of thrills and mystery. Jack Holt, Dorothy Revier, the new film beauty, and Norman Trevor are starred.

The plot of "The Warning" deals with the capture of a gang of Chinese opium smugglers, with the scenes laid at Hongkong, by agents of the British silent service. It is said to be full of unique situations and surprises. One of the actors the fans are advised to watch is handsome Eugene Strong. He promises much, cinematically, the critics think.

Al Cooke and Kit Guard, in "Legionnaires in Paris," are supported by Louise Lorraine and John Aason, the world's tallest man, as the Paris gendarme, and Virginia Sale, kid sister of Chic Sale, the comedian.

Kit Guard is not unfamiliar with the war stuff. He was a "prelim" boy at Madison Square garden, a captain in the Mexican army of the late Francisco Villa and later served in the A. E. F. in France. Most of the previous comedies of this order have gone back to 1917 for their stories, but this one finds a tremendous lot of fun in the 1927 convention.

Doris Kenyon looks very charming in her costumes for "Burning Daylight," starring Milton Sills. The First National leading woman wears modes of the nineties in this Alaskan gold-rush film.

PROSPECTS OF WAR TREATY NOT BRIGHT

posed such an agreement addressed himself to the people and naturally has pride in bringing that proposal to a head before extending it to other nations.

The extension of the agreement to other nations, it is said, resembles an attempt to compete with the League of Nations, and the present policy of France is to support the international peace organization in every way possible.

Viewpoints Are Different.

The difference between the American and French viewpoints, it is observed, is after all very small, since it bears entirely on the question of whether the pact should be signed first by France and the United States or submitted at the same time for the signature of many states.

Caustic criticism, however, of both France and American efforts to outlaw war is expressed by the franker afternoon papers while Le Temps and others commend the good moral effect.

"All this fuss about putting war outside the law will prove a blunder," says M. Jacques Bainville, in La Liberte, expressing the opinion that France and America never will get together as the United States is seeking "universal neutrality" while France wants peace through security and the punishment of aggressors.

Auguste Gauvain, editor of the Journal Des Debats, says that he is not surprised that Washington objects to limiting the phrase "war of aggression" because "the state department, for effect abroad, prefers to appear to be doing something rather than signing a formal document."

All the papers, however, are glad that M. Briand has been careful to emphasize his proposals.

MOSCOW INTERESTED IN TREATY.

Moscow, January 7.—(AP)—Secretary of State Kellogg's note to France has created intense interest in Moscow. Official and public opinion appears to be stirred by a realization of the United States real will for peace and pacification, enhanced by concrete steps for definite elimination of the war menace.

High placed communists, who heretofore have regarded most peace efforts with skepticism, viewing them as camouflaged imperialistic schemes, aimed at Russia's destruction, comment on the similarity of the American and Russian foreign policies, notwithstanding the social contrast existing in these countries. Though it is frankly admitted that the American and soviet motives differ radically—the United States seeking ways of economic expansion while Russia is trying to safeguard her frontiers against foreign pentration—Russians appear to be convinced of the genuine desire of the United States for peace.

POLICEMAN SEES BOLD THIEF STEAL HIS MOTORCYCLE

A thief who either couldn't read the words, "City of Atlanta," and the additional appendage, "Police Department," or, just didn't care, Saturday night stole police motorcycle No. 61 right from under the astonished eyes of its rider, Officer G. W. Richardson.

The officer had parked his motorcycle at the corner of Stewart avenue and Wells street and was standing in the doorway of a store on the corner when a man jumped on the machine and dashed off down the street.

Officer Richardson at first was paralyzed by astonishment at the boldness of the thief, but recovering, sprang into the street and fired two shots after the fleeing form.

Later the officer discovered his machine in a yard on Alleen avenue, about a quarter of a mile from where it had been stolen. He arrested two men, Bill Hughes, of a Whitehall terrace address, and S. M. Samples.

Blast Wrecks House.

Memphis, Tenn., January 7.—(AP) Three persons had a narrow escape from injury tonight when a dynamite explosion wrecked a corner of the house in which they were asleep.

Mortuary

J. M. Smith, 38, 15 Eagan avenue, Eagan park, died Saturday afternoon at a private hospital. He is survived by his widow; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith, of Lakemont; two sisters, Mrs. A. L. Davis and Miss Estelle Smith, both of Lakemont, and four brothers, Oscar and Olin Smith, both of Clarkesville, and Sanford and Hoke Smith, both of Lakemont. A. C. Hemperley & Sons will be in charge.

JOSEPH A. HEYSER, JR.

Joseph A. Heyser, Jr., 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Heyser, 73 Waddell street, N. E., died early Saturday night at the home. In addition to his parents, the child was survived by a sister, Mary Heyser; a brother, George Heyser, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Heyser, of Augusta, and C. T. McDermon. Sam R. Greenberg and company in charge.

JOHN E. MOORE.

John E. Moore, 32, of 500 Jackson street, N. E., died Saturday night at the home. He is survived by his widow; a sister, Mrs. Helen Beecher, of Madison, Wis., and two brothers, C. C. Moore, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and L. G. Moore, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Sam R. Greenberg and company in charge.

BELTON C. WINN.

Belton C. Winn, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Winn, died Saturday at the residence, 802 Windsor street. In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, C. J. and A. A. Winn, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith and Mrs. S. A. Randall. The body will be taken to Athens, with J. Austin Dillon company in charge.

FULTON POLITICAL POT BOILING AWAY

from the second ward and a local political figure for several years; Arthur Brooke, for the past three years president of the Southeastern Fair association, civic leader and prominent in fraternal circles, and Ed Inman, former member of city council.

Courthouse gossip places all other incumbents in the race to succeed themselves with the exception of Miss Margaret Culberson, treasurer, while Miss Culberson has declined to state definitely whether she will offer again or not, it is thought that she will not seek the position again.

J. C. Harrison, veteran salesman, former president of the City Salesmen's association, an officeholder in local post B, Travelers' Protective association, and for the past 15 years a power in local political circles, already has taken the field for the position.

He will be opposed by Mrs. James Wakefield, prominent in local club, fraternal and political circles; Mrs. Beulah D. Manston, school teacher, and Mrs. Mabel Abbott MacNeill, daughter of Mr. Abbott.

There also were rumors Saturday that Mrs. Edgar Alexander, democratic national committeewoman from Georgia, will become a candidate. Mrs. Alexander was in Washington Saturday and could not be reached for a verification of the report.

Thomas H. Jeffries, ordinary, is unopposed for reelection thus far, but he has made no formal announcement of his intention to reoffer. Others in the same classification are Tom C. Miller, clerk of Fulton county; W. S. Richardson, tax collector; County Surveyor Eugene Robert and Coroner Paul Donehoo.

Sheriff James I. Lowry is opposed by Paul Trammell.

Mr. Abbott formally withdrew from the race on account of his inability to make an active campaign, he stated. Doctors have advised him to withdraw from active work because of ill health, and he has accepted the verdict.

He has held the office for the past several years, and his decision to retire will leave his post open to contest by a number of prospective candidates.

BILL INTRODUCED TO EXTEND RADIO CONTROL ONE YEAR

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Another year's lease on life would be given the federal radio commission under a bill introduced today by Representative White, republican, Maine, who proposed also that the commission be given increased authority, especially over chain broadcasting.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR OPERA SEASON

and the finest artists of the company come to Atlanta this year.

Care in Selection.

Great care will be taken in the selection of the operas and singers and every effort will be made to insure the 1928 season of Atlanta opera of being the greatest of the 18 years during which opera has been sung here.

The tentative plan of the directors of the Music Festival association is to endeavor to secure for Atlanta the operas which have been the outstanding successes of the New York season, and to see that there are a large number of operas famed for their melody. Of course it is not known at this time whether seven or eight operas will be sung in Atlanta.

Mr. Atkinson, Mr. Candler and Mr. Parker will go to New York armed with the views of other directors of the Music Festival association of Atlanta, and the opinions of music lovers from all parts of the south. Every effort will be made to contract for a program which will be more attractive to opera patrons than any ever offered before in Atlanta.

Since it will be several weeks before it is possible to sign a contract for the Atlanta season, officials of the Music Festival association would be glad to receive from opera lovers suggestions as to what operas should be presented here.

HIGH TIDE FAILS TO RAISE THAMES

stealing towards the upper rooms of the dwellings.

Mounted police battered at all doors to arouse sleeping inmates. These stood in their stirrups and reached to the upper windows, helping people out.

An eye-witness on Lambeth bridge, at the early morning high tide, described the break which overflowed Grosvenor road, Westminster, causing the death of ten persons. He observed water pouring over the brick work of the embankment; then with a noise like heavy gunfire, the stone wall burst and boats anchored in the river were swept through to the roadway on the crest of the flood.

Swim Through Windows.

He and a policeman raced shouting through the flooded streets, often through torrents hip high. Many persons awoke to find their rooms waist deep in water; some escaped by swimming through the windows.

Similar conditions prevailed at Hurlingham, further west, near Putney bridge, where two persons were drowned, at Hammersmith, still further west, many were trapped in their homes.

In the low-lying Thames side sections of East London the overflow came less suddenly. Nevertheless, hundreds were routed from their homes by the invading waters. Wharves were flooded; two huge barges sank, and another was flung on the towpath of Regent's canal.

The river produced terror and confusion also in the poorer sections on the south side, but no fatalities are reported.

The outer vaults of Kew observatory, west of the city, and the outer lawn where the thermometers and main gauges are situated, were inundated. The under-ground railway and tram services along the Thames were paralyzed for several hours, and boats plied as cabs for early travelers to the downtown offices.

Expect Tides to Increase.

The port of London authority, in warning of a possible recurrence of the river's overflow, says that the high tide at 1:37 o'clock this morning was six feet, one inch, above the predicted level, and no record exists of such conditions before in the tidal waters of the Thames.

The warning declares that the tides will increase in height until Tuesday next, when the prevailing flood conditions from the recent blizzard and thaw, together with a forecast of further storms, make the menace a real one.

Experts point out that the calamity was due to three contributory causes—first, the heavy gales which banked the Thames water, preventing its escape into the North sea; second, the tremendous amount of flood waters coming down the Thames from its tributaries swollen with melted snow and ice from the hills; third, abnormally high spring tides, which coincide at this time of the year with the full moon.

The London press demands to know who is responsible for the disaster, and predicts that the subject will be given consideration when parliament reconvenes.

Flood Recedes Swiftly.

In London men and women in evening dress who were returning from dances assisted the police in awakening people. One woman drove her motor car through swirling waters in the Grosvernor road area after having loaded her car with women and children in their night clothes.

In every flooded area virtually the water subsided as suddenly as it had risen. Within 20 minutes the water fell from six feet to less than two feet.

Rather curiously there has been very little wreckage floating down the Thames and the bridges have remained clear.

MAN AND WOMAN BEATEN, ROBBED, THEY TELL POLICE

Police Saturday night were investigating the story of an alleged attack and robbery in an antique shop at 535 Spring street, in which O. J. Guffin and a Mrs. Weaver, whose initials were not given, figured as the victims. They gave their addresses as 646 Spring street.

Guffin told the officers that he and his companion had been beaten and then robbed of $35 by Clarence Sanges, who at one time lived in the same home with his alleged victims. He now is said to be living in the vicinity of Orme and Cain streets.

Police stated that all signs in the shop pointed to a fierce struggle.

Wages in Cartersville

Cartersville, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—Charges that some of Cartersville's best known men and women were not legally qualified to vote in the city election of December 21, but voted anyway, have stirred this little town as it has not been stirred in many years.

The charges are contained in a petition filed in superior court by H. C. Nelson, Ben C. Gilreath and W. E. Perry, the three defeated candidates. The petition asks that Mayor H. P. McElreath, and Councilmen H. H. Green and H. Lee Smith, the election winners, be ousted from office and the defeated trio installed.

As grounds for this action the Nelson trio allege that scores of citizens voting in the election of December 21 were not legally qualified to do so, and a number of names are set forth.

The action has aroused a great amount of anger among those named in the petition, so much so that it has become more the issue in the present controversy than is the ouster movement. Accordingly the defendant officials have requested Judge C. C. Pittman in superior court to change the original petition saying that it "contains allegations which are embarrassing and exceedingly offensive to a large number of citizens of Cartersville.

"If it becomes necessary for the defendants to file their answers the feeling of embarrassment and anger, already aroused, will be further increased with a resultant unhappy and unfortunate effect on the people of Cartersville.

"Citizens named and others in like status as to their qualification as voters are not criminals. They voted in good faith, believing they were legally qualified and there was no intent or desire to commit any crime or violate any law."

Judge Pittman very promptly refused to grant a motion of the ouster petitioners that he disqualified himself from hearing the case.

OWNER OF HOME SURPRISES NEGRO IN ROOM OF SON

While his small son lay asleep in his room, J. R. Walker, of 273 East Tenth street, Saturday night surprised a negro burglar crouched behind the bed.

"What are you doing here?" Walk-er asked. "Keep quiet" the intruder retorted.

For a few seconds they gazed at each other, and then the negro, who apparently was unarmed, dashed to the window and escaped before Walker could stop him. The window had been jimmied open. Nothing was stolen.

FIRE THREATENS TO WIPE OUT TOWN IN N. CAROLINA

Durham, N. C., January 6.—(AP)—Fire, reported to have started in a Roxboro hardware store, had spread to three other buildings at the Person county seat, 30 miles north of here, according to a long distance telephone message received here tonight from the Durham Herald representative at that place.

George Herman Ruth, of Home Run Fame, Who Started Out a Pitchin', Has Tried His Hand at Everything, 'Cept Playing in the Kitchen

BY NORMAN E. BROWN

Oh, the mournful note of a saxophone,
Pa-oom-pa-oom-pa-ooo,
Is the latest tipoff on the things
That our Babe Ruth can dooo.

He's a tennis star, one photo shows—
And master of its thrills;
A playful cut and the spheroid shoots
From Rome to Forest Hills.

And he knows his nags, so we are told—
Can pick 'em as a rule.
The horse above should be Fair Play
But is the Army's mule.

As a football star? Who was this Thorpe?
Just hear old Siwash howl.
He's kicking one right over short,
The ball is going foul.

And the portrait by the tennis scene
Is Chauncey Ruth DePew.
Just letting one on "Mike" soak in
That three folks said was new.

A copper bold, real uniform—
Please save the evil dooer;
And painter: Say, just watch that left—
A modern Rose Bonheur.

A maiden fair in bathing chair,
A beauty in a shoppe;
The razor's dull, one ear is gone.
Is Herman yelling "Stoppe"?

He's versatile, the camera shows—
Does everything he wishes.
Except to pinch hit for his wife
As Osteopath to dishes.

Bobby Praised For Refusing $50,000 Gift

Atlantan Electea Officer of U. S. G. A. at Meeting.

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Expressing dissatisfaction with the present amateur rule, Melvin A. Traylor, of Chicago, newly elected president of the United States Golf association, told delegates to the association's annual meeting here today that he was in favor of any change that would bring about a stricter interpretation of the rule.

Declaring the regulation governing a player's amateur status was vague and incapable of proper and clear interpretation, Mr. Traylor urged that it be amended so as to "make it more and more difficult to commercialize ability to play golf." The amended rule, he added, may not be "entirely satisfactory," but at least "it will be no more unsatisfactory than the present regulation."

Jones Elected.

The meeting unanimously elected the nominating committee's entire slate of officers, including Bobby Jones, British open and national amateur titleholder, as a member of the executive committee.

Jones' action yesterday in rejecting a $50,000 home given him by Atlanta admirers drew laudatory remarks from the new president.

"By accepting the house," said Traylor, "Jones would have violated no rule of the association, but he considered it for the best interests of the game to reject it. It was a magnificent thing that he did."

The delegates formally approved the action of the selection of courses committee which has awarded the 1929 amateur championship to the Pacific coast for the first time in history. The event will be played over the Pebble Beach course at Del Monte, Calif. The national amateur this year will be staged at the Brae Burn Country club, West Newton, Mass., September 10 to 15, under the selections made by the committee and approved today. Other selections approved included national open, Olympia Fields Country club, Mattison, Ill., June 21 to 23; women's Virginia Hot Springs Golf and Country club, Virginia Hot Springs, Va., September 24 to 29; public links, Cobb's Creek Municipal course, Philadelphia, July 30 to August 5.

The retiring president, William C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, commented on the progress made by the association dnuring the past year, and expressed his appreciation for the loyal cooperation given him by the officers and men.

In addition to Mr. Traylor, the new officers include:

Vice presidents, Findlay S. Douglas and Herbert H. Ramsay, New York; secretary, Prescott S. Bush, New York; treasurer, Charles H. Sabin, New York; counsel, Joseph S. Clark, Philadelphia; executive committee Roger D. Lapham, San Francisco; H. C. Mackall, Minneapolis; Robert T. Jones, Atlanta; Ganson Depew, Buffalo, N. Y.; Harry Potter, St. Louis; George V. Rotan, Houston, Texas; Herbert Jaques, Boston; Rodman E. Griscom, Philadelphia; nominating committee for 1929, J. Frederick Myers, Pittsburgh, chairman; E. F. Carry, Chicago; Harold W. Pierce, Boston; W. P. Stewart, New Orleans; Cornelius S. Lee, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

Of the total membership of 1,012 clubs, 279 were represented either by delegates or by proxies.

Panthers Win Five.

The University of Pissburgh basketball team during the holiday season demonstrated sufficient prowess to win the Big Ten title if it were a member of the western conference. The Panthers took five games from western fives.

Tinsley Elected 1928 Captain Of L. S. U.

Baton Rouge, La., January 7. (AP)—Jess Tinsley, of Homer, La., all-southern tackle, was elected captain of the 1928 Louisiana State university football team today. Hefty "Hank" Stovall, of Dodson, La., fullback, was chosen alternate captain.

Tinsley, a junior in the College of Agriculture, will play his third and last year for the Tigers next fall, as will Stovall, junior in arts and sciences.

Tinsley was said by Russell Cohen, new L. S. U. football coach, to be the best linesman he saw in the southern conference last fall when he was assistant coach at the University of Alabama.

Harry Cooper Out in Front In L. A. Open

California Star Turns In Sparkling 69 To Lead $10,000 Tourney.

Wilshire Country Club, Los Angeles, Calif., January 7.—(AP)—Harry Cooper, of Los Angeles, the little fellow with the big golfing punch, today took the lead in the second round of the 72-hole $10,000 Los Angeles open. A sparkling 69, two under par, put the 1926 winner of the event in the fore with a total of 142—one stroke ahead of Ed Dudley, youthful Hollywood pro.

Two other cards of 69 featured the second 18 over the hazardous Wilshire fairways and speedy greens. They belonged to G. D. Paulson, Fort Wayne, Ind., entrant, and Morte Dutra, of Tacoma. All stroked the first nine in 35 and came home in 34, two under par.

Dudley's contribution was a 71 today, slicing one stroke off his card of yesterday, while MacDonald Smith, Great Neck, L. I., stylist, came back with a rush to score a 70, and laid in third place with 144.

Cruickshank Has 71.

Bobby Cruickshank, New York, last year's winner of the event, toured the course in 71, to finish with 145 in a tie with Abe Espinosa, Chicago, and Dutra. Espinosa's score was 73.

Four tied at the 146 station, including Mel Smith, Portland, Ore.; Bill Melhorn, Wilkinsburg, C. C., Pennsylvania; John Black, Oakland, and Dallas Jeffers, Riverside, Calif.

Tom Armour, Washington, national open champion, fell down today, but managed to finish in the 148-stroke column. Tied for the lead at 71 yesterday, he posted a card of 77 today, the result of a bad first nine, that included sixes on the fifth and sixth and a five on the eighth. Each hole was two over par and the disastrous nine cost him 42.

Scores of 155 or better qualified 67 for the 36-hole finals tomorrow, and one of the surprises of the day was the elemination of Joe Turnesa, New York star. Consistently figuring in the money, Turnesa ruined his chances with an 84 for a total of 161.

Paulson Shoots 69.

The 69 turned in by Paulson paved the way for his entrance in the finals, as he had previously carded a poor 81 the day before.

A sextet of golfers lubbed their way into the 149 class, including Fay Coleman, Culver City, Calif., amateur. He had a round of 77 today.

George Von Elm, former amateur champion, shot 74 to finish at 154 strokes along with nine others. Of the better known, those barely getting under the wire were Gordon Wright, Chicago, and Eric Bannister, Winnipeg, both 155.

Oglethorpe Bow's to Club Five, 63-27

Bean Boys Get Going Early and Continue To Pile Up Points.

BY WHITNER CARY.

Showing the same old dash, speed and skill that has kept its banner around the top of the basketball flag pole in these parts for many years, the strong five of the Atlanta Athletic club defeated the Oglethorpe quint 63 to 27 Saturday night on the club floor.

For three minutes it was a hard fought game. Then the club seemed to shake off the close guarding that had featured the play of the collegians during the first brush and from then on it was a long, mad canter for the pupils of Joe Bean.

Oglethorpe counted first when a foul was caged. A few minutes of fierce play in which both teams appeared better on defense than offense and McCrory found the hoop for the first of the avalanche of club shots that was to follow.

Once the ice was broken the club got under full steam and ran up nine points before Bell, of Oglethorpe, caged the first field goal for the college boys. The half ended with the club running wild to lead 31 to 7.

The second half opened with the club five showing a slight letup, but this was quickly dispelled and again the white clad players began to find the basket with old-time regularity.

In passing and team work the club far outclassed its rivals. As a rule the club players generally worked the ball well down the floor before making a shot, although on several occasions long range flips were attempted. Oglethorpe guarded much better in the early minutes of play than at any time during the encounter. After the game got under way the speed and better team work of the club told and the players began to find the hoop.

Brewer, Johnson and Stevens led the attack for the club, the first named finding the basket for a dozen points and the latter two being tied at ten. Joe Bennett and Bell contributed splendid work for the club.

Massey, with seven points, was the leading scorer for Oglethorpe. Feinberg played well.

BOB WINGATE WINS CHAMPS GOLF TOURNEY

St. Augustine, Fla., January 7.—(United News.)—Bob Wingate, Jacksonville, Fla., won the national championship of amateur golf club artilist here today, defeating Dr. William Moffatt, Utica, N. Y., 6 and 5 in the 36-hole finals.

Moffatt, amateur champion of the Yahhundasis Country club at Utica, played an erratic game with his irons, and was five down to Wingate at the end of the first 18 holes.

The Jacksonville amateur's birdie three on the 31st hole where Moffatt had to take a five, gave Wingate the match.

Both players had played sparkling golf during the elimination rounds, but were out of form today.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS

A Fighter and Actor.

Atlanta theatergoers have been subjected to many painful ordeals in the name of drama when they have been called upon to sit in a theater and watch some champion of this or that or some other ex-champion of something else bow himself onto the stage and make a complete flop.

But the time is about here when they can go to a theater—to bring in names, Loew's Grand theater—and see a former champion of the world who is really a Thespian at heart and able to present himself in public.

We refer to James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the prize ring and the man who toppled the great John L. Sullivan from his throne back in 1892.

Corbett proves conclusively that he is not relying on his past fame for a berth on the stage by taking part in an act with Bobby Barry wherein there is no boxing done by the former champ.

With the prospect of Jim Corbett coming to town it is interesting to look back over his career and make a comparison with the ring celebrities of today. There is little comparison to be made except in favor of the now ancient Jim. He shocked the sporting world into insensibility when he took a total of $45,000 in his winner-take-all bout with Sullivan. This figure included $20,000 in side bets which made the purse $25,000—an amount little more than any second rater can get today for a fight in "the garden."

Along about that same time Jim Corbett fought Peter Jackson for 61 rounds before the battle was called a draw and both principals got less than $15,000 for their little tea party.

A few weeks ago Gene Tunney was elected to the "Millionaires' club" because he has the million. Some time ago Jim Corbett was elected to the Lambs' club because the members of that famous club believed him to be a true son of the stage. He won his honor by meritorious endeavor in a line far removed from the ring where he first won prominence. Lambs' club memberships are not for sale at any price.

Learning a Golf Lesson.

News comes from Los Angeles which should bring balm to the duffer who is always getting a "good score up to the 18th and then a flop." Al Watrous, from Grand Rapids, the furniture city of Michigan, was rapidly on the way to a big lead in the $10,000 Los Angeles tournament and took a NINE on a three-par hole. It took him seven strokes to get to the green, 127 yards from the tee. We, of the duffer class, can be mean enough to get a loud guffaw at the action of Mr. Watrous.

This story of Mr. Watrous brings to mind an incident of eight years ago on the course of the Country club at Flint, Michigan. Al was at that time acting as professional of the Red Run club in Detroit and was among the "coming pros" of the country.

He is a droll gentleman who manages to see the humor in almost any situation. That day he was playing in a four-ball match with Jimmy Lawson, professional at the Flint club, and it is entirely probable that there was much at stake on the match besides the joy of winning. Near the end of the match Al laced a perfect drive down the middle of the fairway and a win on the hole would put the match on ice. All of the other three suffered trouble on their tee shots and it looked like a certain advantage for Al.

Someone mentioned the fact and he said "How long is this hole?" The answer came, "485 yards. Al questioned again, "Well, then I didn't hole out, did I?" The answer was "No." "Maybe we had better wait until we hole out before taking the hole," was the only answer. Al was a young man then but he had learned the biggest lesson in golf. Never count a hole until your ball is down a stroke ahead of your opponent. He took a post-graduate course in that school at Los Angeles Friday.

Two Out on Option.

Two players were recently released under option to the Reading club of the International league by the Chicago Cubs. They were Frank Kern, outfielder, and Lester Rouprich, pitcher.

Crowds Watch Hockey.

The drawing power of hockey as a sporting event recently was demonstrated at Ottawa, Ontario, where a crowd of 11,000 watched a contest between the Montreal Canadians and Ottawa Senators.

Auburn Tigers Defeat Tech Quint, 56-29

Aikens, With 26 Points, Leads Attack on Jacket Cagers.

Auburn, Ala., January 7.—(Special.)—Tech's Yellow Jackets invaded Auburn, loveliest village of the plains, tonight and the Auburn Tiger emerged from his lair to plaster a 56 to 29 victory over the Jackets in one of the best games, for Auburn, ever played on a local court.

Papke's boys, a veteran team, had a jam-up passing attack which, coupled with a scintillating defense had the Tech players' hands figuratively tied. The Jackets showed good passing but were unable to get close enough to the basket for goals.

James Boys Star.

This latter fact may be accounted for in the personages of the two James boys, Ebb and Feb, two of the best guards in the southern conference. These two youngsters smothered the Tech forwards and many times were the cause of Jacket pot shots at the basket going the wrong way.

Julian Wilson led the Jacket team in points shot with a total of eight for the night. The best offensive playing for Tech, however, came from Red Williamson, a sophomore stuck in by Mundorff in the closing minutes of the game. Williamson was going great guns and shot six points during the short time he was in the game.

Aikens, flashy Auburn forward, was not to be denied tonight in his quest for plenty of points. The veteran player rang the hoop time after time with his brilliantly executed shots and rang up a total of 26 markers, three less than the total number made by Tech.

Tech Grabs Lead.

The game started off with Tech shooting a field goal and ringing two fouls for a point advantage. This, however, was soon overcome by Auburn and at the half the Tigers led, 32 to 15.

The James boys, of Auburn, and George and Heeke, of Tech, were put out of the game via the personal foul route. Auburn shot 25 field goals and six fouls while Tech rang up 10 field goals and nine fouls.

Sid Goldin, at guard, played one of the best games for Tech, doing especially well on defense.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACE HEADS MEET MONDAY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Stewards of the Grand Circuit will open a two-day session here Monday for the purpose of drafting the 1928 racing schedule with indications that North Randall, Lexington, Toledo, Kalamazoo, Indianapolis, Goshen and Atlanta will again be links in the "wheel."

Detroit and Hanover, Pa., also are considered strong probabilities for the circuit, which would give a membership of ten tracks, only four under the all-time record enrollment.

Officials expect Toledo and North Randall each to compete for the opening dates.

The schedule committee consists of William P. Engleman, of Kalamazoo; William Holst, of Toledo, and W. R. Estill, of Lexington.

Daviscourt Wants Plenty For Go Here

Contos Says Rough Richard Demands $1,000 Guarantee To Wrestle Here.

Rough Richard Daviscourt, the muscular villain of the mat, is perfectly willing to wrestle in Atlanta again, so he advised Matchmaker John Contos Saturday, but in return he must have a thousand-dollar guarantee. At least that is what Contos reports as the termination of his long distance telephone conversation with the burly grappler, who is now in California.

Contos is frank to admit that he wants to get Daviscourt here for a match with "Scotty" McDougal, who has awed the fans with his ability at roughing his opponents into submission, yet at the same time he makes it clear that he does not care to guarantee Daviscourt $1,000 to meet McDougal, or anyone else, Contos said.

"Daviscourt has been handing me the broad 'a' all season, I've tried to get him here before and each time he wanted a thousand-dollar guarantee. I've never given any wrestler but Champion Joe Stecher a guarantee to wrestle here and I don't like to have Daviscourt dictating to me."

Match Would Draw Well.

At any rate Contos has the matter under consideration, knowing that the Atlanta fans want the Daviscourt-McDougal bout and that he very likely will experience little trouble in attracting a house that will net Daviscourt's guarantee and leave a little breakfast money for the promoter and the other wrestlers on the card.

Daviscourt has not appeared here since last spring, when he departed for his home in California with everybody in Atlanta agreeing that he was the roughest man in the wrestling game. But that was before the local cash customers had seen such a rough and rowdy chap as McDougal in action and now they want the two to meet and decide the meanest championship.

MacDougal Beaten Once.

MacDougal has suffered only two set-backs in all of his appearances here this season. One was at the hands of Paul Jones, the popular young Texan, and the other came the same night when MacDougal lost a skirmish with Atlanta policemen and was carted off to jail for assaulting the referee of his bout with Jones. In addition to being fined for that outbreak MacDougal was suspended for 30 days by the boxing commission.

In the meanwhile Atlantans will await with considerable interest the outcome of Matchmaker Contos' negotiations with Daviscourt.

Purple Breaks Streak.

When the Northwestern university basketball quintet recently defeated the fast Notre Dame five, it was the first time in ten starts that the Purple succeeded in taking the measure of the Irish.

Spiller Mails 24 Players '28 Contracts

Seven Men on Last Year's Team Will Receive Papers for 1928.

BY BEN COTHRAN.

Mr. R. J. Spiller, of the Crackers, threw several large-sized chunks of fuel in the stove Saturday morning providing the wherewithal for a dizzy session of the Hot Stove league.

All this was occasioned by Mr. Spiller's announcement of baseball players to whom Cracker contracts will be mailed during the forthcoming week. A perusal of the list shows it to contain 24 names. There are a few others, possibly, to whom the Cracker president will send the documents with the polka-dotted lines at the bottom, but not many, for there are five players whom Mr. Spiller will probably get from Brooklyn. This quintet will report in Florida with the Dodgers for spring training, but will come to Atlanta before the season opens.

Seven Old Ones Back.

There are seven familiar names on the list. They are lads who served the local hopefuls in last year's pennant dash, which was just a bit too fast for the Crackers. The oldsters being offered contracts are Tom Rogers, Art Olson, Red Bates, Walter Gilbert, Manuel Cueto, Johnny Brock and Frankie Zoeller. They are all expected to sign, but possibly all of them won't be here next summer.

The remainder of the 24 represent the trading and buying activities of Messrs. Spiller and Niehoff during the winter and late part of the season.

First off there's the five bought out at Dallas. Jim Poole, first baseman; Paul Strand, outfielder; Fred Brainerd, second base; Johnny Jones, shortstop; Russell Pence, pitcher. It is understood that the boys come sort of high. Their records have borne out the statements of Mr. Spiller as to their goodness as ball players and it is highly probable that a new Cracker machine will be built around these five bullies this year.

Many Players Bought.

Mr. Spiller almost did a wholesale business in buying toward the close of last season. He got Frank Chilton from Cedartown, who will be farmed out. Tom Angley, one of the best batsmiths in the Sally league last season, is Cracker property, and will get a contract. E. C. Dudley, a flinger purchased from Greenville, of the Sally, and Carl Nemitz, also a pitcher, Cracker property, and farmed to Greenville last summer. And, another pitcher, J. H. Adcock, from Augusta. Then, from Savannah came Carl Spencer, said to be a good slabman, and Ollie Mills, a shortstop. Mr. Spiller bought C. W. Blathen from Macon, before he and the Dodgers made a farm out of the Peach club.

Denny Gearin, hurler, was purchased from Milwaukee, of the American association, and another pitcher, Goldsmith, came from Boston via Brooklyn, to the Crackers.

That composes the list of those to whom contracts will be mailed. But the five from Brooklyn are yet to come.

Billy Rhiel's is the first name on the list. Now it's highly questionable as to where young Mr. Rhiel will play if he comes to the Crackers. Last season Bert Niehoff was supposed to manage from the bench and Rhiel was stuck in at second. Rhiel's a good hitter, and proved himself a good fielder when they were playing him in right field, which they did occasionally. But young Mr. Rhiel isn't so good at playing a bouncing ball, and that practically lets him out as an infielder. It is the general opinion

Tech and Georgia Basketeers Clash Here Saturday

THEY STILL FIGHT AS HARD

Comparison of Modern and Old-Time Fights Made

AS IN THE 'GOOD OLD DAYS'

BY BEN COTHRAN.

It's getting to be terribly tiresome and boresome, this continual bewailing of the fact that the fight game is becoming effeminate and isn't what it was in the old days. The bewailing has been going on for some time and someone should put a stop to the thing and rush out with supporting statements of the game as it is today.

The fighters of today are just as good as those of yesterday. Jack Dempsey is as good a slugger as any of the old-timers.

The fights seem to us as good as those in the "good old days" when John L. Sullivan "won an easy 75-round fight from Jake Kilrain." Then young Jim Jeffries, the boiler maker, plastered a kayo on the frame of the 156-pound Robert Fitzsimmons for the heavyweight championship.

Game Hasn't Declined.

But it seems to us that fighting hasn't declined so very much. They still have knock-downs and hard rights and lefts to the body and one-two punches to the jaw. Of course, Mr. Tunney isn't a slugger. That isn't his style. But perhaps you have heard somewhere of James J. Corbett, the master boxer whom Tunney is emulating.

It will be recalled that Corbett took on the first Boston Strong Boy, John L. Sullivan, and gave him a lesson in boxing as it should be done. They say—the old-timers—that Mr. Sullivan was extremely plump at the time of that fight, even to the point of being hoggishly fat. That is explained, however, by the fact that Mr. Sullivan declined to take a boxer seriously and, thinking a slugger could win at any time, did his training largely in a barroom and when sent out to do roadwork, hired a cab.

Anyhow, Mr. Corbett won, and was the new champion. Immediately went up the howl. Boxing was going to the dogs. Bring back the good old days. The fans probably pulled that wheeze at the first fight of any kind.

Corbett Becomes Popular.

Mr. Corbett kept going serenely on his way, meeting them all and making monkeys out of the sluggers. Finally the public got used to watching a boxer cut a slugger's face up with rapier-like jabs and proceeded to become very fond of Corbett. So there's hope for Tunney.

Sure there's hope for Tunney. He is a very ruggedly built sort of person. He has a left that is very irritating. Maybe it doesn't land with all the force of a pile-driver, but it lands with force and often. If you'll study the detail of the battle at Chicago last September you'll find it full of sentences like the following: "Tunney landed his left smartly on Dempsey's jaw." Or, "Tunney put in a hard right and left to the face." And, too, you'll frequently find a sentence ending: "—and they went into a clinch." Or: "They sparred in the center of the ring."

So much for that. Let's take a look at one of these knock-known, drag-out fights they had back in the "good old days." Say, for instance, the fight between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Jeffries at Coney Island in 1899.

How It Started.

Here's how the first round sounded, in parts: "They feinted. Fitzsimmons led a left to the head. Jeffries ducked. Jeffries led a left and it fell short. He led for the stomach and again fell short."

And so on.

In the second round Mr. Fitzsimmons, the champ, was knocked flat on his back by Jeffries. This round was also full of such things as: "Fitzsimmons tried his right for the head but was short, and they went into a clinch."

In the third round Mr. Jeffries smacked Mr. Ftizsimmons on the nose and blood was let. They would try to connect, miss, and go into a clinch.

Jeffries kept socking Fitz hard ones over the heart and in the tenth round knocked the champion flat on his back again. The champion, unlike the strategic move made by Tunney at Chicago, got right up and waded into Jeffries. He was promptly knocked down again. And then, in the next round, Jeffries sent Fitz down for the count.

That Count.

The Dempsey-Tunney detail proceeds until the famous seventh round when Tunney was knocked down, officially for a count of nine. Some of the die-hards shout "Fourteen!" The fight gets over that and in the eighth and ninth and tenth, Mr. Tunney belabors the fast weakening Dempsey in unmerciful fashion. In the sixth there was a phrase reading: "Tunney drove Dempsey to the ropes with rights and lefts."

So it looks like fighting is still safe for the blood-thirsty. There's still plenty of action and blood. We can show the old-timers the Loughran-Lomski fight Friday night. One of the wildest, bloodiest fights of which we have ever read. Loghran knocked down twice in the first round, hanging on the ropes in the sixth and then staying all the way to win a decision at the end of the bout.

Or that time when Firpo landed flush on Dempsey's jaw and knocked him out of the ring. Or when Jack felled the gigantic Willard at Toledo. Or—but we could fill a column in that manner.

Even though they claim the big money is making the boys yellow, that there isn't any more fighting such as they had in the old days, we are inclined to disagree. The boxing racket of the present day is as full of fighting as it ever was.

Reduced Top On Next Show At Ringside

Tim O'Dowd and Benny Reagan To Fight in Two Headliners Tuesday.

A double-barreled fistic attraction will be offered at the Ringside club Thursday night, according to word from Matchmaker Jimmy Mayson yesterday. In addition to offering two 10-round main events Mayson let it be known that this show would be staged at greatly reduced prices.

The Ringside club, located at Broad and Mitchell, was started for the sole purpose of reviving interest in boxing in Atlanta and Mayson believes that if he can get a capacity house once he will have put over his message. Hence the sharp reduction in prices.

In one of the 10-rounders Tim O'Dowd, one of the best-known scrappers in the south, will be a principal. His opponent is yet to be selected. In the other 10-rounder it will be Benny Regan, another popular Atlanta pug, against an opponent whose name has not yet been revealed.

While O'Dowd has not fought here in some time Mayson is confident that the fans recall his ability as a crowd-pleaser and fighter who attends strictly to business from the first gong until the last.

Regan has had several engagements at the city auditorium and on each occasion gave the fans and his opponents plenty of excitement.

EPWORTHERS' ALL-STAR FIVE PLAYS JAN. 14

The Epworth All-Star basketball squad will open its official schedule of the season Saturday night, January 14, at Wesley court with a game against the strong Pryor Presbyterian team of the Sunday School association. Thereafter on every Saturday night the All-Stars will be battling, either on Wesley court or in foreign territory, a schedule of ten games having been scheduled by Coach Barker, including two trips, one to Birmingham and another to Chattanooga. All games with the exception of the out-of-town games will be played at Wesley court, where ample accommodations will be found to handle a crowd of several hundred persons.

These games have always been well attended in the past and even larger crowds are expected this season since this team is sponsored by the Atlanta Epworth League union with a membership of 72 leagues. The team is composed of the best talent the various Atlanta Epworth leagues have to offer and with such a large crowd to draw from this team has always taken rank as one of the leading quintets in the city.

The team this season is composed of Hutcheson at center, Martin and Brown at forwards, Richardson and Smith at guards. Other members of the team who have been practicing regularly include Doss, Forster, Pharr, Chilton and South.

The schedule follows:

January 14—Pryor Presbyterians.
January 21—F. E. F.
January 28—Druid Hills Presbyterians.
February 4—Atlanta "Y" All-Stars.
February 11—Chattanooga All-Stars at Chattanooga.
February 18—Birmingham All-Stars.
February 25—Jackson Hill.
March 3—A. A. C. Reds.
March 10—Chattanooga All-Stars.
March 17—Birmingham All-Stars at Birmingham.

French Have Advantage.

French court men are expected to have a decided advantage in defending the Davis cup this year because for the first time in years the matches will be played on clay courts instead of the customary ones of grass.

MR. FLYNN AGAIN LEADS

NOW HAS 21 STUMBLE-BUMS AND IS MAKING MONEY

WHOLESALE BOXING RACKET

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

(Copyright, 1928, by The Constitution and Chicago Tribune)

New York, January 7.—The many loving friends of Mr. Leo P. Flynn will be interested in hearing that Mr. Flynn is maintaining his old position as the greatest cauliflower wholesaler in the profession. Before Mr. Flynn accepted a position as floor walker for Jack Dempsey, which occupied him almost all of last summer, he was known far and wide as a dealer in gallopers of all styles, weights and complexions.

One New Year's night several years ago he had 19 of his variegated slashers galloping in the roped arenas of six different cities and by exacting the standard share of 33 1-3 per cent of each gladiator's purse he came through the evening with a great deal more profit than any of the individual tigers in this list. Moreover, although a couple of them had the misfortune to be knocked out and most of them emerged from their bouts with contusions and abrasions, Mr. Flynn himself, was around the next day without a mark on him and feeling quite fit.

During his protracted service in Mr. Dempsey's employ, Mr. Flynn was unable to give his wonted attention to the management of his wholesale business and some of his maneaters strayed off to be lassoed by other managers and held for feed bills under the same principle of law that covers stray live stock in the rural districts.

Replenishes Stock.

It was even thinkable that Mr. Flynn, suddenly enriched by his generous wages from Mr. Dempsey, might lose his zest for the 80-mile jumps and his humble providers and turn the rest of them loose intending to relax in luxury and elegance for a year or two. However, such was not Mr. Flynn's disposition at all and when, on returning from the uplift of Chicago, he found his stock slightly depleted, he merely invoked the same law covering strays that had been invoked against him and soon brought his staff up to normal strength again. I believe he also made a few judicious trades with other dealers, large and small.

Mr. Flynn was one of the first men to apply to the prize fight industry the trading principles of the baseball proprietors and he is always turning over in his mind combination transactions whereby he may be able to trade off a lefthanded welterweight with spongy knuckles and a light heavyweight with marital troubles for a bantamweight of semi-windup rank. All gallopers being traded strictly as is and all transactions being final, except that if the galloper that he is about to acquire shall be found to be in jail working out a fine the deal shall become void and of no effect whatsoever. Of course, before presenting a proposition Mr. Flynn would make inquiries in order to assure himself that the bantamweight did not have rheumatism or weak ankles and thus he would have a legitimate business advantage over the party of the second part in broaching the proposition abruptly for a spot transaction.

Mr. Flynn Says:

"Why, you dirty bum," Mr. Flynn is likely to say, "what do you mean by running into that guy's left hand when I been telling you to duck. What's the use of me climbing these steps round by round and telling you how to lick this mug, if you don't pay any attention to me? Now look at your kisser—all covered with blood."

After the Chicago uplift ceremonies it looked as though the Philadelphia firm of Boo Boo Hoff, or Mr. Jimmy Johnston's New York house would become the greatest wholesale cauliflower concern, but now that I am advised that Mr. Flynn has 21 gallopers in hand and is back riding the day coaches again, instead of idling on the interest of the wages received from Dempsey.

So this is the way it goes with the great cauliflower house of Leo P. Flynn, and I am sure that some of his loving friends will be interested in hearing that, although his slashers frequently are out-galloped and sometimes are rendered insensible, Mr. Flynn keeps about a dozen of them active on a program of at least one fight per week per gladiator and is unscathed and doing well without a single champion in the barn.

A. A. C. Plays J. P. C. Quint Wednesday

Athletic Club Will Invade Albany for Game With "Y" Saturday.

Once again it's Tech and Georgia.

This time, however, playing conditions will be favorable as it will be Tech's basketball team meeting Georgia's at the city auditorium next Saturday night in the feature of many cage games carded for Atlanta this week.

Not only a Tech Georgia mixup but the A. A. C. will play the J. P. C. Wednesday night. That, as you know, always brings a close tough battle and a good game of basketball. This year, Joe Bean, who coaches the A.'s, can see the game in peace which he hasn't been able to do heretofore because in former years Joe coached both teams. Now, however, he is devoting his entire time to the development of the A.'s and the boys seem to be coming along fast under his tutelage.

A. A. C. Meets Albany.

Then Saturday night, while Tech and Georgia are mixing it up here, the A. A. C. will journey down to Albany for a game with the Y team of that city. This is also down on the book to be one good game.

Last year was all Tech's in regard to games of basketball played with Georgia. The two met three times, and each time Tech, with its offense, defense and everything else centered around one elongated person by the name of Tiny Hearn, the Munderff coached five came off victorious.

The Jackets have been kicked twice in five starts this season and Georgia has lost one game thus far. Both seem to have good squads and the scrap Saturday night should be an interesting, entertaining one.

Sports Bolster Treasury.

Receipts from sporting events have made the state of Illinois richer by $338,836.59 during the past year, according to the athletic commission report. This figure includes boxing and wrestling.

Minors Settle Draft Argument Tomorrow

Southern League Heads in Favor of Three-Year Draft Rule—Big Minors Standing Pat.

Chicago, January 7.—(AP)—The perennial baseball draft dispute, more or less quiescent since Kenesaw Mountain Landis became commissioner of baseball, but now raging with fresh vigor, comes to a head here Monday with the major leagues standing on the sidelines.

The fight here is between the big and little minors, both sides having been told by the majors to settle their differences or consider relations with the major leagues broken for all time.

Delegates from the International league, Pacific Coast League and American association, the three class AA minors, are gathering here tonight all firm in the stand for a continuance of the modified draft, the sore point with the smaller circuits.

Thomas Hickey, president of the American association, is one who believes a way can be found out of the apparent impasse.

Looks for Agreement.

"Our league is not in a war-like mood," he said. "I believe we can find a way to go along with the major leagues, under the present agreement, until some better arrangement can be found."

John D. Martin, president of the Southern association, class A, arrived with instructions to vote for continuance of the modified draft arrangement. A suggested change by A. J. Heinemann, president of the New Orleans club, would protect the minor leagues by keeping players developed in the league for three years before eligible for draft by majors. Two other Southern association club owners, Jack Whaley, of Nashville, and R. J. Spiller, of Atlanta, indorsed the three-year draft rule.

The coast league unofficially adopted a three-year rule in the sale of Lary and Reese, the famous Oakland keystone guardians. The club refused to part with the pair until the 1929 season. Reports indicate the Yankees purchased them for $135,000.

Question Revived Recently.

The whole draft question was revived at the recent minor league convention in Dallas, when a resolution was adopted forbidding the big minors to continue their modification of the draft. This modification kept the major leagues from taking any class AA players except those who had come down from the majors originally. Their own recruits the class AA clubs sold to the majors at fancy prices.

The little minors argue this modification forced the majors to go out and sign every sandlot and college ball player in the country, with the result none were left for the bush leagues, except at a major league salary. The big minors hold that their draft plans hold good during the term of Commissioner Landis.

Mike Sexton, president of the minors, was expected tomorrow to preside at the sessions.

Hockey Officials Sued.

Major Frederick McLaughlin, of the Chicago Black Hawk jockey team and two other officials have been sued by Edward J. Livingston for $700,000 on the charge that their alleged unsportsmanlike tactics wrecked his team, the Chicago Cardinals.

Epworth League

After several weeks of play the strong teams in the Epworth league are beginning to gradually pull away. The College Park boys are leading the pack in the strongest league in the association, with no losses. The Emory boys are expected to give the leaders trouble, since they have a formidable club with two good shots in Bast and Lee. Druid Hills, with two games won and none lost, has one of the strongest teams in the league. In Doss this team has one of the best players in the association. Park Street, with Martin and McHenry, two of the association's best players, has lost all three games played.

Capitol View is leading in the Boys' "B" league with four games won and none lost, being closely followed by Grant Park and St. Paul Feds.

While the Druid Hills girls are leading in the Girls' "A" league, the St. Mark's girls have so far proved to have about the strongest team in the league and one of the best girls teams in the city. This team has won three and lost one, this loss being to Emory after a hard fought game. The Emory nurses have another good team this season and will no doubt give St. Mark a tough battle for honors before the season is over. Miss Morrison and Miss Bodiger have done most of the shooting for Emory so far, having starred in every game played by this team. Calvary, trailing the league, has in Miss Alsobrook one of the best forwards in the girls' league.

The weekly schedule and standings follow. It will be noted that there will be no games Thursday night. These games will be played at a date to be announced later.

Scott League

Four of the best games yet played in the Trammell Scott league are on the schedule for Wednesday night of this week. The two league leaders meet each other in a tilt for the top position, Atlanta and Lowry and Martin Nash being the teams to travel so far with perfect records, and the holders of third and fourth place in the standing will battle to see which one takes a fall. Southern Railway and the Governor's Horse Guards each have lost one game this season, and this time they play each other.

The two remaining games will also be between teams that are closely matched. New York Life has lost all but one game this season and they play Cluett-Peabody, a team which lacks just one game of having won that many. Jessup and Antrim and Pullman company, two teams having exactly the same records, meet in the opening game of the series, which will start at 7:15 and not 7:30, as heretofore. Following are the standing and schedule:

Trammell Scott League.

TEAM—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Atlanta and Lowry	4	0	1.000
Martin Nash	4	0	1.000
Southern Railway	3	1	.750
Governor's Horse Guards	3	1	.750
New York Life	1	3	.250
Jessup and Antrim	1	3	.250
Pullman Company	0	4	.000
Cluett Peabody	0	4	.000

Schedule for Wednesday, January 11.
(Games to be played at the A. A. C. courts.)
Jessup and Antrim vs. Pullman company.
Governor's Horse Guards vs. Southern Railway.
Atlanta and Lowry vs. Martin Nash.
Cluett Peabody vs. New York Life.

Cold Is Boon to Skaters.

The cold wave that has swept the country east of the Rockies has been a great boost to sport on the ice. Water has been securely frozen in places where ice is a novelty, and skaters have made the most of it.

Power League

The last series in the first round of play in the Power league will take place on Tuesday night, January 10, at the gymnasium in the Transportation building, on Piedmont avenue. To date two teams have a percentage of 1.000. Gas-Electric and the Operators have both come through with perfect records, but Tuesday they play each other. The Operators have managed to pile up the most points in the four games played, and they also hold the high mark for any single game with 70 points scored against the "B" divison.

The other two games will also be good ones. "C" and "D" divisions both have percentages of .500, and one of them is bound to go down. "A" and "B" will play for the cellar berth in the final game. Neither team has won a game to date.

Following are the standing and schedule:

TEAM—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Gas and Electric	4	0	1.000
Operators	4	1	1.000
"D" Division	2	2	.500
"C" Division	2	2	.500
"B" Division	0	4	.000
"A" Division	0	4	.000

Schedule for Tuesday, January 10.
"D" Divison vs. "C" Division.
Gas and Electric vs. Operators.

Army-Navy Game Called Off When Officials Fail To Agree

Navy Stands Pat on 3-Year Player Rule

Football Is Only Sport Involved in Row Between Service Schools.

Annapolis, Md., January 7.—(AP)—The service classic, the Army-Navy football game, was wiped off the 1928 sport calendar today as the basis for the only amicable agreement that could be found in a conference of heads of the naval and military academies upon the athletic relations controversy.

Announcement of the decision was made here by Commander H. G. Patrick, aide to Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, superintendent of the naval academy, upon telephoned instructions of Admiral Nulton after he had conferred in Washington with Major General Edwin B. Winans, superintendent of the military academy at West Point.

Admiral Nulton's brief statement given out here emphasized the friendly fashion in which athletic relations between the two great service institutions were discussed, but said the two academy heads were unable to reach an agreement on the three-year eligibility rule and mutually agreed that the 1928 football game would not be played.

Only Football Involved.

Commander Jonas H. Ingram, director of athletics at the naval academy, had pointed out earlier in the break, when West Point authorities refused to be bound by the three-year eligibility rule upon which the naval academy stood firm, that at present only the 1928 football game was involved.

Navy and Army will meet on the basketball floor this winter, on the baseball diamond next spring, and in track and tennis on schedules already under contract.

The next occasion when the views of the two academies on eligibility rules may clash will come after the Army-Navy basketball game at West Point, February 25, when athletic directors prepare the schedules for next winter.

Presumably West Point will be offered a contract containing the disputed three-year rule, the freshman rule and the one-year residence rule and the question of whether the break is to extend to other sports will then be open.

Commander Ingram today had nothing to add to the announcement from the superintendent of the academy, which he declared spoke for itself.

FOUR-YEAR CONTRACT MAY BE CANCELLED.

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Major General Edwin B. Winans, superintendent of the United States Military academy, announced here today through the army information service that the naval academy at Annapolis had elected "to cancel the four-year contract whereby the service institution had agreed to play football in the years 1927, '28, '29 and '30."

At the same time General Winans made public correspondence between himself and Admiral L. M. Nulton, head of the naval academdy, outlining efforts made to prevent a definite break in athletic relations, forecast several weeks ago when the middies notified the cadets that future relations depended on Army's adoption of a three-year eligibility rule for varsity play.

In a letter dated December 30, General Winans asserted that "it is not our desire to see a severance of athletic relations between the two academies," and informed Admiral Nulton that "if you do not consider yourself committed to a definite severance of relations and if you should feel that any further discussion on our pact might lead to a better understanding, I should be glad to join you therein."

Quotes Telegram.

Admiral Nulton's reply quoted a telegram received at the naval academy from General Winans on December 17 which said: "Please consider the naval academy as released from the contract of October, 1926, if such are your wishes." A conference was arranged, however, to take place this morning in Washington. Following the discussion, both superintendents joined in a statement declaring they were unable to reach an agreement on the three-year eligibility rule and had mutually agreed that the annual pigskin struggle of the Army and Navy, climax of football seasons for 37 years, would not be played in 1928.

"The authorities of the military academy do not look forward with favor to athletic schedules which did not contain Navy teams as the opponents which merit our main consideration," General Winans wrote in his letter of December 30.

"Frankless compels me to state that we do not intend to recede from our position on the eligibility rule in view of its relation to the fundamental principles which have guided this institution for over a century. However, I wish to make every practicable effort in order that the way may be clear for the possibility of an eventual agreement between the two academies."

Recently the Navy announced that after July 1, 1928, the middies would not enter into competition with any team that allowed athletes of more than three years' varsity experience within its ranks. Army never has acceded to this view, maintaining that in accordance with military tradition, cadets must meet on a basis of equality on athletic fields just as they do in classrooms.

AND—IN THIS CORNER by BEN COTHRAN

The national association of the minor baseball leagues is meeting in Chicago tomorrow for the purpose of ironing out the wrinkles on its surface caused by disagreement among its members on the draft rule.

The draft rule is one of those things about which much is heard but little understood. It consists of the right of the major leagues to buy any player in the minors at a stipulated price. The price varies according to the class of the league and in the Southern the draft price is $4,000. The club to whom the player belongs has no say-so in the matter. The major league, at the draft meeting, calls for him and can get him by paying the draft price.

Several of the larger minor leagues, class AA, formed among themselves a modified draft rule. They said that only players who had seen service in the majors could be drafted, and got away with it—for a while.

Then the smaller leagues began to kick. It was their claim that as a result of this modified draft rule by the large minors the major league clubs were buying up every sandlot, semi-pro and college player of ability and that the minors were being forced to pay twice the true worth for any players they get.

All this came to a head at the minor meeting in Dallas last month and the smaller minor league clubs made a statement to the larger which inferred, very politely, that the big minors could tie their modified draft rule around their necks and jump in the first convenient river.

They accomplished this by adopted a resolution which ordered that the five big minors—International, American association, Pacific coast, Western and Three-Eye—quit accepting players from the majors with the stipulation accompanying these same players that they could be drafted back. This was put over by the small minors with members of the five leagues in attendance. Most of the votes in favor of the resolution came from clubs that would be greatly benefited by more dealings with the majors were the five leagues mentioned above cut off.

Then when the matter was taken up with the majors and the big fellows told, presumably, that they would have to quit giving the modified draft leagues players to be brought back again, the minors were informed that it was okay with the majors if the draft pact were broken.

That left the small fellows up a tree and now they are meeting in Chicago to find a way to get down gracefully.

As to how that will be accomplished is something that will have to be threshed out this week.

* * * *

While sitting around the stove in Mr. Spiller's office out at the dell Saturday morning, we asked Bert Niehoff, Cracker manager, what he thought of the draft situation. Bert avowed that he had little idea of what would happen, but he had plenty to say about the draft rule being a tough one because it couldn't work both ways.

"Why, the majors come down here and buy a good player for $4,000, take him up to the big time and use him plenty. Then we go up after a player—maybe the same one—offer the major league club something like $4,000, and all we get is a big laugh. It takes anywhere from $7,500 to $10,000 to get a decent player out of the majors, and yet they have this draft rule."

President John D. Martin, of the Southern league, is at the meeting in Chicago, and will vote for the three-year draft rule. This would keep the majors from drafting a man until he had played three or more years with the same club. That, just as Bert Niehoff says, is a good rule. "It at least gives you a chance to get some good work out of a man before the majors grab him."

* * * *

Niehoff is also looking for any youngsters entertaining the idea of careers who want to try out with the Crackers.

"We already have 13 pitchers and only two catchers," Bert said Saturday. "And we'll have more pitchers and we'll need more catchers. I don't want anything to happen such as the case I had on my hands at Winter Park a few years back.

"I hit Winter Park with about 20 pitchers and one youngster trying out as backstop. Well, that kid worked hard, from morning till night, catching those 20 pitchers. On top of that he was staying in the same room with Ed Danforth and Guy Butler.

"One day I noticed towards the close of practice that this kid was drooping and just able to get the ball back to the pitcher. When I asked him the trouble, he said: 'Mr. Niehoff, you'll have to get me out of that room with Danforth and Butler. I come out here and work hard all day, and when I get through I'm tired and want to sleep. And that ain't possible when you're staying with these two boys. I don't mind catching 20 pitchers—just give me another room!'

"He got another room and his work picked up."

Keen Sold to Cards.

St. Louis, January 7.—(AP)—Victor Keen, right-hand pitcher, has been sold outright by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Syracuse club of the International league, it was announced today. Syracuse is controlled by the Cards.

MRS. ANDREWS IS WINNER AT GUN CLUB

Breaking 49 out of 50 for her afternoon's work at the traps, Mrs. W. P. Andrews carried off first honors in the weekly shoot at the Peachtree Gun club Saturday afternoon. Inman Gray and R. S. Pringle finished in a tie for second place.

Hal McKenzie won both the doubles and handicap shoots, rounding out the afternoon in fine fashion, after finishing well down the list in the singles event. Mrs. Andrews broke 22 in the handicap shoot from the 25-yard mark, which put her in tie for second place with Inman Gray, J. C. Calhoun and John Woodside.

The club will hold its next shoot Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and all members are urged to be on hand for the afternoon's activities.

Following are the scores for yesterday's shoot:

GENE SARAZEN LEADS MIAMI OPEN TOURNEY

Miami, Fla., January 7.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen, former national open golf champion, today led the field in the first 36-hole round of the Miami open tournament, turning in a card of 142.

Willie Klein, local professional, was second with 143, while Jeff Adams, of Savannah, Ga., and Jim Foulis, of Chicago, were next at 147 each.

Jock Hutchison, of Chicago, and Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., required 148 strokes each, while Jim Brophy, of Cincinati; Joe Kirkwood, of Albany, Ga., and Eddie Williams, of Miami, took 149.

George Voigt, Washington, D. C., led the amateurs with 157.

Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine and New York profesional, who was rated by many to lead, had trouble with his putter and required a 100 card.

The morning round was played in intermittent showers, but the weather man smiled on golfers this afternoon.

Courtney Matched.

New York, January 7.—(United News.)—George Courtney, of Oklahoma, recognized in New York state as the outstanding challenger for Mickey Walker's middleweight title, will meet Jess Stringham, of Salt Lake City, in a scheduled 10-round bout at the St. Nicholas arena Monday night.

'WILSON'S MAKING SCORES TODAY---GIVE HIM THE BALL'

:: THUS CAGLE PASSES UP CALL TO FAME ::

BY ALAN J. GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, January 7.—(AP)—The "inside story" now may be told about how the Army rallied to beat the Navy in what may turn out to be their last football game in some time.

Its chief ingredients, as revealed by Head Coach "Biff" Jones, of West Point, consisted of a snappy three-minute talk between halves and the confidence of the players in their captain, "Light Horse Harry" Wilson.

To satisfy the curiosity of those who like to know "what happens between halves," Captain Jones resorts to a Lindbergh sort of "we" in this story:

"We just gave the boys a little talk when they came in after the first half, only about three minutes to point out one or two plays they had overlooked and discuss defense for the Navy plays that had run roughshod through the middle of our line in the first half.

Power of Line Attack.

"We were prepared to meet their sweeps and passes, but the power of that line attack upset our plans. Clifton, the middle fullback, was the biggest surprise to us.

"We also noticed that Harry Wilson seemed to have his old speed back and planned to use the cutback through the line that worked so successfully in the second half. It was tried only once in the first half and failed then only because one man did not carry out his assignment. The use of the 'spinner' play, with Murrell carrying the ball, that worked so well in the last half also was emphasized.

"That was about all, but it worked out even better than we figured.

"You know how Wilson got going on that off-tackle play early in the third quarter and how he took the ball down to within a few yards of the goal in four or five plays, but here's a factor of team spirit we had not anticipated:

"Our quarterback figured Wilson was perhaps getting a bit tired. He didn't want to run any risks of losing that touchdown so he called Cagle's signal. There was just a moment's hesitation on Cagle's part, then he said:

"'Harry Wilson's making the touchdowns today. This is his last game.'"

It is pretty well known that Wilson not only made this touchdown, but another one later on to clinch the game.

"That," concluded "Biff," "is one of the things that make this a great game and give me the biggest 'kick.'"

Olympic Shakeup.

There may be quite a shakeup in the Olympic organization before the American athletic argosy sails in July for Holland.

Indications already are out that Al Lacy, Bosfon trainer, will replace "Spike" Webb, of the Naval academy, as coach of the boxing squad. Webb had this assignment in 1920 and 1924 but the powers-that-be oppose his selection again.

The track and field coaching staff, under Lawson Robertson, of Pennsylvania, as head coach, also will be revamped, as compared with 1924. Several new figures will be on the list, possibly including Dean Cromwell, of Southern California; Henry Schulte, of Nebraska, and Harry Gill, of Illinois. Of the old staff, however, Harry Hillman, of Dartmouth, and Johnny Magee, of Bowdoin, are expected to be retained.

Hudkins—Throwback.

Ace Hudkins, the tousle-haired Nebraska wildcat and welterweight title contender, seems to be a complete throwback to the old days of the ring.

A Battling Nelson type in the ring, Ace also adopts the ancient rough-and-ready methods in his training. Conditioning himself at Omaha for his latest engagements he has offered $5 a day to any boxer of his weight willing to go two rounds a day and similar reward to any fighter not weighing over 160 pounds who can stay on his feet during a workout.

Stecher, Lewis Grapple Feb. 20

St. Louis, Mo., January 7.—The advance sale of tickets for the world's championship heavyweight wrestling bout between Joe Stecher and Ed ("Strangler") Lewis, who will clash at the New Coliseum arena in this city on Monday night, February 20, was inaugurated yesterday by Promoter Tom Packs, with headquarters at Hotel Maryland. Ticket prices will range from $25 for choice ringside accommodations down to $5 for the upper balcony reservations.

The New Coliseum arena, in which the mat classic of the century will be contested, covers an arena of approximately one city block. It is one of the largest indoor arenas in the world and almost approximates in size the new Madison Square Garden at New York city.

The normal seating capacity of the New Coliseum structure is about 15,000, but the installation of extra seats along the wide promenades encircling the main floor and the two huge balconies is expected to provide additional accommodations for about 3,000 spectators.

The top prices, or ringside seats, are located on the main floor, which extends on an incline from the ring in the center of the building, to a level promenade encircling the arena. Box seats are located immediately behind the arena promenade.

Applications for reservations have already been received from 37 cities outside St. Louis, it was announced.

Percentage Cops Feature N.O. Race

New Orleans, January 7.—(AP)—Percentage, owned by J. W. Parrish and B. B. Wiliams, with Jockey P. Hebert up, won the Ponchartrain handicap, feature of the day's racing at the fair grounds today. Tip Top was second and Oh Susanna third. The race, run at six furlongs, was for $2,000 added.

Percentage, on his first start of the season, rewarded his backers holding $2 mutuel ticket with $8.86 to win, $4.06 to place and $3.12 to show. Tip Top paid $3.04 to place and $2.38 to show, while Oh Susanna, the favorite, paid $2.52 to show.

Cards Drop Three Hurlers From List

St. Louis, January 7.—(AP)—With the announcement tonight of the release of Herman Bell to the Houston, Texas, league club, and Tony Kaufmann to the Syracuse team of the International circuit, the Cardinal management cut three hurlers from its pitching staff within the last 24 hours.

It was announced earlier today that Vic Keen has been given his outright release to the Syracuse club. The Cardinals offices reported a fourth transaction during the day with the sending of Outfielder Mokan, obtained from the Phillies, to Houston. Syracuse and Houston are a part of the Cardinal organization.

T. Heeney Works Hard for Next Go

New York, January 7.—(United News.)—Tom Heeney, heavyweight champion of New Zealand, boxed eight rounds and did two rounds of bag-punch and two rounds of shadow boxing today in preparation for his bout with Jack Sharkey Friday night.

Heeney boxed against George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight; Harold Mays, heavyweight, and Phil Mercurio.

The New Zealander is down to 199 pounds, but expects to weigh in at 195.

Fla. '28 Grid Card Completed

University of Florida, Gainesville, January 7.—Scheduling of the University of Tennessee for December 8, 1928, made Florida's football slate for next season complete with the exception of the opening game of the year, October 6. Possibility that an intersectional contest will be billed for that date was expressed here today by Graduate Manager James R. Boyd, Jr., but nothing definite is expected to transpire until the return next week from New York of Athletic Director Yon who has been attending the N. I. A. A. and coaches meetings.

Seven conference games appear on the "Fighting Gators" grid menu for '28, and the competition is expected to be keen, with the universities of Georgia and Tennessee the outstanding games. Tennessee has lost but one grid battle in two years, and Georgia in 1927 was one of the greatest elevens in the country. Auburn, North Carolina State, Sewanee, Clemson and Washington and Lee compose the other S. C. rivals billed for next season. Mercer, a strong S. I. A. A. team, will appear in the Florida's "Homecoming Day" program in Gainesville October 20.

Sebring's 1927 edition of Gators enjoyed remarkable sucess in winning five of seven games within the conference. Throughout the South Sebring was credited with producing an exceptionally smart football machine. With the loss of only six men of the '27 squad, prospects for next season are regarded as bright.

Man, 45, Runs 100 Miles in 14 Hours

London, January 7.—(AP)—Running 10 miles from Bear hotel in Bath to Hyde park corner in London in 14 hours, 22 minutes and 10 seconds, Arthur Newton, South African farmer, famous as a long distance runner, today staged one of the most extraordinary endurance tests ever held in Britain.

Newton, who is 45 years old, beat the 100-mile amateur record of 14 hours, 43 minutes which he made himself on south African roads. He started at 2 o'clock this morning, being paced by four British marathon runners, each covering 25 miles.

C. Tech Continues Barnstorming Trip

Pittsburgh, Pa., January 7.—Carnegie Tech's barnstorming trip which began this week with games against Davis-Elkins and West Virginia university will be continued next week when games away from home will be played at Geneva college, and the University of Pittsburgh. Contests with Washington and Jefferson on January 17 and with Penn State on February 4 are also listed before the Tartans make their first home stand on February 8 with Pitt as the opponent. A series of three games is scheduled this season with Pitt, the final battle coming on February 22.

Following the first six games, all of which will be played on foreign courts, the Skibos will play all of their remaining contests in their own gym. Besides Pitt, the opposition for the home games will include Penn State, Geneva, Notre Dame, West Virginia and Washington and Jefferson.

Although handicapped by a shortage of veterans, Coach John H. Irwin is expected to have the Tartan quintet in fairly good form by the end of the coming week. The team showed in its opening tilts with Davis-Elkins and West Virginia this past week that a lot of improvement is needed before competing with teams of the strength of Pitt, Penn State, Notre Dame and Washington and Jefferson.

BILL LETTON WINS ATLANTA CLUB SHOOT

Big Bill Letton was right with the wind Saturday afternoon and won the two major events at the Atlanta Gun club. He took the singles with a 48x50 and the 22-yard handicap with a 21. I. C. Milner took the doubles event with 36x50, which was good considering the whirling targets that only a trick shot could negotiate.

The Atlanta Gun club was honored with three visitors, well-known shooters of the north, H. G. Waterman and his son, W. L. Waterman, of Madison, Wis. Both Watermans were shooting new guns and broke good scores, considering new guns and wind as a combined handicap. W. L. is only about 13 or 14 years old, and when he cracked 39 targets all shooters present pronounced him a comer. Dave W. Tucker, of New York city, was also a visitor, and shot a good 42. His nephew is the celebrated Jimmie Bonner, who won the junior championship of North America three years in succession, then was defeated by Dudley Shallcross one year and came back the next year and won it again before the age limit of 18 reached him. He is today only 20 and one of the greatest shots in America.

The Atlanta Gun club is holding its regular Saturday shoots now, and urges all members to come out and bring their friends. All members of other clubs and visitors are cordially invited to come and shoot.

HARNESS RACE GAME ENJOYS BIGGEST YEAR

Light harness racing experienced more thrills during its 1927 pyrotechnics than in any other season in history. With the money winning classification in vogue instead of the ancient system of win-race records teamsters pursued the coin with unprecedented vigor. As a consequence, the racing was more keen, faster and greatly enjoyable.

No less than 56 performers, 39 pacers and 17 trotters, tramped to records of 2:05 or better. The sulky sport never has seen anything like that before.

From a standpoint of speed, the outstanding performance was that of that trotting stallion, Guy McKinney, owned by the Hanover Shoe farms of Hanover, Pa. Last Thanksgiving day, he circled the Phoenix, Ariz., speedway in 1:58 3-4 against time, becoming the fastest living trotting stallion and establishing a new record for 4-year olds. He was driven by the Hanover trainer, Tommy Berry.

Eight other world records were set or tied. Sir Roch, the veteran Chicago gelding, equalled the world record of 1:59 1-4 for pacing geldings held by Frank Rogash, Jr.

Fireglow, the San Francisco Worthy Spirit colt, established a race mark of 2:04 for 2-year-old trotters. The Virginia Senator paraded in 2:08 3-4 to hang up a new tab for juvenile trotters over a half-mile ring.

Carnegie Frosh Make Grid Card

Pittsburgh, Pa., January 7.—The 1928 freshman football schedule of six games, constituting the most pretentious ever undertaken by a Carnegie first-year team, was announced today by Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. A feature of the new slate is the addition of the Penn State Yearlings who have been booked for the final game of the season for the Tartans.

The list includes three battles abroad and three at home. Five of the games are with "major" opponents, and Freshman Coach Alfred C. Irwin will have a difficult task to emulate the freshman record of 1927 when his team went through the season with neither a defeat nor a tie.

The schedule follows: September 29, St. Vincent college, at Beatty, Pa.; October 6, Kiski Prep school, at Saltsburg, Pa.; October 13, West Virginia Freshmen at Pittsburgh; October 20, Washington and Jefferson Freshmen at Pittsburgh; October 27, Pitt Freshmen at Pittsburgh stadium; November 3, Penn State Freshmen at Pittsburgh.

'My Hand O. K. Now,' Sharkey

Boston, January 7—(United News) "My hands are perfect and I'll be in the best shape of my life when I face Tom Heeney Friday night," Jack Sharkey, Boston contender for the heavyweight title, said today.

"A four weeks' rest gave my hand an opportunity to heal," he said. "And now, after three weeks of hard training, it is as good as ever."

Sharkey fractured a small bone in his left hand in training for the Heeney bout originally scheduled for November, but postponed because of the injury.

Sharkey is down to 196 pounds and expects to enter the ring weighing 194.

CITY LEAGUE

The first of the three rounds of play in the City Basketball league has been completed and the A. A. C. Reds remain the only undefeated team. The Atlanta Joint Terminal has decided to withdraw from the league and this will make necessary a business meeting Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock at Trammell Scott's.

The crowds witnessed several close and well played battles in the first round. A record crowd saw the A. A. C. Reds hand the Gulf its first defeat by four points. Southern Bell, Avondale and the Knights of Columbus are all closely bunched for third place and all are going good. The K. of C.'s pulled a surprise when they held the Reds to a two-point victory, and another close battle is expected when the K. of C.'s and Gulf meet Thursday.

Two games will be played Thursday. The Knights of Columbus always give the Gulf a hard fight and Avondale should put up a stiff battle against the leading A. A. C. Reds.

The schedule and standing follow:

Southern Bell, bye.
A. A. C. Reds vs. Avondale.

Phillies Schedule 23 Practice Tilts

Philadelphia, January 7.—(AP)—Twenty-three contests are on the pre-season exhibition list of the Philadelphia National league baseball team, it was announced tonight. The team will train at Winter Haven, Fla. Pitchers and catchers are to report on February 20, and the infielders and outfielders on March 1.

The schedule (games at Winter Haven unless otherwise mentioned):

March 7, Athletics at Fort Myers; 8, Red Sox; 10, Athletics; 12, Cardinals at Avon Park; 13, Cardinals; 15, Browns; 16, Baltimore Orioles; 17, Red Sox at Bradenton; 18, Browns at West Palm Beach; 19, Brooklyn; 20, Baltimore at Auburndale; 21, Reading Internationals; 22, Brooklyn at Clearwater; 23 and 24, Cardinals; 26, Reading at Lakeland; 31, Athletics at Philadelphia; April 1, Baltimore at Baltimore; 2, 4, 5 and 7, Athletics at Philadelphia; 8, Newark at Newark.

Petrel Spring Gridiron Work To Begin Soon

Coach Robertson Expected To Issue Call Within Next Two Weeks.

BY FRED McEACHIN.

It was announced by Coach Harry Robertson Saturday that he would commence spring football training for his Oglehtorpe Petrels within two weeks.

This announcement was rather unexpected at this early date, as the gridiron warriors of Oglethorpe have started on the annual spring grind the early part of February in past years. It is obvious from Robertson's statement that he means to put out a real football team for the 1928 season by getting down to training sooner than ever.

50 to Answer Call.

When the call is sounded for the Petrels to again don the moleskins there will be 50 candidates to answer the summons.

Coach Chestnut is graduating several promising stars from his freshman outfit of last season who should materially strengthen the varsity squad in this year's campaign. Among the most likely freshman candidates for a berth on the first team for the coming year are Claude Herrin, flashy quarterback; Charlie Tatum, gigantic pivot man, and Carlisle, a hard-plunging halfback. There are a pair of ends also being promoted from the rat team who should make a place on the first squad. They are Pierce and Prior, both averaging about 185 pounds combined with plenty speed for good wingmen.

Cy Bell Returns.

When the spring work is resumed on the Oglethorpe gridiron one of the prodigal sons will return to the flock in the personage of Cy Bell, who played such brilliant ball during the season of 1926. Cy's presence will be a decided impetus to the Petrels and his return is heralded with much joy among the student body of Oglethorpe.

Yanks' Power Fails To Shatter Hopes of Washington

Harris Says He Has Best Mound Staff

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—The potential power of the New York Yankee has not shattered the morale of the Washington American League club, and both President Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris are going about preparing for the 1928 campaign without shivering at the mention of the name of Miller Huggins' formidable array of stars.

Even with the absence of Walter Johnson, Harris believes that in Lisenbee, Hadley, Van Alstyne, Sam Jones, Zachary, Marberry, Burke, Braxton, Gaston and several promising pitchers from the minor leagues, he has the best mound staff in the league. This group, which wisely divided between left handers and right handers, also has been selected with a due regard to having a few seasoned men, along with those of less experience. Hadley and Lisenbee are now looked upon by the club as being in the star class.

Strength has been added to the infield by the acquisition of George Sisler, who, according to Griffith, will alternate with Judge at first base. Wise Washington fans, however, cannot see a player of Judge's caliber kept on the bench at any time, and expect that he will be used in a trade to strengthen the club elsewhere.

Plenty Infielders.

The other positions on the infield are assigned tentatively to Harris, Reeves and Bluege, but the club has several minor league youngsters for duty on the inner works, notably Gillis from Birmingham, who showed impressive form in a few games at the close of last season. He may replace Bluege or Reeves if he shows more promise.

The outfield trio of Rice, Speaker and Goslin is backed up by West and Ganzel, the latter having batted for more than .400 in quite an extended period of play last year. Tentatively Speaker has been assigned in the outfield, but few expect him to remain with the team for another season. As in the case of Ty Cobb, who has been released by Connie Mack's Athletics, Speaker is a high-priced man, who is not regarded as an essential to the success of the club and he is expected to make other connections. But when in his absence, the Griffith-Harris clan believe they will present a strong outfield.

The absence of Walter Johnson, who will manage the Newark club of the International league next season will be felt more from a psychological than from a material standpoint. The veteran was of little use to the club last year after an injury to his leg, and before midseason he announced that he never would take his regular turn in the box again.

Trade Rumors.

There have been rumors that Griffith was willing to trade Sam Rice or Goose Goslin if he could make a good bargain, but the club officials never would confirm this. Rice had a season below his usual mark in 1927, but with a little improvement he would not be far from his regular form.

Ruel and Tate will again be the mainstays behind the bat. Although Ruel has slowed up somewhat, he still is regarded as one of the best catchers in the league and will be the number one man.

With the rumors of trades and the puzzling Sisler-Judge situation, club officials have intimated that Sisler may be played in the outfield, regardless of the number of good men already available for duty there. Whether this will settle the situation remains to be seen.

HERE ARE THE LADS WHO FOUGHT

All-American Boxing List Named by Edgren

James J. Jeffries Is Named as Greatest All-Time Heavyweight—Bob Fitzsimmons Best Light Heavy.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Now that we have finished picking all-American football teams, with a lot of doubt and discussion following, it may be in order to do a little all-American picking of ring champions. Not of this year, but up to date. A resume of the performances of the ring champions of today would be about as interesting as the performances of our one genuine champion, by virtue of a 14-second count, and 20 or 30 synthetic pretenders in the other classes, in the ring.

But we have had great champions in other days. Great champions in all classes, and often many of them in the same period of ring history.

Here are the All-Americans—the pick of the lot:

Heavyweight—James J. Jeffries.
Light-heavyweight—Robert J. Fitzsimmons.
Middleweight—Stanley Ketchel.
Welterweight—Jo Walcott.
Lightweight—Joe Gans.
Featherweight—Terry McGovern.
Bantamweight—Johnny Coulon.
Flyweight—Pancho Villa.

Few who ever saw the gigantic Jeffries in action will question his right to be considered the All-American heavyweight. Jeffries was an inch taller than Jack Dempsey, and in perfect condition weighed 40 pounds more than Dempsey at Toledo. That 40 pounds was clean weight, giving Jeffries muscular power and resistance and vitality unequalled by any other man ever seen in a ring. He was the strongest of all heavyweight champions, and one of the fastest. He was a terrific hitter—probably the hardest of all the heavyweights. If Jeffries had been a little more "vicious"—if he had not followed the favored style of fighting of his day—which was to box along and look for openings before trying to shoot over a finishing blow—Jeffries might easily have established a one or two-round knockout record. He had the speed and the punch to do it. In one thing Jeffries was alone in his class. He never tired in the least and he was absolutely punch-proof. The hardest hitters of his time hit him on the point of the chin without even tipping his head back. Not one of them shook him. Choynski, Fitzsimmons, Ruhlin, Sharkey could knock out almost anyone else, but their blows bounced off big Jeff like hailstones from a slate roof. Perhaps the greatest exhibition of Jeff's natural vitality was at Reno in 1910. He had been out of the ring six years, entirely through with all thought of fighting again, had put on a hundred pounds of fat, had trained 90 of that off to come back and fight Johnson. It's claimed Jeffries was drugged by gamblers the night before that fight, and for years afterward blood tests showed that the drug they used had not yet been eliminated. Although he entered the ring in a dazed condition and evidently slow and weak, Jeffries walked stolidly straight at Johnson for 15 rounds, a helpless target for the powerful negro's blows, before he collapsed and fell through the ropes. Even then he wasn't "out," but was counted out while trying to pull himself over the ropes and back into the ring.

Could Win at Will.

In his best days Jeffries could have whipped Johnson or any other man I ever saw, any time he wanted to cut loose.

There may be some doubt about including Jack Dempsey in this statement, for at his best Dempsey was such a terrific hitter that it might be possible he could do what no other man ever did, daze Jeff and bring him down with a series of blows. Still, I believe that Jeffries would have been able to weather Dempsey's best just as he weathered the wallops of Fitzsimmons, and wear Dempsey down just as he wore down other powerful men who tried to slug with him, and failed. In one way Dempsey was a greater fighter than Jeffries, because of the sensational fury of his attack. Jeff often held back to put the necessary knockout over "gently," as he used to say. But Dempsey's sole idea was to fight relentlessly until something dropped.

Fitz in Class By Himself.

A few weeks ago Jeffries told me he considered Bob Fitzsimmons the greatest of all fighters. Fitzsimmons weighed 156 1-2 pounds when he knocked out Jim Corbett for the world's heavyweight title. He knocked out Ruhlin and Sharkey and Maher and Corbett and cleaned up the heavyweights generally—all but Jeffries. He never could beat Jeff. And he was either a middleweight or a light-heavyweight during all his best fighting days. As a light-heavyweight he wouldn't have to fight Jeffries—he only man of his day he couldn't lick. He won the light-heavyweight championship by beating Gardner, and when he whipped Gardner Bob was over 41 years of age! No other living fighter ever equalled that exploit! Middleweight and heavyweight world's champion, and at 41 winning another title.

I will say that there'd be no use in comparing any of our recent light-heavyweights with Fitzsimmons, because there's no comparison. Fitz outclassed them the way a stake horse outclasses a truck horse. And they are good fighters at that. It's just that Fitzsimmons was a fighting freak—one man in a century of fighters. Fitzsimmons, by the way, may be classed "All-American" although he was born in Cornwall and brought up in New Zealand, for he was a naturalized citizen on the United States through his great fighting days, and proud to be called an American.

Fitzsimmons was undoubtedly the class of all the middleweights, too. But leaving Fitz out the class of the fighting men in that division rests between Stanley Ketchel and Tommy Ryan, with the edge in Ketchel's favor. Ryan was a marvel of cleverness and a good socker, but Ketchel was was fast, cool, determined, daring and irresistible. His fights with Joe Thomas were ring classics. His whipping Jack O'Brien, light-heavyweight titleholder, was a sensational whirl of the fighting never to be forgotten by anyone who saw it. He outfought the great Sam Langford in six rounds. He fought Jack Johnson for the heavyweight title, giving away 65 pounds in weight, and knocked Johndown down for nine seconds with a right hook over the ear, and was knocked out when he rushed wildly in to finish the job. As a middleweight Ketchel was great.

Joe Walcott was undeniably the class of all the welters. He was only an inch over five feet tall, weighed 142 pounds, and had to do most of his fighting with heavyweights because he ran out of socking material in his own class and among the middleweights. Walcott was a little black Hercules. He had a 16-inch upper arm—thicker than the arms of Dempsey and Tunney. His bullet shaped head was as hard to smack as a battleships' turret, because his neck was so short his ears rubbed against his shoulders. He was one bunch of fighting muscle, and he liked to fight. He knocked out Joe Choynski, a clever heavyweight, challenged Sharkey and Jeffries, and wound up fighting every few weeks with Sandy Ferguson, of Boston, a six-foot, three-inch heavyweight who outweighed Walcott 100 pounds. Fighting welters was a joke to Joe.

Gans Greatest of Lightweights.

Joe Gans was the greatest of all lightweights in science, coolness and hitting power. He learned his skill from Bob Fitzsimmons. He was so far superior to other lightweights that his manager for years "arranged" Joe's fights and had him working according to program. But for that his record might have been even more brilliant. There were few who could stay three rounds with Joe if he didn't want to let them.

Of course Battling Nelson was a great lightweight, but his sole asset was endless endurance and punch absorbing qualities. He never touched Joe Gans for class. Benny Leonard was much nearer a Joe Gans. Benny had plenty of fighting brains, skill and punching power. But not quite enough to slip him into the class of the old master.

Terrible Terry McGovern was as supreme among featherweights as Fitzsimmons among men of his weight. I don't expect ever to see another McGovern. Terry was a mild youngster outside ring, but when that bell rang he was an unleashed tiger. The fastest streak of fury that ever shot out from a corner. And the best puncher with either hand among all the little men. George Dixon was a marvel among featherweights, but never McGovern's equal. Terry not only cleaned up all opposition as a bantamweight and a featherweight, but knocked out Frank Erne, lightweight champion at the time, and the great Joe Gans.

The classiest of the bantams was little Johnny Coulon, of Chicago. Johnny used to fight like a small edition of John L. Sullivan, and he looked like a little John L., fists and all. Clever and fast, sturdy, cocky and confident, and with class in action sticking out all over him, while he lasted Coulon was among the kings of his game. When he had "cleaned up" the bantams and was at the top of his form Coulon had an attack of rheumatism that practically ruined his career as a fighter.

'27 Trend of Sports Toward Big Business

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

The extent to which sports in general have entered the field of big business is indicated by developments and movemnts rather of the last several months.

The activities of the major league clubs in strengthening their positions from the financial, administrative and prodocng angles, rather than from the playing angle, have monopolized the news.

The change in ownership of the Cleveland Indians, bringing more active capital and a more direct administration into operation, was urged with a view toward strengthening the general condition of the league.

The elevation of E. S. Barnard, president of the club under its previous ownership, to the presidency of the American league, to succeed Ban Johnson, was effected as rapidly as possible, the moguls realizing that the unsettled conditions contingent on Johnson's continuance in office was affecting the general respect held for baseball in general and the American league in particular.

Expenses Reduced.

Major league clubs are striving to promote the development of new material—and reduce their expenses by acquiring "farms" from which to draw future material.

The minor leagues, by the same token, are striving to break away from the long-standing "draft" principle, which, they claim, lessens the chances of realizing proper returns on their investments through the sale in the open market of their star players.

The winter season found the minor leagues of the country interested in a dispute between the Texas and Western leagues, which involved territorial problems and club rights which all persons interested financially in the minors felt affected the business end of the game vitally.

So much for baseball.

The football season witnessed the staging of the Notre Dame-Southern California game in Chicago, before the greatest crowd ever assembled for such an event. The contest was staged at Soldiers' field, Chicago, scene of the Dempsey-Tunney fight last fall.

GIRL JOCKEYS SOON MAY BLOSSOM OUT IN SILKS ON NORTH AMERICAN TRACKS

Tiajuana race track and two American girls who know their ponies.

BY WILLIAM H. RITT.
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Constitution.

New York, January 9.—The boys who ride, follow or cuss the ponies have been shocked. The shock came in the announcement that Promotor Jim Coffroth seriously considers the introduction of girl jockeys at Tiajuana race track, down there in Mexico, next season.

Girl jockeys are a novelty in America, but that just shows how far ahead of us Europe is in some things. Over there the gals have been booting 'em for decades. There is one race in England each year which is held especially for the sweeter sex.

The good gentlemen of the hoof business, from bookie to barn sweeper, all are atremble. The very thought of a derby, a futurity or a steeplechase presided over by a bob-haired band of gigglers, has them in the throes of panic.

Imagine Flora Flash up on an oat chewer 20 yards ahead of the field as the $1,000,000 Beef Stakes comes near a close. Flora is trying to make up her mind whether to hug the rail or stay out where she is when—

Whoa! Flora has spotted a pink organdie dress trimmed with black taffeta and topped by the darlingest cloche hat up in the tenth box of the second grand stand. Flora, of course, has stopped to get a better view as the rest of the field thunders by.

"The cats!" Flora shrieks as she stamped her foot in the judges' stand a moment later. "They saw me stop! Why didn't they wait for me to start again? I was ahead when I stopped, wasn't I?"

Police interfere as she attempts to rough riding in rodeos and roundups.

spring on the winning jockeys.

Then again, the good old races, such as the Kentucky derby or the futurity would disappear in favor of the Fifth avenue bonnet and the bargain hunters stakes.

However, the good gentlemen of the hoof business may be unduly perturbed. Women have long been associated with horses in many capacities and the business has prospered and waxed rich through it all.

Few male owners have attained the success which Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney attained with her fine stable.

Then there is little Judy Johnson, 19-year-old girl trainer at Belmont park. Judy knows her horses better than most men and is one of the best riders in this country.

Another famous girl rider is Helen Johnson, sister of Art Johnson, the noted jockey. Helen is a whiz at

NEXT ON LIST FORLOUGHRAN IS GOOD REST

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Tommy Loughran's light heavyweight crown more firmly lodged than ever on his curly black thatch despite Leo Lomski's valiant efforts to dislodge it in 15 rounds of furious battling, decided today to take a vacation before "cleaning up" the remainder of his division.

The Philadelphia titleholder, who was knocked down twice by Lomski's ponderous right hand in the first round of their title fray at Madison Square Garden last night, intends to sail about January 15 for a few months visit to South America. He has not yet decided what countries he will visit.

Tommy could not explain the knockdowns he suffered, the first since Gene Tunney put him on the floor in a match at Philadelphia five years ago.

"I'm sorry," Tommy said, "I'd like to remember but I can't. I recall going down for the first time, but everything went blank from then on until the middle of the fifth round. My brain cleared suddenly then, but I still thought we were fighting the first round until my seconds told me the fight was one-third over."

Loughran's title defense against Lomski was his second in less than a month. In December, Tommy defeated Jimmy Slattery, of Bufalo, in 15 rounds at the Garden.

Sewanee League

Unusually close scores marked the games of the past week in the Sewanee league, with the four-way tie for the lead being broken and at present only two teams are tied for the lead.

Decatur Presbyterian, after a losing start, hit its stride and as a result has won the last two starts.

Jordon, of Decatur, and Allgood, of Wesley, continue to lead the high scorers in the league, with Clarke, of Western Heights, fast gaining on them.

The Wesley Memorial game with Associate Reform Presbyterian should be the feature tilt of the coming week as both teams are playing fast ball.

The schedule for Thursday night follows:

Wesley Memorial vs. Associate Reform Presbyterian, 6:40 p. m.

North Atlanta Baptist vs. Capitol View Baptist, 7 p. m.

Pattillo Memorial vs. West End Presbyterian, 7:50 p. m.

Northwest Baptist vs. Decatur Presbyterian, 8:10 p. m.

Georgia Wins Second From Gators, 40-30

Bulldogs Romp as Florida Is Downed in Second of Two-Game Series.

Gainesville, Fla., January 7.—(AP) (Special.)—The Bulldog of Georgia tamed the 'Gator of Florida again tonight, the Georgians taking the second of a two-game basketball series with the Gainesville school here tonight by a score of 40 to 30.

Last night, in the opener, Georgia made a brilliant last minute rally and defeated the Floridans by a small margin.

Tonight the visitors wasted little time in putting the gave on ice, running up 17 points in the short time of 10 minutes. The work of Captain Florence, flashy Georgia forward, was responsible for the sparkling, spontaneous play of his team. Florence shot 16 of his team's 40 points to take off high scoring honors. Palmer, a newcomer on the varsity, was next with 14 points to his credit.

Following Georgia's long run, Florida flashed a dazzling floorwork for a few minutes and ran up a large number of points, but not enough to overtake the big lead piled up by the Red and Black. Crabtree, Florida forward, was best for his team, shooting a total of 10 points.

The lineup:

HISTORIC RACE COURSE PICKED FOR GOLD CUP

New York, January 7.—(AP)—The historic Thames river course off New London, Conn., where for generations oarsmen of Harvard and Yale have matched blades, may reflect the roaring exhausts of gold cup contestants for the motorboat speed championships next summer.

C. F. Chapman, chairman of the racing commission of the American Power Boat association, has announced that efforts are being made to stage the annual power boat contests there during the week-end either preceding or following July 4. The commission will meet here between January 20 and 28 to settle definitely on a site and date for the speed classic. The event was won last year at Greenwich, Conn., by George Ownsend's Greenwich Folly.

Refusal of the Indian Harbor Yacht club, of Greenwich, to stage the race this year as defending trophy holder has brought the cup back to the Columbia Yacht club, of New York.

Invitations have been received to stage the event at Newport, R. I., Boston, Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, Chapman said, with either Washington or Baltimore favored as second choices to New London.

TWENTY TILTS ON BOOKS FOR VIRGINIA FIVE

University, Va., January 7.—Virginia's basketball team has 20 games listed for the year and others may be added. The season will end with a trip to Atlanta for the southern conference tourney.

A southern trip of three games is to be played late this month. South Carolina is to be played twice in Columbia and North Carolina. Only five other games are to be played away from home. Maryland will be played in College Park on January 27 and the next night Catholic U. will be met in Washington. Washington and Lee, V. M. I. and V. P. I. are to be played on their home floors.

Fourteen games are scheduled to be played here. Among the southern conference teams to be met are Kentucky, North Carolina, V. M. I., N. C. State, Maryland, Sewanee, and South Carolina, Johns Hopkins, Richmond, Stevens Tech, Brooklyn Poly and Duke are also to be played tin the Memorial gymnasium.

The squad has been preparing all week for the season's opener. The complete schedule follows:

January 14—Johns Hopkins at home.
January 16—Kentucky at home.
January 20-21—South Carolina in Columbia, S. C.
January 23—North Carolina in Chapel Hill.
January 27—Maryland in College Park.

Spalding League

In Saturday night's contests at the A. A. C. the Georgia Power company outclassed the Crum and Foster team by the margin of 19 to 2. The Crums were minus the service of their best player, Miss Ward, and the game was slow and scoring low without her. Miss Nelson was the star for the Power girls, ably assisted by Grace Jones and Miss Matthews.

In the early game the Comptometer company was swamped by the Western Electrics, 11 to 2. Davis and Bell were the high pointers for the Electrics, who gained back some of the good form they showed during last season.

Boxing Gains Popularity At Georgia

Prospects Are Bright for Good Pugilistic Team This Season.

BY BOB SHERROD.

Athens, Ga., January 7.—Boxing entered its third year as a recognized sport at the University of Georgia last week, when first practices of the season were held under the direction of Lieutenant L. G. Smith, coach of the mitt men. Georgia has for two years had fairly successful boxing teams, but no great results have been achieved.

Some 40 men, half of them freshmen, turned out for the first day's workout.

Coach Smith believes his prospects to be better this year, with only three men lost from the 1927 squad. Those lost by graduation are Curtis Luckey, heavyweight and captain; Luke Woodall, light-heavyweight, and Metz Holder, welterweight.

Gene Haley, light-heavyweight champion of the university last year, is captain of the team for the coming season. With six other letter men, he should form a good nucleus for the 1928 organization. Billy Birchmore, undefeated in three years on the campus, is one of the team's mainstays. Other winners in the 1927 tournament who are back are Fielding Russell, featherweight; Carlton Jester, lightweight; H. F. Johnson, middleweight, and Theodore Frisbie, heavyweight.

Make Good Conference Showing.

The Bulldog mitt men made a fair showing at the annual conference tournament in Charleston last year when they copped two second places and two third places.

One meet has been arranged for the Georgia team thus far, but several others will be dated later. The one already fixed is with North Carolina at Chapel Hill on February 11. The intramural tourney will come about the first of March, while the Charlottesville conference tournament will be fixed somewhere about the middle of that month. Winners in the intramural make up the team which goes to the conference tournament.

The popularity of the ring game has greatly increased at the university since its introduction here. Large crowds turn out for every meet, including many Athens fans and students.

Spiller To Mail Contracts to Men

that Fred Brainerd is the man to play second for the Crax this year.

The other four consist of Rousch, a pitcher; Lefty Williams, another pitcher; Tremper and Corgan, outfielders.

Zoeller Retained.

Zoeller is being retained because he's the only decent left-handed hitter the Crackers had last year, and there doesn't seem to be any great quantity of them in the incoming flock of news ones. Mr. Zoeller wasn't up to his usual standard pep and dash and good playing during the mediocre season of 1927. Bert Niehoff looks for him to do better this year.

In fact, after a study of the other players, Zoeller is the only left-handed hitter and the Crackers are looking for another one. Bert likes to balance his club with at least a couple of southpaw swipers. So the hunt continues and the telegraph companies are making money.

It was also announced that William Chenault Munday, Jr., member of Atlanta's sport writing fraternity, would be given another chance to turn pro, and that a contract would be mailed him. Mr. Munday made a name for himself as a pitcher while at the University of Georgia and no less a personage than Nap Rucker believes he can still be turned into a professional moundsman.

Stuffy McCrone, now with Asheville in the Sally, will be offered a contract, also, said Mr. Spiller. This was the final statement made by Mr. Spiller. But he made plenty during the morning spent around the stove and judging from what he said, it looks like the Crackers are going to have something approaching a ball team this year.

Dixie League

The final games of the first round of play in the Dixie boys' league will be played at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night with three tilts on the menu.

The past week produced some good games in this league, with Anchor Class hitting its stride and piling up a large score.

Tuesday night's feature game will be the meeting of the Anchor Class and the boys of Western Height Baptist, starting at 7:20 o'clock. The complete schedule follows:

Again, Chevrolet has created an automobile so far beyond all expectations in the low-price field that it constitutes the greatest achievement of America's greatest industry!

Built on a 4-inch longer wheelbase—and offering many vital contributions to performance, beauty and safety—this Bigger and Better Chevrolet marks a spectacular epoch in the development of luxurious transportation at low cost.

The engine is of improved valve-in-head design—with alloy "invar strut" pistons—here used for the first time in a low-priced car . . . hydro-laminated camshaft gears . . . mushroom type valve tappets . . . AC Oil Filter . . . AC Air Cleaner—and a new crankcase breathing system.

In smoothness, power and acceleration this improved motor ranks as a spectacular engineering achievement—providing a type of all-round performance that is positively thrilling.

Throughout the entire chassis, similiar vital engineering advancements are represented—from the four-inch longer wheelbase, to the new semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—84% of the wheelbase.

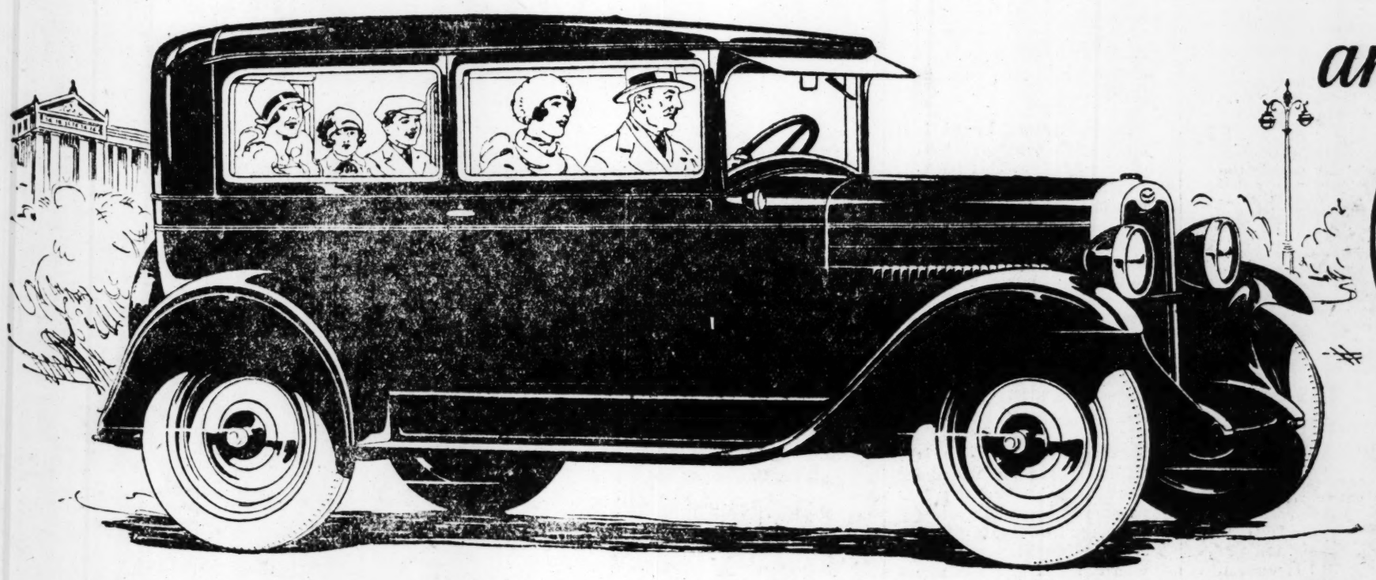

But sensational as these new engineering achievements are, they are matched in impressiveness by the marvelous new Fisher bodies—finished in alluring Duco colors . . . larger, lower and roomier . . . more beautiful than ever . . . more superbly styled . . . and more attractively appointed.

Come in and drive this great new car. Drive it through traffic—and get the thrill of its darting pick-up—the smooth, certain action of its non-locking four-wheel brakes! Drive it on the open road—and test every point in the speed range for smoothness and roadability! Try it on the hills—and learn the true meaning of Chevrolet power!

Do that—and you will agree with thousands of others that here is the world's most luxurious low-priced automobile!

Every feature of advanced Design and the completeness of detail demanded in the finest cars now offered in the New Chevrolet

Improved valve-in-head motor.
New stronger frame 4" longer; wheelbase 107"
New four-wheel brakes.
Thermostat control cooling system.
New alloy "invar-strut" pistons.
New instrument panel indirectly lighted.
New ball-bearing worm and gear steering.
Semi-elliptic shock absorber springs, 84 per cent of wheelbase.
Safety gasoline tank at rear.
Larger balloon tires 30" x 4.50".
Semi-floating rear axle.
One-piece steel rear axle housing.
New streamline bodies by Fisher.
New Duco colors.
Theft-proof steering and ignition lock.
AC oil filter.
AC air cleaner.
Single-plate dry disc-clutch.
New crankcase breathing system.
New two-port exhaust.
Heavy one-piece full-crowned fenders.
Alemite pressure lubrication.
Stewart-Warner vacuum fuel supply.
Improved Delco-Remy distributor ignition
Combination tail and stop light.
Large 17" steering wheel with spark and throttle levers located on top.
Rear vision mirror.
Fisher "VV" one-piece windshield on closed models.
Automatic windshield wiper on closed models.
Bullet-type headlamps and parking lights.
Steel disc wheels.
Military type sun visors.
Gasoline gauge.
Klaxon motor-driven horn.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

In the Motor Room of Reo Motors

With well-planned strategy, the clever boxer springs into action—with nimble footwork, first bores in, then dodges back, while blows of his opponent flail the air. With equal cunning, the automatic machines at the Reo Motor Car company perform their grim advance and skilled retreat. Producing cylinder blocks for Flying Clouds, they drill from both ends at once, and as the drill points are about to meet, draw one drill quickly back as the other finishes the hole.

One of the machines which is used for this work and which operates in this uncanny fashion is shown in the accompanying illustration. It operates two long drills which bore the long oil duct for the pressure lubrication system that feeds oil to the seven main bearings in the Flying Cloud engine. Like deadly antagonists, these drills press forward, but, unlike fighters, they are united in a common purpose, the finishing of a smooth, accurate hole in minimum time.

As they bite into the heart of the cylinder block, their approach toward each other is evident, even to the most casual observer. Then when it seems the two must hit, there is a skilled retreat. One drill suddenly stops and is quickly withdrawn while the other proceeds to finish the hole.

Many have marveled at the skill with which tunnels are drilled through solid rock, bores starting from both sides at once and meeting within the mountain. But just as remarkable is the precision with which these drills are guided, the hole bored by one, meeting with hardly a hair's breadth deviation, the drilled passage made by the other.

A single drill might be used, boring all the way through from one end to the other, but twice the time would be required on each cylinder block. Machines that operate from both ends at once, although involving a greater investment, save both time and money and enable the progressive manufacturer to turn out a high-grade automobile at a saving to the buyer.

WILLYS OVERLAND PLANNING BIG YEAR

The following statement was made by John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., this week: "There is no reason to believe that the monopoly which existed in the light car field a few years ago will continue. The recent changes which have been made in light car design have brought about a new sales condition. In the future, cars in this field will be sold on a direct competition basis. Durability is going to be discussed more than ever before, this and performance.

"All light cars now have conventional transmission systems, in general they point up to features which the Whippet introduced into the light car field 19 months ago. Four-wheel brakes, more speed, greater flexibility, easier riding, better looking bodies are all being claimed.

This statement may be taken as an indication of a move in the Whippet direction which will be as notable as the original presentation of this car which attracted most unusual attention.

It is certain that Mr. Willys is going to take interesting steps to bring the quality and performance value of the Whippet strongly to the attention of motor car buyers. His whole attitude on this car shows that some important move is in his mind.

He has specifically dwelt upon a material economy record of 43.28 miles to the gallon of fuel on a 3,559-mile run from Los Angeles to New York, and on a national average of 38.7 miles to the gallon made by 5,205 individual drivers using their own cars as indicating one great advantage of the Whippet in its class.

In speed accomplishments, he has cited a record of 71.6 miles an hour on a 50-mile test made at Rockingham park speedway at Salem, N. H.

His entire attitude regarding the Whippet indicates that this car is strongly in his mind and that the factory is contemplating the heaviest production schedule it has ever reached in the light car division.

Willys-Overland are now building Whippet bodies in their own new body plant, and have recently greatly enlarged their foundry and heat treating plants.

Mr. Willys feels very firmly that the recent developments in the light car field are a direct tribute to the Whippet and that this fact will be generally recognized by motor car buyers throughout the country.

There will be important announcements regarding the Willys-Knight production with the opening of the national automobile show, which will include an expansion of the Willys-Knight line to price fields which have not previously been occupied by this car.

Progress in the Willys-Knight has been marked during the past three years since the production has been confined to six-cylinder models. The present Great Six and the Willys-Knight "70-A" have stepped into front rank among cars of their price class.

The motor build plant at Pontiac, Mich., has been enlarged and equipped with many new special machinery features which have aided materially in quantity output and in the manufacturing economy.

These meetings, in themselves, are an indication of some new and unexpected development.

From the sales division comes the statement that Willys-Overland dealers throughout the country have been putting themselves in shape for a concentrated sales drive during the early weeks of 1928, that their stocks of both new and used cars are unusually low and that their finances are in liquid condition.

This was the condition when the Whippet was originally announced.

Whatever it pretends now, it is certain that the Whippet will continue to be built up to its present high standards of quality and performance and that Willys-Overland will make Whippet values in these two important features, thoroughly well known wherever motor cars are sold.

MAFFETT SHOWING NEW PONTIACS HERE

The second "birthday anniversary" of the Pontiac Six was marked Thursday, January 5, by the first public display in dealers' showrooms of the new series Pontiac Six which is said to surpass in beauty, power and performance all previous offerings of the Oakland Motor Car company in the low-priced six-cylinder field.

The new Pontiac Six chassis with four-wheel brakes, gasoline pump, an entirely new type of radiator which prevents evaporation, semi-coincidental lock, improved carburetion, crankcase ventilation, new cylinder head, higher compression, new clutch and steering gear, heavier frame and other mechanical advances, appears to justify the statement of the manufacturer that it is "new from radiator to tail light." Briefly stated, the company is offering infinitely "more car" at the same base price.

Although the new series has the same number of cars that comprised the 1927 line, two of the new models carry new types of bodies representing the latest advances in Fisher design. The two new body types are the Sport Landau sedan and Four-door sedan, which supersede the former Landau and De Luxe Landau sedans. The Two-Door sedan, the coupe, the Sport Cabriolet and the sport roadster again are included among the six body choices, but all have been completely redesigned and closed models carry the latest Fisher body creations new Duco colors, new fenders, headlamps and many other refinements.

But the beauty of the new series Pontiac Six is not "skin deep." Under that sleek new hood is an engine which develops 43 horsepower at 2,600 r. p. m. a substantial increase over the power of the previous Pontiac.

This greater power gives even better acceleration while the new equalized and mechanically operated four-wheel brakes provide correspondingly sure and rapid deceleration. The front brakes are internal and the rear are external. If the brakes are applied while the car is making a turn, the outside front wheel automatically rolls free, a safety factor which enables the driver to retain full control under all conditions. A separate internal parking brake is provided on the rear wheels.

One of the outstanding pioneering features of the new car is a radically changed principle of engine cooling as embodied in the unique "cross-flow" radiator, from which it is practically impossible to lose either water or anti-freeze solution by evaporation. The water flows horizontally through the radiator cells instead of vertically as in other radiators. The water circulation is thermostatically controlled and the flow is maintained by a new water pump of the balance impeller type.

Among other important changes on the engine are the adoption of the G-M-R cylinder head and the replacement of the conventional vacuum tank with a gasoline pump, two late developments both of which are pioneered successfully on the Oakland All-American Six.

The new G-M-R cylinder head (developed by General Motors research engineers) is of the same type that eliminates spark knock and roughness in the Oakland All-American Six. It gives an impulse to the car comparable only to the smoothness of the steam engine and has also enabled the Pontiac compression ratio to be raised to 4.9 to 1. This is chiefly responsible for the increased power while retaining the same 186.5 cubic-inch cylinder displacement which remains larger than the displacement of any six cylinder car under $1,000.

Although the new series Pontiac Six retains its former wheel base of 110 inches for ease of handling and parking, the car has the appearance of being considerably larger and more sturdy than its predecessor. This effect is achieved principally through the larger, deeper radiator, surmounted by its Indian head radiator cap. This year the radiator and the new raised panel on top of the hood are nearly two inches higher than in 1927. Full crown fenders with hood sills completely covering the front of the frame give distinction to the front of the car.

From the side the larger hubs and spokes, the solid appearance given the front wheels by the front brake drums, the dropping of the front window lines and raising of the body panels, all combine toward an impression of low-slung, comfort and safety.

Prince of Sweden Gives 'Three Cheers' for Nash

How a prince of the royal blood regards the Nash car is indicated in a cablegram received by the Nash Motor company from Prince William, of Sweden, which reads as follows: "Had first ride today in delightful new car. Three cheers for Nash. (Signed) Prince William."

When his royal highness, last fall in the course of his tour of America, visited the Kenosha plant of the Nash Motor company, Scandinavian employees presented him with an Ambassador. The car, which bore the royal crest, immediately after the presentation, was shipped to Stockholm to await the return to Sweden of the prince and his party.

The Nash car long has been a favorite with the royal family in Sweden. When his royal highness, Prince Lennart, son of Prince William, passed his matriculation examinations last spring, he was presented with a Nash Standard Six coupe.

Crown Prince Gustaf-Adolf is another member of the Swedish royal family to own a Nash. He purchased a special six sedan in Stockholm last October, for the use of his court marshal.

James Keiller, chamberlain to his majesty, the king of Sweden, is also an enthusiastic Nash owner, his majesty often riding in the Keiller car.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN FOR 1928 BUSINESS

BY F. A. MERRICK.
Vice President and General Manager Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

As is usual in years not affected by conditions either of pronounced boom or depression, the business of the year 1927 was done under a number of opposing influences, some favorable and some the reverse.

Outstanding among the favorable may be noted the plentiful supply of money, the general continuance of building construction and the high rate of general employment at good wage levels with consequent maintained purchasing power of the community.

Among the unfavorable factors may be mentioned the disastrous floods with which various parts of the country have been visited, the unseasonable weather conditions and the more or less general experience of a falling off in profits in industry, merchandising and transportation operations.

The latter in coincidence with a well-sustained volume of business has led to coinage of the new phrase "profitless prosperity." To make a catch phrase sufficiently striking, it often is made to include an element of exaggeration, and the one just quoted is of this kind, in that the condition referred to indicates only that highly developed production facilities have momentarily run ahead of consuming power, with the result of a lowering of the general price level in the effort to stimulate consumption.

Taking a forward look into the prospects for the year 1928, it is worth noting that the unfavorable factors of the past year's business have more the nature of accidental and immediate influences than have the factors which have worked in a favorable direction.

Bearing this in mind and taking into account the large increment in agricultural products and their values now coming into evidence, and the stiffening in demand for the products of steel and other metals, it is reasonable to see encouragement in prospect for the year to come.

That this year will include a presidential contest is, of course, to be given some weight, but it does not now appear that any seriously disturbing questions will be at issue and the mere fact of an election should not be one to affect the general prosperity of the country.

In the electrical field the continued expanson of electricity into all uses, and the advance in the art, making the wide distribution of this agent available in increasing the economy of operation throughout the whole range of power applications, give assurance that the electrical industry will maintain its position in the forefront of general business activity.

Franklin Air-Cooled Car Defies Winter in Yukon

"Twenty years in the Yukon," actually living out the scenes and span of years covered by Service's well-known poem, and actually living in close daily contact with the poet himself, has been the experience of W. B. Reinhardt, of Seattle, Wash. When Mr. and Mrs. Reinhardt journeyed all the way to the Franklin factory in Syracuse, N. Y., to purchase and drive back an Airman sedan, many interesting motoring handicaps in the Yukon were unfolded.

"Its 60 below and couched in the snow, the hungry huskies moan," but 60 below does not bother an air-cooled Franklin, Mr. Reinhardt reports. Though at this temperature gasoline freezes to the consistency and appearance of thick cream, the Franklin, if taken out of a warm garage, would keep going till the destination was reached.

"Dawson City is a ghost of its former self, a city of deserted streets with but a bare sign of the former mining activity. Of the hundred cars in the Arctic zone an old 1914 Franklin touring car was the only one to be seen in operation after the mercury went out of sight," Mr. Reinhardt said.

"With gasoline at $1.10 a gallon I never owned a car in the Klondike, but like many others that saw the performance of that Franklin in the Arctic, the only car I considered when I came out, was a Franklin. Since my first Franklin I have owned nothing else. Mrs. Reinhardt and I will tour through the southern part of the United States, then to California and Seattle, our home," Mr. Reinhardt stated."

Details of Interest to all Motordom

THE new Hudson and Essex Super-Sixes come to the Automobile Show in completely new and arresting design, strikingly in advance, and at once brilliantly original and authoritative.

The full unity of their beauty is a swift impression, impossible to dissect; and yet a detailed study of the advancements is of interest not only to Hudson-Essex owners, but to all motordom.

Newness begins at the very front, in higher radiators on both Hudson and Essex—an effect that is further heightened by vertical radiator shutters. The motometer has been removed from the front to the dash, and is now replaced by handsome radiator ornaments.

Lamps are of Colonial design, and are of the parabeam type controlled from the wheel. Saddle lamps of the same type are mounted on the cowl by means of a crossing nickeled band. Fenders are of new design, full-crowned and beaded along the edge.

All bodies are lacquered in duo-tones, and carry a moulding all the way around, and out the cowl and hood to the radiator.

The front pillars are trim and narrow. In standard models the visor is the military type.

All Essex models are larger and roomier than ever before.

The instrument board is finished in a polished ebony. Set into this background is the grouping of instruments, including the ammeter, oil and gasoline gauges, speedometer, and motometer, all indirectly lighted.

The handsome new steering wheel has a steel core surrounded by ebony-black hard rubber and carries light control, hand throttle and horn button.

Hudson custom-built bodies are the Victoria, the Landau Sedan and the 7-passenger Sedan. In all of them, the front body pillars are notably slender. The windshield frames are nickeled, so that the fronts of all three cars are quite distinctive and striking.

Body construction is of aluminum panels over a frame of selected hardwood. Lines are original and striking. Mouldings and color panels are employed to bring about distinctive effects. The rear quarters are finished in long grain landau leather, colored to match the upper body.

Four-wheel brakes are, of course, standard in both Hudson and Essex.

Quality Shown in Outward Beauty—Whippet established the modern tendency in light car design by introducing the vogue for smart, compact bodies with low, fleet lines. Now pleasing new colors and new body refinements further add to the appearance and quality of this perfected car.

Big 4-wheel Brakes—more braking surface per pound of car weight than any other light car. You can stop from 40 miles an hour within 51 feet.

Rear Gasoline Tank—for utmost safety—with vacuum fuel feed. This costs more to build, but is much safer, as Whippet's low insurance rates indicate.

164 Inches of Springs, giving that extreme riding comfort that only very long springs can give. Snubbers prevent rebound and insure the highest degree of smoothness over rough roads.

Long Leg Room in front and rear. The unique design of Whippet's body and cowl makes this possible.

Force-Feed Lubrication—The only light car with drilled crankshaft for full pressure lubrication to the main, connecting rod, generator shaft and camshaft bearings.

Adjustable Steering Wheel—enables you to raise or lower the steering wheel to the most convenient height. Either a tall or short driver may be entirely comfortable at the wheel of the Whippet.

Increased Speed—Whippet superiority is also expressed in greater—and safer—speed; 55 to 60 miles per hour, and many owners say 65.

Greater Gasoline Economy—Whippet holds the A.A.A. Coast-to-Coast economy record of 43.28 miles per gallon. In a nation-wide test among 5,508 owners, the average was 38 miles to a gallon.

Lower Center of Gravity—Whippet introduced lower center of gravity among light cars—for greater safety at higher speed—and still leads in this vital feature.

Faster Pick-Up—Whippet's pick-up of 5 to 30 miles in 11½ seconds gives you the advantage when the traffic light says "Go."

Silent Timing Chain—as used on the most expensive cars. Adopted after long experience with other types.

Other Important Features—Interchangeable Chadwick-type main bearings, single plate clutch, generator driven by silent timing chain, longer connecting rods, banjo-type rear axle housing with removable shaft, and modern Hotchkiss drive are other quality car features of the Whippet.

ATLANTA AUTO SHOW TO RIVAL NEW YORK EXPOSITION

THIS CITY'S SHOW CLOSELY FOLLOWS BIG GOTHAM EVENT

16 Makers Already Entered and Accessory Dealers Will Stage Additional Expo of Their Own.

A brilliant reflection of the annual New York Automobile Show, under way this week in Gotham, will be conspicuously evident at the Atlanta Auditorium-Armory the last week in January, when the Southeastern Automobile show, backed solidly by the Atlanta Automobile association, opens its doors to the local public.

The New York show, always a red letter event of motordom, is by long odds the finest display the industry has ever organized. Atlanta will benefit enormously by following so closely on the heels of the eastern exposition that manufacturers and distributors are enabled to incorporate their pick of the innovations in their local displays.

In many cases models of noted cars that are sensational in style or value even in this day of revolutionary happenings in the industry will be revealed for the first time to Atlanta auto owners and prospective buyers. The pacemakers of the motor world always outdo themselves to perfect their most advanced ideas for the New York show and the close proximity of the subsequent Atlanta date will mean tremendously enhanced interest and newness to the Atlanta symposium.

Success Is Seen.

Robert H. Martin, of the Martin-Nash company, general chairman of the great Atlanta show; Foster B. Steward, director, and the representative army of trade executives comprising the personnell of the various committees, all report progress indicative of unprecedented success, both from the public and the trade's viewpoint.

The auditorium will be occupied in its entirety throughout the week of January 23-28 by outstanding exhibits from the motor, accessory, parts and allied lines of automotive activity. The hall will be decorated with a lavishness and pictorial effect unheard of heretofore. A splendid stage program and plenty of fine music will swell the attendance already guaranteed through a heavy advance sale of tickets.

The 25 well known Atlanta women who are engaged in the ticket contest are waging the most spirited battle of its type ever marking an event in Atlanta, with the result that the coming show is rapidly taking top place as a household topic of conversation.

16 Makers Enter.

Already 16 outstanding makes of automobiles, representing several times that number of models, many of them new to the public, are formally entered. The display of accessories, parts, tools and kindred devices will constitute a separate show in itself.

Following are the concerns actively participating in what promises to be one of the most interesting and successful civic events of 1928 in Atlanta:

Goldsmith-Becker Co.; Buick Motor Co.; Jordan Company of Ga.; Lambeth-Eskridge Motor Co.; Marmon-Atlanta Motor Co.; Martin-Nash Motor Co.; Olds Motor Works—Atlanta branch; Paige Co. of Ga.; Star Motor Co. of Atlanta; Willys-Overland, Inc.; Thompson-Cauthorn Motor Co.; Reo Sales & Service, Inc.

Accessory dealers are Alexander Seewald Co.; Auto Electric & Magneto Co.; Battery Sales Co.; The Eaton Bumper & Spring Service Co., Georgia Motorist; Russell Mfg. Co.; Simplicity Mfg. Co.; Southern Bearings & Parts Co.; E. M. Thomas Auto Top & Mfg. Co.

Pride of Craftsmanship Is Illustrated by Buick

Flint, Mich., January 7.—(Special.) An interesting process to be noted in the automotive industry is the growth of what might be termed pride of craftsmanship, such as has been associated in the past with furniture manufacture, watchmaking and a few other lines of creative work.

Figures compiled by the personal service department of the Buick Motor company indicate that 3,071 of Buick's employees have been with the company more than five years, and several hundred other employees have devoted their time and skill to the manufacture of Buicks for more than three times that period. The fact that pursuit of a single calling for so long a time can no, but cultivate a pride in the resulting product would indicate, Buick officials believe, that a development strongly resembling that of the old-fashioned guild, whose primary characteristic was expertness, is going on in this giant newcomer among industries.

Ten years is not a long time in textiles, in steel, or in any one of a dozen or more lines of productive work. It is a long time in the automotive industry, as the developments of the last ten years indicate. The car of 1918 was a vastly different affair, both in appearance and in performance, from that of 1928. And one of the factors contributing to the improvement is the increasing skill of the automobile worker, resulting from continued application to his job.

The worker who has remained with one manufacturer for so long as ten years is no longer rare. Some of the older manufacturers boast hundreds of such men. Buick has on its payroll 923 men who have completed their tenth consecutive year with Buick, and 3,071 who have finished five years. Almost 1,000 of its workers have been with Buick more than ten years. Three hundred and nine have their 15-year service pins; 49 their 20-year pins, and two have rounded out their full quarter-century.

"It is sometimes said that the machine age has killed the spirit of pride which workers used to show," said Cady B. Durham, vice president in charge of production at Buick. "I think the statement is unjust. Machines have taken over much of the heavier work, and they are doing it more precisely than human agency could, and in a fraction of the time. There is still vast opportunity for human skill, in the operation of machines, in testing, along the assembly lines where perfect coordination of effort is necessary, and in dozens of other phases of motor car manufacture.

"From the public's viewpoint, as well as from the maker's, a stable organization means much. For one thing, a group of men who have performed their task five or ten years is doing a better job than one which broke in yesterday. And for another thing, long periods of service are evidence of contentment which can not help being reflected in the work."

DELCO LIGHT MEN MEET HERE THIS WEEK

Dealers and salesmen of the Delco Light company, subsidiary of General Motors, from throughout this section of the United States, will meet in Atlanta on January 16 for their annual sales convention, it was announced today by E. H. Danforth, branch manager of the Delco-Light company in this city.

A party of Delco-Light officials will address the convention, coming here from the main offices at Dayton, Ohio. Among the officials who will be in this city for the convention are H. W. Arnold, general manager; W. R. Huber, sales manager, and C. C. Whistler, advertising manager.

The Atlanta convention is one of six such meetings arranged for strategic points throughout the United States. The same party of Delco-Light officials will address each of the conventions.

A series of such meetings at important points is necessary because the size of the national Delco-Light sales organization prohibits bringing all the salesmen and dealers to one central point in the United States, and only through such a series of regional meetings can all the salesmen and dealers be reached.

Selling plans for 1928 will be announced, the company's advertising program for the year will be outlined, and new developments in the country's line of farm electric plants and power pumps will probably be presented to the dealers and salesmen.

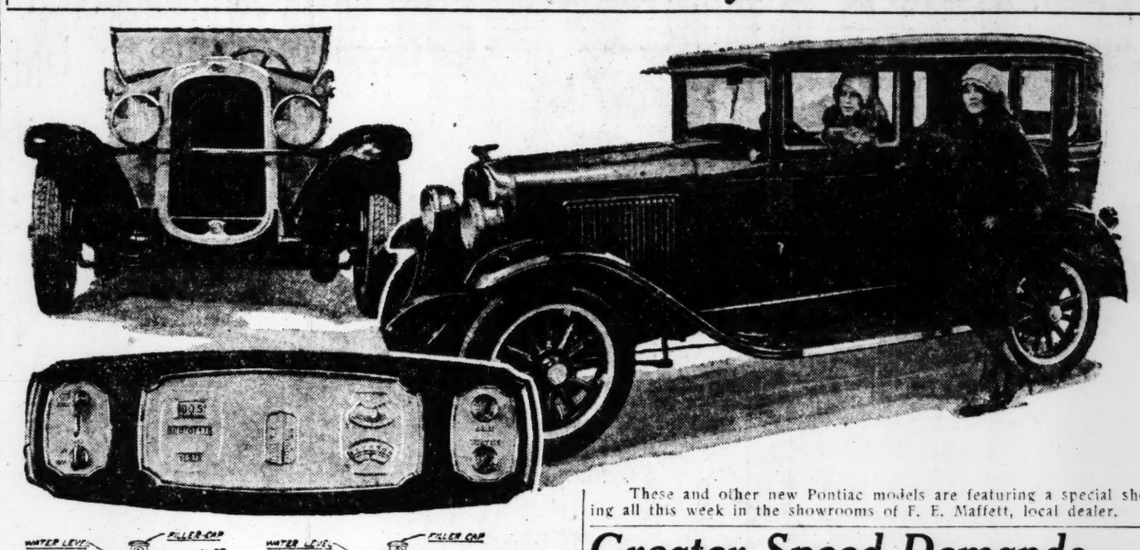

The convention will be held at the Ansley hotel, opening at 10 o'clock in the morning. A banquet will be held in the evening beginning at 6:30 o'clock. Company officials will be the principal speakers at the banquet.

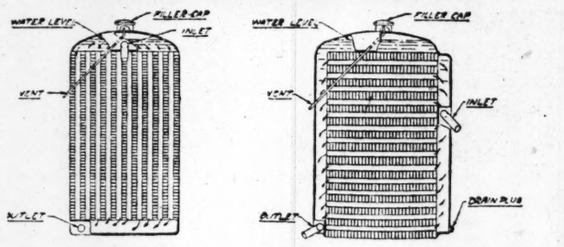

RETAIL DRUGGISTS PREPARE FOR SESSION

The Atlanta Retail Druggists' association, composed of nearly 100 retail drug stores of Atlanta, is making preparations for its annual dinner, dance, entertainment and election of officers on Thursday night, January 19, at 6:30 o'clock in the ball room of the Henry Grady hotel.

The dinner, accompanied by a special musical program, for which one of Atlanta's leading orchestras has been engaged, and winding up with a dance, will make this one of the most enjoyable occasions the Atlanta Retail Druggists' association officials and employes have ever staged.

New Pontiac Just Announced by General Motors

These and other new Pontiac models are featuring a special showing all this week in the showrooms of F. E. Maffett, local dealer.

Commander's Speed Feat Explained by Yarbrough

What does it mean to the motor car owner when an automobile is produced which will travel 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 minutes?

The above question has been going the rounds in motor circles since early in November, when three Studebaker Commanders each traveled 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 minutes at the Atlantic City speedway. By this remarkable run, the Commander shattered every known endurance and speed record for fully equipped stock cars, regardless of power or price.

The answer to the question was given here today by J. E. Yarbrough, local Studebaker-Erskine dealer.

"The 25,000-mile run is the most significant engineering feat known to automotive history," said Mr. Yarbrough. "It was a test that may be compared to a magnifying glass that intensifies the rays of the sun to the burning point.

"Never has automobile performance been so severely explored before. Never have automobiles been driven so far so fast as the Commanders traveled. Never have pistons, cylinders, crankshafts, valves, axles, transmissions and all of the other vital parts of an automobile been asked to carry such terrific loads for such long periods of time.

"In fact, several years of ordinary driving were crowded into 16 days in this 25,000-mile run. Scores of thousands of ordinary motor car miles were driven into each of the three cars in a little more than a fortnight. Yet the cars came through with flying colors. Two of the Commanders averaged 65.31 miles per hour; and a third set an average of 61.98 miles per hour. No cars—in fact nothing made by man—has ever gone so far, so fast.

"The true significance of the test is the proof it furnishes that the Commander will give years of carefree, reliable and economical service under average driving conditions.

"It means that the motor car owner of today laughs at the old song 'Get Out and Get Under' and that it is possible to own an automobile that will give day-in and day-out service with minimum repairs for thousands and thousands of miles. That's what motorists want and that's the sort of service the Commander gives. The test proves this beyond all doubt."

Greater Speed Demands Increased Radiator Size

"A noticeable feature of new car designs among users of water-cooled motors is the increase in size of radiators," says E. S. Marks, chief engineer of the Franklin Automobile company.

"Engineers are frank to admit that the increase in the average rate of speed allowed by various states throughout the country and a steadily increasing desire on the part of automobile owners to possess a car which can be driven for hours at high rates of speed, have necessitated an increase in radiation capacity.

"Increased radiation brings with it the necessity for greater car weight on account of larger radiators and the necessity for carrying more water. This is likely to bring about increased rigid construction in the water-cooled cars.

"The Franklin air-cooled motor is unaffected in its cooling efficiency by increasing demands for greater speed on the part of the driver.

Area of Radiation.

"The radiating area of the cooling fins and the air moving capacity of the fan keyed direct to the fly-wheel, are so coordinated that any increase in motor speed automatically brings about an increased cooling capacity, for the volume of air flowing over the cooling fins increases with the increase of motor speed.

"The relative cooling efficiency of the air remains the same. The increase in the rate of flow of the air brings with it ability to take care of the increased amount of heat in the power plant.

"The Franklin cooling system is entirely adequate at any rate of speed at which the motor is operating and is independent of the direction in which the car is moving.

Water-Cooled Motors.

"The water-cooled motor will overheat if the car is driven in reverse for any great distance. On warm days with the wind behind the car, the water-cooled motor will overheat if it is driven for any great distance at high speed, simply because the cooling system depends upon a rush of air greater than that produced by the fan, over the radiator cooling surfaces.

"A Franklin air-cooled motor may be run in an enclosed room, at full load for hours at a time without any decrease in the efficiency of the cooling system. It can be run steadily at its point of highest power efficiency with the same result.

"All computations used in determining the rate of flow and volume of flow of air over the cooling fins are based on conditions of greater than maximum outside temperatures.

"Increases in top speeds allowed by state laws, increase in the average rate of speed at which the car owner wants to travel, do not cause any necessity for reconstruction of such an important element of a motor as the cooling system."

BIG ATTENDANCE SEEN FOR MERCHANTS' MEET

Heavy demand for tickets to the annual meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association Thursday night, January 28, in the ball room of the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, was reported last week. Every member is entitled to one free ticket for himself, and has the privilege of purchasing extra tickets at $2.50 each.

The meeting will be preceded by dinner, accompanied by a special musical program and entertainment. This will be followed immediately by the annual election of officers, who will be nominated by a special nominating committee, consisting of the past presidents of the association. Retiring officers are: Walter O. Foote, president; John C. Sage, first vice president; Harry Sommers, L. M. Anderson, J. Q. McRae, George Beck, Nat Ullman, Carleton Smith, William M. Todd.

A special reception and demonstration will be made as a tribute to the various trade lines making up the membership of the big association. It is expected that nearly 500 members and guests will be in attendance.

ALEXANDER NAMES VARIOUS COMMITTEES

President H. H. Alexander, of the Atlanta Automobile association, during the week made appointment of chairmen of all standing committees of the association for 1928. These appointments are as follows:

Entertainment and meeting committee, T. P. Hicks, chairman. The purpose of this committee is to arrange programs and entertainment for membership meetings.

Greetings committee, S. B. Dodge, chairman. The purpose of this committee is to welcome into the association new members elected to membership.

Legislative committee, John Smith, chairman. The purpose of this committee is to advocate passage of helpful legislation and prevent passage of harmful legislation, as regards the automotive industry and the motoring public.

Membership committee, J. M. Harrison, chairman. The purpose of this committee is to build up the membership.

Reception and goodfellowship committee, W. C. Denny, chairman, auto dealers' division; J. M. Callaway, chairman allied trade lines. The purpose of this committee is to welcome members at the meetings, make them acquainted with one another, and establish good fellowship.

Safety council, R. N. Reed, chairman. The purpose of this committee is to cooperate with the Atlanta Safety Council in the prevention of accidents.

Good roads, Jack Phinizy, chairman. To cooperate with all agencies looking toward the betterment of Georgia highways.

Service committee, H. H. Alexander, chairman. The purpose of this committee is to find ways and means of increasing the service rendered by the association to its members.

Traffic and parking committee, R. H. Martin, chairman. To aid in every way possible in the proper solution of Atlanta's traffic and parking problem.

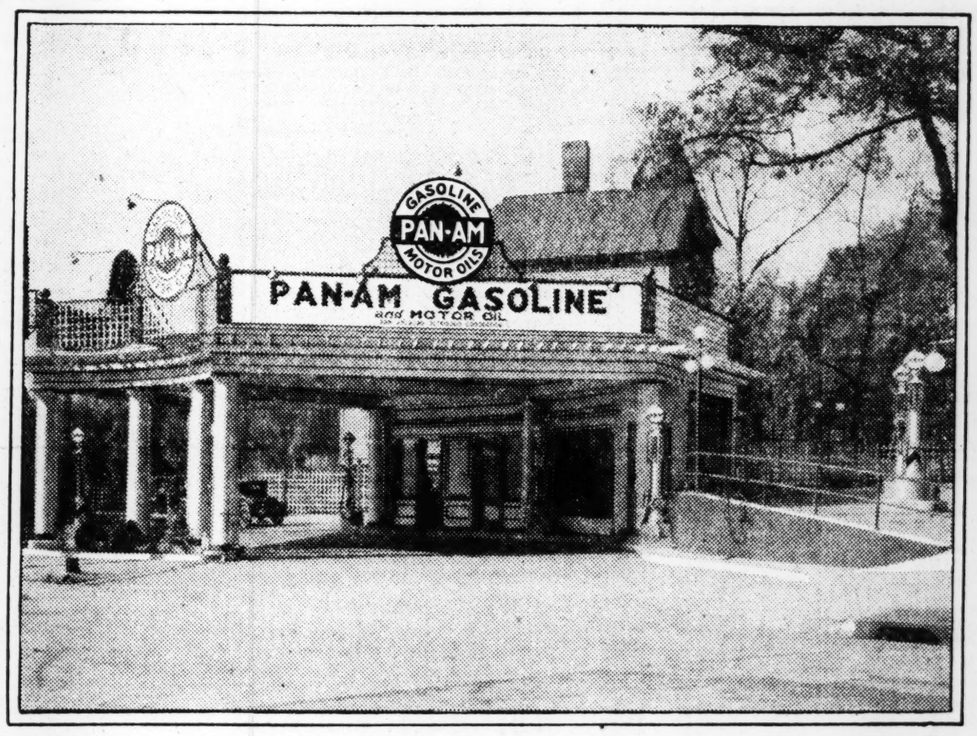

RETAIL JEWELERS TO ELECT OFFICERS

The Atlanta Retail Jewelers' association, made up of 25 jewelers of the city, will hold their annual meeting Tuesday night at 6:30 o'clock with a supper on the roof of the Cecil hotel, at which time officers for 1928 will be elected. Henry Muench, chairman of the nominating committee, will submit recommendations for the new officers.

Retiring officers are: Nat Ullman, president; Benson Freeman, Jr., vice president; J. J. Bookout, secretary-treasurer.

Courteous Service

Pan-Am Dealers give the sort of honest, friendly service that appeals to all the family. On strange roads, as well as at home, you can depend on the men who sell Pan-Am products.

This attractive service station at Whitehall and Park Streets is owned and operated by Pan-Am. In addition to having many licensed dealers in Atlanta, Pan-Am also operates its own stations at the following places:

623 Whitehall St.
463 Peachtree St., N.E.
437 Fair St., S.E.
664 N. Highland Ave., N.E.
169 Edgewood Ave., S.E.
17 Gilmer St.
101 Ivy St., N.E.
210 Piedmont Ave., N.E.
130 W. 14th St.
617 W. Peachtree St., N.E.
798 Cascade Ave., S.W.

CLEAN gasoline means a cleaner motor!

You can actually see the difference between Pan-Am gasoline and other kinds. One look in the crystal-clear bowl of a Pan-Am pump tells you how CLEAN it is.

NO engine can deliver its best performance when clogged with foreign matter or choked with carbon. But those are troubles you can so easily avoid by choosing the right kind of fuel. Fill up the tank with Pan-Am and notice the difference.

This gasoline is clean! Next time you see a Pan-Am pump, look at the gasoline in the visible bowl. Note its crystal-clear color . . . the absence of any dirt or foreign matter. It is processed with unusual care to remove the carbon-forming elements found in many gasolines.

That means a motor clean as a whistle, for tip-top performance! It means less carbon trouble and knocking—a wealth of extra power for both the quick start and the long pull—and mileage economy such as you have never known before.

Fill up today at the first Pan-Am pump you see. You can be sure of honest service from any Pan-Am dealer. And you know that the products he sells are produced and distributed by one reliable organization.

SAFE oil

Pan-Am motor oil was developed to give modern motors the extra protection they need because of higher speeds, increased engine heat. It is refined from paraffin base crudes that produce a tougher oil. That is why Pan-Am holds its body under punishment that soon breaks down less hardy oils. It keeps the hottest friction spots in any motor safe from destructive wear—seals extra power in the cylinders—prevents dilution and fouling. Yet Pan-Am actually costs you less than ordinary motor oil, because it stays on the job long after others thin to the danger point.

ADVANCED STYLE FEATURES NEW HUDSON-ESSEX LINE

SEDAN OF ESSEX IS REDUCED $40; HAS REFINEMENTS

Present Daily Total of Cars Produced Largest in History of Company, Officials Say.

Advanced style is the outstanding change in the new Hudson-Essex line of cars introduced yesterday by the Goldsmith Becher company and all Hudson-Essex dealers in the Georgia territory. Motorists have viewed the new cars simultaneously with the throngs who attended the national automobile show in New York city, where the Hudson-Essex line made its formal bow to the public.

But though these new cars are strikingly improved in style and beauty, Hudson-Essex has kept a keen eye as well on fundamentals of value; in fact the price on a highly important model—the Essex 4-door sedan—is reduced $40. Hudson-Essex presents this as the only 6-cylinder, 4-door sedan with a list price below the $800 level. On the other cars some prices remain the same; others are advanced.

Series of Cars Complete.

The new line offers a variety of models—10 closed cars immediately, while additional open and short type cars will be ready for the spring and summer season. These are the Hudson standard-built 4-door sedan, and the custom-built victoria, landau sedan and 7-passenger sedan on the 127-inch chassis; a coupe with a rumble seat, a coach and a 4-door sedan on the 118-inch Hudson chassis; and a 4-door sedan, coach and coupe with rumble seat on the 110 1-2-inch Essex chassis. All cars are low-hung, modern in style and designed with a unity of line to assure them a distinctive character of their own.

The new Hudson cars are designed so that motorists who enjoy super-six performance may also have exceptional standards of style and smartness. In the custom-built cars, color panels and mouldings are employed to bring about remarkably pleasing and distinctive effects. The interior window ledges are in bright nickel finish. The seats are form-fitting and deeply cushioned, with upholstery of mohair. Hardware is especially rich and attractive; all fittings and appointments are not only complete but of advanced standard; the whole impression is of richness and luxury.

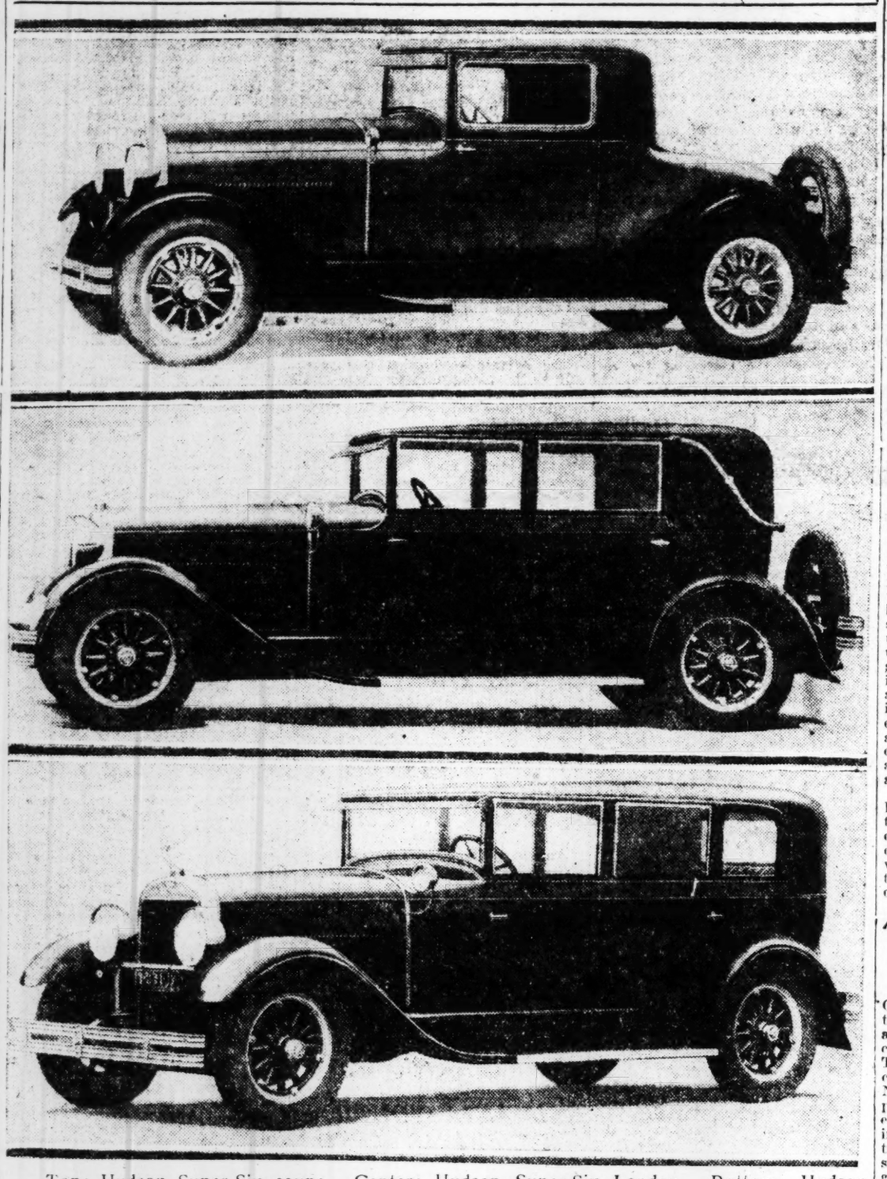

The standard cars, both on the 127-inch and the 118-inch chassis, are built on attractive lines. The bodies are roomy, seats are form-fitting and upholstered in mohair. The windshield panel is burl walnut; the dash is ebony black with grouped instruments; the steering wheel is steel-framed, with a hard rubber covering to fit the fingers. Smoking sets are standard equipment.

Chief Chassis Changes.

In the two chassis a number of improvements are incorporated. Essex is now equipped with Bendix 4-wheel brakes and a heavier anti-friction steering gear. Hudson frames have two tubular cross members. Essex, as well as Hudson, now has the electro-lock anti-theft device. Both cars continue their high-compression, high efficiency motors. These are said to operate smoothly on any type of gasoline, and through intensive development to assure even smoother and more powerful performance.

Hudson-Essex is introducing this line of cars after completing the most successful year in its history, with around 280,000 six-cylinder cars manufactured. This year's styles carry forward the principles of a year ago, adding beauty and style to the well-known Hudson-Essex standards of value and utility. The present daily total of cars built is the largest, for this time of year, in Hudson-Essex history. The whole Hudson-Essex organization is highly confident that 1928 will establish for it a new standard of success.

Goldsmith-Becker Displaying New Hudson

DODGE PRODUCES EXTENSIVE LINE

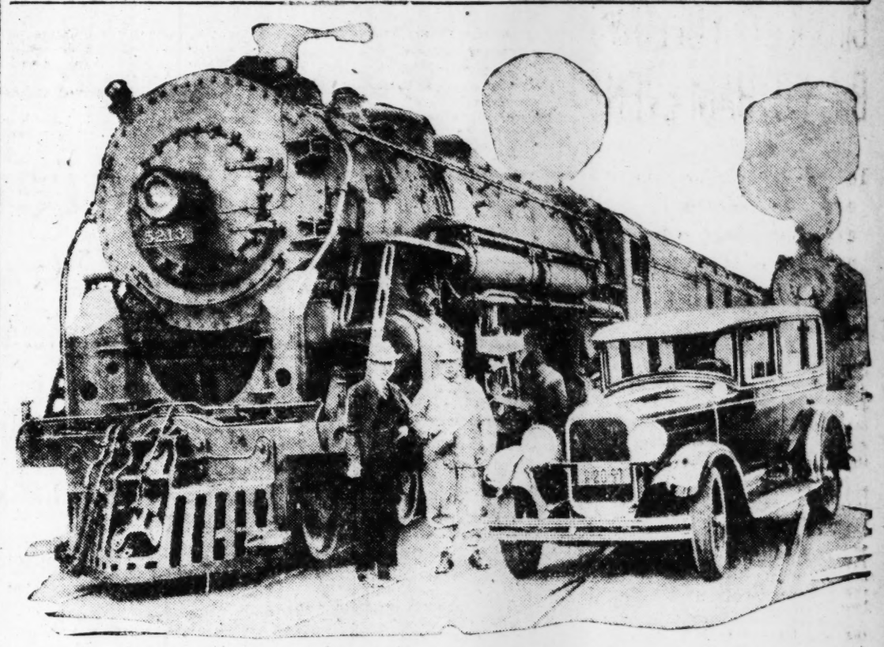

President E. G. Wilmer Anticipates Big Year With Completion of Development Program.

In response to changing conditions in the automotive industry, the management of Dodge Brothers, Inc., initiated nearly two years ago a comprehensive program of development and readjustment. Today, at the beginning of the new year, this program of major improvement, in both manufacturing facilities and the company's product, stands complete. The period of transition successfully has been passed.

At forthcoming motor shows Dodge Brothers passenger cars in three price classifications and many types of Graham trucks will be displayed. These products are intrinsically built to Dodge Brothers standards; designed and manufactured to attain superb performance and efficiency, to be dependable and reliable. To those admirable qualities, upon which the reputation of Dodge Brothers is founded, have been added the attributes of smartness, of style, of speed, of luxury and comfort. It has been the undeviating purpose of the Dodge organization, through this transition, to incorporate into each of its products a generous measure of value, as value is rated by the motor-buying public of 1928. We have taken time enough and money enough to make sure that our new products couple performance and quality of appointment with an attractive contour.

The year of 1927 has been devoted largely to intensive development of the new product and to plant revision designed to accommodate a large production of our diversified line, all of which has gone on with no interruption of current business or service to our car owners.

H. J. Hoolihan and His Two Commanders

Here is a man who knows his engines. He is H. J. Hoolihan, of Syracuse, N. Y., standing between his two mounts—one of the new locomotives pulling the Twentieth Century Limited, world-famous train between New York and Chicago, and his new Studebaker Commander, the world champion car that recently traveled 25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes. "I have seen the development of steam and gas transportation for a long period of years and I feel that my Commander, like my locomotive, is the last word in its field of transportation," says Mr. Hoolihan. "I have the same feeling behind the wheel of the Commander as at the throttle of the Century. Both Commander and locomotive give me the pleasure of knowing that all I will ever desire in speed and operation will meet instant response." Mr. Hoolihan is veteran pilot of both the Century and the Knickerbocker Express. He drives the Century in one direction and handles the throttle of the Knickerbocker Express on the return trip.

ARCADE ASSOCIATION TO MEET JANUARY 17

The annual meeting of the Arcade Cooperative association, made up of tenants of the Arcade building and affiliated with the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, will be staged Tuesday evening, January 17, at the chamber of commerce assembly hall No. 2 at 6:30 o'clock with a supper. At this time officers will be elected and installed for 1928. During the service of supper an attractive entertainment program will be staged under direction of Miss Margaret Waite, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Retiring officers are: L. M. Anderson, president; J. J. Bookout, first vice president; Miss Dora Wilhite, second vice president; Miss Margaret Waite, secretary-treasurer.

Public Nursing Report Shows Strides in Health Education

Great strides have been made in health education during 1927 and the year was marked by many activities, according to the annual report of the public health nursing department as submitted by Miss Lillian M. Alexander, director of public nursing of the city health department.

The maternity and infant program has grown enormously, according to the report, and the department has secured excellent cooperation from the patients and the group conferences with mothers have proven constructive. Since the state of Georgia has been admitted to the birth administration area of the United States, it is evident that at least 90 per cent of births are being registered, the report sets out.

After the opening of the center for examination of negro infants on Auburn avenue, five colored doctors have been volunteering their services with the result that 402 negro babies have been examined.

The pre-school examination and registration for kindergarten was held in the 42 grammar schools of the city in April and 24 doctors volunteered for service. A total of 938 children were examined, 61 per cent of whom were defective. Of this number 148 registered for kindergarten.

During the year 1927, 16,479 white children and 8,650 colored children were examined, a more thorough examination being given than heretofore, it is pointed out.

Marked Improvement Shown.

The health records of children in the Atlanta public schools show marked improvement in the past few years and nearly all of the schools report students with 100 per cent perfect teeth during the school term.

A survey of school lunches was made by Mrs. A. E. Wilson at the request of the department of education, with the result that a cafeteria was installed by the Junior Red Cross at the Inman Park school.

The department has cooperated with the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural department in several campaigns, including the "milk for health" campaign.

Instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick has been given to pupils at Girls' High, Commercial High and Fulton High, and demonstrations in first aid have been given groups of Girl Scouts and Camp Fire girls.

The report pointed out that a splendid spirit of cooperation had been shown by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, the corps of teachers, Parent-Teacher associations, pre-school groups and various civic organizations and that newspapers of the city had given splendid publicity in these movements.

Tire Protection Plans Completed by Seiberling

Details have been completed by the Seiberling Rubber company for inauguration of the protected service plan which was broadcast recently at the recital of the Seiberling Singers. Although the company did not begin announcing the plan to the 5,000 dealers in Seiberling all-tread tires until December 1, more than a thousand of the leading tire dealers in the country have written to the manufacturers at Akron for full information concerning the plan.

Under the terms of the Seiberling protected service plan every dealer in tires manufactured by the Seiberling Rubber company is entitled to contract with the Seiberling Protected Service corporation, a subsidiary company, whereby he will be authorized to issue a certificate to each buyer of an all-tread tire purchased of him. This certificate is protection from loss by any damage to the tire during a period of a year from the time of its purchase.

The issuance of the certificate is not a mere gesture of the manufacturers' confidence in the excellence of their product, for it covers damage of any sort from accident, whether bruise, blowout, wheel misalignment, underinflation or any other road hazard.

Thus the buyer of an all-tread tire that has been damaged can have it repaired free of charge by presenting his certificate to the Seiberling dealer of whom he bought it. If the tire has been damaged beyond repair, a new one will be supplied on a basis prorated on the period since its purchase by the user. Furthermore, as the plan is extended to the general list of Seiberling dealers throughout the country, it will be possible for the user of all-treads bought in, say, New York, to have them repaired by a Seiberling dealer in another territory merely on presentation of his certificate.

The Seiberling Rubber company is the first tire manufacturing concern to inaugurate a protected service plan of this kind, and present indications are that it will prove an innovation extremely popular with motorists. It is well known among tire dealers that about 90 per cent of all tires go out of service prematurely and that in most instances damage is to the side walls of the tire. A feature of Seiberling all-tread tires, as the trade name indicates, is that the surface tread is carried around to reinforce the sides of the tire. The result of this unique method of tire construction has been so demonstratably to strengthen the whole tire that the manufacturers have felt justified in formulating this inclusive protected service plan.

FIVE NEW MODELS ADDED TO LA SALLE LINE

The pre-show announcement of the Cadillac Motor Car company of five additions to the LaSalle line and substantially lower prices on all LaSalles, was one of the big automotive developments of the past week.

"It is simply that we have been able to accomplish in nine months with the LaSalle what we hoped to accomplish in a year," says a statement issued by Lawrence P. Fisher, president of the Cadillac company.

"When the LaSalle was presented to the public last March as a companion car to Cadillac we had in mind a very definite market and what we actually planned was a certain goal to be reached in one year.

"But the recognition of the LaSalle as something entirely new in fine cars—a value so unmistakably great, has led to developments which exceeded our highest expectations.

"Actually up to January 1 we built and shipped more than 17,000 LaSalles and of these more than 15,000 were delivered to owners, the remainder being the show cars of dealers and those necessarily in transit.

"This remarkable acceptance by the public, which, I am assured, has never been even approached by any other car in the same price division, now makes it possible for us to substantially lower prices on the entire LaSalle line and to include five new models for which there has been an insistent demand."

A description of the five new models follows:

An unusually roomy five-passenger family sedan with large front compartment and seat designed to provide "armchair comfort" for the driver. The rear compartment is proportionately as commodious as the front. Rich broadcloth upholstering throughout. Vanity cases and smoking sets in trimmed leather, standard equipment.

A two-passenger business coupe with a seat actually wide enough to accommodate three passengers. In the sweeping rear deck is a large comfortable folding seat, access to which is had by steps on bumper and fender.

Five-passenger roomy coupe with ample capacity for five large adults. Mounted on 134-inch chassis. Trimmed in fine grade mohair with walnut paneling on doors and above instrument board panel. Inlaid walnut vanity and smoking set. Luggage compartment in rear deck large enough to accommodate steamer trunk and several suit cases. Particular attention has been given to comfortable seating arrangements.

Five-passenger cabriolet sedan. A distinctive sedan model on the 134-inch chassis. Leather finished rear quarter with attractive nickel landau body. Tufted mohair upholstery. Walnut paneling around doors and above instrument board. Vanity and smoking sets of inlaid walnut included as standard equipment.

Seven-passenger family sedan. In treatment, appointments, fittings and equipment this model is the same as the five-passenger family sedan. It is built on the 134-inch chassis but designed to supply the need for a larger car when extra passenger capacity is required. With long wheelbase and longer springs the riding qualities are unusually good. The extra passenger capacity is provided for in a very commodious rear compartment by two sturdy and comfortable auxiliary seats that fold forward out of the way when extra passenger accommodation is not needed.

All models have nickel cowl band, cowl lamps, side ventilators, glass sun visor, V. V. windshield, windshield wiper, cigar lighter, rear vision mirror, gasoline and oil gauges and engine heat indicator on the dash.

Aerialists in Film.

The "Flying Codonas," daring aerialists of Ringling Brothers' circus, are on their way to the Fox lot in Hollywood to make their screen debut in F. W. Murnau's second American production, "The 4 Devils." Heading the quartet is Alfredo Codona, the only aerialist in the world who performs a triple somersault.

Two-Week Night and Day Run on Speedway Tests Cooling Capacity of Graham Trucks

Speeding thousands of times around the 2 1-2-mile oval of the Indianapolis Speedway night and day for two weeks, with sudden stops, quick starts, hundreds of miles in low gear—this is one of the tests to which a caravan of Graham Brothers trucks, two of which are shown above, was recently subjected in the program of engineering tests constantly carried on by truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc.

These tests were among several which proved out the speed, cooling capacity and brake efficiency of the new Graham Brothers line to the engineering staff. In addition to special tests of this nature, Graham Brothers trucks of all models, loaded to capacity, are run night and day by the engineering staff over a course of 100 miles on some of the most difficult roads in Michigan, while caravans are driven through the mountain districts of the south for all-around tests of stamina and pulling ability.

This policy of constant testing under the most adverse conditions is added assurance of the dependability for which Graham Brothers trucks have become noted, the engineers say.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

IN THE Spring of 1925 Dodge Brothers undertook an important and gigantic task—which is now complete.

Since its inception in 1914 Dodge Brothers had specialized exclusively in a four-cylinder product. During thirteen years more than two million units of that product were sold to America and to the world.

It is unnecessary here to comment on the singular merits of that famous Four.

It was honored on the battlefields of war, and achieved equal distinction on the highways and byways of peace.

Its long life and complete dependability had become an adage.

Meanwhile, however, times were changing and tastes were changing with them.

While still as important as ever, dependability alone was no longer sufficient.

Greater speed and comfort, more style and luxury were the growing prepossessions of the hour.

Six-cylinder motors were gradually becoming practical at popular prices.

Progressive engineering dictated the revision and refinement of existing four-cylinder power plants.

Two years ago Dodge Brothers appraised its task and embarked upon a program designed to place it and its Dealer Organization in a position on January 1, 1928, second to none in the industry.

Quietly, with deliberation and dispatch, and without interrupting the regular course of production and service to customers, the new program went swiftly forward.

The astonishing results of this great achievement are now known to the world.

It is doubtful if industrial annals can cite, over a similar period, an achievement so outstanding.

A smart, swift, low-priced and immensely popular quality Four has replaced its famous predecessor.

The Senior Six, outstanding in performance, quality and luxurious appointment, has been created.

Graham Brothers Trucks and Motor Coaches (formerly exclusively Fours) have been supplemented by Sixes. Fifty new types have been added. The capacities are broadened to range from one-half ton to two-ton, all resulting in the most complete and capable line of work cars known, and with prices ranging from $670 to $4290.

Then Thursday came The Victory—a Six for $1045 and up—the most spectacular engineering achievement of the decade.

These accomplishments, one following the other in steady progression, have now provided Dodge Brothers Dealers throughout the world with the most diversified and comprehensive line of passenger and commercial vehicles ever manufactured and sold by a single organization.

For every need and purse there is now a Dodge Brothers vehicle built dependably and in full recognition of the progressive ideals of today and tomorrow.

Adhering rigidly to the sound and honorable standards of a great past, Dodge Brothers have met the challenge of a still more exacting future.

PALESTINE APPEAL, TOUR SUCCESSFUL

Complete satisfaction over response obtained by Dr. Leo J. Frachtenberg, executive director of the southern region, United Palestine appeal, on a recent tour of Arkansas, Tennessee and northern Louisiana, were voiced Saturday by the Jewish community leader following his return to regional headquarters here.

Devoting his efforts to establishing foundations for annual U. P. A. campaigns and organizing active local Zionist groups, Dr. Frachtenberg accomplished what bids fair to be one of the greatest advances made by southern Jewry in behalf of Palestine's development into a permanent Jewish homeland. Significance of the tour, it was pointed out, lay in the penetration of what was largely virgin territory, where the movement for reclaiming Palestine had never been presented directly.

The itinerary of the regional director, which has just been completed after more than a month's absence from the Atlanta headquarters, included Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn.; Pine Bluff, Hot Springs, Fort Smith and Texarkana, Ark.; Monroe, Shreveport, Baton Rouge, Alexandria and New Orleans, La., and other portions of the territory, most of which was recently added to that controlled from Atlanta headquarters.

Local Committees Organized.

In most cases the U. P. A. director was able to organize definite local committees for conducting campaigns in the immediate future and to lay the foundations for Zionist districts within a reasonably short time, Dr. Frachtenberg's statement disclosed. Campaign quotas for 1928 aggregating more than $55,000 were pledged by the newly-formed committees, including the larger quotas of New Orleans and Birmingham, which were visited on the tour.

In Little Rock, Ark., Dr. Frachtenberg said, the most peculiar circumstances presented themselves. Not only had U. P. A. activities not been carried into the Jewish community there previous to this time, but influential leaders, misconstruing the relation of U. P. A. and Zionism activities, were bent on excluding all efforts along this line, the director asserted. After several days Dr. Frachtenberg succeeded in penetrating the adverse atmosphere and winning over a sufficient number of the local temple board of trustees to assure the holding of a campaign this year, with indications that not less than $5,000 will be raised, his statement showed.

This incident was cited by the executive as indicating the complete success with which the tour of the virgin territory was met. Plans are now being formulated at headquarters for a tour of old sections to make final arrangements for this year's campaigns that will soon get under way. Dr. Frachtenberg will leave within a few days to visit the larger cities. Miss Anne Balser, assistant to Dr. Frachtenberg, who is now organizing campaigns in Florida and southern Georgia, will cover other portions of the territory.

BANK STATEMENTS IN CARTERSVILLE SHOW PROSPERITY

Cartersville, January 7.—(Special.) The local banks, in statements of their condition as of December 31, show them to be in an unusually prosperous condition.

The First National bank wound up the year by paying a semi-annual dividend of six per cent, and a special added extra dividend of three per cent, making a total of fifteen per cent for the year. In addition, the bank paid to its savings depositors approximately an equal amount, and carried eight thousand dollars additional to the undivided profits account. This bank has resources of $1,463,027.36, with deposits of $1,211,084.21.

The Cartersville National bank statement shows resources of $972,578.11, and deposits of $737,720.80, a gain since the middle of the year statement on June 30, of more than a quarter of a million dollars. A semi-annual dividend of three per cent was paid stockholders, and the surplus and profits account is $31,857.31.

Emory Alumni In 83 Cities Plan Charter Dinners

Emory University, Ga., January 7.—The largest number of charter day dinners in Emory universitl's history will be held Wednesday, January 25, the thirteenth birthday anniversary of the university, and the ninthy-second year since the founding or Emory college.

Alumni in 88 different cities in 27 states had definitely announced plans for banquets already, according to Raymond B. Nixon, alumni secretary. From Seattle to Key West and from Connecticut to Texas, where two or more Emory men can gather together, old memories will be racalled, the progress of the new Emory will be related, and the developments of the future foretold.

The Atlanta celebration this year will be broadcast directly from the banquet hall by radio. The gatherings in other cities will listen in to the Atlanta speakers.

The Atlanta dinner will start at 6 o'clock, on the roof of the Hotel Ansley. Dr. F. K. Boland has been made general chairman of the dinner committee, assisted by Dr. Allen H. Bunch, president of the Atlanta chapter. The charter day dinners in other cities are under the direction of Joe Fagan, chairman of the committee on local alumni associations.

The exact nature of the program has not been definitely arranged, but according to the committee on arrangements, there will be brief speeches by many of the prominent alumni, among them President Harvey W. Cox, Dr. Phinizy Calhoun, Dr. W. A. Shelton, and Judge J. K. Hines. Music and stunts will be under the direction of Dr. M. H. Dewey, director of the Emory Glee club.

E. RANEY JORDAN BUYS 600-ACRE FARM IN SUMTER

Americus, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—The Dr. E. L. Bridges farm of 600 acres, located on the Americus-Ellaville highway, near the Sumter Schley county line, has just been sold to E. Raney Jordan, of Ellaville, for $12,000. The property, which was sold by Dr. Bridges more than a year ago, was disposed of to Jordan by C. D. Logan and Anderson Logan, Florida investors, who realized a satisfactory profit upon their venture. The tract is a fertile one and already in a high state of cultivation, although the new owner will expend a considerable sum in repairs and renovations before he ginning the new crop there.

SYLVANIA YOUTH KILLED AS AUTO IS TURNED OVER

Sylvania, Ga., January 7.—(AP)—Julius ("Buster") Habby, 23, son of W. M. Hobby, editor of the Sylvania Telephone, was instantly killed last night when an automobile he was driving from Sylvania to Millen overturned, pinning him beneath.

The accident occurred when one of the passengers in the car said something to young Hobby and he turned around, losing control of the car. The machine turned over. Hubert Pierce and Jack Larrisy, passengers in the car, were unhurt.

The three young men were on their way to Millen to visit young ladies.

Something Different

IN MORNINGSIDE—752 Cumberland Road. A Hopkins California Colonial Bungalow. Will be open for inspection next week. If you want "something different" don't fail to see this. 1927 has been our banner year; every bungalow we built was sold as fast as completed. There's bound to be a reason for this; when you see others stand vacant for months and sometimes a year. Our bungalows are cozy, neat, conveniently arranged and built with an eye to economy, but we never lose sight of comfort and convenience. The plan is different; when you buy a Hopkins bungalow, you get away from the "sameness." No one will come along and say, "This is just like mine." Our prices are different; terms, too. No eight or ten years series of notes with us; just four or five years and the balance to suit you. Hopkins bungalows go direct to purchaser from the builder. Watch this paper for the opening day for this beautiful bungalow.

$4,400

Includes everything necessary to make this six-room brick veneer house a complete home:

Permits, water meter, loan commission, screens, gutters, basement, furnace, garage, driveway and walks.

For the house itself, specifications call for good materials throughout.

The six rooms are well arranged and the bath room, with tile floor, is conveniently located.

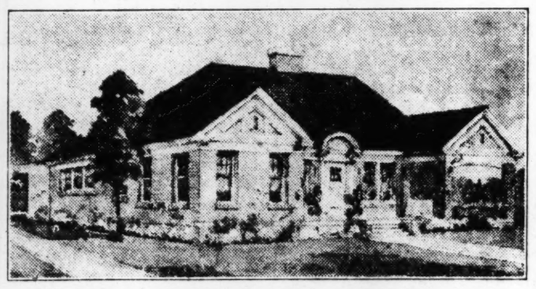

All we require is that you own a suitable lot or have a substantial equity in such a lot. We require no cash and our terms are liberal.

Let Us Show You the Floor Plan and Give You Further Particulars

We are always glad to show any prospective customer a number of houses we have built or are building.

ON ACCOUNT of reduction in price of our new Chevrolet, we have lowered prices on our used cars.

BUY NOW—We have one of the finest stocks of light used cars to be found.

COME OUT—You will be amazed at quality priced so low. Don't put buying off. Prices will advance on used cars in a little while.

A few listed below:

1926 Chevrolet Landau—

Original paint; motor checked up from every angle; new set of first-grade Goodyear balloon tires. This car can be had for $125 cash and balance in 12 notes.

1926 Chevrolet Coupe—

Original paint; extra tire and bumpers; not a dent to be found; a jam-up car for a doctor or business man. $117 cash, balance in a year.

A Real Bargain—1926 Chevrolet Coach—

Fully equipped; good tires; lots of service in this car. $116 cash, balance as you like it.

1925 Chevrolet Touring—

$70 cash, balance as you ride. It starts these cold mornings, too.

One-Ton Ford Truck—

Stake body, built to haul cattle; good condition. $125 takes this one.

A Ford Touring—

Imagine an automobile that runs good and starts with starter for $65.

1925 Ford Coupe—

With balloon tires. One of the best models Uncle Henry made; just been refinished. A real bargain. Ask about this one.

1926 Chevrolet Coach—

Three new tires, one in good shape; extra tire and bumpers; heater in car. This is a real bargain. $125 cash, balance arranged to suit you.

1926 Nash 4-Door Sedan—

Original paint and tires. This car owned by one man and petted as though it were a child. Has bumpers, extra tire and mohometer; ready to go. The down payment is a mere sum of $150. The balance to be paid in a year.

1926 Chevrolet Touring—

Good tires, good side curtains; A-1 mechanical condition. $85 cash, balance easy.

1926 Ford Touring—

$60 down, balance easy. New Duco paint.

1925 Chevrolet Coupe—

Original paint; two new tires; other tires good; bumpers. A bargain. $92 cash, the balance easy.

1926 Ford Coupe—

A-1 mechanical condition. Give us your check for $91 and drive it home. You can pay the balance so easy you won't miss it.

Reo Bus—

Has been thoroughly overhauled. We have had this bus long enough. If you don't want to buy it, you had better stay away from the lot. The price is right.

MISS GLADYS RICE IS ROXY'S GUEST ARTIST MONDAY

An example of stage success in the second generation is found in Gladys Rice, one of the most talented and popular members of Roxy's Gang, who will be heard with that entertaining group of artists Monday over WJZ and the Blue Network.

Miss Rice comes to her histrionic gifts naturally. Her father was John C. Rice, one of the greatest of American comedians, and her mother, an equally noted comedienne, Sally Cohen.

The older generation will remember Rice and Tom Wise when they starred in "Are You a Mason?" Rice headlined, too, with May Irwin in "Courted into Court," and took part in the first movie, "The Kiss," in which Miss Irwin played opposite him. Sally Cohen's fame was gained on the vaudeville stage.

Miss Rice, however, has won a widespread following among motion-picture and radio audiences on talents which are peculiarly her own. She has evinced a native flair for comedy and an effective delivery of ballads which are particularly suited to the unique requirements of radio entertainment.

Another colorful phase of Miss Rice's career is found in the fact that she has been under the directorial wing of the genial Roxy ever since the beginning of her career. She appeared as a soloist in the first motion picture house which he opened on Broadway and has subsequently lent her talents to the various theaters and organizations under his direction.

CAPITOLIAN'S SOLOIST PLANS BANJO PROGRAM

Louis Calabrese, soloist of "The Capitolians," the stage orchestra at the Capitol theater, will be a guest artist on Major Bowes' Capitol "Family" program next Sunday evening, through the National Broadcasting company and its chain of stations on the red network. Mr. Calabrese will contribute to the family hour from the studio in the form of a banjo solo, "Dolly Dimples," a piano solo arranged by him for the banjo. He will be accompanied by the studio orchestra, David Mendoza conducting. Mr. Calabrese is a versatile musician, playing expertly the banjo, trumpet, violin and guitar.

SHARKEY-HEENEY TO FEATURE NEXT FRIDAY

A blow-by-blow description of the ten-round bout between Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney will be broadcast direct from the ringside in Madison Square Garden Friday evening, January 13, at 9 o'clock, central standard time, through stations associated with the NBC blue network.

Graham McNamee, NBC announcer, will be at the ringside microphone. The ringside view of the bout will be broadcast under the auspices of the New York Telegram, a Scripps Howard newspaper, and will be heard through three stations associated with the NBC blue network: WJZ, New York; WBAL, Baltimore, and WLW, Cincinnati.

The two fighters previously were scheduled to meet November 18, but an injury to Sharkey's hand made a postponement necessary.

ASK RADIO LICENSE TO AID IN RUBBER FIGHT

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Radio is being heralded as a potent factor in the struggle of American capital to prevent domination of the rubber growing industry by British interests.

Declaring that wireless service will be an invaluable asset in the fight with British rubber producers, the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. has asked the federal radio commission for a license to use a short wave channel for communication with its rubber plantations in Liberia. The American concern says speedy communication is needed to assure a steady supply of rubber from its big plantations in the interior of the negro republic on the west coast of Africa. Present wire and mail service means a delay of from two days to a week, officials of the company declare.

GEORGE ROCKWELL ON EVEREADY HOUR

New York, January 7.—"Quack-quack-quack!"

George (Doc) Rockwell, whose name signifies uproarious mirth to a nation-wide vaudeville following, is about to launch, over the air and through the medium of the Eveready Hour, the first annual meeting of the American Association of Medical Quacks!

"Quack-quack-quack!"

The genial "Doc," whose special brand of humor is at its best when spoofing the vagaries of pseudo-medical men, will broadcast Tuesday night over WEAF and associated N. B. C. stations, beginning at 8 o'clock. All the foibles and fables of the fake "medicine men" will be lampooned in the choicest Rockwell manner. Especially the banana stalk!

"Quack-quack-quack!"

Haven't you heard about the banana stalk? That is the pet phrase of "Doc" himself, in his celebrated discussion of the human spine.

"Quack-quack-quack!"

This thing is infectious, the "quack" we mean. Listening to "Doc" Rockwell, at a private, prebroadcasting audition before writing this affects us that way. Rockwell always starts his inimitable chatter with those three words. And how!

George Rockwell is one of the few artists on the stage today who are identified by a distinctive type of humor. A headliner for a number of years on the vaudeville circuits, as well as a star of past editions of "George White's Scandals," he is slated to open in New York city within a few weeks, with the "Greenwich Village Follies." He is said to have played return engagements at practically every large vaudeville theater in the country.

On tour, Rockwell spends his spare time writing humorous articles and stories for newspapers and magazines.

With Nathaniel Shilkret conducting, the Eveready orchestra will provide the musical part of the program, assisted by vocal artists.

Air Shell May Cause Fluctuating Signals

Chicago, January 7.—A theory is offered by scientists that a flexible atmospheric shell, expanding in the day and contracting at night, is responsible for the difference between day and night radio reception.

They contend that this shell, acting as a reflector of radio waves, is expanded by the heat of the sun. Much daytime radio energy is wasted in the ascension of current. After sundown the cooling atmosphere reduces the size of the shell, they suggest, decreasing the vertical distance the waves must travel before hitting the reflector. As as result, it is contended more current is available for the horizontal extension of the signal area.

ELECTRICAL RECIPES FOR THE HOUSEWIFE—ALL THE LATEST RADIO SET BUILDING DESIGNS ~

"25 YEARS AGO" PROGRAMS ON AIR OVER WEAF NET

Memories and melodies of twenty-five years ago will be revived during the new year in a new series of Sunday evening radio concerts, known as "The Acousticon Hour," the first of which is scheduled to be broadcast this evening at 4:30 o'clock, central standard time, through the NBC red network.

This new radio feature will be entitled "Twenty-five Years Ago" and is sponsored by the makers of the Acousticon, a hearing aid for the deaf. The music which will be heard during the Sunday evening recitals made its first bid for popularity in the very year that the Acousticon was introduced.

In the inaugural program, a ten-piece salon orchestra and the Acousticon quartet will be heard in the music and songs that everybody was singing or whistling back in 1903. The guest artist of the evening is Miss Marguerita Sylva who first sang her way into the hearts of light and grand opera devotees a quarter of a century ago, and who is known as one of America's greatest Carmens.

This new program will be broadcast through WEAF, New York; WEEI, Boston; WGY, Schenectady; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WEBH, Chicago; WOC, Davenport; WHO, Des Moines; WOW, Omaha; WDAF, Kansas City; KVOO, Tulsa; WHAS, Louisville; WSB, Atlanta; WMC, Memphis, WFAA, Dallas.

Set Building Made Easy

"The A-C Power Six"

BY M. O. MOSTELLER.

Last week a systematic print was given of the new Bremer-Tully A-C-six. Great interest has been shown by the set builders, and many have wanted to know where the parts can be purchased. We might state now that the A-C-6 set is a product of the Bremer-Tully Manufacturing company of Chicago, you may place your order for this set with Alexander-Seawald, state and southern distributors and Garvin Electric company, local dealer. The demand for this kit is extremely great, so don't delay.

You probably became familiar with the filiament and grid biasing circuits in the print last Sunday as they are very much unlike the conventional battery circuits in use today. Little can be said about the baseboard and panel layout. With every kit you will find a template for drilling panel and for arranging the parts on baseboard. Today we have a complete photographic plan of parts and complete wiring.

Jack Switch No. 35, Tandem condensers No. 11 and 12, Jacks No. 36 and 27, switch No. 38, volume control No. 35, and if used Jack No. 28 and phonograph control No. 29 are all mounted on the panel. The writer is using a 3-16-inch thick wooden panel and precaution must be exercised in the drilling or the result will be a split or scarred panel. The writer will not use the phonograph control and Jack as this is merely a refinement and not necessary to the working of set.

The heavy lines are the grid return lines from both radio and audio coupiers. If the 171 type of tube is used in socket No. 6 omit the heavy line to F of audio coupler No. 14 and in its place run a wire from this F to the C side of another C 22 1-2 or 40 1-2 V-C battery as to B voltage, linking the X side of both the 4 1-2 and high voltage batteries together.

The lines that appear twisted should be of some heavy wire as they carry heavy amperage and should be twisted together, regular lamp cord serves the purpose. Jack No. 37 may be omitted if only speaker is to be used. All parts should be tested before placing in circuit, complete testing data of any part or parts used in radio may be obtained from the writer. Next week we will give you the complete wiring in a simple matter, that is step by step. This proved to be the easiest set ever constructed by the writer—and if you spend a few more moments of time—a little more care in testing, soldering and mounting of parts you will be amply repaid by a set that will give you more than you expected in fact the results are simply marvelous.

SEARS-ROEBUCK HAS NOVEL SKIT

With the novelty skit, "Radio Rehearsal," featuring favorite Sears-Roebuck artists and a semi-classical period, arranged by Miss Clare Hardeen, pianist, the agricultural foundation program on WSB Wednesday night from 6:30 to 8 o'clock promises a variety of musical and vocal talent, including a saxophone quartet, mandolin orchestra, Hawaiian guitar team, piano, harmony singing, baritone and contralto solos.

Miss Harden, prominent local pianist and organist, will present Mrs. Josephine Bridwell, contralto, and Mrs. R. H. Dominick's mandolin orchestra in a group of numbers. This will be followed by the novelty sketch, which will be staged by such performers as Charley Trout's Saxophone Four, a new aggregation; the Honolulu Duo; Bruce Waggoner, lyric baritone; Miss Mary Jane Nancy, and Paul and John, "The Two Disciples of Harmony," with Mrs W. A. Wallace, accompanist.

Customary noonday programs at 11:30 o'clock, household programs at 10 o'clock, and weather and market schedules will be maintained by the agricultural foundation.

Over 200 farmers from all southeastern states are enrolled in the second annual radio farmers' short course, sponsored by the agricultural foundation and the soil improvement committee, National Fertilizer association. Some of the south's most prominent authorities are represented on the faculty this week, which concludes the short course. Following is the schedule:

"Fertilizers for Cotton in the Coastal Plain. Fertilizers for Cotton in the Piedmont and Hill Sections," T. S. Buie, agronomist, Experiment Station, Clemson College, S. C.

Tuesday, January 10.

11:45 A. M.—"The Kind of Cotton Southeastern Mills Require and Sources of Their Supply," George S. Harris, president, Exposition Cotton mills, Atlanta, Ga.

5:30 P. M.—"Types of Cotton that Fulfill Southeastern Mill Requirements. Cotton Production on a Community Basis," R. Y. Winters, director, experiment station, Raleigh, N. C.

Wednesday, January 11.

"Practical Demonstration of Introducing and Growing Good Cotton on a Community Basis," H. O. Lowrern, manager, Mandeville mills, Carrollton, Georgia.

"Cotton Breeding Plans for Getting and Keeping Good Seed," C. A. McLendon, plant breeder and manager, the Neely Pedigreed Seed company, Waynesboro, Ga.

Thursday, January 12.

"Farming Practices Which Have Made Me Most Money in the Past," F. C Newton, farmer, Madison, Ga.

"My Farming Plans for This Year," John R. Witt, farmer, Bella Mina, Alabama.

Friday, January 13.

"Fertilizers for Fruit. Fertilizing Truck and Garden Crops," H. P. Stuckey, director, Georgia Experiment station, Experiment, Ga.

Saturday, January 14.

5:00 P. M.—"Fertilizing the Corn Crop," W. H. Sachs, agronomist, soil improvement committee, National Fertilizer association, Atlanta, Ga.

"Trial of a Landlord," George C Biggar, secretary, Sears-Roebuck Agricultural foundation, Atlanta, Ga., in charge.

JERITZA, M'CORMACK ON VICTOR PROGRAM

The high standard which the Victor Talking Machine company has always maintained in its radio concerts will be upheld in the second program of its 1928 series to be broadcast from station WJZ, New York, and associated stations of the National Broadcasting company, Friday evening, January 20, at 9 o'clock, central standard time. From its list of world-famous artists it has selected as soloists for this event, Maria Jeritza, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, and John McCormick, tenor, whose name is known wherever music is heard. They will present a varied program in which they will be assisted by the Victor Salon orchestra, under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret.

Of particular interest will be Mme. Jeritza's singing of the "Seguidilla" and the "Habanera," from Bizet's "Carmen," an opera in which she will be heard for the first time at the Metropolitan only a few days before her Victor radio appearance. It is expected that her performance as the seductive Spanish girl will cause as great a sensation as her portrayal of Tosca, the role which has come to be so closely associated with her name and fame. Her other numbers will be selected from her famous operatic roles and from the songs which she has presented with greatest success in concert.

In order to be back in this country in time for the second Victor radio concert John McCormack is cutting short by a week his Christmas holiday, spent on his estate in Ireland, and is rushing back to New York aboard the S. S. Majestic. He will be heard in several groups of songs, selected from favorites old and new, one of them, three little songs especially designed for children, promising to have a most unusual appeal.

RADIO AMATEURS TO TRY FOR NEW RECORDS

Hartford, Conn., January 7.—Radio amateurs of the United States and Canada will participate in the second annual international transmission test next month.

Conducted under auspices of the American Radio Relay league, the test is held to enable communication with radio enthusiasts abroad. It is designed to promote international fellowship and good will and to permit amateurs to try for distance records.

Various prizes are to be awarded for the stations making the best transmission scores. The opening date is February 6, while entries must be in ARRL headquarters by February 1. The test closes February 19.

All amateurs are eligible, provided they own a transmitting station.

Inventor Tired of Radio.

Paris, January 7.—(AP)—Wireless is out of fashion for Edouard Branly, who in France is credited with being the "father of radio." Branly doesn't even have a set. It doesn't amuse him and it doesn't interest him. "I no longer follow the improvements in it. My researches are in another direction," he said.

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Relatively easy Liverpool cables and talk of mill curtailment probably were factors on an end-week reaction in the cotton market today. March contracts eased off to 1920, or 18 points net lower, and closed at 19.21, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 17 to 21 points.

The market opened barely steady 9 to 12 points down in response to relatively easy cables, but offerings were light and most losses were recovered quickly on covering and trade buying, part of which was supposed to come from Liverpool. May sold up from 19.28 to 19.48 on the bulge, but demand tapered off as it approached the 19 1-2-cent level, and prices later eased under week-end realizing and liquidation. There also was a little scattered selling for local or southern account. May sold off to 19.30 and closing prices were within a point of the lowest.

Business was very quiet, with the market correspondingly sensitive to small orders either way, and the price movement was considered as much due to the usual week-end readjustments of the technical position as to anything in the day's news. Talk of mill curtailment, however, came in for much comment and may have had a tendency to check buying, although it did not inspire any general or aggressive selling. It was reported manufacturers and selling agents of cotton duck mills had decided to cut down their output beginning next Monday by about one-third, while there were also reports from Charlotte that representatives of 40 carded yarn mills having in all about 900,000 spindles, had each indicated their purpose to reduce production by suspending operations from noon on Fridays until the following Monday, beginning January 20.

Private cables said an advance in Liverpool had been checked by fair offerings but that the spot demand was still good and the textile position encouraging.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 109,217 bales, compared with 178,058 last year and 127,976 two years ago.

TRADING IN COTTON LIMITED TO EVENING UP.

New Orleans, January 7.—(AP)—Cotton prices drifted aimlessly here today with trading confined mainly to evening-up for over the week-end. The general trend of prices was downward, although the market fluctuatd within a narrow range. At the lowest, reached in the late trading, March contracts, which had fluctuated between 1924 and 1931, dropped to 19.17 under realizing or 15 points net lower. The option closed at 19.20 with the general market steady at net declines for the day of 12 to 23 points.

Liverpool cables were rather irregular and first trades on the local market showed losses of 1 to 4 points. Prices continued to sell off for a time after the start until May traded at 19.20 and July 19.06, 7 to 8 points under the previous close.

Moderate week-end covering developed and the market recovered most of this loss, prices trading back to levels parallel with the previous close. In the final trading, however, a wave of week-end realizing forced May down to 19.11 and July 18.98, 15 to 16 points net lower. October contracts sold off to 18.28 or 18 points below the previods close.

There was a rally of 2 to 3 points right at the end on belated covering and May traded back to 19.14 and July 19.00, closing at these figures or 13 points net lower. January showed the maximum decline for the day, closing at 19.01 or a net loss of 23 points.

Exports for the day totaled 18,680 bales.

FINANCIAL REVIEW OF PAST WEEK

New York, January 7.—(AP)—Credit conditions were the determining influence in the price movements of stock prices in this week's market. A reactionary trend early in the week was directly attributed to the apprehension developing over the mounting level of brokers' loans, while the subsequent recovery was influenced by the lowering of call money rates and the reassuring statement of President Coolidge on the loan situation.

Trading in the first week of 1928 was larger than any corresponding week on record, running close to 14,000,000 shares for the five sessions. Today's trading set a new high record for Saturday business.

The huge January reinvestment demand undoubtedly was a factor in the week's buying movement, although major operations continued to center in stocks believed to be under pool sponsorship. Short covering was in unusually large volume, leading to the belief in some quarters that the market's technical position had again been weakened.

The reported pickup in the steel and motor industries was one of the week's major trade developments. Chain store sales for December also were unusually heavy, but the final compilation of November railroad earnings statements was disappointing. Oil and packing shares, which have not participated extensively in the current "bull" market, showed a decidedly firmer undertone which also was attributed to improve conditions in those industries.

INCLEMENT WEATHER RETARDS MODEL HOME CONSTRUCTION

Many Workers Placed Idle By Freezing Wind and Snow

Laying of Concrete and Tile on Porch of Constitution Home in Haynes Manor to Start With Return of Mild Temperatures.

BY ERNEST RUBIN.

Progress on The Constitution model demonstration home in Haynes Manor, being constructed by the Atlanta Realty and Construction company, well-known home builders, has been delayed by inclement weather.

Freezing weather and snow-laden winds have enhanced the beautiful scenic effect as you probably remarked in driving through Peachtree Battle avenue, in Haynes Manor to the model home site on your weekly visit. But at the home the bustling of workmen and accompanying noises were noticeably absent. Except for a few carpenters and decorators working on the trim the expert construction crew was temporarily called from the job.

When you entered the chill, still air of the house, you were probably told by the foreman that the reason unfavorable weather conditions have impeded progress on the home so so great an extent is because construction work has advanced to that stage where concreting is one of the principal items to be started. You noticed on your visit the week before that they were preparing to put the concrete cap on the handsome colonial sun porch. The driveway, walks and steps also remain to be concreted.

The explanation given to you by the foreman is simple enough. The concrete mixture contains water which is likely to freeze if exposed to such temperatures as was witnessed in this section last week. Should this happen, instead of setting properly the concrete would crumble and the job would be ruined. You will recall that in this undertaking, in which The Constitution is cooperating with the Home Owners' institute in a national campaign for encouraging better building of homes, that unusual speed in construction is not regarded as an important factor.

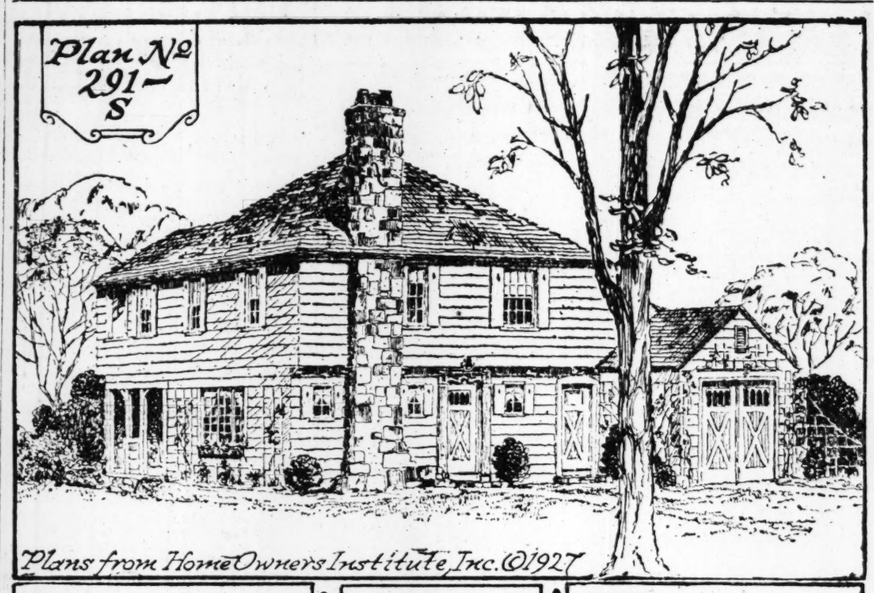

The purpose is not to sacrifice careful construction in order to break a time record. The Constitution is sponsoring the enterprise not to establish a new building record, but to demonstrate to the Atlanta public of prospective home-buyers and home-builders, the economy and ultimate low cost of erecting their homes with standard materials and equipment along expert architectural lines and according to the most improved building methods practiced by well known builders. In this particular case, which is the second model home in the series sponsored by The Constitution, an illustration is afforded of the great economy and beauty obtained by using standard materials gathered largely from this part of the country and built into the compact home designed according to the architectural type developed in this section from pioneer days. The demonstration offers an unusual opportunity for Atlantans contemplating building a dwelling.

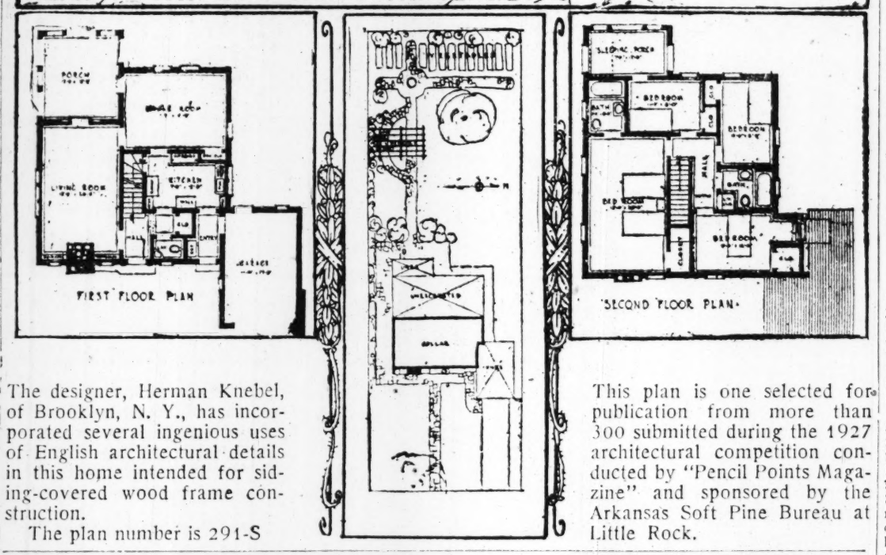

Although you were told that the concreting work was being delayed by freezing weather, you observed on peeping through the convenient basement door that the workers had managed to complete the concrete basement before cold weather set in and brought their activities to a standstill. You grow enthusiastic of the complete concrete basement because you know what it means in added sanitation and healthful living surroundings. It is really an important feature of a model home that ought not be overlooked, even though in the south its importance is not as obvious as in northern climates. However, when a housewife gets accustomed to this convenience she is unwilling to forego it in the future.

Next week the builders hope to start the concrete cap on the sun porch, which will be covered with a beautiful pattern in tile. Selection of the tile is now being made from the elaborate stock of B. Mifflin Hood Brick company, which, you remember, supplied the tile for the roof of the model home, that has won the expressed admiration of nearly every visitor to the scene of construction. The pattern calls for three sizes, 6x6-inch tile for the base, around which 3x6-inch and 2 3-4x2 3-4-inch tiles will be groups. The shades selected are of fire flash colors, varying in all hues of brown, red and gunmetal.

This will be an interesting feature to watch on a visit to the home this week. Follow it with other phases of the building described on this page each week.

Unusual English House Has Hip Roof

The designer, Herman Knebel, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has incorporated several ingenious uses of English architectural details in this home intended for siding-covered wood frame construction.

The plan number is 291-S

This plan is one selected for publication from more than 300 submitted during the 1927 architectural competition conducted by "Pencil Points Magazine" and sponsored by the Arkansas Soft Pine Bureau at Little Rock.

ADAMS-CATES CO. ANNOUNCE LEASES

Commercial leases that add to the early 1928 activity in the local real estate market, confirming the outlook characterized as denoting a year of prosperity, were announced Saturday by Adams-Cates company, which recently closed a notable year's business as one of Atlanta's foremost real estate brokerages. The leases, which were given out by H. H. Arnold, of Adams-Cates company, and involve important central and semi-central properties, follow:

From Ivan Allen to Wayne company, store and basement 254 Spring street, leased for a term of years. This concern is of Fort Wayne, Ind., and handles refrigerators, gasoline pumps and oil burners. It is a new concern for Atlanta.

Leased for J. W. English estate to A. C. F. Motors, storeroom 909 Peachtree street. Lessors will handle parts for motor-driven buses. They are also newcomers to Atlanta.

Leased for C. T. Dunham to National Products company, 469 Peachtree street. This concern handles the Oil-O-Matic oil burners.

Leased for D. A. and J. E. Farrell to W. W. Doar, storeroom 246 Ivy street.

Leased for Mrs. L. S. Huntley to Atlanta Art club, loft at 94 1-2 North Forsyth street, to be used for office purposes.

Leased for Mrs. C. P. Noble to Georgia School of Technology, an additional floor at 106 1-2 North Forsyth street.

Winter Good Season To Arrange Schemes Of Spring Planting

In planning the exterior planting for the new home—and this time of the year is an excellent time for such planning, since during the summer it is frequently hard to visualize the home's winter aspects—it is well to remember that shrubs and trees perform the same function for the home that a frame does for a picture.

It frequently happens that instead of serving as a frame the planting arrangement will, when the trees get a few years' growth, act as a screen, hiding the charm of the home's outlines and cutting off too much sunlight. Some shade is desirable it is true, but modern hygienists have discovered that one of the crying needs of the human body is plenty of sunlight, not alone the direct rays, but also the germ-sterilizing and body building action of the invisible ultraviolet rays on foods, on growing plants in the home, and on the home interior and its furnishings.

The planting scheme usually should take account of strategic positions for grouping plants and avoid the hit-or-miss scattering which gives but poor effect for the various plant sand cuts into the sense of distance which is desirable for the lawn. A few clumps of bushes at the sides and corners of the lot, a border, perhaps, along the walk, a tall evergreen or two near the entrance door, and a line of flowers near the foundation, are always safe and tasteful arrangements which can rarely be bettered by any radical plan.

Useful and ornamental lawn furniture and bric-a-brac can frequently be incorporated to good advantage in the scheme of plan. Care should be taken of the placement of the garage and the garden, to make a correct ensemble in which each individual feature of the grounds finds its own proper place in making an ideal setting for the house.

Nor does this careful assembling of the components of a skillful grounds plan, in which every feature harmoniously contributes to the whole, cost necessarily any more than a less artistic plot layout. The added cost of the shrubs, as well as the fee of the landscape architect, if it is decided to employ one, will be easily offset in the added values resulting.

The resale value of the home made attractive by a well thought out grounds plan will be materially increased.

Owens To Name Committees And Plan Board Activities

Frank C. Owens, new elected president of the Atlanta real estate board, Saturday announced the first meeting of officers and directors for 1928 to be held at the Atlanta Athletic club Wednesday night, January 11, at 6 o'clock.

President Owens states he is anxious that every officer and director be present at this meeting as it is the first official meeting of the year and he will make his recommendations as to policies inaugurated by the real estate board for this year. He will announce and discuss the program of work submitted the personnel of the 14 standing committees, who will be charged with the responsibility of carrying out the activities for the benefit of the members of the board and the real estate profession.

"The finance committee of the real estate board for 1928 held a meeting at the office of the board Friday morning to draw an operating budget for the organization covering all income and expenditures for 1928.

The committee considered the income for the past year and based the budget for the current year on these figures, Mr. Owens said. Report of the committee will be submitted on Wednesday night for discussion and approval.

Officers for the year 1928 are Frank C. Owens, president; John J. Thompson, first vice president; W. P. Walthall, second vice president; George L. Harrison, treasurer, and Paul C. Maddox, secretary. Directors are M. H. Liebman, M. C. Kiser, Robin Adair, M. S. Rankin, Dana Belser, John J. Thompson, A. B. Cates, Frank C. Owens, R. R. Otis.

President Owens, in discussing the coming year, with reference to the board, stated that he feels the Atlanta Real Estate board has made wonderful strides in the past four years and today it is serving the membership in a manner and capacity that makes it possible for the progressive real estate man to do business in a more uniform way and, at the same time, offers every protection to its members and the real estate buying public.

"It will be my endeavor to see that this constructive work in the interest of the real estate profession is carried on throughout 1928. I know the membership of the board appreciates the advantages of membership and the usefulness which the organization is serving them in their business. With the support and cooperation the members have given the organization in the past and which they will give in the future, I feel assured that the year 1928 will be helpful to the organization and will continue its development and be instrumental in making the real estate business more profitable to its membership."

Members of the real estate board were urged to send suggestions to the president regarding activities of the organization and to make recommendations that will be to the betterment and advantage of all engaged in the real estate business during the current year.

Hicks and Hern Set High Mark In Year's Sales

Evidence that a potential real estate market of unusually good proportions was available to Atlanta brokers during 1927 was revealed in the initial year's business of Hicks and Hern Realty company, which tallied $744,590 in property sales handled from January 1, 1927, when the firm was created, to the close of the year, according to recent compilations. A significant feature of the year's business is seen in the inclusion of three apartment house sales, averaging more than $165,000 each.

Among the sales handled by the rapidly growing brokerage firm were the following:

Vacant lot at the corner of Sells and Holderness street, to George C. Rogers, for $2,835.

Residence on Oxford road, to Mrs. Lily F. Cox, for $10,250.

Duplex, 1100 Gordon street, to R. M. White, $7,500.

Vacant lot with 100-foot frontage on Peachtree road, to Paul Johnson, $8,200.

Old Underwood home on Seminole and Ponce de Leon avenues, to R. V. Kitchens, $12,900.

Lot on Houston street, between Piedmont avenue and Courtland street, to S. E. McConnell, $9,000.

Duplex, corner of Blueridge avenue and Cleburne terrace, to Frank H. Reynolds, $12,000.

Lot, corner of Barnes and Fourteenth streets, to G. C. Lacy, $1,500.

Vacant lot, corner La Rosa terrace and Princess avenue, to Austin Jones, $1,200.

Residence, 956 Myrtle street, to G. C. Lacy, $6,500.

Residence, 277 Washington street, to Charles H. Cone, $8,000.

Mells home place with 122 feet on Gordon street, to Charles H. Cone, $24,000.

Two-story frame duplex, 169 Crew street, to client, for $3,500.

MASSELL REPORTS FOUR NEW DEALS

Real estate transactions coming early in the new year and aggregating more than $100,000, were announced by S. A. Massell, secretary of the Massell Realty company, which was principal in the deals. Property involved in the transactions consists largely of commercial parcels.

The Massell Realty company purchased the property located on the southwest corner of West Peachtree and Tenth streets from J. R. Allan for a consideration of $50,000. The property measures 55 feet on West Peachtree street and 110 feet on Tenth street, and is improved with five stores occupied by various tenants.

Massell company sold the property at 116-118-120-A Decatur street to I. Glusfrom for a consideration of $36,500. The property measures approximately 60 by 70 feet and is improved with a two-story building covering the entire lot, occupied by various tenants. The property was purchased as an investment and was negotiated by E. J. Perkerson, agent.

The Atlanta Cotton Felt Manufacturing company leased the building at 604 Whitehall street, on the corner of Murphy avenue, from the Massell Realty company for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $18,000. It will be used as their general office and warehouse. The building contains approximately 17,000 square feet of floor space.

Massell purchased the property located on the southeast corner of Euclid avenue and Poplar circle, in Inman park, from J. R. Allan. The property measures approximately 124 feet on Euclid avenue and 65 feet on Poplar circle, and is improved with five stores occupied by various tenants.

Bank Receiver.

Tallahassee, Fla., January 7.—(AP) The appointment of John J. Quinn, of West Palm Beach as receiver for the Northwood Bank and Trust company, of that city, was confirmed today by Comptroller Ernest Amos. The bank recently closed its doors.

The Day in Finance

BY R. L. BARNUM

Leaders Question How Far We Can Go With Prudence in Permitting Liquid Bank Credit at Cheap Rates To Be Absorbed for Capital Purposes.

New York, January 7.—This week started the new year with many widely published optimistic predictions for 1928 from recognized financial and industrial leaders. In view of the sudden and violent break that occurred in the stock market this week, however, it might be of some value to turn to this week's prediction from recognized leaders who do not see eye to eye with some of their associates.

Melvin Taylor, president of the First National bank, of Chicago, widely recognized as one of the country's most able and successful bankers, on the first business day of this week was quoted here as saying: "I doubt very much if corporate profits are as large another year as they were in 1927."

On the same day George M. Reynolds, chairman of the Chicago Continental and Commercial National bank, one of the largest financial institutions in the country, had this to say: "We cannot expect to be on the top of the wave all of the time."

It was Benjamin M. Anderson, economist of the Chase National bank here, who several weeks ago made a statement, the first in public print calling attention to the large balances that had been accumulated in this county, some of which have since been used for the purchase of gold shipped out of the country. In a statement published here early this week, Mr. Anderson, discussing in detail the position of the banks of the country, pointed out that between December 8, 1926 and December 7, 1927, commercial loans of 656 member banks reporting to the federal reserve system decreased $27,864,000; that loan secured by United States government obligations declined during the same period $4,695,000, while loans secured by other stocks and bonds increased $963,686,000, adding: "The year witnessed, therefore, a positive decline in commercial loans by these institutions, accompanied by an increase of $1,776,000,000 in their funds employed in the securities market and in the form of direct investments or of collateral loans against securities. I do not regard this as a good tendency."

Watch Expansion in Bank Credits.

On the same day that the foregoing was published President Mitchell, of the National City bank here, was quoted as saying: "Expansion in bank credit should be watched."

On the same day that all the foregoing tsatements were published—that is, before the stock market began to decline—George J. Seay, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Richmond, pointed out at some length the expansion that has occurred in bank credit since the middle of June, 1921; how this expansion in bank credit was based on our increased gold holdings; how the holdings of securities by the public in the meantime have increased; how prices of these securities have advanced. In the conclusion he says: "There has been no inflation in the prices of commodities and raw materials but no fair appraisement of the situation can fail to take into account the increase in the price of capital goods. As corporate securities are sometimes called, and it seems fair to say that this increase has largely been brought about by the use of cheap and abundant bank credit, excessive band credit.

Certainly a large amount of bank credit has been employed for this purpose and the prices now seem largely predicted upon the cheapness of bank credit. The profits of industry except in conspicuous cases are rather low; certainly there is widespread complaint to that effect. It can hardly be contended that the extraordinary increase in the value of capital goods in so short a time is based upon the increase of values accrued within that time. It is contended by some that these values have been accruing for years and have just been discovered; in other cases values are based upon hopes of future profits. But the cheapness of credit appears to be accepted by the public at least as the chief basis for increased prices for these capital goods; that the use of excessive bank credit in this field is largely responsible can hardly be doubted.

Federal Reserve Credit as Buffer.

"It is perhaps a matter of opinion how far we can go with prudence in permitting liquid bank credit at cheap rates to be absorbed for capital purposes. We certainly have gone very far when we look at low ratio of bank reserves and the degree of expansion, with an eye upon our gold stock, the basis of bank credit expansion. It is well understood that federal reserve credit can act as a buffer against gold exports, large or small, but there is even at the present time a large amount of reserve bank credit employed. However, in proportion as our gold stock diminishes, the degree of credit expansion increases, unless loans and deposits decrease commensurately. Loans and investments have been expanded at the rate of more than 14 to 1.

The question is raised in the mind of the writer whether we have been lifting ourselves by our own bootstraps—whether we are living at the present time in fools' paradise; we certainly have one foot across the border."

As long ago as last September John J. Mitchell, the Chicago banker who enjoyed an international reputation stated shortly before his death in an automobile accident that the "antics of the stock market," based on an abundance of easy money had "put us in a dangerous mood. We are being encouraged to expect too much and the federal banks have helped this sentiment along by reducing their rediscount rate." This statement was made by Mr. Mitchell not long after the twelve federal reserve banks had reduced their rediscount rate and when the stock market was boiling on easy money and widespread predictions of expanding autumn general trade.

We know more now than we did last summer as to why the rediscount rates of the federal reserve banks were reduced. The object of that action was to encourage the gold exports that have since taken place. We had more gold than was good for us, gold that was needed elsewhere for the good of the situation as a whole. Undoubtedly federal reserve officials believed that cheaper money to encourage gold exports would bring about increased stock market speculation. That however, was something that would correct itself later.

Effective and Original Plan Looks Well From Every Aspect

Employs English Architectural Principles Not Often Seen Here; All Rooms Conveniently Accessible From One Another.

BY L. PORTER MOORE
President, Home Owners Institute, Inc.

Tendencies toward plot and planting schemes which make the home the focal point of a picture which may be viewed from every possible angle impose upon the designer of modern homes the necessity of paying that same attention to gracefully proportioning the side and rear elevations of his plan which all too often in the past has been confined to the front. This thought gives an interesting sidelight on the means taken by the designer, Herman Knebel, of Brooklyn, to achieve the remarkably graceful plan shown today as No. 291-S. The ruling thought of the design, it is evident, was that of this same good appearance from every angle.

The front facade, of course, is given its proper emphasis in the detail work of the doorways and the overhang, but the same nicety of proportion which distinguishes the front extends also around to sides and rear, which, incidentally, are seen quite as often by the home-owner as is the front of the house, no matter what type of lot may be its location.

The home is one of those selected for publication from more than 300 plans submitted during the 1927 annual architectural competition conducted by "Pencil Point Magazine" and sponsored by the Arkansas Soft Pine bureau, at Little Rock.

Usual English Characteristics.

The home uses extraordinarily original applications of English architectural principles not often seen on this side. Its hip roof is usually not thought of here as being in accord with English design, but is frequently used in both city and country houses in Britain. It is also one of the features which contributes to this home's facility for looking well from every point of vantage.

There are many features about this genial looking design which grow upon one after studying their advantages. For example, an unusual but practical arrangement is that of a direct passage from the kitchen to what is really a secondary front door, suggesting the receipt of shopping packages or express deliveries, entirely independent of the master's entrance and living quarters. At the same time egress from the kitchen to the rear is provided by passing through the garage. A pleasant sun porch opens off both living and dining room, hinting at Sunday night tea and perhaps summer time breakfast in the open. The owner's large bedroom with its private bath and roomy clothes closet meets every personal need while cozy rooms for son, daughter and the occasional guest complete the setting for a happy household. The stone chimney is a gem of decorative masonry to which English ivy or a climbing rose will cling affectionately.

Adaptable to Modern Equipment.

Several features of equipment which this home would advantageously accommodate include the built-in garbage and trash incinerator, the automatic electric refrigerator, the automatic heat regulator, the built-in kitchen cabinet and a Portland cement floor finish to look like old tile on the first floor porch. An addition of a few feet to the width of the garage at the front would make it possible to house two cars.

An outline of the specifications recommended for the home follows:

Masonry.—Concrete footings under all walls, as shown on drawings. All foundation walls to be poured concrete or concrete block made with Portland cement. Concrete to be mixed with waterproofing compound. Chimney of common brick, all flues lined; fireplace of selected brick. Provide ash dump with clean-out door in cellar.

Incinerator—Built-in incinerator to be installed in chimney, with receiving hopper door located in or near the kitchen for disposal of garbage or trash.

Carpentry—All framing lumber shall be well seasoned and free from large knots, either Douglas fir or yellow pine. California white pine for exterior millwork and interior trim; oak floors; steel bridging for floor joists. Interior doors and built-in kitchen cabinet as required in detailed specifications.

Hardware—Owner shall furnish all finishing hardware for doors and windows, for closets and casework. The contractor will furnish a correct list of hardware and is to put it on in a careful, workmanlike manner. All hardware on exterior openings to be of brass or bronze.

Casement Windows—Steel casement windows may be used at owner's option.

Plastering and Lathing—Three-coat work over metal lath is recommended. A less expensive job may be obtained through the use of one-half inch of plaster over flat rib expanded metal lath or wood lath. Insulating lumber or plasterboard may be used if desired.

Metal Work—Gutters, rain pipes, valleys and flashing to be 16-ounce copper.

Roofing—Roof of slate-surfaced, asbestos or copperclad shingles, colors as selected. Western red cedar shingles at owner's option.

Painting—Strictly pure white lead and linseed oil in proper proportion with zinc oxide where desired, or a good grade of ready mixed paint shall be used. Interior trim to receive two good coats of flat paint and one coat of flat enamel. Finished floors to be varnished or waxed throughout as desired.

Electric Work—Complete system of electric wiring from meter to all outlets, including panel boards, junction boxes and all other fittings. The installation must be in accordance with the rules and regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Tile Work—Tiled walls and wainscot in bathroom with built-in china accessories.

Plumbing—A complete system and fixtures ready to use shall be provided, as shown on plans and in accordance with local regulations. Brass piping for hot and cold water lines. Gas or coal-fired hot water heater. If sewer connections are not available, use of reinforced concrete septic tank is recommended.

Heating—Steam, hot water or hot air boiler, coal, oil or gas fired.

Temperature Control—Heat regulator with eight-day or one-day clock thermostat, limit control on boiler or furnace, and electric or spring motor.

Insulation—Throughout with insulating building board (or insulating quilting if preferred) used as plaster base on second floor ceiling operates as roof insulation.

FIRE RAZES BARN OF CULLODEN FARMER

Culloden, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—Fire here yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock destroyed the big barn and contents belingong to John J. Haygood, Jr. The loss is estimated between $1,200 and $1,500.

The loss was partially covered by insurance. The barn was on what is known as the Norwood place and was recently purchased by Haygood.

REALTY ACTIVE IN DRUID HILLS

Sales of a bungalow and lots which will be improved with residences were announced yesterday by the sales organization of Druid Hills.

The sales were handled by R. T. David and R. A. Tomlinson.

One of the sales was the home of H. M. Rice at 1745 North Decatur road. This is a brick bungalow on a lot 100 by 400 feet. It brought $21,000.

Mrs. P. L. Tippett bought a lot with 70 feet of frontage on Clifton road, upon which she will build a two-story house. A. Burdell bought another lot on the Clifton road on which he will build at once.

As previously announced Edwin Cooledge bought a lot on Ponce de Leon avenue which he will improve with a residence. All these sales represent the December activity of the sales organization.

New Shoe Store In Peachtree Arcade Leased

The Foot Health Shoppe, a new local shoe concern, has leased a location at 110 Peachtree Arcade building, which it is now getting in shape for business.

The company is composed of W. R. Freeman, D. L. Law and R. A. Parker, who were formerly with the Fred S. Stewart Shoe company.

They have had long experience in the shoe business with special reference to health shoes.

STRAWN HITS DELAY IN INAUGURATION OF THE PRESIDENT

New Orleans, January 7.—(AP)—Because the present method of inaugurating the president of the United States, the vice president and members of congress is "unbusinesslike," Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, president of the American Bar association, said here today that the association favors amendments to the federal constitution providing for the immediate inauguration of these officials.

This declaration was made before the supreme court of Louisiana when members of the executive committee of the national association, here for the midwinter sessions of the committe, were presented to the court.

CONGRESSMEN HIT TRADING IN COTTON AND GRAIN FUTURES

Washington, January 7.—(AP)—Trading in cotton and grain futures on exchanges of the country would be prohibited under bills introduced today by Representatives Blanton and Jones, democrats, of Texas.

Both measures provided penalties in the form of fines and imprisonment. The Blanton bill also banned future trading in wool and mohair.

LEASE CANDLER SPACE FOR BRANCH OFFICE

After an absence of two years from this territory the Grand Rapids Store Equipment corporation has returned with a branch office to Atlanta. The company, with P. G. Williams as district manager, has taken offices in the Candler building.

The company's move was prompted by the need of such a central location as Atlanta to cover its territory. It is composed of the states of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and eastern Arkansas.

The company is successor to the Grand Rapids Show Case company and the Welch Wilmarth corporation, which it absorbed. Of late the company has operated the southeastern territory through Baltimore.

Mr. Williams expressed himself as pleased over the business outlook in this section.

BAYLOR HICKMAN JOINS RALPH MARTIN

Baylor Hickman, well-known figure in local real estate circles and a former resident of Gainesville, Ga., has joined the force of Ralph B. Martin company, one of Atlanta's leading real estate firms, it was announced Saturday.

Mr. Hickman will specialize in selling north side homes and exchanging properties. He has a wide experience in this field and in addition is well acquainted in business and civic centers. Mr. Hickman enters upon his new connection with the local market facing the brightest outlook that has been seen in many years.

Association of Mr. Hickman with the Ralph B. Martin company reveals the steady growth of this concern, which is one of the oldest in Atlanta.

Miss Florence Burney, of Rome To Wed Mr. Stevens in Feb.

Miss Florence Sidney Burney, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sidney Burney, of Rome, whose engagement is announced today to Augustus Hartsfield Stevens, of Atlanta.

Enlisting the cordial social interest of hundreds of friends throughout the state is the announcement, made today, of the engagement of Miss Florence Sidney Burney, of Rome, to Augustus Hartsfield Stevens, of Atlanta, their marriage to unite two of Georgia's best-known families.

The bride-elect, one of a group of six lovely sisters, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sidney Burney, prominent and influential citizens of Rome. She traces her ancestry through a long line of distinguished lineage, her mother having been before her marriage the beautiful Miss Florrie Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Henderson, of Covington. The noted Brigadier General Robert J. Henderson was her maternal great-grandfather and among her forbears are other makers of southern history.

On her father's side, Miss Burney is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Burney, Mrs. Burney having been before her marriage, Miss Frances Rush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rush, pioneer citizens of the state.

Studies in Europe.

Graduating from the Georgia State College for Women, the charming bride-to-be later attended the University of California and finished her education with a year's study and travel in the cultured centers of Europe last year. Her superior mental attainments, coupled with great personal charm, have made her a social favorite in her home city as well as in numerous other places where she has visited.

She is the sister of Mrs. Jack Daniel, Mrs. W. T. Huff, Misses Mildred Alline and Mina Burney, all of Rome.

Mr. Stevens is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Stevens, of Carlton, and the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hartsfield, all of whom have been prominently identified with the development of the state. His mother was formerly Miss Sally Hartsfield, of Atlanta. His paternal grandparents are C. A. Stevens and the late Mrs. Stevens, beloved Georgians, and members of some of the south's oldest families.

Scholastic Record.

The groom-elect is a graduate of the University of Georgia, where he was a popular member of the Sigma Chi fraternity and numbered among his scholastic honors membership in Phi Beta Kappa. He has also taken post-graduate work at the University of Chicago and at Columbia university. During the world war he served as lieutenant in the expeditionary forces.

Following their marriage, which will be brilliantly solemnized Saturday, February 18, in the First Methodist church at Rome, Mr. Stevens and his bride will make their home in Atlanta, where Mr. Stevens hold a responsible position with the Atlanta and Lowry bank. He is a Shriner and a popular member of the Druid Hills Golf club, being a prominent figure in the business and social life of the city.

Miss Elliott Weds H. M. Morris.

Athens, Ga., January 7.—Miss Fairy Elliott and Harold Mercer Morris, of Chicago, were quietly married Saturday, December 21, at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Elliott, on Franklin street. Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Frederick J. Ball. The bride wore a smart costume of tan-colored crepe and satin combined. Her hat and other accessories were in blending shades.

At the reception which followed Mrs. Elliott was assisted in entertaining by Miss Lillian Winn. Mr. and Mrs. Morris left in the afternoon for Chicago, where Mr. Morris is general manager of the Great Lakes Finance corporation.

Mrs. Morris is prominent among Athens' leading musicians, being a pianist and organist of note. She received her education at the Lucy Cobb and at a conservatory in New York city. Mr. Morris is a graduate of the class of 1922, University of Georgia, and a young man of exceptional qualifications.

Miss Godwin Weds Malcolm R. Calhoun.

Mrs. Jimmie Goodwin, of Warm Springs, announces the marriage of her daughter, Ila Pauline, to Malcolm Randolph Calhoun, of Sarasota, Fla., December 21, 1927.

Miss Poindexter Weds Edward E. Burroughs.

Mrs. Callie McCook Poindexter, of Louisville, Ky., announces the marriage of her daughter, Elizabeth, to Edward Egerton Burroughs, of Conway, S. C., on December 16.

Mr. Frohman Donates Cup as Prize In Theater Tournament

Daniel Frohman, of New York, has donated a cup to be awarded as first prize in the Georgia little theater tournament to be held in Atlanta the week of March 1, under the auspices of the Atlanta Drama league. All amateur play producing groups are invited to compete in this contest.

The Cushman club, of Brenau, wired the Atlanta Drama league that it wished to produce the play, "The Valiant," and the Blackfriars, of Agnes Scott college, have chosen for their production "The Darned Dress," a play written by one of their students. Other dramatic clubs have also shown great interest in the tournament.

The date for registration has been extended to February 1 so that all organizations interested in entering shall have time to do so. The registration fee is $20. All persons wishing further details or desiring copies of the rules for the contest should communicate with Miss Cleveland Zahner, Pershing Point apartment, Atlanta.

In addition to the Daniel Frohman cup to be awarded as first prize, there will be prizes for individual acting and for the best play entered.

Woman's Club Resumes Winter Activities.

During the season of Christmas holidays just passed, the Atlanta Woman's club was the scene of many bright informal parties and with the incoming of the new year, the president, Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, will endeavor to make the club the center of community activities more than ever before.

All of the extension and vocational classes are in full swing and any one wishing to enter these classes may do so by applying at the club house.

Bright occasions of these mid-winter afternoons are the delightful teas given weekly on Fridays at the Atlanta Woman's club. Last week the Friday afternoon tea brought together about 150 of Atlanta's most prominent club women. The whole club membership is invited to participate in these happy affairs.

Mrs. R. I. Reed, chairman of the house economics class, announces that registration for the third series of these classes will begin Monday, January 9, and last for four days. Mrs. Reed will be at the club building during these days to receive all applications for membership. The rate is $1 for seven lessons.

January 11 Mrs. Charles Goodman, chairman of American citizenship, announces the next meeting of this committee, urging all members to be present.

Junior League Members To Receive At Allen's Opening

Members of the Atlanta Junior league will act as hostesses at the opening of J. P. Allen's new store Monday, January 16, according to a decision made at a meeting of the league held Tuesday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving club. A group of of members wil receive in the various departments of the handsome new emporium and write their friends to call during the opening day.

Another interesting feature of the meeting Tuesday was the report made by Mrs. Walter Wellborn, chairman of Christmas baskets committee, who stated that 35 well-filled baskets were distributed to needy families on Christmas eve.

Mrs. Wiliam Huger, the president, presided at the meeting. The other officers include Miss Margaret Nelson, first vice president; Mrs. Joel Hurt, second vice president; Mrs. John Knox, corresponding secretary; Miss Carolyn Nicolson, recording secretary, and Mrs. Philip Wilcox, treasurer.

ALLEN'S REMOVAL SALES!

Whitehall Store Will Close Next Thursday, At 5 P. M.---Forever

It has a mournful ring, that word "forever"—a ring of finality. And we admit the fitness of the phraseology, for there is undoubted sadness in the thought of Allen's departure from the old and beaten track, where, for twenty years, we have had our being.

It is not an end, however—rather a beginning. For with the dawning of Monday, January 16th, the New Allen's reopens its doors in the new field of commerce that Atlanta has developed on Peachtree street. A New Allen's in word and deed—in building and location—the same old Allen's you have known for twenty years, in spirit!

jewelry---

1/2 price

A special section on the main floor will be turned over to the jewelry clearance—brooches, enameled mesh bags, pearls, vanity cases and other novelty pieces selected from regular stock are going at half!

bags---

1/2 price

The clearance has been on for several days. Naturally the bag stock has become depleted. There are many smart bags, however, and they are going on Monday at just half their former prices!

neckwear---

1/2 price

Another part of the main floor will be devoted to another clearance—neckwear—going at half price! Beautiful pieces, imported and domestic, of lace, linen, silk, crepe and the like. Fresh and dainty—seasonable and smart.

silk gloves

45c pair

Novelty gloves that were formerly priced from $1 to $2.50 a pair! Silk gloves they are, some long and some short. The sizes are rather broken, and the assortment of colors is not as complete as formerly—but the values are marvelous—less than half their former prices!

Main Floor

dresses--- reduced!

At half and less than half their pristine prices! Grouped at $12, many of them—at $18, many others! Satins, crepes, georgettes, chiffons, prints and wool crepes—for street, afternoon and evening wear! All sizes represented.

coats--- reduced!

Every coat in stock is reduced—many of them to $48, $58 and $78—others at figures proportionate with their original prices. Lavishly furred they are—and of fine fabric. But that is understood—for are they not Allen coats?

furs--- reduced!

As for our furs—every piece, be it neck piece or coat, is reduced one-half—with two exceptions. We are not including in our sale the squirrel coats or the Jap weasel models. The others go, without reservation.

Virtue of Humility

Genuine humility is a sort of common-sense way of seeing things in their proper relations. It is more the attitude of a man toward God and life than his attitude toward his fellows.

It is not humility to doubt one's own power or to hesitate to speak his opinions, but a right understanding of the relation between what he can do and say, and the rest of the world's doings and sayings. All great men not only know their own business, but usually know they know it. Arnolfo knows that he can build a good dome at Florence. Sir Isaac Newton knows that he has worked out a problem or two that would have puzzled anybody else, only neither one expects their fellow men to fall down and worship them. They have a curious undersense of powerlessness, feeling that the power is not in them, but through them, that they could not do or be any thing else than God made them, and htey see something divine and God-made in every other man they meet, and are endlessly, foolishly, incredibly merciful.

"Humility," said an old ecclesiastic, "is the chiefest of Christian graces, and has come to appear to the world almost as Christianity itself."

Mrs. Freeman Gives Report On Baptist Executive Board Meet

Mrs. L. O. Freeman, state chairman of publicity for the Baptist churches of the federated Church page in The Constitution, gives a resume of the executive board of Baptist Women's Missionary Union of Georgia, which met in executive session Tuesday, January 3, at headquarters in the Palmer building. She says:

"Miss Ida V. Rhoad, the efficient and much loved field worker for the union, having spent the holidays at her home at Hapeville, was present and conducted the devotional period. Miss Rhoad's New Year's message and admonition to those present and to the Baptist women of the state was the same as that of Paul in the ages past, 'forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.' The hearts' desire of the president and board members is that the coming year may bring to Baptist women a rebirth of spirituality and a deeper personal consecration to kingdom service.

Financial Standing.

"An interesting part of the day's business session was the resume and general review of the financial accomplishments of the state union for the year. The report of Mrs. A. F. McMahon, treasurer, showed the total amount reported through the W. M. U. treasury to be $187,213.57. This figure falls short of the accepted apportionment for the year, which was $220,000. It is believed by those who have given careful consideration to the matter that this deficit is not because of a shortage in actual gifts, but because of the failure of local church treasurers and missionary societies to correctly report their contributions. Baptist women of Georgia accepted an apportionment as their part of the state's obligation to the Southern Baptist convention, and they assume the responsibility of its payment. To meet this responsibility it is necessary that all gifts contributed by women should be listed and reported as such by the treasurer of the church when forwarding these gifts to state headquarters. Such a system of reporting does not lessen the value or efficiency of the gift, but does render a more correct method of bookkeeping and does give credit where credit is due. An urgent request, therefore, from the president of the union and from the executive board is that with the beginning of the new year all presidents and treasurers of missionary societies over the state insist that the gifts of women to the Baptist cooperative program through the local church be credited to W. M. U. by the church treasurer on his books and when sending his report to state headquarters.

"The apportionment accepted by the Georgia W. M. U. for the ruby anniversary year of 1928 is $235,000. This amount does not include special offerings during designated prayer seasons. These will be over and above regular pledges, and are expected to bring the total to $285,000 for the year. Among the 18 states of the S. B. C., Georgia stands fifth in gifts through the southern union. Georgia's love gifts to foreign missions during the December season of special prayer up to date total $6,414.44. At Tuesday's meeting Mrs. Neel, president, requested that all members bring to the next session of the board, Tuesday, February 7, some practical points or suggestions, whereby the ideals and aims for 1928, as set forth in ruby anniversary plans, may be attained and the year made one of victory. Prayerful sympathy and heartiest support was expressed by this board for the state convention plans for a jubilee celebration and for the raising of the $610,000 budget which is the 1928 convention goal.

"Mrs. J. C. Lanier, trustee, reported large boxes of Christmas greens, pecans, candies, peaches and other remembrances sent to the Georgia girls at the W. M. U. Training school, Louisville.

Mrs. Burney's Report.

"Mrs. Frank Burney, of Waynesboro, Margaret fund chairman, submitted the following names as divisional 'Margaret fund mothers': Mrs. R. P. Newton, Jackson, east central division, in place of Mrs. J. W. Newman; Mrs. Jim Glover, Rome, northwestern division, in place of Mrs. Ed Rankin. Both Mrs. Newman and Mrs. Rankin resigned their positions because of providential circumstances. Their resignations were regretfully accepted. Cordial appreciation was expressed for the interested cooperation of Mr. Franklin, superintendent of the Georgia Baptist hospital, in the organization December 9 of a Grace McBride auxiliary among the nurses of the hospital. On the occasion of the organization the president, Miss Shivers, was presented with a gold W. W. A. pin by Mrs. Neel, state president. Miss Allen, state young people's leader, states that the auxiliary is receiving the strong support of the nurses, more than 75 per cent becoming charter members.

"Baptists throughout the south will be saddened to learn of the death of Mrs. James, wife of Dr. James, who for a number of years has been in charge of the Baptist hospital at Harbin, Manchuria. For some time Mrs James' health has not been good, and for this reason she and Dr. James were returning to the states. Death claimed Mrs. James November 20 while far out at sea on board a homebound vessel.

"After a period of recuperation in Texas, after a long and serious illness, Mrs. Gordon Singleton was present and cordially welcomed at Tuesday's meeting. The absence of Mrs. George Westmoreland, on account of the illness of her husband and daughter, was noted with regret. Mrs. Westmoreland's faithfulness to the cause of the Master and to the work of the denomination is an inspiration to members of the board and to Baptist women throughout the state.

"Present at Tuesday's meeting were Mrs. Neel, Mrs. McMahon, Miss Allen, Mrs. E. C. Laird, Mrs. I. B. Smith, Mrs. A. G. Sullivan, Mrs. J. H. Zachry, Miss Ida Rhoad, Mrs. A. L. Cumming, Mrs. Paul Etheridge, Mrs. J. D. Rhodes, Mrs. Gordon Singleton, Mrs. F. B. Baldwin and Mrs. L. O. Freeman.

Fayetteville Society Installs Officers.

Fayetteville Missionary society met in the home of the president, Mrs. V. B. Hollingsworth. Yearly reports from all officers were given, showing every obligation had been met in full, and for the first time in its history the society goes on the "honor roll" with 100 points to its credit, and the largest enrollment of 50 members. Last year the society made the "honor roll" but only attained 85 credits. An enthusiastic and interested group of splendid workers are looking forward to a good year's work. Following is the list of officers for the ensuing year:

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for 1928:

The meeting of the Baptist Woman's Missionary union of Atlanta association, as announced by press chairman, Miss Clara Stephenson, to be held at the Y. W. C. A. building on Auburn avenue, is for the purpose of making plans for the annual meeting which takes place January 26 and 27 at the First Baptist church.

The advanced Mission Study class of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta association held its first quarterly meeting Thursday, January 5, in Rich's conference room. Mrs. Thena White Caldwell reviewed the textbook, "The How and Why of Missions."

The Y. W. A. of the First Baptist church of West Point, Ga., has made a splendid gift to the W. M. U. training school, Louisville, Ky., of 24 cans of peaches and a half bushel of pecans.

Baptist women of the south, at the beginning of 1928, are entering the fortieth year of the organization of the Southwide Woman's Missionary union. Much interest centers around the ruby anniversary and also the twentieth anniversary of the W. M. U. training school at Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. J. C. Lanier, vice president of W. M. U. of Georgia, who is also organist and director of the choir of the First Baptist church, Georgia, presented the choir in a Christmas evening program at the church, consisting of solos, duets, quartets and anthems, in keeping with the worshipful spirit of the season.

Park Street Missionary society met Monday afternoon, January 2, at the church with Mrs. D. M. Therrell, president, presiding. Annual reports from the society as a whole and from each circle showed substantial gains in membership as well as amount of money raised. Also a live interest has been maintained, evidenced by larger attendance through the year. Under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Therrell the society enters into the work of the new year under the most favorable auspices. Circle chairmen have been installed and already plans are well under way for the new year's work.

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church of Decatur held the first business meeting of the year on Monday at the church. Despite the inclemency of the weather a goodly number responded to roll call. New officers were installed by the pastor, Dr. J. W. Quillian, who offered his services, thanking the auxiliary for the help and inspiration they had been to him during the past year. An urgent appeal was made for subscriptions to "The Voice," calling attention to the fact that "information means inspiration." The treasurer's report showed that $2,371.15 for all purposes had been raised in 1927. This amount shows a 10 per cent increase over 1926.

Woman's Missionary society of St. Paul's church met at the church Monday afternoon. Mrs. Fred Weishmeyer, newly elected president, presided. The devotional was given by Mrs. Bracewell on "God's Word."

Mrs. J. W. Wood was appointed chairman of Wesleyan hospital work; Mrs. G. O. White, chairman, received a gift for soliciting the most members for the society. Circle No. 3, Mrs. K. K. Kelley, chairman, will be given a party for the highest attendance for the year. Mrs. W. H. Coppedge, vice president, gave a greeting to the new chairman for the new year. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Unice Douglas.

Mrs. Thomas Is Honored

Mrs. Elzie B. Thomas, recently elected editor of Disciples of Christ for the Federated Church Women, to succeed Mrs. John Kersis, who has been elected recording secretary of the organization.

Federated Church Women Meet Saturday

Federated church women of Georgia meet in quarterly session in Vaughan's tea room Saturday, January 14, at 12:30 o'clock. Luncheon will be served in a private room.

Mrs. Lewis Tells Of Last Message Of Mrs. Braswell

Mrs. T. L. Lewis, honorary president of Federated Church Women, in an appealing little screed, tells of the last message of Mrs. Laura Clement Braswell, sister of the founder of Church Women of Georgia, which is herewith produced below on the official page in The Constitution. She says:

"The parting message of Mrs. Laura Clement Braswell, sister of the founder of the Federated Church Women of Georgia, Mrs. Albert Braswell, was not 'good night,' but 'good morning,' as she started for that home, the glory of which no mortal eye hath seen.

"Coming, as she did, from a distinguished line of ancestry noted for their force in the forum and in the field of letters, she devoted the best years of her life to literary research. A Methodist of unfaltering faith, a member of Trinity church, her last contribution was a history of their women's work, setting forth very clearly and beautifully the earnest effort of those pioneer days.

"God was good; the passing was very gentle; the stepping from the weary pathway into the new life where pain and sorrow are unknown."

Service Star Legion To Meet Tuesday.

The January meeting of Service Star Legion takes place Tuesday, January 10, at 3 o'clock in the Woman's club on Peachtree street. A remembrance hour will be conducted by Mrs. H. G. Hastings, chairman, and Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, vice chairman, on deceased members.

During 1927 the following beloved members went to their eternal home: Mrs. A. M. Asher, Mrs. C. A. Mauck, Mrs. L. B. Hardy, Mrs. Caroline Howard, Mrs. E. L. Connally, Mrs. W. R. Lipscomb. Relatives and friends of these dear women are most cordially invited to be present. Reports from chairmen on hospital work, needy families and other important matters will be made.

Mrs. James R. Bachman and Mrs. Joseph Williams are co-chairmen on selling the cook books and will outline their plans at this meeting and will have books for those desiring the books. Price 50 cents.

Mothers' Department Union Meets Tuesday.

Mother's Department Union of Atlanta has planned a program for Tuesday morning, January 10, at 10:30 o'clock, with Park Street Methodist church, corner of Park and Lee streets, as the hostess church.

The topic, "Work of the Sunday School From the Mother's, Pastor's and Superintendent's Viewpoint," will be ably discussed. The address of welcome will be given by Mrs. J. B. Montgomery and the response will be given by Mrs. Nora Lanford. Special guests will be the presidents and teachers of all the mothers' classes in the West End churches. All presidents of mothers' classes affiliated with the union be sure to be present and bring your report. Lunch will be served at 1 o'clock.

Second Baptist Activities Begin Monday Afternoon

The Woman's Missionary and Benevolent society of the Second Baptist church will meet in the church at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, January 9, with Mrs. J. Furniss Lee, new president of the society, presiding.

The last meeting of the women's executive board for 1927 was held Thursday, December 29, in the home of Mrs. Carter Helm Jones on Penn avenue, with Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Lee joint hostesses. Reports for the year showed the result of untiring effort on the part of the chairmen. Many tributes were paid the retiring president, Mrs. Hal E. Hentz, the youngest daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Connally. After the business session the members enjoyed a Christmas luncheon.

The Wednesday evening dinners have been resumed, with Mrs. Carter Helm Jones, W. M. S. social director, in charge. Members are requested to make reservations for themselves and friends by Tuesday night. While late comers will be cordially welcomed, early reservations with the pastor's secretary will furnish an estimate of the number to be served and insure better service. Guests are cordially invited to remain for the prayer meeting, which will be led by the pastor, Dr. Carter Helm Jones, at the close of the dinner.

The children of the cradle roll and beginners' departments made beautiful calendars New Year's day. Mrs. S. D. Kaylor is superintendent of the cradle roll and Miss Rosa May King, of the beginners' department. These and the primary children enjoyed a delightful Christmas party with a tree and Santa Claus. Miss May Walker is superintendent of the primary department.

Circle 11 of the women's society meets with Mrs. J. G. Dodson in her home, 1613 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., Wednesday afternoon, January 11, at 3 o'clock.

The executive board of the Business Women's league was entertained recently with a luncheon by the president, Mrs. F. J. Paxon, in the council chamber of the Davison-Paxon building. The next meeting of the league will be held at 3:30 this afternoon in the Sunday school auditorium. Rev. Henry Rogers, of Birmingham, Ala., will be the speaker. Circle E, Miss Lena Floersch, chairman, will be in charge.

Many Weddings Are Solemnized In Griffin, Ga.

The marriage of Miss Eva Aiken Weems, of Luella, and Thomas James Weldon, of Atlanta, took place Sunday at the home of Rev. Horace Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church in Griffin.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Weldon left in their car on their wedding trip to points in Florida. They will be at home at 301 Ponce de Leon avenue in Atlanta after January 15.

Miss Mary Mitcham, of Griffin, and Dewey W. Collier, of Cordele, were quietly married Saturday night at the home of the bride in Griffin. The ceremony, which was witnessed by a few friends, was performed by the Rev. L. M. Latimer, pastor of the First Baptist church. The lovely bride was gowned in a spring model of shades of brown with accessories to match.

After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Collier will make their home in Griffin.

The marriage of Miss Valla Wells, of Griffin, and Cleo Colquitt Hearn, of Palmetto, took place Thursday at the home of the Rev. Thomas J. Corley, in Sunny Side.

Mrs. Hearn was gowned in tan flat crepe with golden brown trimmings. Her small hat was of brown and her accessories were in matching tones.

After a wedding trip to points in Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Hearn will be at home to their friends in Palmetto.

Miss Ethel Hazel and Robert Eugene Pitts, both of Griffin, were married at noon Monday at the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hazell, in Griffin. The Rev. J. F. Norton, pastor of DeVotie Baptist church, performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends of the young couple.

The bride, gowned in a two-toned brown traveling suit, fashioned two-piece style. Her small hat and slippers and hose were in matching tones of brown. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Pitts will make their home in Griffin.

Miss Eva Murphy and Clayton Sparks, both of Griffin, were married Wednesday evening at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Norton in Griffin, with a few friends in attendance.

The bride was attractive in a spring model of dark blue georgette worn with a dark gray hat and a blue coat trimmed with gray fur.

Mr. and Mrs. Sparks left on their wedding journey and will make their home in Griffin.

Miss Mildred Glass, of Williamson, and Franklin O. Huff, of Hollonville, were united in marriage Saturday at the home of Judge Jones Drewry in Griffin.

Miss Alma Hamlett and A. T. Jones, both of Griffin, were married Saturday night at the Hanleiter parsonage in Griffin with the Rev. J. G. Lupon officiating. Following their wedding trip, they will return to Griffin to make their home.

Miss Georgei Echols and Ernest D. Willis, two of Griffin's most popular young people, were married Saturday evening at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. L. M Latimer in Griffin. A few close friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony, after which the bride and groom left on their wedding trip. They will continue to make their home in Griffin.

Mrs. Hammond Weds Clarence E. Gatlin.

Mrs. William A. Rogers, of Monroe and Atlanta, announces the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Edna Rogers Hammond, to Clarence E. Gatlin, the Rev. H. B. Mays officiating. This announcement will be of cordial interest to the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gatlin, both here and in Monroe, where Mrs. Gatlin formerly resided.

Recent Bride, Fraternity Sponsor and Bride-Elect

The group above presents at the left, Mrs. W. P. Odom, of Murphy, N. C., who until her recent marriage was Miss Nora Belle Jenkins, of Young Harris and Atlanta. The lovely figure in the center is Miss Katherine Lott, daughter of Mrs. M. F. Lott, of Cornell road, who was chosen sponsor by the Tech chapter of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity at the national convention recently held in Birmingham. At the right is Miss Julia Ellen Wayne, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton C. Wayne, whose engagement was recently announced to Carl Winfrey Poss, the marriage to be solemnized at an early date. Photo of Miss Lott by Alfa Loma studio; photo of Miss Wayne by Elliott's Peachtree studio.

Miss Annie Feinberg Weds Mr. Harris.

Thomasville Ga., January 7.—The marriage of Miss Annie Feinberg, of this city, to Joe Harris, of Savannah, took place Sunday evening in the private living room of the Tosco hotel.

Ben Aaron, of Savannah, was best man. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Harry S. Feinberg. The ceremony was performed by Dr. E. A. Landau, of Albany.

Immediately after the ceremony a bridal supper was served to the wedding party in a private dining room of the hotel.

After the supper the wedding party consisting of some 40 relatives of the bride and groom adjourned to the home of the bride's brother, Harry S. Feinberg, where they received the congratulations of friends.

The bride and groom left for New York city, where they will remain a short time before returning to Savannah to make their home.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Max Aarons, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Levy, Ben Aarons, Jacob Gazan, Dave Gibbs and Mrs Lipsey, of Savannah; Mr. and Mrs. Simon Needle, Sidney Needle, Lester Needle, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bluestein, of Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosenberg, of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. Mose Rosenberg, of Albany, and Myer Rosenberg, of Albany.

Rev. T. H. Jackson performed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, 255 Georgia avenue, S. W., in the presence of a host of friends.

The bride wore a becoming dress of blue crepe trimmed with gold lace and she carried a bouquet of bride roses.

The young couple will be at home at 255 Georgia avenue, S. W.

Miss Rowe Weds F. W. Thomas In Athens Church

Athens, Ga., January 7.—The wedding of Miss Frances Rowe and Francis William Thomas, of Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday, January 4, at 1:30 o'clock at the Emmanuel church was solemnized. Dr. A. G. Richards, rector of the church, performed the ceremony, only the immediate families and close friends of the couple being present. Mrs. H. M. Heckman played the nuptial music. The bride entered with her father, Hugh J. Rowe, who gave her in marriage, meeting the groom and his best man, Harry Mehre, of Athens, at the altar.

Mrs. Thomas is one of two charming sisters, only daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Rowe. Her sister, Mrs. Lauren Goldsmith, of Atlanta, was one of Athens' most admired society belles. Mrs. Thomas was educated at Lucy Cobb and has been one of the most popular members of the society set in Athens and wherever she has visited since her debut.

Mr. Thomas was formerly connected with the University of Georgia Athletic department. He is now head coach at the University of Chattanooga, Chattanooga, Tenn. and member of the insurance company of Thomas & Keese. He is a graduate of Notre Dame and a member of several popular clubs and fraternities.

Miss McDaniel Weds H. S. McGee.

Mrs. Homer McDaniel announces the marriage of her daughter, Faith, to H. S. McGee, January 1, at home, with only the members of the family present. Mr. and Mrs. McGee will make their home at 1000 Main street, Evanston, Ill.

Miss Wellborn Weds Robert G. Sumner.

Blairsville, Ga., January 7.—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Wellborn announce the marriage of their daughter, Lillian Irene, to Robert Glenn Sumner, of St. Petersburg, Fla., on December 28, 1927. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, pastor of the Methodist Church, South, at the home of the bride's parents, only the immediate members of the family being present.

The bride is a member of one of the oldest families in Georgia and is a graduate of Young Harris college. She has been for the past few years engaged in the teaching profession in the public schools of Georgia, and the announcement of her marriage will be marked with much interest by her many relatives and friends in the Carolinas and Georgia. Mr. Sumner is a graduate of Emory university and is prominent in educational work in Florida. He is at present supervising principal of the Summerfield Vocational High school at Summerfield, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Sumner wil be at home to their friends in Ocala, Fla.

Extension Classes Sponsored By Woman's Club To Be Resumed

Mrs. Tom Brooke, chairman of the educational department of the Atlanta Woman' club, announces that the second semester of the Oglethorpe extension classes, sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's club, and the educational classes fostered by her department, will begin Monday, January 9.

Under a joint arrangement of the Atlanta Woman's club and Oglethorpe university, the Oglethorpe extension classes have been installed at the Woman's club for the purpose of putting college study within the reach of the very large public unable to spend four years acquiring a college education and of those wishing to specialize in different lines of work. To the students, both men and women over twenty years of age, presenting proper college entrance credits, the subjects studied under the extension courses will receive credit a Oglethorpe university, other students can take the same courses but will receive no college credit.

The extension classes are thorough in every respect, classes being taught by the same staff of professors who occupy the chairs of their respective classes at Oglethorpe university. While only a limited number of subjects have been offered in the extension classes, these have been very successful and upon application of a sufficient number, classes in subjects other than those listed below can be arranged.

Schedule of Oglethorpe extension classes:

Monday, 3 to 5 p. m., Professor W. F. Melton's class in English and journalism. Price $20 per quarter. Registrar, Miss Moran, Walnut 7842.

Wednesday, 3 to 4 p. m., Professor W. L. Roney's class in French. Price, $20 per quarter. Registrar, Miss Moran, Walnut 7842.

Friday, 3 to 5 p. m., Dr. H. J. Gaertner's class in psychology and mental hygiene. Price, $20 per quarter. Registrar, Dr. Gaertner, Hemlock 0724-W.

The educational classes of the Atlanta Woman's club cover a varied number of subjects. These classes are taught by the best teachers available and through courtesy to the Atlanta Woman's club reduced rates have been arranged in each instance.

Schedule of classes beginning week of January 9:

Wednesday, 2 to 2:45 p. m., French class, by Mlle. Groleau. Registrar, Miss Moran, Walnut 7842. Advanced class 12 lessons for $6.

Wednesday, 3 to 4 p. m., French class, by Professor W. L. Roney. Registrar, Miss Moran, Walnut 7842. Beginners' class 12 lessons for $6.

Wednesday, 4 to 5 p. m., fencing class, by Professor W. L. Roney. Registrar, Mr. Roney, Hemlock 1708-J. 12 lessons for $6.

Thursday, 9:30 to 10:30 a. m., physical culture and dancing. Registrar, Mrs. Tom Brooke, Mrs. Potter-Spiker and assistants. Hemlock 2512-J. 12 lessons for $10 (at least 25 must register for this class.)

Thursday, 2 to 2:45 p. m., French class, by Mlle. Groleau. January 19, beginners' class. Registrar, Miss Moran, Walnut 7842. 12 lessons for $6.

Thursday, 3 to 4 p. m., literary interpretation and public speaking. Miss Carolyn Cobb, teacher. 12 lessons for $10. For registration call Miss Cobb, Ivy 4280 or Dearborn 0856-J.

Friday, 2 to 2:45 p. m., Dr. Gaertner's class in psychology (no credit) 12 lessons for $10. Call Dr. Gaertner, Hemlock 0724-W for enrollment.

Last fall Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, president of the Atlanta Woman's club, gave special attention to the organization of an evening class in French for business girls and twelve young ladies were enrolled. Professor W. L. Roney, of Oglethorpe, had charge of the class. The second semester of the business girls' class begins Monday evening, January 9, and will meet in the rooms of Miss Leona Westbrook, Grand building. This course is the same as that taught in the afternoon class and beginners can enter at any lesson. The price is $6 for 12 lessons and Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith at Hemlock 3302 will be glad to take registrations for this class.

"55 Years in Atlanta"

League of Women Voters Begins Annual Convention Wednesday

The Atlanta League of Women Voters will hold its annual meeting in the form of a two-day convention beginning Wednesday, January 11, and continuing throughout that day and January 12. The place of meeting is the Henry Grady hotel and the hour at which the meetings convene is 10:30 a. m. Mrs. R. L. Turman, who has served the league as president for three years, will preside at the opening of the first session which will be featured by the reports of officers and chairmen for the year 1927. A buffet luncheon will be served at 1:00 p. m. for which a charge of 55 cents will be made either at the door or through reservation at league headquarters, Walnut 8264.

The afternoon session will be marked by the introduction of the newly elected president, Mrs. Alfred Bailey, who will preside at this session, make her inaugural address and introduce her newly appointed officers. A discussion of the 1928 program of the league will be an interesting event of this session. The printed programs carrying a suggested outline of the subjects to be covered for the current year have been mailed in advance to all league members and in this way a careful consideration of each item is made possible before the discussion is had on the floor of the convention.

Thursday Sessions.

The Thursday sessions of the convention will cover many items of general interest to league members, including a suggested budget for 1928, the presentation of the state program by Mrs. S. D. Halley, director of the state league, and of the national league program by Mrs. George Matson, secretary of the state league. A finance and festivity luncheon will be the feature of this day's happenings and much material of general interest will be manifest on this occasion. Reservations for this luncheon may be made as for the buffet luncheon and the price is 85 cents.

The Atlanta league has a most remarkable membership record for the current year; there being one thousand paid-up members at this time and the organization is without a single outstanding indebtedness of any kind.

The members are working together in a concerted effort to put over the league program in Atlanta as it has been outlined by the national and state and the ward chairmen of Atlanta are deeply interested in this plan. Much of the deliberations of the annual meeting will have to do with the educational features of the work and each item of the program has been carefully carried out. Mrs. Harry Gershon is chairman of arrangements for the convention and all details have been planned to facilitate the carrying out of the program.

Membership Drive.

The most important league work following the annual meeting is the membership drive which is scheduled for February and the participation of the younger element in Atlanta has been noted in the newly acquired members. Many of those joining last year are young matrons, but the regular workers in the league have retained their interest and enthusiasm. Miss Eleonore Raoul is director of the Atlanta league as well as president of the state league and the following are the newly appointed committee chairmen and officers: Mrs. Alfred Bailey, president; Mrs. J. E. Springer first vice president; Mrs. Fred Hodgson, second vice president; Mrs. R. E. Rollins, third vice president; Mrs. J. P. Billups, fourth vice president; Mrs. W. C. Robinson, fifth vice president; Mrs. W. W. Waldman, secretary; Mrs. Palmer Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. George Matson, parliamentarian; Mrs. W. C. Slate, chairman second ward; Mrs. M. J. Mosers, third ward; Mrs. Thomas Mount, fourth ward; Mrs. J. M. Waites, fifth ward; Mrs. W. C. Robinson, sixth ward; Mrs. George Turner, seventh ward; Mrs. Charles Dillingham, eighth ward; Mrs. Fred Ardary, ninth ward; Mrs. N. W. Printup, tenth ward; Mrs. N. V. Perry, eleventh ward; Mrs. R. S. Goulding, twelfth ward; Mrs. Charles Dillingham, finance; Mrs. J. Harvey Payne, membership; Mrs. R. L. Turman, efficiency in government; Mrs. J. Louis Elsas, child welfare; Miss Nell Brown, social hygiene; Mrs. R. E. Rollins, hospitality, and Mrs. Pearl Mozely Gay, legislation.

Mother-Daughter-Dad Banquet To Be Held by Camp Fire Girls

Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory university, will speak to the Camp Fire Girls and their parents at the mother-daughter-dad banquet to be held Friday evening, January 13, at St. Philip's Sunday school room.

The mother-daughter-dad banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock and only 400 can be accommodated. Girls are advised to make reservations at once through their Camp Fire guardians and all reservations must be made by Wednesday noon. Tickets are 55 cents per person. Girls may bring one or both parents and in case a parent is not living a relative or guardian may be entertained.

A Camp Fire play, "The Return of Rosalie," will be an interesting feature of the evening's program. This will be given by the Dejohi Camp Fire Girls of Decatur Junior High school. Girls in the play are Caroline Ridley, Katherine Sloan, Dorothy Bush, Catherine Cunningham, Adeline Rountree, Sallie Sewell, Gertrude Lozier, Rachel Burnett, Sarah Sue Burnett, Juliette Puett, Katherine Peacock and Nina Mae Hanson. Mrs. E. C. Colwell, guardian, will assist the girls.

A Camp Fire orchestra will help with music and songs throughout the evening. Girls who play stringed instruments are asked to meet in the basement hall of the chamber of commerce Monday, January 9, at 2:45 o'clock to practice songs. All girls are asked to bring their camp song books to the banquet. A mother-daughter-dad honor made of leather and for the ceremonial gown will be given all girls who attend the banquet and bring one or both parents. Doll honors and honors for lighting the living trees which were earned during the Christmas season will be presented. The Howsmon trophy will be presented to the group that had the best all-round record during December. Each camp fire group will be identified either by banners, arm bands or any other insignia desired and each group is asked to have an original song or cheer.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of directors will be held Friday, January 13, at 12:30 o'clock in the mahogany room of the Ausley hotel.

Recent Bride Is Guest of Honor.

Misses Lila and Josie Lou Jackson were joint hostesses at a bridge-tea given at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue Saturday afternoon in honor of a recent bride, Mrs. C. J. Jolly, formerly Miss Grace Freeman.

Among those present were Mrs. C. J. Jolly, Mrs. Paul Turner, Mrs. C. E. Jarvis, Mrs. Hal Wilson Field, Miss Virginia Ashe, Miss Corinne Freeman, Mrs. Mary Gill, Miss Mary Mortiz, Mrs. Steve Hartney, Mrs. Thomas Gore, Miss Kate Williamson and Miss Irene Bell.

Mrs. Thomas O. Gore entertained Thursday evening at a dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Jolly. The guests included a few close friends of the honor guests.

Kindergarten Club Holds Meeting.

The Atlanta Kingergarten Alumnae club met Friday afternoon in the Madge Bigham kindergarten, at 305 Peeples street, the guests of Miss Madge Bigham, assisted by Miss Mabel Lovelace. Miss Madge Bigham is one of Atlanta's first and most successful kindergartners as well as writers of children's stories. An interesting social hour took the form of story-telling and followed the business meeting. Miss Bigham presented one of her small pupils as the "Little New Year," hearing New Year's resolutions, uniquely made on large magnolia leaves, to each guest. After the reading of these resolutions refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held in the Tenth Street kindergarten Friday, February 3, at 3:30 o'clock, with Mrs. H. R. Acosta as hostess.

Jewish Woman's Club Meets Tuesday Afternoon

The Jewish Woman's club meets on Tuesday, January 10, at 3 o'clock at the clubhouse. It is the initial meeting of this year and very important business will be discussed and a program has been arranged.

The Monday night psychology class started last week and will hold its second lecture Monday, January 9, at 7:30 o'clock under the instruction of Dr. Goodrich White.

The music classes will again resume its work Monday, January 9, at 3 o'clock under the supervision of Professor Hull. Registrations for these classes are still open.

Miniature and Landscape Artists To Hold Exhibit

The Atlanta Art association announces a joint exhibition of the works of Mrs. B. E. Fernow, miniature painter, and Louis E. Jones, landscape painter, to open with a preview Wednesday afternoon, January 11, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Tea will be served at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Fernow has been a recognized miniature and portrait painter in the east for many years. She studied at the Art Student league of New York for seven years, and received private instruction under Miss Theodosia Thayer, whose name in the world of a miniature painters is famous. Mrs. Fernow has been honored with membership in important miniature societies of this country, and she has exhibited in the international at Rome. Mr. Fernow has accepted a chair at Clemson college, and Mrs. Fernow will be a distinct acquisition in the art circles of this section.

Louis Jones comes from the well-known art colony at Woodstock, N. Y., where he has resided for the past 12 years. Mr. Jones has had exceptional opportunities for study with two of the most highly regarded landscape painters of the day, John F. Carlson and Birge Harrison. With a splendid foundation of study at Bucknell University of Art school and the Pennsylvania academy, at Philadelphia, he has approached his work with understanding and preparedness. H. specializes in landscapes, and has been represented in important exhibits in Buffalo, New York and Philadelphia, in addition to several one-man shows. Mr. Jones has taken a studio here for the season, and will paint the Georgia landscape.

The public is invited to see the work of these two artists at the High Museum of Art, 1262 Peachtree street, N. E.; the exhibits will continue until January 25. Visiting hours at the Museum are from 10 to 4:30 o'clock week days; 2 to 5 Sundays.

Chamblee O. E. S. Installs Officers.

On Wednesday evening the annual installation of officers of Chamblee chapter, No. 110, was held in the Masonic hall in Chamblee, Ga. Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, worthy grand marshal of the general grand chapter, O. E. S., was the installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Annabel Cape, grand marshal; Mrs. Anna Davis, grand warder of the grand chapter of Georgia, grand chaplain, and Mrs. W. D. Wallace, grand organist. The elective officers installed are: Mrs. Eva Warren, worthy matron; C. T. Poss, worthy patron; Miss Abbie Warren, associate matron; C. V. Tapp, secretary; Mrs. W. D. Wallace, treasurer; Mrs. Clara Morris, conductress; Miss Elizabeth Tapp, associate conductress.

Much constructive work has been accomplished last year in this chapter under the leadership of Mrs. Clara Morris and Charles Poss. The installing officers received beautiful gifts.

A presentation to Mrs. Clara Morris was made by Charles Poss on behalf of the chapter.

HER VERY OWN!

EVERY WOMAN'S STORE!!

Peachtree at Cain

THIS new store is, we hope, both fine and beautiful. The materials of which it is made are sound and true. The architects have envisioned an inspired structure for practical selling purposes. It is simple and dignified. Artisans and engineers have realized a dream-interior of color warmth, brilliancy, matchless efficiency and fascinating charm. There is nothing quite like it in the South. In fine, a jewel of a store.

But whoever thinks that it is a store of removed and remote exclusivity is sadly out of focus with Allen ideas and ideals. She misunderstands; she is mistaken. A store for the children of the Ritz and the rich—women fortunate in money—it undoubtedly is, just as it is unquestionably and emphatically a store for Every-woman, she who, through force of economic circumstances, must watch her expenditures. Here Every-woman will move in a happy milieu—a hospitable atmosphere—a very Democracy of Thrift and Republic of Economy.

Let us stress the point and insist upon our sincerity.

Dresses and coats, accessories and so on, the very finest procurable to the best that can be sold at popular and payable prices.

This economic appeal is downright and forthright. It stands on the broad base of an enlarged scope in selling. An expanded store with suddenly increased outlet makes lower and rapidly diminishing prices a mathematical certainty.

The new Allen's is Every-woman's store—her very own.

Opening Monday, January Sixteenth

J. P. ALLEN & CO.

GEORGIA DIVISION, DAUGHTERS OF THE CONFEDERACY

Mrs. W. Trox Bankston, Covington, president; Mrs. H. O. Ball, Jackson, first vice president; Mrs. I. Bashinski, Dublin, second vice president; Mrs. W. H. McKenzie, Montezuma, third vice president; Mrs. Powell Cotter, Barnesville, recording secretary; Mrs. R. E. Everitt, Covington, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Julian Lane, Statesboro, treasurer; Mrs. Harry Craig, Augusta, registrar; Miss Mildred Rutherford, Athens, historian; Mrs. Kirby Smith Anderson, Madison, assistant historian; Miss Rebecca Black DuPont, Savannah, recorder of crosses; Mrs. Charles Tillman, Quitman, auditor; Miss Lillian Henderson, Atlanta, custodian of world war records; Mrs. J. J. Harris, Sandersville, state editor; Mrs. Loula Kendall Rogers, Tennille, poet laureate.

Honorary Presidents—Mrs. W. S. Coleman, Atlanta; Miss Anna Carolina Benning, Columbus; Mrs. Ida Evans Eve, Augusta.

State U. D. C. President Issues Interesting Message for January

In this, the beginning of 1928, let us renew our allegiance to all U. D. C. causes. I want to thank each one who sent a message of greeting and good wishes during the holiday season. I hope you have all enjoyed these days as much as your president has.

January might well be called our birthday month, for three of our leaders, whose birthdays we celebrate, were born in January. First Admiral Matthew Fontain Maury, January 14; General Robert Edward Lee, January 19, and General Stonewall Jackson, January 21. Don't fail to pay honor to these great men and see that the children of today know why we honor these heroes of the sixties.

The first board meeting of the new administration will be held at the Biltmore hotel, January 17, at 10 a. m. when we will be guests for the day of the Fulton chapter U. D. C., of which Mrs. L. T. D. Quinby is the president.

Let me urge every member to be present as important business will be discussed. The new officers and state chairmen will be presented at the beginning of the session.

The work for our Confederate veterans and needy Confederate women should be stressed at our January meetings, for it is our work to see that they are supplied with the comforts of life and our neglect may mean they suffer during the disagreeable winter weather.

Here's best wishes for 1928. May it be outstanding in U. D. C. history.

Yours for better service,

(Mrs. W. Trox) FANNIE BATEY BANKSTON,
President of Georgia Division, U. D. C.

Un Mot Ici, Est Bien

BY MRS. J. J. HARRIS,

Our joy of giving depends on the measure of happiness one metes out to others; the greater the happiness we bestow, the larger our remuneration for our efforts and labors of love. It was a distinct pleasure to see the appreciation of the veterans at the Soldiers' home at the various gifts, attentions and honors which were showered upon them. Many chapters sent gifts and the local chapters in Atlanta and College Park gave them Christmas trees and parties, the Atlanta chapter keeping open house for them one afternoon. Mrs. H. O. Ball, first vice president of the Georgia division and president of the Larken D. Watson chapter, Jackson, motored up and gave the veterans the gifts from her chapter. What more beautiful way could the holy Christmas day be spent than in dispensing cheer to our own—the beloved veterans of the Confederacy? Those who used the holiday in such a manner no doubt felt the deeper meaning of the Yuletide season enter into their hearts and register desire for future ministrations of this kind.

Georgia has had another honor bestowed upon her—the new president general, Mrs. W. C. N. Merchant, of Chatham, Va., has appointed Miss Russell Brenson, of Dublin, state president of the Children of the Confederacy, to be her page at the general convention to be held in Texas next year. This is a distinct honor and one well merited, as Miss Brenson won recognition for herself by receiving the prize for the best historical essay out of over 3,000 essays submitted.

Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, first vice president general, and Mrs. J. E. Hays, chairman of time and place of the Georgia division, were guests in Atlanta last week. They were the recipients of many social attentions while in the city.

Mrs. W. Trox Bankston, president of the Georgia division, U. D. C., is again at her post of duty, having spent a most delightful Christmas holiday with relatives in Tennessee, and now the keynote of the hour is the annual executive board meeting of the division, which has been called by the president for January 17 at the Biltmore hotel in Atlanta. The Fulton chapter, U. D. C., will be hostess upon this occasion and Mrs. L. D. Quinby, president of the organization, and her staff of brilliant officers are making great preparation for the pleasure of their guests. A beautiful luncheon is being planned for this occasion and those who have been the guests of the Fulton chapter at other times realize the pleasures which will be in store for them at this time. This is the initial meeting of the new executive board under the administration of Mrs. Bankston and it will be of much interest and constructive development. A full attendance of the board is urged at this time. The head of the various patriotic organizations will be invited to the luncheon.

College Park U. D. C. Entertains Veterans.

The Robert E. Lee chapter, U. D. C., College Park, gave a surprise to the veterans in the Old Soldiers' home December 23. The superintendent had been notified of the chapter's intention to bring Christmas remembrance to the old heroes by Mrs. P. J. Haden, chairman of the occasion. Mrs. Haden was assisted by her committee, consisting of Mrs. D. R. Nesbit, Miss Eunice Brown and Mrs. B. D. Gray. Sixty-seven well-filled Christmas bags made quite an imposing array on the platform of the auditorium of the home. After assembling the heroes of long ago, Mr. McAllister introduced Mrs. P. J. Haden, who assured them of their love and solicitude for their welfare, expressing regret that 20 of them were in the hospital too ill to be present.

Miss Mary Freeman, of College Park, delighted the audience with recitations appropriate to the occasion. Mrs. H. E. Wall, of College Park, played the "Spanish Fandango" on the guitar. At the close of the program the distribution of gifts was superintended by Mrs. Haden, young Master Charles Nesbit and Master Joel Kershaw making the distribution, giving to each hero a bag of oranges and Christmas goodies. Miss Mildred Nesbit and Miss Mary Freeman assisted Mrs. Haden in this final good cheer of the party.

Mr. McAlister introduced Mr. Lewis, a visitor, who voiced the thanks of the veterans with the courtesy and chivalry of the days of old.

Five and Twenty Club Entertained.

The members of the Five and Twenty club were entertained Thursday evening at a theater party at the Capitol theater given by Ralph Allen and William England.

Confederate Portraits Chairman Submits Excellent Report

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, chairman of Confederate portraits placed in schools and libraries, submitted the following report at the recent state convention of the Georgia division, U. D. C., held in Covington:

"Your chairman of Confederate portraits committee mailed a letter September 15, 1926, to each chapter in the division with the information that the Atlanta Journal would again compliment Georgia divisions and your committee by printing each month a portrait of a Confederate hero, these to appear each month in the Wednesday rotogravure section, beginning in September and running through May, 1927. This arrangement was made by your committee in order that the chapters could present to the schools portraits that are not available otherwise. They were secured by a long and continuous research work on the part of your chairman. The letter, mailed September 15, 1926, was published in our official columns by our editor, Mrs. J. J. Harris. With the exception of Rear Admiral Raphael Semmes, whose picture appeared on September 22, 1926, all others chosen to be published were Georgia leaders. Those leaders and the program of publication as arranged with the management of the Journal were as follows: Admiral Semmes, September 22, 1926; Robert Toombs, October 6, 1926; Alexander H. Stephens, November 3, 1926; Clement A. Evans, December 1, 1926; Francis Bartow, January 5, 1927; Sidney Lanier, February 2, 1927; General John B. Gordon, March 2, 1927; War Governor Joseph E. Brown, April 6, 1927; General T. R. R. Cobb, May 4, 1927.

"Two hundred and sixty-five communications have been mailed out during this convention year from your chairman in the interests of the Confederate portraits committee.

"A report of the individual chapters is made as follows: Atlanta, Fulton chapter, 1 portrait in high school, General N. B. Forrest; Atlanta, Atlanta chapter, 7 portraits in schools, all framed steel engravings; 1 oil painting in chapter house, President Davis; $75 toward companion painting of General Lee; Athens, Laura Rutherford chapter, 3 portraits in schools; Bainbridge, 9 portraits in schools; Buena Vista, Marion County chapter, 1 portrait in high school of General Lee surrounded by his generals; Butler, Wallace Edwards chapter, reports no portraits placed; Barnesville, Willie Hunt Smith chapter, 6 portraits in schools; Brunswick, Clement D. Evens chapter, 10 portraits in schools; Cordele, 8 portraits in schools; Camilla, reports no portraits placed; College Park, R. E. Lee chapter, 1 portrait in school; Carrollton, Annie Wheeler chapter, reports no portraits placed; Conyers, reports no portraits placed; Covington, reports schools supplied previously; Dublin, Oconee chapter, 5 portrait albums, 4 in schools, 1 in library; Decatur, Agnes Lee chapter, 2 portraits in schools; Douglas, R. E. Lee chapter, reports no portraits placed; Ellaville, Sarah E. Hornady chapter, reports school supplied previously; Hephzibah, Walter A. Clark chapter, reports no portraits placed; Hawkinsville, O. C. Horne chapter, 24 portraits in Hawkinsville city and Pulaski county schools, money to frame these portrait was raised through an egg sale conducted by the school children; Hartwell, 3 portraits in schools; Jefferson, 5 portraits in schools; Jackson, Larkin D. Watson chapter, 2 portraits in schools; Lexington, Oglethorpe chapter, 1 portrait in school; Milledgeville, R. E. Lee chapter, 1 portrait in school; Marietta, Kennesaw chapter, 1 portrait in Marietta High school, General Lee; 1 portrait in Cobb County consolidated school at Blackwell, General Lee and General Jackson; Madison, Morgan County chapter, 1 oil painting of General Lee placed in chapter house, value $500; 1 steel engraving of General Stonewall Jackson, value $15; 1 portrait placed in school; Montezuma, Phil Cook chapter, 3 portraits placed in schools; Newnan, reports no portraits placed; Norcross, L. P. Thomas chapter, 1 portrait in school, 1 portrait in library; Quitman, 2 portraits in schools; Reynolds, reports no portraits placed; Richland, 1 portrait in school, Admiral Semmes; Savannah, reports work completed previously; Social Circle, J. M. Gresham chapter, 3 portraits in schools; Sandersville, Mary Ann Williams chapter, portraits placed in schools; Senoia, Coweta chapter, 5 portraits placed in schools; Sylvania, Screvin County chapter, 3 portraits in schools; Tallapoosa, Andrew J. McBride chapter, 3 portraits in schools; Watkinsville, Roberta Harris Wells chapter, reports no portraits placed; Washington, Last Cabinet chapter, 4 portraits in schools, President Davis, General Lee, Alexander H. Stephens and Robert Toombs; West Point, Fort Tyler chapter, 2 portraits in schools; Waynesboro, Margaret Jones chapter, 2 portraits in schools. Total number of portraits reported, 155."

Chapter Meetings.

The Mary Brantley chapter, U. D. C., met at the clubhouse Friday afternoon. A large number of members were present and routine matters were discussed. Mrs. G. G. Riley was chairman of the program. A Christmas poem was read by Mrs. Jack Duskin. The "Origin of the Christmas Tree," by Miss Louise McNulty, was much enjoyed, as well as "Why Should Gifts Be Given at Christmas Time?" by Mrs. E. C. Paschal. A recitation, "Ruggles' Christmas Dinner," by Miss Dorothy Marshall, delighted the audience; piano solo by Mrs. A. B. Hamilton; vocal solo, "In the Garden of Tomorrow," by Mrs. Wiley Baldwin; closing number, "Old Back Joe," by the chapter.

Dougherty County Chapter.

Dougherty county chapter, Albany, U. D. C., met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. H. Mouse. The new president, Miss Sallie Billingslea, presided. Dr. C. V. Cook, of the First Baptist church, gave an interesting discussion on Jefferson Davis. Mrs. Cornelia Cole, who was the delegate to the national convention in Charleston, gave her report. A large per cent of the members reported joining the Red Cross. Ways to make money were discussed and it was decided to have a rummage sale at an early date. Subscriptions were solicited for the Confederate veterans magazine. It was voted to place the magazine in the high school library. It was also planned to send jam and jellies and a box of pecans to the Soldiers home in Atlanta at an early date.

Oconee Chapter.

A Christmas party given for the veterans and widows of veterans of Dublin, and Laurens county, by the members of the Oconee chapter at the home of the president, Mrs. Izzie Bashinski, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Bashinski was assisted in receiving by Mrs. W. S. Phillips, and Misses Helen and Jeannette Baum, Mattie Wall and Mattie Dixon, and a group of young girls from the Adeline Baum chapter, Children of the Confederacy, who were Misses Helen Bashinski, Pearl Simmons, Charlotte Courie, Elizabeth Langston, Eugenie Rawls and Maudine Long.

The entire lower floor of the Bashinski home was beautifully decorated with wreaths of holly, and vases of gorgeous white carnations, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Middleton of the Dublin Floral shop, who so generously presented them for this occasion.

As this was the time for the regular meeting for the month of December, a business session was entered into for a short while, the president asking for the report of officers. Mrs. J. W. Ward reported that attractive Christmas books had been sent to the soldiers home in Atlanta. The chapter voted that each member sponsor a veteran and in this way be a better "daughter" by constantly keeping in touch with her charge. Mrs. I. G. Prim, second vice president, took the chair and the president made a gratifying report of the year's work and told most interestingly of the Charleston convention. At this time Mrs. Bashinski announced that Miss Russell Brinson had been appointed as page to the president general of the U. D. C., to serve at the general convention at Houston, Texas. Miss Brinson is president of the Georgia division, C. of C., and of the local chapter of C. of C., and has been the recipient of many honors in the work.

After these reports the following program was given: Piano solos, Mrs. Millard Daley; reading, Mrs. I. G. Prim; vocal solo, Mrs. M. Z. Claxton; accompanist, Mrs. E. B. Claxton.

A gift was presented each veteran and widow present from the chapter members. More than 30 invitations were issued to veterans and widows, and it is gratifying to know that a larger number of veterans attend these parties each Christmas.

L. H. Andrews Speaks To R. E. Lee Chapter.

Milledgeville, Ga., January 7.—L. H. Andrews, prominent Milledgeville citizen, has accepted an invitation to address the R. E. Lee chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy at their meeting next Tuesday on the subject of "The Milledgeville of Yesterday and the Milledgeville of Today." The years which will be sketched by Mr. Andrews in his talk will approximate one hundred and twenty-four, and will include the colorful years when Milledgeville was the capital of the state.

Mr. Andrews is conceded to be the most well-acquainted with Milledgeville history of any person in Baldwin county with the exception of Mrs. Samuel Austin Cook, well known author of "The History of Baldwin County." Mr. Andrews has in his possession a number of historical documents. He has made a study of the history of Milledgeville and is well versed in the lore of the days gone by when Milledgeville was the home of men whose names are now matters of history. He is also thoroughly acquainted with the records of the historical buildings in Milledgeville and the estates of the governors and other famous personages who owned large plantations near here and erected magnificent colonial mansions thereon. He rarely speaks in public and the talk on Tuesday is being keenly anticipated by the members of the U. D. C. chapter and others. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Beeson, who is one of the well-known U. D. C. women of the state, and chairman of the 1928 historical essay committee of the state organization. Mrs. Reginald W. Hatcher is president of the local chapter, and has distinguished herself as one of the most efficient and widely known chapter presidents in the entire south. She is the wife of R. W. Hatcher, prominent hardware man, who was formerly national president of the American Hardware Dealers' association.

Mrs. Carson Glenn Honored in Marietta.

Marietta, Ga., January 7.—Mrs. Carson Glenn, of Louisville, Ky., who is visiting Mrs. Grady Conway, was honor guest at a dinner party given by Mrs. Morace Ewing Saturday evening at their home on Springdale road in Atlanta. Saturday noon Mrs. Frank Cundell, of Atlanta, entertained at the Athletic club in compliment to Mrs. Glenn.

A series of family dinners and luncheons were given this week by Mrs. W. B. Tate, Judge and Mrs. S. H. Sibley, Mrs. T. J. Conner, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan McNeel, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Keeler.

Captain and Mrs. O. D. McNeely have returned to their home in Fort Monroe, Va., after a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Anderson.

Mrs. G. P. Reynolds, Mrs. Ralph Northcutt, Mrs. Campbell Wallace and Mrs. Arthur Williams were among the guests at a luncheon on Tuesday given by Mrs. Floyd Northcutt at her home in Atlanta.

Miss Frances Forrest Smith left this week for New York city, where she will spend the winter and study voice.

Miss Louise Schilling is visiting in Raleigh, N. C., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Rufus Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wyley and children have returned to their home in Franklin, Tenn., after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Worley, on Whitlock avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Mayes leave Wednesday, January 11, for Florida, where they will visit points of interest.

Mrs. C. T. Kennedy and Miss Catherine Kennedy, of Barbersville, Ky., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams on Church street.

Among the students returning to their respective schools this week were Misses Mary and Helen Lawrence, Frances Welsh, Mary Turner, Elizabeth Keeler, Eliza Holmes, Evelyn Latimer, Carolyn Anderson, Creswell Morrisette, Mary Hudgen, Montgomery Anderson, Charles Schilling, Randolph Clairborne, Theodore Holmes and others.

Miss Nancy Brooks Weds Lieut. Sanford.

Colonel and Mrs. William Brooke announce the marriage of their daughter, Alma Ogden (Nancy), to Kenneth Howe Sanford, first lieutenant field artillery, U. S. A., Monday, December 26, 1927, in San Antonio, Texas.

Augusta Woman's Club Gives Georgia Products Luncheon

The Augusta Woman's club was entertained at the January luncheon by the music division, Mrs. W. P. Manning, chairman.

The luncheon featured Georgia products with Mrs. Ralph Griffin chairman of the menu and Mrs. Manning chairman of decorations. At each one of the sixty guests' places was a tiny bouquet formed of a cotton boll with the center of black-eyed peas tied with a green satin bow. In the center of the table was an effective decoration formed of pine needles, sweet potatoes, corn, cotton, peanuts, pecans and rosy apples. This same decoration of Georgia products was used on every table and on the mantels and piano. A delicious luncheon of roast turkey, sweet potatoes, black-eyed peas and other home products was served, ending with Georgia peaches and cream.

Mrs. Bowen Presides.

Mrs. Guy Bowen, president of the club, presided and introduced Mrs. Clarence Duvall, chairman of the art department, who in turn introduced Mrs. Manning, chairman of the music division, who presided over the luncheon during the remainder of the program. The guests were first entertained with three beautiful vocal numbers. L'Amour, Tourjours L'Amour, by Friml; Londonderry Air, by Bibb, and the famous aria, Cara Nome, from Rigoletto, which was brilliantly sung, accompanied in a charming way by Mrs. Garrett.

Mrs. J. M. Hooks, president of the tenth district, from Gordon, was the honor guest of the luncheon and in response to her introduction said in part:

"As we recall the past year and look back upon its record we find it not so very different from other years. Full of joys and sorrows, failures and successes. Happy is he who has met with joy and success and happy should one be if he has had the ability to overcome sorrow and failure. Elbert Hubbard said, 'Responsibilities gravitate to the man who can shoulder them and power to the man who knows how.' Now I have shouldered the responsibility of being your district president, but it remains to be seen whether I have the power to know how or rather, please excuse the slang—if I am big enough for the job.

"If one has done his best and through mistakes has failed, it is only what might happen to anyone. Mistakes make for progress, if we learn the lesson and profit by remembering that 'Not failure, but low aim is crime.' But I am not anticipating failure with the splendid women I have in the tenth district to back me.

"Owing to the Christmas preparations and other duties I have only appointed a few chairmen to serve during my official term. But not one of them has declined. Just as quickly as possible the others will be appointed and I am expecting that while it is almost an impossibility to surpass the splendid work done in previous years, if we can only keep up the standard set by our first district president back in 1912-1915, we shall be satisfied."

In closing her eloquent speech, Mrs. Hooks said: "And now my friends any woman who has been as faithful and done as efficient club work as our own dear Mrs. A. H. Brenner has for years should step higher."

Mrs. A. H. Brenner then gave a talk filled with valuable suggestions on the ideals of the Federation for American Music. She told of the great effort being made by the federated clubwomen of this country to encourage American composers, singers and musicians along all lines. In former times it was considered that the climate of this country was not conducive to fine voices, but it has been proved that the finest voices can be developed in America. It was also considered that the English language did not adapt itself to the words of music, but American operas sung in English are growing more and more popular. Mrs. Brenner also urged that young singers be encouraged to appear before the public and that they be paid for their services—instead of the way it so often is—when people want musical talent for their programs but do not wish to pay for it. Mrs. Brenner is always a forceful and delightful speaker and she was heard with great enjoyment by the guests of the luncheon.

The program closed with a talk by Miss Dorothy Halbert, who told the clubwomen of the wonderful music programs to be given at the Tubman this season, in pursuance of Professor Garrett's desire to familiarize his students with the highest type of music, and urged the cooperation and interest of the clubwomen.

Executive Board Meets.

Preceding the luncheon, the executive board held its regular meeting. Attention was called to the serious illness of Mrs. Edward MacDowell, wife of the eminent composer, who appeared here in a lecture-recital during the past year. A telegram was authorized sent to Mrs. MacDowell, expressing the hope that she might soon be restored to health and expressing the sympathy of the club in her illness.

Mrs. M. C. Baines, chairman of the division of cooperation in the United States Veterans' hospital, located in Augusta, reported that entertainments by local talent were now being given regularly at the new recreation hall. They have also been provided with a number of Victrolas and at the present time one of their greatest needs is Victrola records. Clubwomen not only in Augusta but elsewhere as well are asked to send any Victrola records they might have available for this purpose to Mrs. M. C. Baines and they will be immediately put into use.

Augusta Club Observes Georgia Products' Week

The home economics division of the Augusta Woman's club, Mrs. F. M. Barrett, chairman, observes Georgia Products week. This is a state-wide movement and is being observed in many Georgia cities with elaborate programs. The object of the movement is twofold, first to familiarize the public with the marvelous facts concerning Georgia products, and to induce their use of them.

Possibly few Georgians realize that Georgia heads the union in the diversity of her products. It is hardly possible to think of any product of other states, that is not also raised in Georgia.

Beautiful statuary carved from Georgia marble goes out to the art-lovers of the world—stately mansions are built of it in distant parts of the country—Georgia peaches with their rosy blush and lucious sweetness, are famed from one end of the country to another as is also the Georgia watermelons and Georgia apples.

The staple best known to the world produced in Georgia of course is cotton, but Georgia also becoming known as widely as a great tobacco-growing state. Then there are the wonderful pecans, the humble but universally loved peanut, sweet potatoes unequalled elsewhere, corn—but the list of foodstuffs coud go on indefinitely. And even when it comes to gold and precious stones—Georgia has them. Some day the world will also realize that Georgia has the greatest clay beds in the world, clay that makes the finest vitrified bricks and the daintiest china—just there for the taking and unaffected by weather or climatic conditions. Everything that man needs to sustain life and add to its comfort and beauty can be found right here in Georgia, and the clubwomen of the state hope that this week's observance will start a mighty movement throughout the state of the use of Georgia products by Georgians, and a wide-spread propaganda for Georgia products to be used throughout the country.

Music Features Augusta Club's January Luncheon

Music featured the January luncheon of the Augusta Woman's club, with Mrs. W. P. Manning, chairman of the music division, in charge of the program.

Miss Madeliene King's voice was heard in three vocal numbers, Mrs. T. Harry Garrett accompanying. Mrs. A. H. Brenner spoke on the ideal of the federation for American music, and Mrs. J. H. Hooks, the newly elected president of the tenth district, was guest of honor at the luncheon and gave a brief talk.

The luncheon was in charge of Mrs. R. L. Griffin, who featured Georgia products exclusively in the menu and in the table decorations.

General Federation Executive Board Meets in January

The meeting of the general federation executive board in Washington, D. C., January 9-13, is of national scope. To the national capitol will go women from all over the United States, bringing together from 75 to 100 women.

Mid-Winter Meeting.

To Washington, D. C., will go women from all the states to attend the annual mid-winter meeting of the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, January 9-13. The board of directors will bring together from 75 to 100 women.

Two gifts will be presented to headquarters during the board meeting. This pleasant custom of gift making has gradually added much to the beauty and completeness of equipment at the federation's home, at 1734 N street, northwest. A large American flag will be presented to the General Federation of Women's Clubs by the executive board of Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs in honor of Mrs. John F. Sippel, general federation director from that state. This gift will be especially appreciated, as the federation has no large flag suitable for outside display on national holidays and other gala occasions. A large Sheffield tray has been purchased by the presidents of state federations and will be presented to the headquarters in honor of Mrs. Virginia White Speel, of Washington, D. C., the first presiding officer of the Council of Presidents. The gift will complement the two handsome Sheffield coffee urns presented to headquarters at the board meeting last year by the women of Nebraska.

The board consists of the officers: Mrs. Sherman, president; Mrs. Edward Franklin White, of Indianapolis, first vice president; Miss Florence Dibert, of Johnstown, Pa., second vice president; Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., secretary; Mrs. H. G. Reynolds, of Paducah, Ky., treasurer; a director from each state, the trustees and the chairmen of the eight departments. State federation presidents and division chairmen attend board meetings as conference members. From Georgia will go as president, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson as director.

The executive and other standing committes, the board of trustees, the chairmen of departments, the state presidents and the directors will hold separate meetings Monday and Tuesday. A large reception will be held Tuesday evening, to which senators and congressmen have been bidden, both by the federation and by the director and president of their home state.

Official Business.

Distinguished speakers will address the evening sessions. The mornings and afternoons will be given to the official business of the federation. President and Mrs. Coolidge will receive the board Friday at noon, and in the afternoon pilgrimages will be made to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington national cemetery, and a wreath will be placed, and to Mount Vernon, where the guests will be shown about by Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, youngest child of John Augustus Washington, the last owner of Mount Vernon, and on the return trip a short stop will be made at Christ church in Alexandria, where George Washington worshipped. A large number of women are expected to remain over for the conference on the cause and cure of war, in which the federation is the largest participating organization.

Executive Board Meets February 15

The executive board of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs is called to meet at the Atlanta Woman's club Wednesday morning, February 15, at 9:30 o'clock. Board members are urged not to make other engagements for the day of the board meeting, but to remain through the meeting.

The board of trustees of the Tallulah Falls Industrial school will meet at the Atlanta Woman's club on Tuesday, February 14, from 4 to 10 o'clock.

Mrs. J. E. Hayes Does Not "Choose To Run" for Director.

Montezuma, Ga., January 3, 1928.

Several weeks ago the Montezuma Woman's club, in my absence, did me the honor of suggesting and unanimously indorsing me for director from Georgia to the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Immediately following this, my home town club in Marshallville and the executive board of the third district indorsed me, notices of which appeared on the official club page.

I am most appreciative of this honor and of the confidence expressed not only by these clubs, but also by many friends and club women over the state.

It is always my desire to serve the clubs of Georgia when called upon to do so, but at this time it is impossible for me to accept active service, and in the words of our president, I must reply, "I do not choose to run."

MRS. J. E. HAYS.

State President and Director Will Represent Federation

Mrs. A. P. Brantley, president Georgia Federation Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, director for Georgia, represent the Georgia federation at the annual midwinter meeting of the board of directors of the general federation to be held in Washington, D. C., January 9-13.

The big social affair of the meeting will be the reception which will be held Tuesday evening when the senators and congressmen and their wives and other leading representatives of the official and social life of Washington will be entertained by the federation.

President and Mrs. Coolidge will receive the members of the board Friday at noon. Mount Vernon and Arlington cemeteries will be visited and parties will be made up for other trips to places of interest.

Mrs. Brantley will take part in the state presidents' meeting. The presidents are presenting headquarters with a large silver tray in honor of Mrs. Virginia White Speel, first presiding officer of the presidents.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, director for Georgia, will visit Mrs. Eugene Riley, vice president of the general federation, at her home in Charlotte, N. C., where she will be the guest of honor at a luncheon on Monday and will talk on moving pictures. Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Riley will go to Washington Monday night and Mrs. Richardson will make Georgia's report.

Mrs. Brantley will remain for the conference on the cause and cure of war, which is to be held in the Hall of Nations in the Washington hotel, beginning Sunday after the close of the board meeting.

State President Is Honored By South Georgians

Mrs. A. P. Brantley, Georgia federation president, was honored by her home club in Blackshear and distinguished guests of south Georgia at a reception in the new community house Thursday. All state officers, eleventh district officers and representatives from all clubs in the eleventh district, together with a number of distinguished guests were invited.

An interesting program with women from other women's organizations as speakers was followed by an address from Mrs. Brantley, president of the Georgia federation. Mrs. Cate, Brunswick, president of the eleventh district, followed Mrs. Brantley and expressed the appreciation of the eleventh in having as one of their own in the eleventh district a president who had given four years of splendid and worth while accomplishment to the Georgia federation. The president of the Blackshear Woman's club, Mrs. B. D. Brantley, presided.

Mrs. R. H. Powell, president Georgia State College for Women at Valdosta, was one of the principal speakers. The women of the eleventh district and this splendid institution of which Dr. Powell is the head have ever been in closest sympathy.

The visitors were delighted with the handsome community house which the men of Blackshear have erected with rooms for the Blackshear Woman's club.

Student Aid Foundation Report Made on Club Page

Mrs. Frank Woodruff presents the following report of the Student Aid foundation made to the executive board of Georgia Federation. She says:

Madam President and Other Friends of the Cause: It will gratify you to know that the year 1926-27, from October to October, may be designated as the "banner year" for the student aid foundation. The sum total of the 1926-27 loans is $5,846.50, which is the largest amount loaned in the history of our organization. Eighty-five girls have applied for help, but through an inadequacy of funds we were obliged to disappoint some of them. One hundred and fifty-three loans are now in force, 34 of these being new loans, while 16 have made full repayment of amount borrowed with the additional 4 per cent interest which the girls are cheerfully paying.

Forty-two girls are in school this year. The schools chosen by our student aid girls for 1926-27 present a varied and representative list as the following will show: Twelfth District A. & M. school; LaGrange college; Valdosta normal; Agnes Scott college; Athens State normal; University of Georgia; State College of Agriculture; Georgia State College for Women; Y. W. C. A., New York; Columbia university, New York; Emory university; Teachers' college, New York; Fifth District A. & M.; Anderson college (South Carolina); Carnegie Library school; Berry school, and Bessie Tift college.

The vocations selected by our girls are also interestingly varied, though the majority become teachers. Some choose to pursue Y. W. C. A. activities, some go into social service work, some have made a success of commercial art and an increasing number are trained to become county home demonstrators. Thirty-six cities and towns throughout Georgia are represented in student aid loans this year, which means that each of these widely scattered communities is enriched by the presence of the unusually fine type of self reliant womanhood which student aid develops.

When the State Federation of Clubs met at Albany, as you will doubtless remember, there remained $7 for the completion of the Celeste parish memorial fund of $2,000. This was promptly contributed by the West Point Woman's club, so there has been available this special fund, sacred to the memory of one of Georgia's noblest teachers.

"The grand total of club gifts for the year amounts to $560.50, and, may I ask if, in your opinion, there could be any better investment of funds than in preparing our Georgia girls to meet life's opportunities with such a fine equipment. Since its organization in July 1908, the 'Student Aid' has loaned something over $50,000 with 384 girls who rise up to call it blessed. And now, my parting word to you is a challenge: Will you not let this worthy undertaking in which you have had so fine a part take even stronger hold upon your hearts and minds with a determination to extend the bounds of its usefulness until not one worthy applicant shall appeal in vain for help."

Taylorsville Club Receives Gift Of Deed to Lot

Honorable W. D. Trippe, husband of the late Mrs. Julia Raiford Trippe, who was president of the club at the time of her death, and J. P. Jones, generous and public-spirited citizen of Taylorsville, presented the Feltonian club in the seventh district with a deed to a lot on which to build a clubhouse, in appreciation of the work the women are accomplishing and to encourage them in further promotion of their activities.

Mrs. J. H. Jolly, president of the club, accepted the gift for the organization. The Feltonian club entertained the husbands and a few special guests at a 6 o'clock dinner last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. M. J. Hitchcock.

Mrs. Bird Honors Bowdon Club At Novel Reception

A charmingly planned entertainment was given by Mrs. Henry M. Bird, president of the Bowdon Community club Friday afternoon honoring the members of the club and elderly ladies of the town and community. There are always new and novel ideas in Mrs. Bird's plans of entertainment making her one of the most charming and popular hostesses in town. Holiday decorations were artistically arranged throughout the house. Especially conspicuous in the reception room was the club members' Christmas tree, which held the souvenirs, tiny stockings filled with candies, toys, nuts, etc., also the gifts which are each year exchanged among the club members, and at which time the very elderly ladies of the town and community are remembered.

Miss Dola Johnson assisted the hostess in receiving and presided over the program of the entertainment. An envelope containing five Christmas bells was presented each guest as she arrived with the instructions to collect a bell every time she could elicit an answer of "yes" or "no." This game continued throughout the party. Mrs. Joe G. Smith collected the greatest number of bells and received a pretty vase as prize. Mrs. Withrow was a close second, having collected seventeen bells.

Mrs. F. A. Martin presided at the piano during another amusing game, then the guests were divided into three groups, each group in turn presenting a Christmas pantomine. These splendid impromptu presentations elicited many compliments. Miss Johnson presided at the decorative Christmas tree, reading the names on the packages while Miss Ida Francis Pitts and Master Connie Bird distributed them. Besides the gifts to each one present there were delightful favors passed to all.

The ever-thoughtful hostess, as a memorial, presented a crystal basket of flowers to the Misses Johnson to be placed in their late mother's bedroom. Just before the presentation Mrs. Joe G. Smith read William Ernest Henley's beautiful poem, "So Be My Passing." Mrs. Johnson was one of the beloved elderly women present last year, and was an unusually close friend to the hostess and her own mother.

Climaxing this happy afternoon was the "Last Call for Dinner" when the sliding doors of the dining room were rolled back revealing more of the hostess' charming plans. Piano selections were rendered during the refreshment hour by Misses Frances Holmes and Irene Fowler.

Blackshear Club Indorses Mrs. Brantley.

The Blackshear Woman's club at its regular business meeting today unanimously indorsed Mrs. A. P. Brantley for director in the general federation.

MRS. A. W. MOORE, President.

Mrs. Bun Wylie Stresses Benefits Of Federation

Mrs. Bun Wylie, first vice president and chairman of extension for the fifth district, Georgia Federation of Women's clubs, issues the following card: "United we stand, divided we fall. A club organized for local service only does not measure up to its highest ideals. It must get the vision of a broader horizon which completes and extends its service and its necessity for information for that service. It must recognize that 'in union there is strength.' The voice of the little club is weak and its influence limited, but when it becomes a part of the district, state and general federation its voice is the voice of thousands, there is power undreamed of, and a club which liveth to itself alone does not justify even its brief existence.

"There may be times when a club feels justified in thinking the federation program is too full. The president of the general federation emphasizes the fact that all clubs cannot do all the things outlined in the various departments, but the comprehensive program furnishes inspiration and suggestive information which can be fitted to the local needs of any club. Assembled by specialists in each department, this information is available for any federated club. If your district or state chairman does not furnish the desired literature it may be secured by writing the general federation headquarters in Washington, D. C. As concrete examples, but for the nation-wide survey of home equipment made by the general federation we would not know that Nebraska was the first to act upon this and go definitely to work to take the drudgery from homemaking and give us a plan to work from, but for the test in twenty-three counties we would not know the needs of our helpless and dependent children. Women no longer act upon theory and impulse, but with a definite knowledge.

"What would become of the children of that particular region of our state but for the work of Tallulah Falls school, a federation undertaking? Mrs. Wey of the Student's Aid fund, of which Mrs. Frank B. Woodruff was the originator, lies ill in her home. But the work goes on, with hundreds of girls given their opportunity for an education and a greater usefulness thereby. When we have recognized the benefits derived from federation we must realize our obligations thereto. If your club has accomplished something worth while, send it in concrete form to the state club page for the benefit of other clubs. The strength of the federation lies in the compiled efforts of each individual club for the benefit of all."

Every club in the fifth district is invited to join the federation. Information and blanks may be secured from the chairman, 43 Peachtree Place, N. W.

Mrs. Perry Issues January Greetings

Greetings to the women's clubs of the second district. With the dawn of a new year and the opportunities for "beginning again" at hand, I send you greetings.

The outlook for our work in the second district for the year 1928 is most optimistic. Plans for a complete reorganization are being made and will soon be announced through these columns.

Let's make this a worth while year and be of real service in our communities.

With best wishes to all.

Mrs. H. H. Perry, president of second district women's clubs.

New Year Finds Clubwomen At Work for State Betterment

Georgia clubwomen greet the new year with numbers of achievements to the credit of the individual club and the state federation. Education, civic and statewide betterment, and the splendid advancement of civilization have ever been the theme and purpose of this body of noble women, bonded together to work for humanity.

Meets in February.

The executive board of the Georgia federation is scheduled to meet in February, the date and place to be announced later by the president, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, who calls this august body to assemble, and presides over its sessions. Prominent women from every section of Georgia will foregather for this conference in which action is taken upon important and progressive matters relative to the interest of clubwomen and the welfare program of the state. Representation from 12 districts, and valuable reports will be heard from officers and state chairmen attending the board meeting.

Every clubwoman in the federation has a personal pride and holds in affectionate regard the Tallulah Industrial school, working faithfully and conscientiously towards making contribution to the school's maintenance, as it is through this measure that the school for underprivileged mountain children depends upon its support, coupled with the scholarships and memorial gift funds presented through the board of trustees, of which Mrs. John K. Ottley is president. The student aid fund, under the leadership of Mrs. H. B. Wey and Mrs. Frank Woodruff, continues to aid in the federation's educational program, and is one of the strongest pillars upon which the state organization is builded, its influence being far-reaching and most helpful.

Mrs. Ira Farmer's plans and efforts for home eeconomics have placed this branch of work in the vanguard of educational opportunities. She is state chairman, and as such, Mrs. Farmer is ever on the alert to develop a market for the handicraft, canned products and other home industries of the girls and women on the farm.

Club Institute.

Conspicuous in the most outstanding achievements and giving concrete evidence that Georgia clubwomen are progressing and pushing forward in their program every year is manifest in the club institutes held in the districts, the result of the first one planned by Mrs. John F. McDougald in the fifth district, patterned after the state club institute conducted annually at the summer school of the University of Georgia. Mrs. Lamar Rucker, of Athens, sister of Mrs. McDougald, acted as the first chairman for the state club institute which was held several years ago in Athens. Almost every district was credited with conducting one last year and many individual clubs cooperated and conducted an institute in certain sections of the state, apart from those of the district.

Georgia Products Dinner.

The Quitman Woman's club with Mrs. Albert Tidwell, president, will sponsor a Georgia products dinner in January, the menu following that served by the Georgian Terrace on New Year's day including hog jowl and black-eyed peas, Irish potatoes, candied yams, cauliflower, green peas, lettuce and tomato salad, pumpkin pie. The observation of this plan was successfully launched by Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of Atlanta Federation of Women, in her effort to inspire housekeepers to use the state products once a month, preferably the first Sunday in the menu served that day. The program, if followed, will mean millions of dollars to Georgia. The Quitman Woman's club is raising funds to build a free library and meet the fund stipulated by Carnegie, so that the citizens of that city may enjoy the wonderful privileges offered through such a library. This club is credited with a most original presentation of a woman's fair held in October with other Quitman organizations cooperating with the woman's club to help put the plan over. A goodly sum of $1,000 was realized for the building of the library, and the fair also served to put before the citizens of the eleventh district the strength and progress of its womankind, and their ability expressed in the innumerable exhibits of handcraft and preserving. The fair was patterned exactly like the county fair staged by the men every year.

Midville Woman's club staged a fair in October at the Community House, the exhibits in every department giving ample proof of the resources of the section, as well as the skill of the people. A flower show, arts and crafts department, canned products, and excellently cooked edibles making up the exhibitions.

Athens Club Indorses Mrs. A. P. Brantley And Mrs. Sanford

The members of the Athens Woman's club at the monthly meeting Tuesday, January 3, passed enthusiastic resolutions favoring Mrs. A. P. Brantley as general federation director, and Mrs. S. V. Sanford for state president.

Mrs. Sanford has served for many years as secretary of the Athens club, and has just recently gone out of office as its president, during which time she gave of her time and strength towards the development of all lines of the club work. She was largely instrumental in the organization of the club institute at the University of Georgia; has served as district chairman in the eighth district, besides being second vice president of the state federation. The members feel that she is one fitted well to follow in the way of those other state presidents the Athens club has given to Georgia, the late Mrs. M. A. Lipscomb and Mrs. Harry White.

Presidents' Council Presents Tray.

A beautiful 22-inch Sheffield tray has been purchased by the presidents of state federations and will be presented to the general federation headquarters in honor of Mrs. Virginia White Speel, of Washington, D. C., the first presiding officer of the council of presidents.

The tray, which is now being engraved, will be presented at the meeting of the board of directors in January. Mrs. John L. Alcock, president of Maryland, and Mrs. John McCabe, president of Delaware, constituted the purchasing committee. This handsome gift will complement the two handsome Sheffield coffee urns presented to headquarters at the board meeting last year by the women of Nebraska.

Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, president of Georgia federation, was one of the state presidents having a part in this appropriate gift.

GIRLS OF SCHOOL AGE KEEP IN GOOD HEALTH

They Find Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Dependable Medicine

LOUISE LOUTHAN
ROUTE 2, CHARLESTON, ILLINOIS

From the days of the polonaise to the days of the radio, mothers have given this dependable medicine to their daughters. School girls are often careless. They get wet feet. They overstudy or they tire themselves with too many dances and parties. They get run down.

Many an active girl of today, like the demure maiden of the 1870's, has found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is helping her to find better health and energy.

"I gave my fifteen-year-old girl Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it did her a wonderful lot of good. She had been out of school for four months. I read the advertisements of the Vegetable Compound, and since she has taken it she has improved and has gone back to school again. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other mothers with girls who are not as strong as they should be."—Mrs. Alice Louthan, Route 2, Charleston, Illinois.

"My daughter was out of school two terms. I have known about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all my life and finally decided that she should try it. Three bottles helped her in various ways for the next couple of years."—Mrs. W. E. Gillette, 986 E. 52nd Place, Los Angeles, Calif.

"I have always been sickly, and until I was fourteen my father was very strict about my perfect attendance at grammar school. I have gone to school through hard storms and often taken cold. When I was fourteen I took to my bed and did not get up for eighteen months. Everyone thought I could not live. Just four months ago I began taking your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I could notice a great change almost at once. Now I feel like a new person. I wish all girls would try Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful medicine."—Mrs. C. M. Smith, Union Village, Vermont.

Prominent Georgians Indorsed For High Offices in State D.A.R.

Interesting announcements for the offices of state regent, state, first and second vice regents and state recording secretary are recorded today, the candidates all being widely known and popular members of the state D. A. R. organization. Other announcements for state offices will probably be made in the near future, as all offices expire at the next state conference, which will be held in Augusta in March. An important resolution passed at the conference of last year reads: "Resolved, That it is the judgment of the executive board that nominations for state regent should not be made by chapters earlier than three months prior to the meeting of the conference. When so made they shall be furnished to the state editor for publication."

MRS. GAFFNEY PRESENTED FOR STATE REGENT.

"Columbus Daughters of the American Revolution present the name of Mrs. Herbert Fay Gaffney as a candidate for state regent, to be elected at state conference at Augusta March, 1928. Mrs. J. W. Schuessler, regent Oglethorpe chapter; Mrs. A. N. Murray, vice regent Oglethorpe chapter; Mrs. T. L. Grimes, regent George Walton chapter; Mrs. Orville Harvey, regent Button Gwinnett chapter, and all other chapter officers.

"In presenting Mrs. H. Fay Gaffney, of Columbus, for the high office of state regent of the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution, the three Columbus chapters, Oglethorpe, Button Gwinnett and George Walton, have combined in their candidates all the graces of beautiful womanhood. A woman of much intellectual attainment, Mrs. Gaffney possesses a charm of manner and distinctive personality enjoyed by few, and she numbers her friends by her acquaintances, both in the D. A. R. society and in every other group composed of representative women. Having outstanding executive ability, Mrs. Gaffney covered herself with glory and praise for the brilliant manner in which she so capably managed affairs as chairman of arrangements during the state conference held in Columbus in 1925.

"Mrs. Gaffney has served the D. A. R. organization for 15 consecutive years, her many posts including that of regent, corresponding secretary, historian and registrar, in her own chapter, the Oglethorpe. She has also served as state chairman of Woodrow Wilson day committee and has been on many other important state committees. At the present time Mrs. Gaffney is efficiently serving the organization as state treasurer, an office most significant to the smooth-running of the work of the society and which she has filled to the satisfaction of the entire state. The Oglethorpe, Button Gwinnett and George Walton chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Columbus, are proud of the honor of presenting Mrs. Gaffney as candidate for the office of state regent of Georgia D. A. R., and earnestly solicit the support of every member in the election at state conference at Augusta in March."

MRS. POPE PRESENTED FOR FIRST VICE REGENT.

"The Commodore Richard Dale chapter, D. A. R., of Albany, presents its honored member, Mrs. John D. Pope, as a candidate for the office of state first vice regent, Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution, subject to election at state conference to be held in Augusta March, 1928. To her myriad of friends in Georgia D. A. R. circles and to countless others throughout the state, the announcement of the candidacy of Mrs. Pope for the office of state first vice regent of Georgia D. A. R. will be of intense interest. Gifted with great personal beauty, together with a most charming manner and lovable personality, Mrs. Pope will grace any office to which she aspires. Mrs. Pope was organizing regent of the Commodore Richard Dale chapter, D. A. R., and is honorary life regent of the chapter. She was regent of the chapter for three years, her administration being most successful, during which time much outstanding work was accomplished. In church and civic undertakings in her home city of Albany Mrs. Pope has always taken a leading part.

"For a number of years Mrs. Pope has been a prominent and well-beloved leader in D. A. R. work of the Georgia society, having held the office of state editor for two years, her work commanding the admiration of the entire organization. She served also as state librarian for a term, which required much detail work, but accomplished in a most efficient manner. For the past two years Mrs. Pope has been state second vice regent, which office she filled with grace and ability. In recognition of her services, both to her home chapter and to the state at large, Mrs. John D. Pope is heartily indorsed for the office of state first vice regent of the Georgia society, D. A. R., by the Commodore Richard Dale chapter, of Albany, which requests the support of all Georgia Daughters in the election at the Augusta state conference in March."

MRS. WYLIE PRESENTED FOR SECOND VICE REGENT.

The Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R., presents the name of Mrs. Bun Wylie for the office of the state second vice regent, Georgia D. A. R., subject to the election at the state conference in Augusta, March, 1928. This announcement will be of deep interest to Mrs. Wylie's many friends over the state, with whom she enjoys a wide popularity. An acknowledged leader in patriotic and civic work, both in Atlanta and throughout Georgia, she has served on national and state boards and committees in numerous organizations with honor and distinction.

"For many years Mrs. Wylie has actively served the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution, as chairman of war relief during the world war, as vice regent and regent of the Atlanta chapter, D. A. R.; state chairman of the student loan fund, state recording secretary of the Georgia D. A. R., and in other important positions she has achieved deserved success. At present state recording secretary, Mrs. Wylie's work has been brilliantly accomplished.

"Mrs. Wylie has served the national society, D. A. R., as vice chairman of student loan fund and vice chairman of the Ellis Island committee, both important assignments. As state regent, Daughters of the American Colonists, Mrs. Wylie rendered signal service. She has served as vice president of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., and also secretary of the Atlanta Woman's club, her tenure of office being most successful.

"In appreciation of her ability as an outstanding leader and of her splendid service to the D. A. R. society, the Atlanta chapter asks the indorsement and support of Georgia Daughters for Mrs. Wylie, a woman of much charm of manner and grace of mind, for the office of state second vice regent, Daughters of the American Revolution."

MRS. KNOX PRESENTED FOR RECORDING SECRETARY.

The John Clark chapter, D. A. R., of Social Circle, presents the name of Mrs. Mell Knox for the office of state recording secretary, D. A. R., subject to the election at state conference in Augusta, March, 1928.

"The above announcement from the John Clarke chapter, D. A. R., which presents Mrs. Mell Knox for the important office of state recording secretary of the Georgia society, D. A. R., will strike a popular chord, owing to the love and high esteem in which she is held in the D. A. R. circles all over the state.

"Mrs. Knox has served her home chapter in almost every office, including chapter regent, chapter registrar and holding important chairmanships at different times. She also has been state chairman of numerous committees, among them being the Georgia room in Administration building at Washington, during which time she successfully raised $1,500 in one year for the work, which was an outstanding achievement. Mrs. Knox has served several times on the state resolutions committee, and during the state conference at Columbus was acting recording secretary in the absence of the regular official.

"As state editor, Mrs. Knox's administration was a distinct success, the publicity work of the Georgia D. A. R. being in most capable hands. It will be recalled that she was the efficient teller in the victorious election of Mrs. Howard H. McCall to the office of vice president general a few years ago. At the present time Mrs. Knox holds the office of state consulting registrar, which she has graced with distinctive ability.

"The John Clarke chapter, D. A. R., requests the indorsement and active support of Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution for Mrs. Knox, their candidate for the office of state recording secretary of the Georgia society."

State Chaplain Sends New Year Message

In 1928 may every Georgia Daughter of the American Revolution live joyously, work heartily, a praise God from whom all blessings flow.

Mrs. George Walker Jordon, state chaplain Georgia D. A. R., Hawkinsville, Ga.

State Chairman Requests Reports.

Mrs. George Riley, state chairman of the committee on Woodrow Wilson day, sends in a request that all chapters who observed the anniversary of Woodrow Wilson send in a report to her. Many chapters fittingly celebrated the natal day of this great American, and those are asked to report to the state chairman. The letter follows: "As your state chairman of Woodrow Wilson day, I am asking you to please report to me your program given in honor of our war president. Last year many chapters gave portraits to adorn the walls of classrooms, prizes were offered for essays on his life, and appropriate public celebrations were held in churches and auditoriums. I am anxious to report to state conference that every chapter dedicated their December meeting to Woodrow Wilson.

"Mrs. George G. Riley, state chairman Woodrow Wilson day, Dawson, Georgia."

AS FOUR WOMEN HEAR IT

DESIRING TO PLAY a part in the general scheme of life, and realizing that pleasure is not the only desideratum, Mrs. Jack Hayes, the former Miss Eva Wilby, of Atlanta, has become a leading realtor in Washington, D. C., the home of her adoption. For the past two and one-half years, ever since the death of her husband, the late Colonel Jack Hayes, U. S. A., she has successfully engaged in the real estate business in the national capital, selling more than a hundred houses as well as renting approximately that number. Mrs. Hayes conducts her business ventures with absolutely no overhead expense, advertising not at all, using no "For Rent" signs, carrying on her business conversations over the telephone at her home, 1831 Belmont road, N. W., making engagements with prospective customers having been advised of Mrs. Hayes' career and ability by word of mouth from mutual friends.

So capable and efficient is this charming southerner, that in less than twenty-four hours, she can house and settle a family arriving in Washington for residence, and in view of the fact that she keeps a list of desirable furnished and unfurnished houses and apartments, she can immediately fill the needs of any army officers ordered there for a new detail, being considered an authority on renting homes for members of the service. Among the first of Mrs. Hayes' accomplishments in realty were the sale of Secretary of War Weeks' house and getting the Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider and his family settled. She has transacted business with Major General G. S. Gibbs, the new chief signal officer; Major General Andrew Hero, Jr.; Major General James E. Fechet, Major General William J. Snow, Brigadier General Briant H. Wells, Senator W. F. George, of Georgia; Senator H. B. Hawes, Congressman T. W. Phillips, Brigadier General Chase Kennedy, Charles Fairfax Long, Administrator W. H. G. Bullard, Brigadier General Frank R. Keefer, General William D. Mitchell, and any number of colonels and junior officers of the army and navy.

Having been born in Atlanta, educated at Washington seminary and Salem college in Virginia, Mrs. Hayes has inherited the traditional charm of the southern woman, combined with that elusive attribute—personality. She has traveled all over the world, and during the lifetime of Colonel Hayes, they were stationed in the Philippines and Hawaiian Islands. Smart, gracious and cultured, Mrs. Hayes, whose amazing adaptability is the secret of her successful business venture, finds time to accept social invitations extended her from the white house, and other lesser dignitaries prominently identified with Washington society. She lives with her mother, Mrs. Wilby, and Jack Hayes, her only son, at the Belmont road home where she dispenses the far-famed hospitality which always characterized her residence in Atlanta.

MOVING AS A goddess and looking like a queen, the grace of her carriage emphasized by shimmering satin bridal robes, and as they say in fashion letters, all accessories matching, Mrs. William Chambers Barnes plighted her troth in St. Luke's Episcopal church last Monday evening in the edifice where several generations of brides in her maternal family have wedded. She was a picture of brunette loveliness surrounded by the charming bevy of bridesmaids whose gowns were of the most fascinating robe de style model in peach-colored tulle, offset with the green tulle costumes of Miss Sarah Kunzig, the maid of honor, the bride and bridesmaids forming an entrancing tableau at the altar.

And such a happy groom! He was the cynosure of all eyes in the brilliant assemblage, being escorted to the altar steps by his handsome best man, Allen F. Moore, Jr., of Ottawa, Ill., awaiting the fair bride and her father, Dr. John W. Somerville, his pleasing countenance wreathed in smiles, and every word he uttered when he took his marriage vows could be heard by those spectators seated in the lapews in the church.

It offered a pleasurable occasion to admire and greet the youthful daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kunzig, of Mont Vernon, N. Y., and the only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Watts, of Charlottsville, Va., numbered among the personnel of the bridal party including those etherial blonde beauties, Misses Sarah and Ethel Kunzig, and Miss Sarah Peel Watts. And it was interesting to watch Miss Maria Brown leave the altar with her tapering fingers resting on the arm of her fiance, Thomas Blake, of Orlando, Fla. Some of the guests suspected the romance existing between Mrs. Catherine Gay Sanders, a cunning little person, and Ryburn G. Clay, distinguished vice president of the Fulton National bank, which culminated two days later in their own wedding, as there were many tell-tale glances exchanged between the pair standing opposite to one another during the ceremony and as they passed down the aisle together after the ceremony. They stole away from the Biltmore reception less than fifteen seconds after their arrival at the hotel to make their plans for the interesting event of last Wednesday.

Great was the disappointment thereof when the delicious, exquisitely embossed wedding cake was cut, for not a single symbol could be found. As the bride, Mrs. Moore and the future Mrs. Blake knew all about their destinies, it certainly would have proven most interesting to learn all about the fortunes of the other brides maids.

Alluring Mrs. Allen F. Moore, Jr., of Ottawa, Ill., schoolmate of the bride's when she attended Miss Finchers' school in New York, and at whose home she met her husband, made a host of friends during her Atlanta visit. She possessed a gracious manner, a flashing smile, and left a deep and abiding impression behind her, as did the groom's charming mother, Mrs. Albert Barnes, of Decatur, Ill., and his cultured sister, Mrs. John Evins, of Chicago.

MADGE KENNEDY, the auburn-haired, brown-eyed actress who so delighted audiences at the Erlanger last spring, made a hit on Broadway last week in Philip Barry's "Paris Bound." The play deals with a very solid plot about married life, wherein two young people just about to take the orange blossom trail and undergo the usual shower of rice, swearing to one another that nothing on earth shall ever part them, and agreeing that if either of them snatches at light loves as they travel life's roadway, it really ought not to make any difference.

But six months later when the man snatches in secret, she quite naturally felt like something had smashed. Although her husband's father tells her that a casual slip is the one slip that can do the least harm of all, she remains crushed and heart-broken until the same thing almost happens to her as well. She is set on a divorce; she is "Paris Bound," but suffice it to say, she never reaches the French courts.

ANOTHER OF THAT memorable group of debutantes of 1924-25 is about to relinquish her single blessedness! She blushingly admits it and extends her left hand for you to see the sparkling solitaire on her third finger.

The wedding is not to occur for some time yet, for the groom-to-be, also an Atlantan and scion of one of the state's best-known families, is residing in another state, though a nearby one, just at present, acting as representative of a local corporation.

Their romance is one of long standing, having budded and blossomed when both were still in school. The charming bride-to-be bears a name no less distinguished in local annals than that of her fiance, being the only daughter in a popular household.

THE "YOUNGER FRY" are not the only ones who welcomed the recent freeze, despite its discomfort, for the chilling hours of early morning found many of Atlanta's prominent business men, who ordinarily give no thought to frolicing, hurrying to Piedmont park as soon as the word "got out" that the ice would hold.

A trio of P. B. M., known in the world of finance for their acumen and substantiality, who are always on hand when the lake freezes, include Robert W. Davis, Arthur Clarke and Thomas Daniel. They skate with gay abandon, like irresponsible children, and their fancy steps are worth going miles to see.

A happy family foursome seen in smart skating togs each morning the first of the week on the lake were Mrs. Gilham Morrow, Miss Martha Morrow and Porter Morrow, Jr., and Porter Langston, Jr.

Miss Elizabeth Collier was seen each day keeping step in graceful motion with her father, Charles Collier, who is an expert on the ice.

These skaters all agree that it's too bad we have a freeze like the one just passed once in a blue moon, but they make good use of it while it lasted, skating from early morn to late evening.

FOUR WOMEN are growing somewhat suspicious that a love affair is existing between a certain middle-aged widow and widower, who are both prominent Atlantans, each of whom has suffered the loss of a life partner.

We, ourselves, think that it would be an ideal match. Both are representatives of aristocratic southern families, their characteristics along cultural, civic and social phases, being similar. To add further intrigue to the romance, one of us had been informed that the gentleman in question would wed another in the merry month of June. But, cupid plays funny tricks and no doubt, the little love god smiled to himself and knew all the time that the former romance would be shattered.

Of course this is all chatty chat—but the Yuletide season revealed that they enjoy each other's companionship, for we encountered them together at numerous holiday gayeties. Then, too, the emphatic denial by each of an existing romance adds to our suspicions.

ANOTHER PROMINENT Atlanta society matron has succumbed to the lure of a business career. Mrs. Henry Clay Burr began the new year by launching into the realm of business. In assuming the duties as advisor in jewelry and silver at the well-known Latham and Atkinson jewelry establishment, Mrs Burr is following in the footsteps of her father, the late James Crawford Freeman. As head of the Freeman and Crankshaw Jewelry Co., which was considered one of the finest jewelry shops in the south, Mr. Freeman was an expert authority of silver and jewels.

Possessing a natural love for exquisite jewelry as well as inheriting a knowledge for the intrinsic value of precious stones and costly silver, Mrs. Burr's success in her chosen vocation is assured.

In her new venture this beloved and popular matron has the best wishes of numberless friends who await the opportunity of her assistance in the selection of a wedding gift or in the choosing of an anniversary present.

Beautiful Chattanooga Deb

Miss Dorcas Hutcheson, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who made her debut at a brilliant reception given in December by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hutcheson, at their home on Missionary ridge. She was also honor guest at a brilliant ball given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hutcheson, at the Read house in Chattanooga. This lovely, beautiful debutante arrives in Atlanta Tuesday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGonigal at their home on Andrews drive, and will be entertained at a series of social gaities. She is a graduate of Miss Finch's fashionable school in New York, and was voted the most beautiful student.

Women's Organizations Favor Georgia Products Movement

Following in line with most of the women's clubs throughout Georgia, the Augusta Woman's club at their January luncheon featured Georgia products. Mrs. Ralph Griffin was chairman of the menu, and the decorations were in the hands of Mrs. W. P. Manning. Instead of flowers, Mrs. Manning placed a center piece of lustrous pine needles banked with sweet potatoes, peanuts, pecans, cotton and rosy-cheeked apples. At each guest's place was a little corsage formed of a full-blown cotton boll, the fleecy staple of which was centered with black-eyed peas and caught with a little green satin bow. A delicious luncheon, featuring Georgia products, with roast turkey as the piece de resistance, was served, with a dessert course of Georgia peaches and cream.

Mrs. Guy Bowen, president of the club, presided, and introduced Mrs. Clarence Duvall, chairman of the art department, who introduced Mrs. W. P. Manning, chairman of the music department, who had charge of the program.

The movement to have Georgia products used exclusively the first Sunday of each month during 1928 was inaugurated by Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and is meeting with cordial response by women's patriotic, civic and federated club organizations.

State officers of the Parent-Teacher association favor it and the home economics chairman of the Augusta Woman's club is seeking the cooperation of local retail grocers and hopes to have signs and placards indicating Georgia products that are offered for sale on the Saturday preceding the first Sunday of each month.

Mrs. Bowen, the chairman of the Augusta Woman's club, states that all "Georgia products" movement deserves the individual support of loyal Georgia women. Mrs. Homer Ricketson announces that the Broxton Woman's club indorses "Georgia products" for Georgia and that members of this club have pledged individual support in having Georgia products served exclusively in their homes the first Sunday of every month. The hotels, restaurants and boarding houses of Donaldsonville are cooperating with clubwomen of that city in promoting the use of Georgia products and have agreed to serve all Georgia-raised table foods on the first Sunday of each month. The "Georgia products" movement is being directed in Donaldsonville by Mrs. J. L. Deekman, who is in accord with this state project.

Mrs. J. S. Cobb, president of the Ellijay Woman's club, states that this organization indorses the "Georgia products" for Georgians. Each individual member of this club has been urged to notify her grocer to provide "Georgia products" the Saturday preceding the first Sunday of each month.

This movement is being promoted throughout Georgia by the state bureau of markets. Every Georgia woman is urged to participate in this movement individually.

Y.W.C.A. Resumes Social Activities And Meetings

Among outstanding activities at the local Y. W. C. A. during January will be the legislative meetings of the industrial department, which, under the leadership of Miss Mary Moss, will devote the month to the study of legislation in Georgia. For three meetings the department has secured the services of Miss Josephine Wilkins, who was prominent in the work of the children's code commission last summer. Miss Wilkins will talk at three meetings, and at the last, a mock legislature will be held to show the actual process of making and passing laws in Georgia.

The industrial committee will hold its mid-year meeting January 16 with a dinner at 6 in the evening.

Another dinner in the realm of Y. W. workers will be the Georgia Products dinner, which is to be a weekly affair at the Y. W. C. A. residence. Last Sunday the first of these dinners was given, and on the first Sunday in each month only Georgia products will be served in the residence.

Of importance to all board members is the announcement of a board meeting at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning, at Y. W. C. A. headquarters, 37 Auburn avenue.

The Fulton High club of Girl Reserves meets Wednesday, January 11, and will have as its subject "World Fellowship." This program is in the charge of Annie May Walker.

The Decatur High girls meet Tuesday, January 10, with "Health" as the subject of the meeting. The Amicus Girl Reserves club meets Thursday evening, January 12, with a New Year's program as the feature of the evening. At East Point the High School Girl Reserves club meet January 9 for a New Year's program.

During the week the following meetings will take place at the Y. W. C. A. headquarters, 37 Auburn avenue: Tuesday, the Blue Triangle; Thursday, the Amicus club; Friday, the Blue Triangle No. 2, and the James L. Key club.

Tony Sarg's Marionettes Appear At Woman's Club January 20

Tony Sarg's Marionettes, those versatile little wooden-headed actors who in past seasons have cavorted about on their tiny stage in such plays as "Don Quixote" and "Treasure Island," will visit in Atlanta under the auspices of the Fine Arts club, Friday afternoon and evening, January 20, at the Woman's club auditorium, presenting their newest production, entitled "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," adopted from the good old Arabian Nights legend. This popular fantasy of old Bagdad lends itself particularly well to Marionette interpretation and from all accounts Mr. Sarg and his skilled staff of workers have surpassed themselves in this, their latest production.

The newest production abounds with the fascinating puppet "tricks," as well as boasts of the most marvelous doll ever devised. Her name is "Morgiana," the beautiful slave girl who dances for the amusement of "Ali Baba." To manipulate this remarkable puppet requires thirty-two almost invisible strings. Two experienced operators are required to handle her, and have to be able dancers themselves in order to convey the impression of real dancing talent to the Marionette they operate.

The new production has many puppet animals. Perhaps the most important of these is the white elephant upon which the sultan rides. The elephant can do all the tricks with his trunk that a real live elephant can do, including picking up an apple and eating it while waiting for his master. A writer in the "Outlook" recently said rather aptly, "If Mr. Sarg comes within the field of possible observation, anyone who fails to see his puppet show will be depriving himself of a real and stimulating pleasure."

Ideas That Are New.

FASHIONS that are lovely, style that is undisputed. These are the things that a woman wants and these are the things that a woman finds in the shoes displayed by the Mirror Shoe Department.

I needed a new pair of black slippers so I went to the Mirror Shoe Department, and there I found a pair of black satin shoes—"Ruth" it is called—that could be worn on the street but are better suited for semi-evening or for wear with any chic, dressy costume.

Low cut and spiked heel, a black satin elastic gore over the instep, ornamented with a diamond-shaped buckle of rhinestones, this single ornament makes of this shoe a striking slipper of rare beauty.

Another late arrival was a satin D'Orsay step-in, black satin vamp and heel, with honey beige silk quarter; a keystone kid collar with a gold rhinestone buckle. "It" is the name of this charming step-in pump. Chic, daring, smart, it is all that it's name implies.

The shoes on display at the Mirror have many qualities that are outstanding. First of all they are exceptionally good quality; second, the styles are smart and new and, last but not least, the prices are moderate, enabling the modern girl to have four or five pairs of shoes to correspond with her varied wardrobe. Visit the Mirror and you will be just as enthused over these smart slippers as I am.

The "Aviator" is the name given a very new veil—because of the long sections which come over the ears.

* * * *

The circular veil is shown with both a silk and a metal scroll border.

* * * *

Capes and scarfs are prominent in southern resort clothes.

* * * *

One of the most striking evidences of a more feminine mode is the return to fashion of the veil, which, it is reported is very strong in Paris and which is worn by any number of the best dressed women.

Furs of Distinction.

ALL good things come to those who wait, they say, and this is forcefully illustrated by the fact that Chamberlin-Johnson Fur Department are having a stupendous sale, and those who have not purchased a fur coat or scarf so far this season can now do so at a great saving. Some are reduced as much as 50%. These are real reductions, marked to half of the original price.

The furs in this department are of such wonderful quality that they cannot be surpassed and it would be well worth your while to buy a coat or scarf now and save it until next winter.

Due to the exceptionally warm weather the first of the season, furs have not been purchased as readily as was anticipated, which gives a most complete stock to select from.

After seeing the exceptional values I would advise anyone interested in buying furs to attend the sale at Chamberlin-Johnson Fur Department.

Frohsin's on Whitehall St.

ARE having their usual January clearance sale which is indeed of interest to women of taste and individuality.

For years Frohsin's, on Whitehall street, has been the mecca of women of the fashionable world, and each year at the close of the season, the exquisite frocks that are typical of "Frohsin's" gowns, dressy coats, sport coats, silk underwear, etc., are assembled and radically reduced for a quick clearance.

Reductions on such high standard merchandise creates unusual buying opportunities for those who can appreciate style, quality and value. This Frohsin's clearance is famous, for it has been an event of the season for almost half a century.

In view of Frohsin's policy to start each season with new merchandise, the reductions are so radical that no one can resist to choose an ultra smart coat, or a beautiful frock or gown at these low prices.

It will be to your interest to visit Frohsin's, on Whitehall street, during this event as the quantities are limited: therefore early choosing is advisable.

Fifth District P.-T. A. Meeting Featured by Clever Playlet

A clever playlet, "Come Into the Kitchen," written by Mrs. Charles Sheldon and presented by members of the Bass Junior High School P.-T. A., was an entertaining feature of the fifth district P.-T. A. meeting Wednesday. Written to advertise the P.-T. A. cook book, which is now ready for distribution, it most adequately fulfilled its mission.

The meeting featured the departments of extension, Mrs. John Lloyd, chairman; public welfare, Mrs. Charles Center, chairman; education, Mrs. W. V. Kingdon, chairman. These officers presented the chairman of division work, who furnished a program of suggestions for work with outstanding achievement in many lines. Mrs. F. A. Johnson, chairman of church P.-T. A., gave a splendid resume of the need for associations in the Sunday schools. An appeal for the direction of the spiritual growth of the child along with the mental and physical and artistic was most ably presented. Mrs. D. E. Moncrief, chairman of legislation, presented Miss Sara Graham-Mulhall, of New York, who spoke of the narcotic evil as it affected children. Mrs. B. H. Mathews, chairman of recreation, will have the talk on "Wise Use of Leisure," by W. A. Sutton, multigraphed so that each association may have a copy. Mrs. B. M. Smith, chairman of citizenship, urged upon the members the necessity of registering and voting if they expected to have any desired legislation enacted.

Mrs. Kingdon presented E. P. Ensloe, whose suggestions on visual education will be given more fully at a later date.

Orchestra Plays.

Miss Ruth Weigand, chairman of music, as a concrete example of good music in the home and community presented the orchestra from the S. M. Inman school, made up of pupils from the third through the fifth grades, thirty in number and directed by Miss Muldrew, these children played a program including selections from Schubert, Beethoven and Mozart that would have been creditable to musicians of any age.

Mrs. Katherine Weathersby, chairman of humane education, stated the literature of the American Humane society would be furnished without cost to anyone applying to the chairman. Her address may be secured from Mrs. Baynard Willingham, president of the fifth district. She called attention to national "Be Kind to Animals Week" in April. Mrs. J. B. Hosmer, chairman of posters, stated the prizes for posters to be awarded at the state convention will be announced soon. Mrs. J. Q. Hooper, chairman of illiteracy, showed a reduction of 50 per cent in the illiteracy of Georgia from 1910 to 1920, but an increase in certain sections. She asks that illiteracy chairmen be appointed at once in all associations and the names forwarded to her, 531 Holderness street. Mrs. Kate Jolly gave a masterly presentation of the needs and problems of the kindergartens. W. A. Sutton gave as the objectives in education, health, character, scholarship, cooperation. This will be presented more fully later.

Noted Speakers.

Mrs. P. H. Jeter, president, Georgia division, P.-T. A., announced that Dr. Ernest Groves, noted psychologist, and Dr. Newell Edson, secretary of the Social Hygiene Association of America, would be among the speakers at the state P.-T. A. convention which will be held in Atlanta April 10-12.

At the luncheon following the meeting, presided over by Mrs. Baynard Willingham, fifth district president, Dr. W. A. Smart, professor of Biblical theology of Emory university, was introduced by Mrs. Kingdon and in a talk on "Legislation versus Home Training," brought home the responsibilities of parents in a way that caused pause for thought.

Local P.-T. A. Council Meeting Addressed by Prominent Speakers

The Atlanta P.-T. A. council, in a meeting Thursday, requested every parent interested in Atlanta schools to appear at the city hall Tuesday, January 10, at 3 p. m. when the finance committee of council will meet to consider the budget offered that body by the board of education. George W. Powell, newly-elected president of the school board, and ex-Councilman Horace Russell addressed the council, expressing belief that the city would provide the necessary funds and asking the continued cooperation of the P.-T. A. Mr. Russell called attention to an article on the work of the board of education by D. M. Therrell, former member, which can be secured from the office of the secretary of the board. Mrs. Charles J. Foster, president of the P.-T. A. council, asked that all members of the associations vote in the election of January 12.

Milk Fund Committee.

A milk fund committee, Mrs. E. S. Smith, Mrs. Hugh Hanson and Mrs. Percy Jones, was appointed to cooperate with the school lunch committee. A request was sent to the public service commission asking a modification of the rules governing the tickets for school children on the Atlanta street cars. W. A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, announced that February would be Georgia month in the schools, when historic spots would be visited, famous Georgians studied, and the children familiarized with the many noted scientists and other famous men and women who have contributed to history. Contributions to the child welfare fund are to be sent to Mrs. H. Rowiszer, 537 East avenue, N. E. Half of this fund is retained by the state. All funds must be sent through council chairmen who will forward to the district.

Pre-School Work Lauded.

Mrs. Foster read from a letter of the national president, Mrs. Reeves, in the current issue of the Child Welfare Magazine the tribute to Georgia's pre-school work. Mrs. E. Willingham Smith, asked for aid for the school lunches, aid formerly received for this work having been withdrawn. Mrs. W. V. Kingdon read the list of those eligible to membership in the Presidents' club. These are past presidents of the Presidents' club, presidents of fifth district and council, local presidents, associate members, past presidents of local association, past presidents of council. The vice president may represent the president in her absence.

National P.-T. A. To Have Part In N. E. A. Meeting in February

The national congress will have an interesting share in the great meeting of the department of superintendence of the National Education association in Boston, Mass., in February. The national president has been invited to speak on the general program, in the section on cities between 10,000 and 100,000, and in the home economics conference. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance from New England and the middle Atlantic states. If desired, a special conference for parent-teacher workers will be arranged during the week of February 25 and March 3.

Because of the rapid extension of the work of the congress in the country, the manager of the rural bureau, Miss Florence Ward, has arranged a conference of rural work for two days preceding the board meeting, April 26 and 27, at the Hotel Cleveland. Nationally known men and women will be present to discuss the sevenfold program of home and school as it relates to rural interests and the opportunity for informal discussion with leaders in this field will be a most unusual one.

Mrs. Felix Bryan Gives Bridge Luncheon.

Mrs. Felix Bryan entertained at a bridge luncheon at the Carlton hotel Friday afternoon. The oblong table held as a center piece a low mound of pink roses, sweet peas and maiden hair fern. At each end of the table were small mounds of the same flowers.

The following were guest; Mesdames A. J. DiCristina, Louise Windham, Carl Wesley, Herbert Donaldson, Clarke Donaldson, Louis Aenchbacher, Wayne Leary, F. H. Bosler, F. A. Bosler, R. L. Lamb, Skeet Brinson, Bill Morgan, John Aiken, W. D. Holleman, Guy Simmons, Frank Lewis, Walter Brady, H. C. Benson, J. M. Clyatt, C. E. Jones, Misses Florence Tumlin and Nettie Fagan.

Top score, a tapestry picture, was won by Mrs. Herbert Donaldson, Mrs. Aenchbacher had second score, and was given a bridge set. Consolation was cut by Mrs. Frank Lewis and she was given a lovely vase. Low score was made by Mrs. John Aiken and she was presented with a box of stationery.

Parent-Teacher Meetings

The College Park P.-T. A. meets at the Woman's club Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. D. C. Lyle, program chairman, announces that Miss Frances Carter, principal of the Temple Avenue school, will be the speaker and that Miss Athelene Childs, of the West Side school, will present a program featuring the second grade children of that school.

The public is urged to attend. Tea will be served by Mrs. Fred Pearson and her committee.

The North Avenue Presbyterian school will have its Parent-Teacher meeting Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the school auditorium.

The William A. Bass Junior High P.-T. A. meets Wednesday afternoon, January 11, in the auditorium at Moreland school. A play, "Come Into the Kitchen," written by Mrs. Charles Sheldon will be given by some of the mothers, to be followed by a reception for the teachers.

The daddies' meeting of E. Rivers P.-T. A. will be held in the auditorium of the school Tuesday evening, January 10, at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. High Moor will speak on "Worth While Home Membership." Blue prints of the plans for the new athletic field will be on hand for inspection. The kindergarten will be open, showing its modern equipment. Each school room will also be open for inspection.

The executive board meeting of the Joel Chandler Harris P.-T. A. meets at the school Tuesday morning, January 10, at 10 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Mrs. P. H. Jeter, state president of the P.-T. A., will speak on "Worthy Home Membership," at the regular meeting of the Ponce de Leon P.-T. A. Wednesday afternoon, January 11, at 3 o'clock in the school auditorium. Dorothy Ramspeck and Kathleen Elkin will give readings. The meeting will be presided over by Mrs. Julius Lennard, president.

The Hapeville P.-T. A. pre-school circle postponed the regular meeting Tuesday, January 3, on account of the intense cold weather. The meeting will be held Monday afternoon, January 9, from the home of Mrs. W. M. Schneider at 2:30 o'clock. Every mother is urged to attend.

The Oakhurst P.-T. A. meets Wednesday afternoon, January 11, at 2:30 o'clock in the school auditorium. An interesting program has been prepared.

The daddies' meeting of Kirkwood P.-T. A. meets Tuesday evening, January 10, at 7:30 o'clock in the school auditorium. A program of interest to fathers is planned. The speaker of the evening will be the Hon. E. D. Rivers, of Lakeland, vice president of the state senate.

The mothers of the seventh grade and high school students of East Point and College Park will be honor guests at the meeting of the Fulton High School P.-T. A. which will be held Thursday afternoon, January 12, at 2:30 o'clock in the school auditorium. Mrs. L. T. Carter, program chairman, has arranged a very interesting meeting and a large attendance is anticipated.

A daddies' meeting will be held by the Parent-Teacher association of Grant Park school Tuesday evening, January 10, at 8 o'clock. W. A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, will be the speaker for the occasion.

The pre-school department of the Atlanta P.-T. A. council meets Wednesday, January 11, at 11 o'clock in the school room of M. Rich & Bros. Co. Written reports of the December circle meetings will be called for.

The executive board of Joe Brown High P.-T. A. meets Friday afternoon, January 13, at 3 o'clock in the school.

Luckie Street P.-T. A. Stresses Health Campaign

The milk and health campaign that is being carried on through the month of January in the Atlanta public schools was stressed at the meeting of the Luckie Street School P.-T. A. held Wednesday, in the school auditorium, when children of Miss Thrasher's low two grade presented a playlet, "Drink Milk." Each child held a poster in the shape of a milk bottle, with the letters composing the words "Drink Milk."

Children of Miss Ruby McCorkle's low five grade dramatized Uncle Remus' Br'er Rabbit and de Tar Baby and the children of Miss Ethel Cockerel's low four grade gave a clap dance.

Count of mothers gave first prize to Miss Thrasher's low two grade and Howard tickets to Miss Cockerel's low four grade.

I. N. Ragsdale P.-T. A. Urges Regular Banking

"The only objective for banking in the school is the formation of the habit of regular saving," stated Miss Fannie Spahr, principal of the I. N. Ragsdale school at the P.-T. A. meeting held Wednesday afternoon at the school building. "The weekly bank day makes the child accustomed to the habitual putting aside of his few pennies to make a goodly sum for himself. No amount is stressed," continued Miss Spahr. "It is simply the saving week by week by the child even though the sum be small, indeed."

After Miss Spahr's talk, Mrs. H. G. Thorne suggested that the children be encouraged to earn the money for their school banks. She stated that mothers could arrange tasks for their children or plan means by which the children might earn a small sum to take to school on the weekly bank day. "In this way," said Mrs. Thorne, "the bank money would have a much greater value to the child than if the parents simply gave him various sums from week to week."

Mrs. David E. Barnett, principal of the association, in a well-chosen talk extended greetings of the New Year to the teachers and patrons of the school. She expressed her appreciation of the splendid work done by the association and urged cooperation for the work of the coming year.

The announcement of a meeting of the pre-school circle, with Mrs. Jefferes as chairman, Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock, met with a happy response from the mothers of the younger children. A course of study has been planned and round table talks will prove of additional value to the mothers.

A regular feature of the meetings of the association is the Question Box. This box was installed at the suggestion of Mrs. Barnett to enable the patrons to ask questions concerning their children, school work, rules or anything pertaining to the school and the child. The faculty consented to answer these questions and discuss them at the monthly meetings of the associations.

The Mills drive is proving a success throughout the school. The children of the lower grades are requested to drink four cups of milk daily, the milk obtained at the school is to be included as a part of the required amount.

Four of the pupils, Florence Stevenson, Rosa Peck, Mary Elizabeth Eyrick and Marie Gordon, entertained the children who were brought to the meeting by their mothers.

Much work has been done by the different grades to insure a large attendance as each grade desired the attendance prize. Low sixth, with Miss Hurtel as the teacher, proved the winner with a total count of 19 mothers present.

Tenth St. P.-T. A. Hears Health Talk By Dr. Applewhite

The first meeting of the new year was well attended at Tenth Street school Tuesday. As Mrs. P. H. Jeter, state president of P.-T. A., and Professor Sutton have stressed the health program for the public schools, Dr. T. B. Applewhite, health officer of Macon and Bibb county, was the chosen speaker for the afternoon. He gave a thorough report of his work in Macon and vicinity since 1923. The basis of his work is vital statistics and the information collected in Macon in 1923 showed serious conditions existing among the school children, while even now the pre-school age child is often being neglected from a health standpoint. He found in his county a high infant mortality rate and too many deaths from diphtheria, typhoid fever and tuberculosis. The first disease is being reduced by toxin-antitoxin and the last two by a splendid sanitary program, so that his city is rating nearer normal in rates of death and disease at the present time. The city of Macon is now financing X-rays for its underweight school children and providing open air schools for them and thus effecting cures, and greatly increasing school attendance. Also the health department is working for a better milk and meat supply for the community and the result of this work has been a greatly reduced death rate.

The association answered an appeal from the Atlanta P.-T. A. council and pledged $10 per month in free-will offerings to be furnished to children in poorer districts, where they were underfed.

Mrs. Newport, principal, announced that tickets for enrollment in kindergarten were ready for children wishing to enter school in February.

The classes having most parents present were: Low 1, Miss Berman; high 1, Miss Arnall; high 3, Mrs. Adamson; low 5-1, Mrs. Pennington.

GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, VICE-PRESIDENT BELVIDERE BROOKS, VICE-PRESIDENT

Received at The Journal Bldg., 7 N. Forsyth St., Atlanta Always Open

Fond Du Lac., Wis.

SATTERWHITE FURNITURE CO.
Atlanta, Ga.

It's our mistake. Freight or storage costs too high. Prefer to take our losses there. Put entire car refrigerators on sale. Regardless costs. Will be there Monday to supervise sale.

C. E. HOWARD, Sales Mgr.,
Gurney Refrigerator Co.

$5 to $10 for your old Refrigerator

The telegram above tells the whole story—the Gurney Factory made the mistake—shipped a solid car of Refrigerators two months too soon—they don't want to pay return freight charges or pay storage here—and we haven't the room to keep them—so the Gurney sales manager is coming to supervise the sale, and asks us to take the accounts and collect for them. It's the factory's loss—your gain! The whole car is to be sold regardless of factory costs—there are all sizes and finishes—all-steel, white enamel as well as beautifully finished oak. You've never had such an opportunity, and probably won't again. You can trade in your old Refrigerator—we'll allow you $5.00 to $10.00, according to size and condition. A second-hand dealer has arranged to take these off our hands. You can pay the balance $1.00 a week. See these in our windows, and be here early Monday. Doors open 8:30.

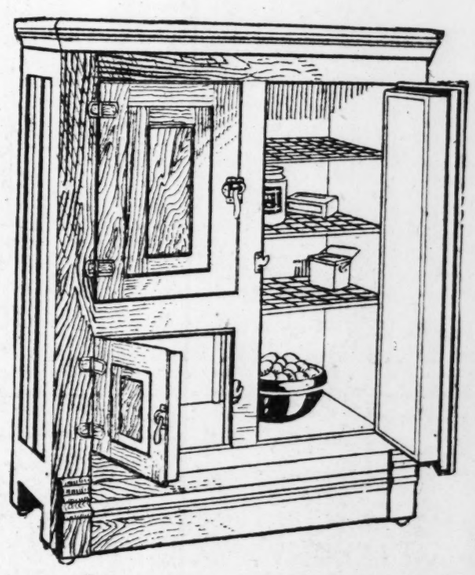

$1 A Week Pays For Any Refrigerator

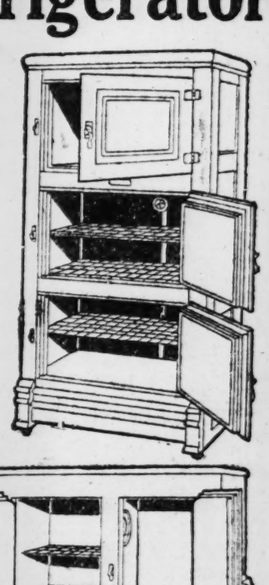

$5 to $10 Allowed for Your Old Refrigerator

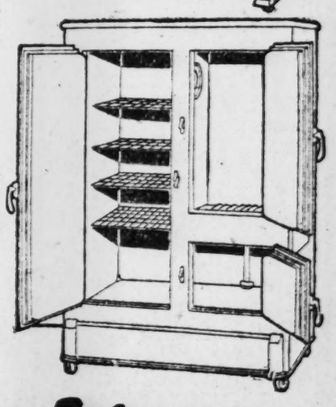

All you have to do to own one of these famous Gurney Refrigerators is come to this sale, pick out the size, style and finish that suits your particular fancy. Trade in your old Refrigerator as part payment if you wish—or just make a small cash payment and the balance at $1.00 a week and the Refrigerator is delivered to your home—No long delays, no red tape, plenty of salesmen to wait on you quickly, courteously and efficiently. You Can Win $2,000.00

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S "COW" FIGURE GAME

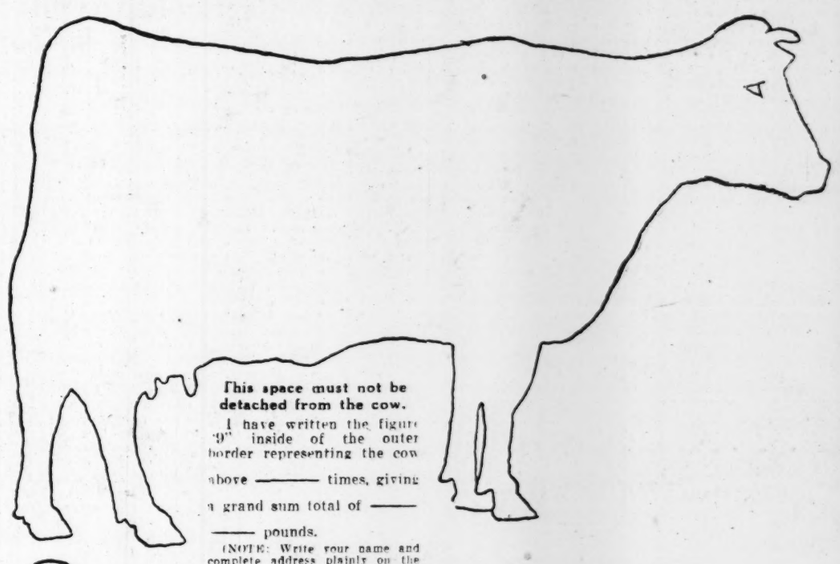

$2,000.00 First Prize — $1,000.00 Second Prize — $500.00 Third Prize

Twenty-five Cash Prizes in All---Amounting to $4,515.00

This is your opportunity to use your spare time to advantage. These big cash prizes are going to be given away to the lucky winner, and no one has a better chance than you if you will only make the proper effort. The object of the game is to see how much you can make the "COW" weigh by filling inside of the border representing the cow with figures "9." Now isn't that simple? How many times can you write by hand, using a lead pencil, the figure "9" inside the border forming the cow outline? The sum total of the number of the "9's" that you put in the cow picture will represent your answer or what you give as the weight of the cow. For example twenty "9's" will be 180 pounds; one hundred "9's" would be 900 pounds, etc. Can you write in one hundred "9's," two hundred, or how many? The person having the greatest number of "9's," that is, the largest sum total, will win first prize, second largest second prize, etc.

NOTE: While there are three cow pictures given in this announcement, so a contestant may have plenty of material to work on, only one cow picture is to be submitted with a solution.

Observe These General Rules of the Contest:

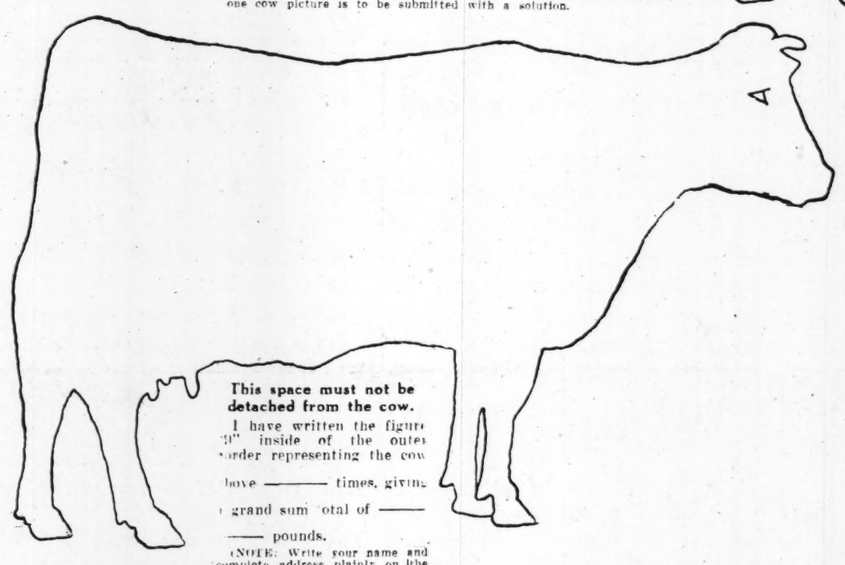

1. All bonafide residents of Georgia and adjoining states may take part in this contest, except employees of The Atlanta Constitution and members of their families.
2. Contestants may submit as many different solutions as they desire, provided payment of one of the three amounts designated in the prize list shall accompany each solution, but no contestant will be permitted to win more than one award. Once registered, a solution cannot be changed.
3. The first prize will be awarded to the person having the greatest sum total, which is to be determined by the sum of the figures "9" written in the space designated inside of the border forming the picture representing the cow, to the second greatest total second prize, third greatest total third prize, etc.
4. Any lead pencil may be used. All writing or drawing pens of artists or engineers or their like are barred, as ink cannot be used on this grade of paper without blurring. The figures "9" need not be perfect in shape, but must be complete. Write as small as you like with any ordinary lead pencil of standard make—just so each "9" is fully shaped. Figures cannot touch each other; nor are they permitted to touch any part of the borderline forming the shape of the cow.
5. Copperplate type, shorthand, reproductions or reductions, are barred, also duplicates of the original. Every "9" must actually be made by hand with any ordinary lead pencil of standard make, and must be discernible to the naked eye.
6. Every contestant must give the correct total of the weight of the cow in the answer submitted by him. This weight of course is the sum total of the "9's" he has written in the figure representing the cow. This is important! Your name and complete address must be plainly written on margin of sheet on which your answer is given, or blank printed for that purpose, or a blank of your own selection attached hereto.
7. In case of ties, while there is hardly a chance in 10,000 of a tie, as many awards will be reserved, as there are people tied. Before any awards are awarded for less correct solutions, another puzzle will be submitted to those tied on the same order of this one, except a smaller "cow" picture, after which should ties still result each contestant will receive the full amount of the prize tied for.
8. Only one prize will be awarded to a person, household, or group of persons. Any person or household or group of persons submitting duplicates are barred.
9. The decision of The Atlanta Constitution must be accepted as final and conclusive in all matters, and participants by sending in their answers agree to accept the decision of the contest manager of The Atlanta Constitution as conclusive and final.
10. The Atlanta Constitution reserves the right to reject at any time any contestant whom it believes has violated the rules. The solution of the winner of first prize will be reproduced in The Constitution, together with the published result, which will be published as soon as possible after the closing date of the contest.
11. All answers will receive the same consideration, regardless as to whether or not a subscription for the daily and Sunday Constitution be sent in.
12. The contest is open to new and old subscribers alike. The regular subscription rate of $5.00 for six months' subscription or $9.50 for 12 months' subscription to the daily and Sunday Constitution will prevail. Daily only subscriptions or tri-weekly subscriptions not acceptable in this contest. Full amount of subscription must be remitted in every instance. When sent through an agent, postmaster, or otherwise no commission can be deducted. In column 2 of prize list, six months' subscription there referred to can be either new or renewal; column 3, 12 months' subscription $9.50, can be either new or renewal. Column 4, requiring two annual subscriptions, one can be a renewal, but one must be new. A new subscription means one who is not now taking the daily and Sunday Constitution directly or indirectly through any source, and has not within the past 60 days.
13. Subscriptions secured by the means of this contest in Atlanta and suburbs will be delivered by carrier service. In towns outside of Atlanta where The Constitution has carrier delivery service, the paper may be delivered by carrier, upon request of the subscriber or contestant; otherwise the paper will be sent by mail.
14. A person who is now taking the daily and Sunday Constitution and paying the carrier or agent by the week or month or otherwise, may send or bring directly to The Constitution a six or twelve months' payment to qualify a solution. Whatever is due such carrier, dealer or agent at that time must be paid to him as the remittance sent us will date from the date it is received. The carrier or agent will be notified by The Constitution of such advance payments. If all arrearages are not paid the solution may not be considered valid. Renewals on mail subscriptions will be extended for the length of time paid for from present paid date of expiration. All qualifying subscriptions in this contest must be paid in advance.
15. Contest closes Wednesday, February 8th, 1928. All solutions delivered in person must be at The Constitution office by 9:00 p. m. of that date, but may be mailed any time before midnight. Solutions mailed at any post office in Georgia and adjoining states bearing postmark of no later date than midnight February 8th, 1928, will be accepted if rules governing same are complied with. The contest extends from Wednesday, January 4th, 1928, to and including Wednesday, February 8th, 1928. Five days will be given thereafter for those who have not fully qualified for the larger prizes to do so, after which no further qualification remittances will be accepted.

The above rules are simple, easy to understand, and is all the information that can be given on the contest except that which appears in the announcement of which this is a part.

How Much Can You Make the "Cow" Weigh?

THAT'S THE PROBLEM!

Copyrighted, 1928, by The Atlanta Constitution.

GET OUT YOUR LEAD PENCIL NOW!

If you make the proper effort and fully qualify your solution it may mean $2,000.00 to you.

$500.00 Extra First Prize for Promptness

If you send in your solution and full qualification subscription order on or before January 25, 1928, and you win first prize, The Atlanta Constitution will send you, in addition to the first prize of $2,000.00, $500.00 extra for being prompt, making $2,500.00 in all. When you work for a prize, don't be satisfied with anything but the biggest one, which in this great contest, is $2,000.00, plus $500.00 for promptness, total $2,500.00.

TRY YOUR HAND AT IT BY WRITING THE FIGURE "9" AS MANY TIMES AS YOU CAN INSIDE THE BORDER LINE OF THE "COW"

Inside of the border line of the "COW" you are to fill in the figure "9" as many times as you can. When you have them all written in, add them. That will give you your answer to "HOW MUCH CAN YOU MAKE THE COW WEIGH."

Every "9" stands for nine pounds, and the total of "9's" that you have written in the cow space is your weight record.

You may use the picture of the "cow" shown herein, or by writing The Atlanta Constitution (Cow Contest Dept.), Atlanta, Ga., enclosing 2c stamp, we will be pleased to send you extra copies. These extra copies are free. You may have as many as you like, but they are all on same grade of paper as this is printed on.

Begin now on the game. Clip out the cow picture now and start with lead pencil to filling in with the figure "9." You will find it absorbing fun, and every "9" that you write in the cow figure takes you further on your way to the big cash prizes that are to be given.

Remember, you may have additional copies of the cow picture by writing to the "Cow Contest Dept." It does not cost you anything to take part and win. You can earn $35.00, $250.00, $1,000.00 or $2,000.00, as explained and shown in the "PRIZE LIST."

How to Win $2,000.00

It is not necessary to send a subscription, but by qualifying your entry into "How much can you make the cow weigh" game with one or two subscriptions, you can increase the amount of the prize money that you will receive if you are a winner. For instance, the first prize is $35.00, but if winner of first prize has qualified with one six months' subscription, the prize will be $250.00 instead of $35.00. If qualified with one year's subscription the prize will be $1,000.00 instead of $35.00; or if qualified with two annual subscriptions the prize would be $2,000.00 instead of $35.00, and so on with proportional increases throughout the entire prize list. In all there are 25 prizes, as shown in this announcement.

$35.00 will be awarded to the winner of first prize (the person having the largest sum total in the cow picture) if no subscription is sent to the daily and Sunday Constitution.

$250.00 instead of $35.00 will be awarded to the winner of first prize provided one six months' subscription to the daily and Sunday Constitution with $5.00 remittance is sent, new or renewal; second prize $200.00; third prize $100.00, etc. (See second column in prize list.)

$1,000.00 instead of $35.00 will be awarded to the winner of first prize provided one annual subscription, new or renewal, to the daily and Sunday Constitution is sent with $9.50 remittance; second prize $500.00, third prize $250.00, etc. (See third column in prize list.)

$2,000.00 instead of $35.00 will be awarded to the winner of first prize, provided two yearly subscriptions to the daily and Sunday Constitution are sent, one of which must be new, at $9.50 each, total remittance, $19.00, second prize, $1,000.00, third prize, $500.00, etc. (See last column in prize list.)

Be sure to write your qualifying subscription on a separate sheet of paper from the "cow" picture, giving your name and address as well as the name and address of each subscriber. Remittance should be sent by money order, personal check or bank check. Currency should always be registered.

CLOSING DATE

THE "HOW MUCH CAN YOU MAKE THE COW WEIGH" GAME CLOSES WEDNESDAY, FEB. 8TH, 1928.

NO SOLUTION CAN BE CHANGED AFTER IT HAS ONCE BEEN REGISTERED.

If you find that you can make the cow weigh more than the first solution which you sent, the only thing you can do is to send in another solution, which must be qualified independent of the first solution submitted. In other words, the qualification of one solution already submitted cannot be transferred to a later solution.

IMPORTANT FACTS TO REMEMBER!

While the amount you pay with the solution does not have any effect on your winning an award, it does affect the amount you will receive should you win one of the awards, as the value of these awards is determined by what the winners pay. This is explained in the prize list, which you should study carefully before sending in your solution.

Address your solution, remittances, etc., to the Contest Manager, Daily Circulation Dept., The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

THE PRIZE LIST

:-: WEDDING BELLS PEAL FOR JANUARY BRIDES :-:

Today's feature page presents at the upper left a lovely likeness of Mrs. Frank Whitaker, of St. Louis, Mo., a charming recent bride, who until her marriage January 2 was Miss Virginia White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris White. The beautiful bride in the center is Mrs. William Chambers Barnes, of Ottawa, Ill., whose marriage was brilliantly solemnized Monday evening, January 2, at St. Luke's Episcopal church, the ceremony followed by an elaborate reception at the Atlanta Biltmore. Mrs. Barnes was formerly Miss Louise Stubbs, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John S. Somerville. Below are the maids and matrons who attended Mrs. Barnes at her wedding and are, from left to right, Miss Maria Brown, Mrs. Allen F. Moore, Jr., of Ottawa, Ill.; Miss Sara Kunzig, maid of honor, of Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Miss Sarah Peel Watts, of Charlottesville, Va.; Miss Ethel Kunzig, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., and Mrs. Ryburn G. Clay, whose marriage was solemnized two days later. Mrs. Clay was formerly Miss Catherine Gay Sanders, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Inman Sanders. The lovely figure at the upper right is Miss Gray Poole, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Poole and a popular belle of the younger social contingent, who leaves Monday with her mother for several months' stay on the Pacific coast. They will visit San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego, Calif., and later will spend some time at Palm Springs, Calif. Many Visitors Entertained In Atlanta

The social spotlight turns this week upon a group of prominent visitors assembled in Atlanta the second week in January, being entertained by a series of informal social gaieties, the list including Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dodge of New York, who will arrive Sunday to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Southwell, at their home in the Pershing Point apartments, and will be joined for a brief stay here by Mrs. Loyd Moore, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who until her recent marriage to Mr. Moore was Mrs. Charles Dodge, wife of the late Mr. Dodge, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Dodge. Mrs. Moore was formerly Miss Jennie Dearing Brunson, a belle and beauty of Macon, and daughter of the late Solicitor General Brunson, of the Macon circuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brooks, of Maplewood, N. J., arrive in Atlanta Saturday to visit their sister, Mrs. J. R. Mell, and nephew, Brooks Mell, at their home on Polo drive, in Ansley Park, remaining in the city until Tuesday, when in company with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. McCrary, they leave on a month's motor trip through Florida, sailing later from Key West for a visit to Havana, Cuba.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Green and their brother, William K. Green, of Amsterdam, N. Y., who were members of a house party at Tifton, have returned to Atlanta and are at the Georgian Terrace. Mrs. Green was before her marriage Miss Estelle Delbridge, a belle and beauty of Atlanta, whose visits to the city are always the occasion of many social courtesies being given in her honor.

Military and civilian society are extending a most cordial welcome to Brigadier General Frank M. Cochen and Mrs. Cochen, U. S. A., distinguished members of army life, who will make their home at the Georgian Terrace. General Cochen is the new commander of the fourth coast artillery district, U. S. A., who arrived in Atlanta Wednesday from Fortress Monroe, Va., to assume today his post at Fort McPherson, Ga. He has seen distinguished service in several campaigns and was awarded the distinguished service medal in the world war.

Mrs. Sims Bray entertains at a bridge supper Monday evening, January 9, at her home on Juniper street in compliment to Miss Mary Harvey, a popular debutante. Miss Harvey is a popular member of the 1927-28 Debutantes' club and has enjoyed great popularity during her debutante season. Invited to meet Miss Harvey are other debutantes of this season and their escorts.

General and Mrs. Cochu Honored at Tea.

Prominent among the social events of Saturday was the tea at which Colonel and Mrs. Edward Carpenter and Miss Juliette Carpenter entertained at their home in Ansley Park, honoring General Frank M. Cochu and Mrs. Cochu who have recently arrived in Atlanta for residence.

Invited to meet the honor guests, who are charming acquisitions to the city's social contingent, were a group of the military set and a number of Atlantans.

The tea table was charmingly appointed in shades of yellow, having a lace cover and a centerpiece of deep yellow roses. Other pretty details of decoration were in yellow.

Mrs. W. W. Wagner and Mrs. Richard Donovan poured tea.

Atlanta Society Gathers at Biltmore.

Of wide interest to Atlantans were the supper dances given Friday evening at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. Among those seen dancing were Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Martin, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. John Sibley, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Daley, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Keeler, Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George W. Connors, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fragatt, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips, of Griffin; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Aice, of Norfolk; Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Braumiller, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Andrews, Mrs. Elizabeth Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Ingram Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Truex, Mrs. A. N. Burdick, of New York; Mrs. M. W. Woodward, of New Orleans, La.; Misses Lottie Wylie, Emily Little, Gertrude Harris, Mary Schaffner and Dorothy Albers, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Fanny Dickinson, of Sparta, Wis.; Virginia Cook, of Manistee, Mich.; Paul Warwick, Samuel Adams, Carl Thompson, Neal Harris, Claude Frederick, Jr., Frank Deans, Everett Steele, Louis Rucker, Bruce Higginbotham, Fred Schaeffer, A. S. Hamilton, of New York; Oscar Laval, of Paris, France; W. W. Davis, of Jacksonville, Fla.; C. G. Greenlay, of Houston, Texas; J. W. Thompson, of New Orleans, La.; F. W. McConky, of Charlotte, N. C.; R. B. Howard, of Oklahoma City, Okla.; B. C. Prince, of Norfolk, Va.; D. P. Grier, of Chicago, Ill.; B. H. Black, of New York; C. N. York, of Cincinnati, Ohio; E. J. Parrist, of Jacksonville, Fla.; G. H. Whitaker, of Macon, Ga.; Colonel H. M. Boykin, of Richmond, Va.; Richard F. Madden, Silas B. Reagen, and Victor J. McNamara, all of Indianapolis, Ind., and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson Leave for Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Atkinson will leave today for New York from where they will sail Saturday on "The Bermuda" for their home winter home, the "Atlanta Mid-Ocean club," at Tuckerstown, Bermuda. Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson will be numbered among a prominent group of Americans sailing on the maiden voyage of "The Bermuda," and will remain at their winter home until the middle of April.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Dick will join their parents in Bermuda the latter part of January and a number of other prominent Atlantans will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson during the winter.

Poetry Division To Meet Sunday.

The poetry division of the Atlanta Writers' club meets Sunday afternoon, January 8, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Carpenter Jones, 72 Westminster Drive, at 3 o'clock.

All members of the Atlanta Writers' club, of the poetry division, and all persons interested in poetry, are invited to attend this meeting, at which time a group of poems will be read and several short talks made on modern poetry. Daniel Whitehead Hicky, chairman, will preside.

Driving Club Dinner Dance.

Debutantes and visitors were honor guests in a number of congenial parties given at the week-end dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club Saturday evening. Miss Mary Harvey, popular member of the 1927-28 Debutantes club, was honor guest in the party at which Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burnett entertained. Covers were placed for Miss Harvey, Miss Edna Belle Raine, Miss Florence Eckford, Mr. and Mrs. Burnett and a number of young men.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Nunnally, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Hopkins, Mrs. Elizabeth Grady, of Greensboro, N. C.; Mrs. Edward Buckingham Hall, of Morristown, N. J., Charles Hartman, of North Carolina; Thomas Lyon and Gus Ryan formed a congenial group dining together.

Mr. and Mrs. Maddox Give Dinner-Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox entertained at dinner Saturday evening at their home "Woodlawn" on Pace's Ferry road in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Atkinson, who leave today for their winter home in Bermuda. The handsomely appointed table was overlaid with a filet lace cover and adorned with a low green Venetian glass bowl filled with various pastel shaded flowers. Delicate yellow tapers burned in green glass candlesticks at intervals alternating with green glass compotes holding yellow mints.

Covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. William

Visiting Belles To Visit Relatives Here This Week

Miss Dorcas Hutcheson, of Chattanooga, Tenn., one of the most beautiful and attractive debutantes of the season, arrives Tuesday to visit her cousin, Mrs. Fred Gonigal, at her home on Andrews drive. She will be accompanied by Miss Isabel McPheeters, of Cleveland, Ohio, who has been her guest for several weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hutcheson, on Missionary Ridge in Chattanooga, and Miss McPheeters will be the guest of her aunt Mrs. Samuel M. Inman at her home on Peachtree.

Mr. and Mrs. McGonigal entertain at dinner Wednesday evening at the Biltmore dinner-dance in honor of their guest and Miss McPheeters, and their party Saturday evening at the Piedmont Driving club compliments these visiting belles. Mrs. Charles U. Diannals will also be among those entertaining for this popular January visitor, who was graduated from Miss Finch's school in New York last June.

Miss McPheeters is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McPheeters, of Cleveland, former residents of Atlanta, and her mother, much of whose charm and beauty she inherits, was formerly Miss Belle Nash, of this city. Miss McPheeters was among the bridesmaids at the marriage of her cousin, Miss Anne Stringfellow, whose marriage to Preston S. Arkwright, Jr., was a brilliant event of last January. A series of informal social events will compliment Miss McPheeters.

Miss Helen Sims Weds Mr. Lafkowitz.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Sims announce the marriage of their daughter Helen to Sam Lafkowitz, of Columbus, Ga., Wednesday, January 4, in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

Miss Clarke And Mr. Peters Wed in Florida

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Francis Clarke announce the marriage of their daughter, Joan Carey, to Samuel Arthur Peters, of Henderson, N. Y., and New York city, the marriage having taken place Saturday, December 31, in Florida, where the bride has been visiting her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. F. Ellison Adams, of Maitland, Fla.

Mrs. Peters was introduced to society several years ago at a large reception given by her mother, and a wide circle of friends will receive the announcement of her marriage with interest. For the past few years she has been residing in New York.

Mrs. Peters comes of a long line of distinguished ancestry, her family being identified with the life of the south for many generations. She is a direct descendant of Commander John Alston, who served on the English side in the conflict between the Spanish and British for the possession of Louisiana and Florida in 1781. Her grandmother's home, Stirling plantation, is the oldest plantation on the Bayou Teche, in Louisiana.

She is a granddaughter of the late John Carey, of Atlanta, and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Carey, formerly of Atlanta and now of Buenos Aires, Argentina, also a niece of Mrs. W. D. Williamson, 1162 St. Augustine place, N. E.

Mr. Peters is the son of John Peters, of Henderson, N. Y. Mr. Peters is a descendant of the Cromwellian Peterses, who settled in Salem, Mass., in 1630, and one of whom was on the committee of ten who founded Harvard university in 1636. Mr. Peters is a graduate of Harvard university, and has been interested in educational work since graduation. He is now an executive of the New Utrecht High school, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Peters is a member of the Harvard Club of New York City, and is a charter member of the Town Hall Club of New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters will make their home in New York city.

Atlanta Chapter, D.A.R., To Meet January 14

The Atlanta chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet at "Craigie House" Saturday afternoon, January 14, at 3 o'clock, the regent presiding. A short business session will be held with reports from officers, and Mrs. Frances Brown Chase, treasurer, will be present and Mrs. Thomas C. Mill, chairman of tickets for the "Martha Washington" luncheon to be given at the chapter house February 22, will be present with tickets at $1 a plate. This is planned to be a very delightful affair and early reservations are advised. An interesting program has been arranged by the Americanization committee, Mrs. Harry Turnsey, chairman. The speaker of the afternoon will be Mr. Triggetas, Greek consul.

Instrumental and vocal numbers will be given followed by folk dancing in costume. All visiting D. A. R's. are invited.

Maryland Co. Honors Hospital 48 Patients.

Under the auspices of the hospital committee of the Service Star Legion of Fulton county about sixty members of the "My Maryland" company, playing the past week at the Erlanger, visited the U. S. Base hospital No. 48 Friday afternoon. Several members of the orchestra were present and a number of ensembles and selections from the operetta were rendered.

W. C. T. U. Bulletin Features Greetings From High Officials

BY M. FRANCES MEADORS BURGHARD.

The current issue of the Georgia W. C. T. U. Bulletin, the official organ of the Georgia Woman's Christian Temperance Union, published in Macon, which about 10,000 members received the past week, contained optimistic New Year greetings from the World's W. C. T. U. president, Miss Anna Adams Gordon, of Evanston, Ill.; National W. C. T. U. president, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, Des Moines, Iowa; the state president, Mrs. Marvin Williams, Atlanta; state honorary president, Mrs. Lella A. Dillard, Cochran, state vice president, Mrs. Dudley Smith, Eastman; recording secretary, Mrs. W. G. Cotton, Columbus; recording secretary, Mrs. J. L. McGarrity, Monroe; treasurer, Miss Josephine Hammond, Monroe. The message of each showing "that in the punctuation of the W. C. T. U. there isn't a period within a million miles."

Aims of Departments.

Embellished by original verse or quoted New Year thoughts from the poets, the state directors told of the chief aims of their department and solicited continued cooperation in their New Year messages.

They are: Mrs. Florence Ewell Askins, Milledgeville, fairs and exhibits department; Mrs. T. D. Power, Columbus, Americanization; Mrs. Katie Lee Reeves, Atlanta, child welfare; Mrs. Walter Anthony, Savannah, evangelistic and Sabbath observance; Mrs. W. H. Preston, Atlanta, flower mission and relief; Mrs. A. M. Hambrick, East Point, medical temperance; Mrs. J. A. Thomas, Columbus, motion pictures; Mrs. M. H. Edwards, Eastman; Mrs. R. L. Miller, peace and arbitration; Mrs. P. B. Griffith, Eatonton, prison welfare; Mrs. Dudley Sheppard, Elberton, Sunday school work; Miss Sarah Anne Wright, Elberton, scientific temperance instruction; Mrs. W. P. King, social morality and health; Mrs. R. W. Page, Columbus, soldiers and sailors; Mrs. D. W. McLain, temperance and missions; Mrs. August Burghard, Macon, editor W. C. T. U. Bulletin and publicity; Mrs. W. F. Mott, Dublin, evangelist; Mrs. Annie Laurie Cunyus, Cartersville, music; Mrs. E. R. Cook, West Point, pianist; Mrs. Annie Drurham Methvin, Macon, publicity; Mrs. Bettie Reynolds Cobb, Carrollton, legal advisor; Miss Ruby Pratt Rivers, headquarters secretary; and the two branch secretaries, Miss Mary Fanny Harris, Hogansville, young people and college work, and Mrs. Robert McDougall, Jr., Atlanta, Loyal Temperance Legion.

Victory Day Material.

The Bulletin also featured the celebration of Victory day, the eighth anniversary of national constitutional prohibition on January 16. In its inspirational messages and numerous concrete examples of prohibition benefits the fact that "prohibition is the best method" was emphasized.

New Year Prayer Services.

All over the state, in fact, all over every state, local organizations of the W. C. T. U.—more than 20,000 unions—met on Thursday for prayer: For the W. C. T. U. that its members may be blessed and be a blessing in all their social service; for the leaders in the temperance cause that they may have courage and wisdom to meet the strategy of the opponents of prohibition; for increased support of the eighteenth amendment by patriotic organizations; for those charged with the responsibility of law enforcement; for the election of the undoubted friends of prohibition for all offices in the next election.

Prominent religious and civic leaders took part in these prayer services.

President's Message.

Clipsheets filled with facts about prohibition gathered by the W. C. T. U. are being distributed to the ministers of the state through the assistance of the social service departments of the missionary societies with the W. C. T. U. In the center of the clipsheet is the following message from Mrs. Marvin Williams, the Georgia W. C. T. U. president, to the preachers of Georgia:

"The liquor traffic would destroy the church if it could; the church destroy the liquor traffic if it would." Do your church members obey the command to "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's?" Do they vote as they pray? Are they accurately informed with reference to the successes and failures of prohibition or are most of them like Will Rogers who says, "All I know I read in the papers?" "We are happy to furnish you this clipsheet and we hope you will use the information it contains as largely as possible, especially stressing the benefits of prohibition at your service on January 15, which is the Sunday nearest to the aniversary of the passage of the eighteenth amendment. "The Woman's Christian Temperance union is inter-denominational in religion and non-partisan in politics. We are a band of praying women who are unselfishly seeking the public good and the hastening of the coming of the Kingdom of God on earth. "Our three great practical objectives are world prohibition, world social purity, world peace. We know that these three great general battles can never be won except by the allied forces of the kingdom moving together in solid phalanx. "We gladly welcome recruits at any time and we shall be glad to counsel with any minister or body of ministers of Georgia with reference to the most efficient method to accomplish our three great ends. God bless you, and may you have a great day January 15!"

Temperance and Missions.

The presidents of the several woman's missionary societies who are cooperating in the distribution of the clipsheets which show that prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic, are Mrs. H. W. Pittman, Macon, of the Southe Georgia Methodist Woman's Missionary society, through the conference social service superintendent, Mrs. J. D. Mackay, of Valdosta; Mrs. J. M. McEachen, Atlanta, of the North Georgia conference; Mrs. W. J. Neel, Cartersville, state president of the Baptist Woman's Missionary union; Mrs. W. R. Lang, of Sandersville, of the Christian Woman's Missionary union; Mrs. E. G. Abbott, of Columbus, of the Georgia Synodical. An effort is being made to give a prohibition clipsheet to every Georgia minister.

Annual Roll Call.

The first thing of importance in the new year in W. C. T. U. circles is the roll call when the members answer "here!" with her dollar dues. Each union selects a day between January 1 and 16, and those who call the roll visit the members, in most instances finishing in one day. W. C. T. U. members do not enlist for a year, but "for the period of the war." Realizing that 1928 will be a crisis time in our nation, many members are not only paying dues but are giving or pledging "a penny a day to keep drink away." The Georgia W. C. T. U. has a full and potential program for 1928 of which roll call and the observance of the eighth birthday of the eighteenth amendment are the parts which come early in the year.

El Circulo Espanol Holds Meeting.

El Circulo Espanol met January 6 with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morenus in their home, 694 Durant place, N. E.

This particular date, known in Spain as "El dia de los reyes," is celebrated by the Spanish children in much the same fashion as Christmas eve is celebrated here, except that the wise men, instead of Santa Claus, are supposedly the bearers of gifts. In gratitude for this visitation, it is the custom of these fanciful children to leave upon their doorsteps and balconies a bountiful supply of hay for consumption by the gift-laden camels.

Followin an introductory hymn, "Pastores a Belen," by Mrs. Oliver Morton, there was disclosed to view a typical "nacimiento" scene. This exhibit, a counterpart of those constructed by Spanish children upon this anniversary, was arranged to portray, by means of realistic figurines, the pastoral scene of the Nativity-Sheep browsed upon a hillside. Camels laden with tributes wended their way toward a tiny stable where lay the infant Jesus in his manger, while grouped about Him stood the holy family, the wise men, and the shepherds in reverent adoration.

The second part of the afternoon's program consisted of the reading by Mrs. J. E. Campbell, president, of Lope de Vega's lovely "Cancion de la virgen"; impressions of a Christmas eve in Madrid, as related by a modern student, and read by Mrs. Morenus, and a vocabulary contest, in which the prize, a beautiful Spanish vase, was won by Mrs. Oliver Morton.

The next meeting of El Circulo Espanol will be with Mrs. Thomas J. Wesley, 898 West Peachtree.

Young Judaean Club To Give Bridge Party.

The F. O. J. Young Judaean club, of Atlanta, will entertain at a bridge to be given Tuesday, January 10, at 8 o'clock at the Jewish Woman's club, 429 Washington street, S. W.

Rev. J. W. Brinsfield To Install Officers.

The newly elected officers of the Missionary society of Stewart Avenue M. E. church are urged to be present at the Sunday evening service, January 8, as the pastor, Rev. J. W. Brinsfield, wishes to install them.

Prominent New York Visitor

Mrs. J. L. Dodge, of New York city and Lexington, Ky., who arrives today with Mr. Dodge to be the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Southwell at their home in the Pershing Point apartments. Mr. and Mrs. Dodge are well-known figures in the social and financial life of the metropolis and in Lexington, where they maintain a handsome estate, "Hollywood Manor." They are also sports lovers of note throughout the blue grass section.

National President Of Girl Scouts Sends Message

Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, national president of the Girl Scouts of America, sends a January message to the Atlanta Girl Scouts:

"Good Morrow New Year, we are glad and happy to greet you!

"Of course you will understand th t there is still a choking in our throat as we think of the old year just gone. How dear he has been. Think of the golden mornings—the wealth of days—and the glorious sunsets that he opened to us. Three hundred and sixty-five blessed days!

"But he has said good-bye to us, and here we are face to face with you, Nineteen Hundred Twenty-Eight. Welcome, new comrade. We shall be the best of friends. And we hear that you have three hundred and sixty-six days in each pack for us. We shall love every day of them, with a little extra love thrown in for that wonderful added day of yours.

"You see, Girl Scouts, all of us are climbing toward understanding and reaching after the things we love best. And the road does wind up-hill all the way, but a darling road it is, and wonderful treasures we are finding beside our path as we climb.

"Of course good will goes along with us and the love of comrades. And joy stays by, rain or shine, and courage and pluck are sure to come alongside when the hills are steep or the way is rough. There is always a song in our hearts, and the duller the task the louder we sing. That's our chosen way, New Year, and we know you will love it, too. We shall love to travel with you a day at a time. And you may count upon us for our level best, dear New Year. And sometimes more than level best, for the Girl Scouts like to give good measure, heaped up, pressed down and running over. That's the Girl Scouts' measure of doing things and giving.

"Now let's take hold of hands, Girl Scouts, all of us, and together we'll trudge gladly along with the New Year, singing as we go. Our best to you, New Year, and we're glad you've come to us!"

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

He looked up and saw a girl. "Um-er-do you want anything?" he asked.

Scotland Yard Spread a Net to Catch a Gem Thief, but Instead It Snared Young Jeremiah Fallowby and a Mustified Little Secretary.

THIS story concerns four people: Larry Vanne, who understood men and lived on his knowledge; Eli Soburn, who understood and liked diamonds, and never traveled without a hundred thousand pounds' worth in a little leather wallet attached to his undergarments; Mary Perella, who understood most of the things that a ladies' school could teach, and in addition had that working knowledge which comes to a girl who has been left penniless and must shift for herself; and, fourthly, Jeremiah Fallowby, who had knowledge of the world geographically, and who was suspicious of all women who might love him for his wealth alone.

Of these four, only one had a definite objective. Larry Vanne, pacing up and down his hired flat in Jermyn street, a long cigar between his strong white teeth, his thumbs in the armholes of his waistcoat, confided to his slightly bored wife that the North Atlantic trade had dwindled to vanishing point.

"I don't know what's coming over New York, Lou," he said, despairingly. "We hadn't been tied up ten minutes to the river end of Twenty-third street when along came McCarthy with a couple of bulls. and it was, 'The captain wants to see you, Larry.'"

"They had nothing on you," said Mrs. Vanne; "not if I'm to judge from the presents you brought home!"

"Sure they had nothing on me!" said Larry. "But it shows the tendency of the age, Lou. Suspicion, suspicion, suspicion! And I did not more than to sit in a game with that Boston crowd to trim a half-witted cinema boy—my share was less than a thousand dollars. I haven't worked the North Atlantic for years, and things have gone from bad to w[illegible] Lou. There wasn't a dame on board that didn't park her jewelry in the purser's safe."

Lou yawned.

"Any man who works one-handed is asking for trouble," was her dictum. "That's where you're all wrong, Larry. Now suppose you and me—"

"You and I," said Larry, gently. "Let's keep the conversation out of the steerage."

It was true that Larry had never worked the North Atlantic. He had confined himself mainly to the Pacific trade, and had made bigger pickings between Shanghai and Vancouver, B. C., than any man in his line. He had worked scientifically, allowing certain routes to lie fallow for years, had watched and noted changes in personnel, so that he could tell you offhand who was the captain of the Titanic, and just whereabouts in the world you might find that red-nosed purser who nearly jailed him in '19.

He made no or few mistakes; his patience was remorseless. On one occasion he took two journeys to Australia and back and caught his man for 8,000 pounds worth of real money when the ship was in sight of port.

"I'm trying a new trade, anyway, and this time you'll work for your living," he said, but gave no further information.

It was his practice to be frank in general and reticent in particular, and he told his companion nothing of Mr. Soburn and his wallet of diamonds. He could have told quite a lot. He could have traced Mr. Soburn's family history from the day he started peddling buttons in New York; of his legitimate deals in furs, of his questionable transactions in the world of low and high finance. He carried these wonderful cut diamonds of his for the same reason as a girl carries a doll or a boy a clockwork motor car. They were his toys and his comforts, and he had frequent satisfaction in displaying these behind locked doors to his cronies with all the hushed pride that a Japanese virtuoso would display a carved jade box of the Ming period.

Larry knew his movements, past, present and prospective, but, mostly, he knew Mr. Soburn's chiefest weakness, which was for a pretty face.

Larry's wife was beautiful enough in her hard cut way, but it was not the kind of beauty that would appeal to Mr. Soburn.

"What I want," he told her frankly, "is something that hasn't lost the bloom—the sort of big-eyed girl who would faint at the sight of a sparkler."

Mrs. Larry nodded her head slowly.

"That sounds so much like me that you might be painting my portrait," she said, "but I gather you want a different type."

That day she sent in an advertisement to two newspapers. On the third day came Mary Perella. Mary walked from Bayswater because she had reached the stage where pennies counted. She had had three jobs in six months. Her three employers suffered from a common misfortune, which they confessed at an early stage of her engagement—they were unhappily married. Unhappily married employers who absent-mindedly paw their secretaries' hands are not so infrequent a phenomenon as many people would imagine.

Mary descended the secretarial scale from rich city merchants to a musical composer who lived in a world of writs, and she had broken her last pound sterling and was owing one week's rent when she set forth to Jermyn street, never dreaming that the lady who required a secretary-companion to travel abroad. at a wildly exorbitant salary, would be likely to choose her from the thousands of applicants.

"She's made for the part," said Larry, who, unobserved, had made a very complete scrutiny of the new secretary. "Orphan and everything; no relations in London." He scratched his chin thoughtfully. "Fix her tomorrow. Get her passage booked and our own at the same time. We'll travel on the Frimley passports."

He was very practical now.

"She'll want some money for clothing—give her twenty-five on account. You told her that she was my secretary and not yours?"

Mrs. Larry nodded.

"She bore the blow very well," she said. "I supposed you're sure that Soburn is traveling on that ship?"

"Sure I'm sure!" he said, scornfully. "He's got the royal suite, two bathrooms—God knows why—and two of his best pals and traveling. Besides ,the next packet is booked up. And, Lou, you can tell that kid to report on board. I don't want to see her till we get to Southampton. Somehow, I don't make a good impression on girls."

Mary Perella came the next morning and nearly dropped when the gracious lady confirmed her in the engagement.

"I'm quite sure you will do, my dear," said Mrs. Larry Vanne sweetly, "and you will find my husband a very generous employer. He is writing a book on rare jewels, but nobody must know this, because——"

The excuse, flimsy as it was, convinced Mary.

"What about Dennis?" asked Mrs. Larry suddenly when she saw her husband after the interview.

Though he was a man who did not usually display his emotion, Larry Vanne was surprised into a grimace. Detective Inspector Dennis of Scotland Yard was an atom in the molecule of uneasiness which never quite ceased to perturb him. And Dennis had met him on his arrival in England, and in his suave, nice way had said, "Don't." He hadn't been quite as terse as that, and had added a sermon the text of which was "Watch out," that had left Mr. Vanne distinctly uncomfortable.

Detective Inspector Dennis does not really come into the story at all, so it would be superfluous to describe that very wise man, who read the minds of jewel thieves and confidence men with such devastating accuracy.

At 10 o'clock on the Thursday morning Mrs. Larry Vanne booked stateroom No. 17, the last available accommodation on the London Castle. A quarter of an hour later Mr. Jeremiah Fallowby also rang up the Castle office and was answered by a junior who was deputizing for the booking clerk, who had just gone out to lunch.

People often said that Jeremiah Fallowby was good looking. They qualified the statement in various ways; some said that he would be really handsome if he had a little more expression; some thought that his features were irregular, but he had nice eyes; others were inclined to the belief that it was his mouth which spoiled him. On one point they were all agreed: he could be very dull. He seldom went anywhere —you never met him, for example, dining at the Ambassador's on the night of the Grand Prix. He certainly went to Deauville—but always in the off season. The month he spent in Venice was the very month that the Lida was a wilderness. He was in town when everybody else was out of town, and Ascot usually coincided with the period that he chose for his stay at Aix.

At the height of the London season he was pretty sure to be somewhere in the country, and when the northbound trains were overloaded with guns bound for the moors, Jeremiah would be writing excuses from Madeira.

"Jerry, you're absolutely impossible!" rasped his aunt. "You never meet a gel worth knowing, and you'll end up by marrying a waitress in a teashop!"

"Which teashop?" asked Jerry, momentarily interested.

"You're coming to us for Christmas," said his aunt. "I am not going to allow you to wander alone. If you go away, I'll come with you—I warn you."

"Thank you," said Jeremiah, gratefully.

"You would like me to come?" asked the astonished lady.

"No," said Jeremiah, truthfully. "I'm thanking you for the warning."

None of his many relatives were really rude to his face, because he was worth a quarter of a million sterling. But the uncles and aunts and cousins who planned to marry him off and who arranged the most cunningly devised house parties, only to receive a letter which began:

> ". . . most terribly sorry, but I shall be in Venice on the 10th."

had no scruples in speaking of him in the plainest possible manner.

"It is his damned romanticism," fumed Uncle Brebbury, who had five eligible daughters. "He's got a fairy prince complex. Thinks he'll find a (naughty word) Cinderella. Teashop gel! He'll be bringing home a—a—"

"Betrie!" murmured his shocked wife. "Please! The Gels!"

But "the gels" were in complete sympathy.

Jeremiah wrote a little, read much, thought even more. He was modest enough to believe that he was entirely without attraction, sophisticated to the extent of suspecting that most mothers were prepared to sacrifice their daughters on the altar of his fortune.

One gloomy morning Jeremiah, having sworn to be a member of Mrs. Leslie Fallowby's Christmas house party, was contemplating the dismal prospect. Healthy men do not love caducity in any expression, and Jeremiah had met the frosts and the mists which lie in the tawny hollows of Burnham Beeches with an uneasy yearning for the moorlands, where spring was coming in with arum lilies growing on the seashore and wild gladiolas budding on verdant slopes.

He would rise from his writing table and pace restlessly the worn carpet of his study. And inevitably he would be drawn to the drawer where, with the supreme indifference which summer brought to him, he had thrown the early sailing lists.

For hours this morning he had sat turning them over. He could go to the east coast, stop off at Naples or Port Said. He could spend a week in Nairobi . . . he knew a man who was trying to grow cotton somewhere in Kenya—or was it tobacco?

It would be rather fun to end the sea journey at Biera—push off up country to Salisbury and work down through Buluwayo and Kimberley to the Cape.

There was a delightful boarding house at Rondebosch, kept by an ex-civil servant, with great hedges of blue plumbago. Behind, like the backcloth of a theatrical scene, the ranges of Constantia.

Jeremiah Fallowby made a little face and, walking to the casement window, stared out over the darkening lawn. Rain was falling steadily. Every tree dripped dismally.

He sat at his table again and reached for the telephone, gave a London number, and waited indecisively till the bell rang.

"Is that the Castle line? Good. Have you anything on the London Castle—deck cabin if possible?"

He waited, the receiver at his ear, his pen drawing uncouth arabesques on his blotting pad.

A voice at the other end of the wire awakened him to realities.

"Good. My name is Fallowby; yes, Jeremiah Fallowby. I'll arrange to collect the ticket right away."

He rang off and immediately connected with a London agent in Threadneedle street and gave him instructions. The tickets arrived by first post in the morning, and Jeremiah went joyously to the task of packing.

If he had only been content to stay at Burnham Beeches, he might have been saved a great deal of inconvenience. Within two hours of the receipt of his letter he had left his house, with instructions that neither letters nor telegrams should be sent on to him, and had deposited himself in his club in St. James street; so that he did not receive the frantic wire addressed to him by the steamship company, nor yet interview a penitent junior clerk who had booked a stateroom that was already engaged. In complete ignorance he motored to Southampton, had a breakdown on the way, and arrived only just in time to hurl his baggage on board.

The cabin was a large size one. He was annoyed to discover that there were two beds and directed the steward to remove one.

"Traveling alone, sir?" said the steward, phlegmatically. (Nothing surprises stewards.) And then: "There was some trouble about your ticket. Another gent was booked."

He glanced at the initials on the suitcase, took the counterfoil of the steamship ticket, made a few inquiries about Jeremiah's taste in the direction of early morning coffee and baths, and vanished.

To the purser, as he handed in the counterfoil: "Seventeen's aboard. The other fellow hasn't come."

"That's all right," said the assistant purser, and spiked the paper.

The ship had cleared Southampton waters and was nosing its way to the channel when Jerry, writing letters at the little desk in the cabin (the usual and untruthful excuses to Mrs. Leslie Fallowby), became aware that somebody was standing in the open doorway.

He looked up and saw a girl.

"Um—er—do you want anything?" he asked.

Mary Perella came into the stateroom a little boisterously. She had that excited pinkness which adventure gives to young skins—the day was unexpectedly mild; there was a blue, cloud-flecked sky above and the white cloisters of the Needles on the port quarter.

Ahead a summery land and the immense possibilities of new lands.

Jeremiah glared up at her from his writing table.

"O, Mr.——?"

He got to his feet slowly.

"Fallowby," he said, and she looked relieved.

"I've been worrying terribly about the name," she said. "You know, when Mrs. Fallowby told me, I didn't really catch it, but I hadn't the courage to ask."

Jeremiah frowned.

Mrs. Fallowby? Which of his innumerable aunts was this? Mrs. Hecter Fallowby or Mrs. Richard—or was it that terrible little Mrs. Merthan-Fallowby with the impossible daughters? He uttered an exclamation, but swallowed its violent end.

"Not Mrs. L.?" he said.

Even in his agitation he thought she was extraordinarily pretty; she at any rate was no Fallowby. Gray eyes, rather big; there was the faintest film of powder on her face, but young girls did that sort of thing nowadays.

She nodded smilingly; he was, she thought, being a little facetious. Husbands and wives spoke about one another in such queer ways.

"It will be rather fun spending Christmas day on board ship," she went on. "We are going to South Africa, aren't we?"

"Unless the captain changes his mind," said Jeremiah, and they both laughed.

Then he became conscious of his remissness.

"Won't you sit down?"

She sat on a sofa under the square window that looks on to the promenade deck.

"I suppose you have a letter from Mrs. Fallowby?"

It wasn't like any of the Fallowbys to give letters of introduction to pretty girl outsiders.

He saw a look of consternation come to the girl's eyes.

"Isn't she here?" she gasped.

Jeremiah blinked at her.

"Who—Mrs. Fallowby? I hope not!"

Mary Perella went pale.

"But—I suppose it is all right—but she said she was coming."

Jeremiah frowned. If there was one experience in the world he didn't want and which he intended to avoid, it was a tete-a-tete with a female Fallowby. Mrs. Leslie had evidently kept her promise.

"I suppose she's here, then," he said, unhappily.

There was an awkward pause. Into Mary's mind crept a doubt.

"She engaged me as traveling secretary, and she said I was to see you as soon as I got on board. Fortunately, I remembered the number of your cabin."

"Really!"

He could think of no comment more illuminating.

"So you're going to South Africa? Do you know the country?"

She had never been abroad. Her father had served in Africa. He was so interested a listener that she found herself telling him about the tragedy of two years before.

"I stayed with an aunt for six months, but it was rather—well, impossible."

"I never knew an aunt that wasn't," he sympathized. "You seem to have had a pretty unhappy time, Miss Perella—that is an Italian name, isn't it?"

She thought it had been Maltese 200 years before, and he seemed to remember a General Sir Gregory Perella who had done tremendous things in the Abyssinian war—or was it the mutiny?

Suddenly: "What do you want me to do? I have a portable typewriter——"

"Nothing," he said, hastily. "The best thing you can do is to go along and find Mrs. Fallowby—no, I don't think I should do that. If I remember rightly, she is a terribly bad sailor and won't be on deck for a week. Just loaf around. If there is anything I can do for you, let me know. Got a nice cabin? Fine! If you see Mrs. Fallowby, tell her I'm—er—awfully busy. In fact, I thought of writing."

She nodded wisely. "A book—I know."

She left him a little dazed.

He saw her that night at dinner, sitting at a little table by herself, and they exchanged smiles as he passed. There was no sign of Mrs. Leslie Fallowby, but the ship had a slight roll on and that would explain her absence. After dinner he saw the girl leaning over the rail and went up to her.

"I have not seen your—" she began.

"You wouldn't," he interrupted her. "Poor dear, she thinks this is rough weather."

He commandeered a chair for her and they sat down and talked till nearly 10 o'clock.

"You're going to let me help you with your book?" she said, as they stood at the head of the companionway before she went below for the night.

"My book?" He started guiltily. "O, of course! Did I say I was writing a book? Naturally, I will be happy for you to help me, but I haven't got very far."

He found himself awaiting her arrival on deck the next morning with some impatience. They were in the dreaded bay, but the sea was as smooth as a pond, and, save for the chill in the air, the weather was delightful. Pacing round and round the deck, they discovered mutual interests—she also would one day write a book, which was to be a tremendous affair about life and people. He did not even smile. Jeremiah was rather diffident; possibly he credited her with as extensive an acquaintance with the subject as he himself possessed.

"I can't find Mrs. Fallowby's cabin anywhere," she said. "My conscience has been pricking me. Couldn't I do something for her?"

"She's quite all right," said Jeremiah hastily.

It was time enough to brace himself for an interview with Mrs. Fallowby when she made her appearance. The letter of excuse he had written was already torn up. How like that enterprising lady to discover that he was sailing!

And yet he was puzzled a little. Why should Mrs. Fallowby have taken this voyage without her unprepossessing daughters? He resolved

Things New and Old About the Bible

By W. P. KING

Human Adjustment to the Fact of Suffering.

THERE is the universal fact of sorrow. I do not wish to wail in the minor key. But a philosophy of the world or an interpretation of life, that will put us in the right attitude toward the universal fact of suffering is of the utmost importance. This fact confronts every individual at some time in his life. It belongs to every age of the world, and to every stage of human society and to every order of living creatures. Just after Gypsy Smith had preached to a parlor full of millionaires' wives and daughters, a woman said to him, "Remember that no matter how small the audience, there is always somebody in it who is broken-hearted."

There is the necessity of ministry to the perplexed life.

It is at times needful to present that side of the gospel which is not a trumpet call to activity and Christian service, but which brings an inspiration to perseverance in the faith. There are people so perplexed by the problem of pain and disappointment that they have no heart for work.

It is mistakenly supposed that the only live questions are the questions that pertain to certain transient issues of the present. The problem of sorrow is of vital interest to every life. It is a question as old as the book of Job and older, a question as new as the "In Memoriam" of Tennyson and newer, a question as fresh as the last throb of pain in your body, as the last throb of anguish in your heart.

There is the beneficence of pain. Scientists assure us that pain is an agency of mercy. You complain that you have a headache. You should say that a pain in your head kindly informs you that your system is not in good running order.

If it were not for pain, you would die before you found out anything was the matter with you.

The pain of conscience informs you that something is wrong in the moral nature that should be corrected.

Holiness, not happiness, is the goal of life. If the world exists solely for the comfort of man, it is a conspicuous failure. If it were intended simply for a paradise of bliss, then it is missing its purpose very widely. We shall only come to any sort of understanding of our world and the purpose of it, when we know that God rules in our world to make creatures of character rather than creatures of comfort. Jesus teaches us that the supreme success of life is not to escape from God, but to be like God.

Suffering increases as the order of life advances.

The oyster has small capacity for suffering. As nerves multiply, the capacity for suffering increases. It is the ear trained to harmony that is most keenly sensitive to poor music.

It is the eye trained to the most perfect blending of colors that is most pained by an ugly blotch. Double your affectional nature and intellectual powers and you quadruple your capacity for suffering. Cut the nerves of sympathy and you eliminate a large amount of suffering. The saint knows agonies of soul that the low-minded never know. The perfect man was a Man of sorrows and His crown was a crown of thorns. God Himself is the supreme sufferer of the universe.

It may be added, however, that joy likewise increases. The capacity for joy is in proportion to the capacity of suffering. Bacon has said, "The nobler a soul is, the more objects of compassion it hath."

The all-important question with us is not whether we can understand the problem of sorrow, but whether we rightly relate ourselves to it.

The matter of importance is not whether we understand electricity, but whether we so relate ourselves to it as to receive the powers of light and locomotion.

The important thing is not whether we can understand the mystery of life, but whether we so relate ourselves to life as to make the best out of life. We do not understand one-billionth part of anything. There is a vast difference between seeing a fact and seeing into a fact.

As a general proposition the people who indulge in bitter railing against suffering are those who fail to adjust themselves to their own suffering and who do little to relieve the suffering of others.

The book, "Master and Men," by Dr. William Burnet Wright, published some years ago, should not be allowed to be forgotten. It carries that perennial freshness which is a mark of genius.

This author writes: "George Eliot was one of the strongest intellects of England. She was trained to believe in God, in Christ, in immortality. She lost faith in all three and spread an atmosphere of desperate doubt wherever her influence extended. The facts which destroyed her faith were the disappointments, the misery, and the hopelessness of human life. She never touched the suffering. She sat apart and speculated about it.

George MacDonald saw more of human misery than George Eliot. But he gave himself unselfishly in an effort to relieve it, and saw God in human life.

The Schopenhauers, who cannot believe in God because there is so much misery, are the men who know comparatively little of that misery; who stand aloof and prate about it. The Booths, who get closest to the misery in their efforts to relieve it, are sure of God.

The beautiful and brave words of Helen Keller give a truer philosophy of life than all the Schopenhauers and hypochondriacs who have whined and complained since the world began:

"Most people measure their happiness in terms of physical pleasure and possession. If happiness is to be so measured, I, who cannot hear or see, have every reason to sit in a corner with folded hands and weep. As sinners stand up in meeting and testify to the goodness of God, so one who is called afflicted may rise up in gladness of conviction and testify to the goodness of life. The struggle which evil necessitates is one of the greatest blessings. It makes us strong, patient, helpful men and women. It lets all into the soul of things and teaches us that although the world is full of suffering, it is full also of the overcoming of it."

EAST Tuesday night Manhattan's first-nighters grabbed up their ermine wraps and top hats and hurried off to the Globe theater, there to see the invaluable Beatrice Lillie cut up in "She's My Baby." It is needless to say that your correspondent was there, but alas, it wasn't the first time he'd seen that show. Exactly one week previous, unable to stand the strain any longer, off to Newark he had gone where Miss Lillie and her show were having a week's polishing prior to the New York opening.

For once they've done the right thing by Miss Lillie and that is they've given her a really funny show. They've captured Clifford Webb, Jack Whiting and many others to support her. They've had the prolific Hart and Rodgers dash off the lyrics and music and the costumes and the dancing are from and by the best. Not that, to my mind, a show needs anything except Beatrice Lillie to make it the best show in town. I must remember, I suppose, that possibly not everybody is as completely unbalanced on this subject as I am.

Certainly the two audiences whom I joined seeing "She's My Baby" seemed to feel as I did. They whooped and rocked and roared quite as helplessly as I did. Why try to define what Beatrice Lillie does to people? See her yourself and find out.

"You're What I Need" is the most lingering of the Rodgers tunes.

Christmas week in New York is quite the same confused and deranged week that it is in Atlanta. You are always so full of fruit cake and eggnog that you're never quite sure whether you are at Mrs. Whoopsie's tea-dance on Wednesday or merely Mr. Whosis' dinner on Friday. What does it matter anyway? The theaters are so full its like winning a prize to get into the least desirable of the attractions. People struggle to get seats during Christmas week to shows they couldn't be paid to sit through the week following. The supper clubs and the hotels are jammed with breathless people who are going to have a big evening or know why not. It all seems to go under the head of "a gay old time around Yuletide." Maybe they want to dance off the memory of some of those presents they got fooled on.

"Caste" is a dramatization of Cosmo Hamilton's best seller by Cosmo Hamilton, of all people. Who better than he would know how to go about getting one of those novels of his into a play? I'd certainly hate to try to do anything with or about those flowery-languaged morsels of his. Mr. Hamilton is certainly the one for using twenty-cent words.

"Caste" concerns itself with the love affair existing between a Gentile girl of the Four Hundred and a rich Jewish boy. Just as you decide the girl's snooty mother and father are going to be all upset about it, you learn that it's the boy's father who is so riled. They preached and argued back and forth for far longer than I cared to listen. If you are the sort who gets all excited about such subjects, you'll have the happiest evening of your life at "Caste." If you can overlook Mr. Hamilton's extravagant adjectives and are interested in this subject, the richly-mounted production of "Caste" should please you.

The girl is played by Vivian Martin. She is the sort of ingenue whose leaping entrances lead you to believe someone has just shot her out of a pistol.

Harking back to Christmas week again, you should be told that during that week more new plays opened than have opened during any previous week this season. And on glancing at the list of current attractions, I find I have told you about every production in town, prior to that week's openings, except the following. So let's get them out of the way so that next week I can start off with the after-Christmas offerings with all my back-work done:

(1) "Burlesque." This is a poignant and touching drama of life on the burlesque wheel. One of the season's hits and to be seen by all means.

(2) "The Trial of Mary Duggan." A murder trial, from start to finish, written by the same Mr. Veiller who wrote "Within the Law." See it without fail. Probably the most absorbing play in town.

(3) "The Doctor's Dilemma." The Theater Guild is doing an excellent revival of this Shaw play. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine are there for their admirers to swoon over.

(4) "The Banshee." I haven't seen this one but I've got my own ideas about it. It's described as a "mystery thriller" and I'll bet it is!

(4) Walter Hampden's revival of "An Enemy of the People." At any rate when you rise exhaustedly to leave, you'll have the satisfaction of remembering you gave your evening to Ibsen. Later mentioning this will help you tremendously in some circles.

(5) "Dracula." As gruesome and blood-curdling as you would imagine. It abounds in vampires (not the Theda Bara kind) and is most pleasantly seen if you brought a stretcher, two doctors and six trained nurses with you.

(6) "Take the Air." And that, Hazel, is the musical comedy I'm on my way to see now.

HIGH CHIVALRY

A Blue

INSTALLMENT I.

IT WAS like a picture some artist of a charmingly old-fashioned school might have painted, using every last color on his palette. Rather obviously he would have called it "Paris on a Spring Morning"; and that's just what it was—with the sunshine, yellow as a lamp, pouring across the boulevards in a great, warm flood, the vaulted sky as blue as flax, the gay, shameless life surging everywhere.

People on foot. People in motor cars. A very few in carriages.

"I like it," said the young man with the very dark, straight hair to the young man with the very pale, curling hair.

He was dressed in shabby worsted, his friend in shabby tweeds. They were shabby because they had no money, and they had no money because the war—they had served in the same French regiment—had cut them adrift from their moorings. Still, their shabbiness could not conceal that the blond young man was good looking, the dark young man striking looking.

Women glanced sideways as they passed. Some smiled. Some turned and frankly stared.

There were, for instance, those two little short-skirted errand girls. They stopped at the curb and watched the two young men who had halted to light cigarettes.

"Suzette," said Lucienne, "what nationality are they, do you think?"

"I have no idea. Shall we ask them?"

"Bon jour, Messieurs!"

The two young men raised their hats.

"Bon jour, Mesdemoiselles!"

"Pardon! But, to decide a bet, what nationality are you?"

"I'm a Russian Tartar," replied the dark young man. I am Prince Mehmet Tamerlanoff—at your service. This is Lord Frederick Augustus Cyprian Treherne de Vere Carmyon. . ."

"Pleased to meet you!" said Suzette, thoroughly indignant at what she thought was a lie and an unnecessary slight. "I am the empress of China."

They turned on their heels and walked away, their noses in the air, while Prince Tamerlanoff and Lord Carmyon looked at each other and laughed. For they really were Prince Tamerlanoff and Lord Carmyon.

There was neither money in their pockets nor anything pawnable. Three months earlier Lord Carmyon had spent his last ten francs on an extra rasher of bacon with his breakfast, and Prince Tamerlanoff his last twenty francs on a tawny orchid for a very beautiful woman with passionate eyes and a stony, chilly heart.

The reason for Prince Tamerlanoff's financial condition was simple enough.

The outbreak of the world war had found him military attache of the Tsar's Paris embassy. Unable to return to his native land and his old regiment, the Turkoman Cossacks, he had fought under the Tricolor—had fought with that rather naively spectacular heroism so typical of his race, of both his races. At the time—don't you remember?—you could hardly open a Sunday supplement without seeing his picture.

Yes. Verdun. The quite amazing things he did there—this and that and the other thing, usually dealing with German machine gun nests—and a Chicago paper headlining his most foolhardy exploit with "Attaboy, Tamerlanoff!"—and the huzzas and hoorays whenever he went to Paris on leave—and the hysterical crowd following him down the boulevards.

General Foch had kissed him. The queen of Belgium had kissed him. The president of France had kissed him. Lloyd George and Irving S. Cobb had almost kissed him.

Oh, yes—that brave Russian—that brave Tartar . . . and long live the Tsar!

But the Tsar had not lived so long after all. Revolution had broken out in Moscow and Petrograd. Thence it had rolled on, north, east, south, west, rushing across towns and villages, fields and steppes like a sheet of smoldering fire, yellow, inexorable.

The bolshevist Juggernaut had jerked into motion. Crunchingly, pitilessly, its wheels had moved.

Everywhere the cry had been:

"Da zdrastvoovet revolutzia—long live the revolution!"

And more ominous, more bitter, more direct:

"Smvert boyarum—death to the nobility!"

If not death, in case the particular aristocrat happened to be safely abroad, then complete financial ruin—and exile.

Thus the fate of Tamerlanoff, who discovered that, with peace, he was no longer the brave hero whom queens and generals had kissed, but just another bankrupt foreigner. Nor very popular. For was he not a Russian? Was not Russia bolshevist? Did not the bolshevists refuse to pay their debts to the French bondholders?

He tried for employment. Tried for it hard, his shabby hat in his proud hand.

But the invariable reply would be that there was no employment for Russians . . . ah! those dirty, thieving, murderous bolshevists, those . . . pardon? You belong to the old regime? You fought in the French army? You have been decorated? All the same, we have no jobs except for Frenchmen. War was war—but business is business, M. le Prince!

The reason why Lord Carmyon was broke was also quite simple.

For his parents were dead and he had always been penniless since his father—the famous, some say infamous, "Sportin' Freddie" Carmyon of Mayfair, Biarritz and points adjacent—had squandered on a red-haired chorus girl the remnants of the fortune which his grandfather—the famous, some say infamous, "Fightin' Freddie" Carmyon of the regency, Carmyon of shady stock deals, Carmyon, almost, of Brixton prison—had squandered betting on the prowess of gentlemen with cauliflower ears who had battled according to the rules laid down by the late Marquess of Queensberry.

Of course the present Lord Carmyon—"Mad Freddie" Carmyon they called him—was related to half the British peerage; and the most powerful of all his kinsmen was his distant cousin, the Duke of Hampshire, that staunch old nobleman with the unkempt farmers' whiskers who, nearly automatically, becomes a cabinet minister whenever the conservative party is in the saddle.

There had been a few thousand pounds, left him by an aunt, that had footed Carmyon's bills through Eton and Oxford. Afterwards his grace of Hampshire had got him a berth in the Indian civil service.

And to India he had gone, with the duke's parting advice that impartiality and tolerance were the keystone of Britain's imperial policy; from India he had returned a year later, saying calmly to his grace:

"I resigned."

"Why?"

"The viceroy himself insisted I should. In fact, he gave me the choice between resigning—and being jolly well kicked out."

"What?" his grace had roared.

"Right-o! I followed your advice."

"What advice?"

"Impartiality and tolerance! Britain's imperial slogan!"

He had explained how, overlord of a small Indian community which boasted only one street but three religions that hated each other cordially, he had been approached by the high priest of the Moslems, the high priest of the Hindus, and the high priest of the Sikhs. On the following Monday would coincide the feast days of a great Moslem, a great Hindu, and a great Sikh saint; the three priests had asked permission for their coreligionists to parade in solemn procession with their holy relics . . . "and only one street," Carmyon had added, "and bitter, three-cornered hate! Well, sir—I rendered a decision worthy of Solomon, king of the Jews. I proposed that the three priests pool their processions. Suggested that I myself should head the whole jolly show with a British military band playing 'Hail! Hail! The gang's all here!' Impartiality and tolerance—what?"

At which his grace had exploded, tactlessly, brutally:

"You're a damned arrogant, brainless ne'er do well—just as your father—and your grandfather——"

The other had turned red, then white.

"Sir," he had interrupted, "you may not have cared for my late father's taste in chorus girls nor for my grandfather's taste in pugilists. But—by gad, sir—I don't care for either your taste in manners nor in whiskers!"

And he had plucked three hairs from his ducal kinsman's rustic beard; had left the room, slamming the door, and had taken the next boat for Calais and Paris.

A week later the world war had broken out. At once he had wired to the duke.

"What about a commission in the army? Sorry about the three hairs."

Perhaps, in the hullabaloo of those first hectic war days, the telegram had been tossed aside as unimportant by his grace's private secretary. Perhaps the duke had still been too angry to reply. At all events, no answer had reached Lord Carmyon, who—furious at his kinsman, furious, without rhyme or reason at England—had promptly enlisted in the French army and marched to the front, dressed in the illy fitting uniform of a private in the seventy-seventh infantry.

Had come peace; discharge from the army; a few thousand francs back pay.

Return to England?

No. The war had made him restless.

After all, he was a romanticist—a romanticist who, like Prince Tamerlanoff, found it impossible to obtain in Paris such an unromantically necessary thing as employment, and who, again like Tamerlanoff, the last ten francs of his back pay spent, might have genteelly starved to death had it not been for the good offices these last three months of a certain Hector Aristide L'Hommedieu.

The latter was a Gascon who had served in the same regiment with Tamerlanoff and Carmyon and who, the war over, had once more taken up his former civilian occupation: that of bottle washer at the Chien Qui Fume, a cheap restaurant in the neighborhood of the Rue Pirouette.

He had remained a private while the Englishman had risen to the rank of captain, the Russian to that of major. He was a peasant while the other two were aristocrats. But th democracy of war—the democrac of the same dirt, the same despair an occasionally, the same high elation—had made them fast friends. Th Three Muskateers had been thei nicknames in the seventy-seventh in fantry.

So, quite simply, their last centin gone, the two muskateers had a pealed to the third. Quite simply; he had given them a fair share of a he had; his narrow bedroom in th due de Turbigo, his modest food, his cigarettes.

He even offered them money. Of course with elaborate delicacy.

But they knew how hard he worked for his few francs. They knew, too, that every day of life he bought a bouquet of red roses for Mademoiselle Jacqueline Vauquelin, the pretty little black-eyed daughter of the master plumber around the corner, not far from the Restaurant Pharamond, the Ritz of the vicinity.

The head waiter of the Pharamond was also in love with Jacqueline. He had already spoken to Father Vauquelin. So the Englishman and the Russian, guessing that L'Hommedieu needed every centime he could save for roses, accepted his money—they did not want to hurt his thin skinned, quixotic Gascon soul by refusing—only to lose it back to him, promptly and deliberately, over card games.

Never once did the Gascon suspect.

"I'm lucky, eh?" he would exclaim guilelessly. Then, a hand on either of his two friends' arms, he would add: "Never mind! Some day your luck will change—at cards—and other things!"

And indeed it seemed that, this very morning, the Gascon's optimistic prediction had a chance of coming true, at least where Lord Carmyon was concerned. For the latter had received a note from the Duke of Hampshire who was passing through Paris on his way to London from the league of nations, where he represented his country. This note asked the other to call at the British embassy a little before the noon hour—"to talk over your future."

"I hope he'll write you a fat cheque," suggested Tamerlanoff as they stopped in front of the embassy.

Upstairs, a minute or two later, Carmyon shook hands with Dennis Trelawney, his uncle's private secretary. They had known each other at Oxford; had met again casually in the mud of the trenches.

Trelawney had already opened the door to the duke's sanctum when another visitor, a young girl, was ushered into his office from the outer hall. Carmyon was on the point of crossing the farther threshold when he saw her. He looked at her; the low, broad, white forehead; the whorl of russet hair peeping from beneath a tight-fitting toque; the slightly curved, sensitive nose; the chin, soft in outline yet indicating courage and strength; the violet blue eyes; the mobile lips, coral rather than cherry; the head poised with dignity upon a slim, white throat; the lithe body in simple, blue serge.

Here—came his silent and very un-English comment is a lovely young girl . . . a girl exquisitely and intemperately beautiful . . . a girl for the sake of whose eyes a young man might do grand and glittering deeds and . . .

"Come in! Come in!" the duke's impatient voice interrupted his revery from the other room. "Don't dawdle!"

So he hurried across the threshold, closed the door from the inside, shook his kinsman's limp hand, and was immediately put on the defensive by the latter's first question:

"Have you grown more sensible with the years?"

"A viewpoint, sir."

"Not a bit of it. All people should be sensible."

"What a middle class remark—for a duke!"

His grace flared up a little. His grace was always flaring up a little.

"We can't all see life through—ah—the medium of a couple of absinthe cocktails before every meal," he replied.

"I never touch absinthe. Tastes too much like soap."

"You know damned well what I mean. Broke, aren't you?"

"Quite, sir."

"Going to try to earn your living?"

"I have tried!"

"But you have not succeeded. What do you know. What can you do? What are you fit for?"

"I can drill an infantry battalion. I can dig a trench with the best of them. I can handle a machine gun if it isn't the jamming sort, and even if it is I can make a fair stab at it. I can—"

"I know," the duke cut in. "You can murder people with the most scientific and modern methods. Nothing to that—just now. What else do you know?"

"Languages. My French is rather decent—and my Hindustani and Persian not so bad."

"Which means that you can order a dinner without causing a riot between the Alsatian chef and the Swiss waiter, that you can get the points of the more naughty stories in the Vie Parisienne, and that you are able to swear at Oriental servants. What else do you know?" His grace continued inexorably.

"What's the idea of cross-examining me?"

"To find out if you're beginning to see life straight—to see yourself straight."

"I prefer a sideways view. That's the way to overlook the things I don't like in life—and in myself. Well, sir—why did you write to me? What do you want?"

"I want to help you."

"Jolly decent of you. Make your cheque to bearer."

"I've already done so."

"You—w-what . . . ?" Carmyon was utterly astonished.

"Here it is!" And the duke produced a signed, pink slip of paper, filled out for 5,000 pounds.

The younger man shook his head.

"I don't believe it," he said. "I fancy it'll come back marked 'no funds.'"

"It's perfectly good—and it's yours—"

"Thanks!"

"On one condition."

"I knew there would be a catch somewhere. Carry on, sir."

"Before, when you enumerated the catalogue of your accomplishments, you omitted one or two."

"How careless. You tell me!"

"You're a gentleman."

"You are familiar with all the social parlor tricks—you have a certain disarming charm—you are good looking—"

"Don't make me blush!" interjected Lord Carmyon while the other went on:

"With this five thousand for a starter and more coming in every month you'll make a tremendous hit in Paris society—chiefly considering your war record and the many friends you must have made in the French arm . . ."

"You'll see in a moment. Society and international politics are hand in glove in France. Extraordinary people, these French!" His grace of Hampshire was soundly insular. "Always messing about with intrigues! Remember Felix Faure—the Panama affair—Caillaux? Yes—always a scandal—always a woman mixed up in it—always a good looking young man. Always state secrets whispered—discreetly, or rather indiscreetly—across a bottle of champagne, a silken boudoir cushion or—well—in payment for a string of pearls. I'll see to it that you get all the money you need—for champagne—and pearls."

"I say! If you should ever need me—I can do the most fantastically reckless things."

"Aren't France and England allies?"

"No longer. The war is over. There are new conditions—new ambitions—new secret, international alignments. British and French interests clash—in Africa—in the near east. And Paris—a certain section of Paris society—is the clearing house for all the whispered news."

"In other words, you want me to spy on the country under whose flag I fought?"

"Why not? You're an Englishman."

"But—as you yourself told me—I'm also an English gentleman. Sir," said Lord Carmyon, "I shall tickle your sense of the ridiculous with one of those melodramatic gestures which that American actor—what's his name? . . . oh, yes — John Barrymore—does so superbly on the screen. Look, my lord duke!"—and he tore the cheque into a dozen pieces and walked to the door.

He had already opened it when his kinsman called after him:

"Silly young fool! You would have been a howling success in the days of chivalry! Well—those days are over!"

"I'm not sure of it," replied Lord Carmyon as he entered Trelawney's office.

The young girl was still there.

"I'll tell the duke that you are here," said Trelawney, leaving the room.

By this time Carmyon had picked up his hat and crossed to the outer door.

He turned there and looked at her.

She looked at him with her frank, violet-blue eyes.

"I wonder," she said quite suddenly, "if you can be right by any chance."

"About what?"

"The days of chivalry. Are you sure they are not over?"

To which Lord Carmyon—indeed, there is a family tradition that his grandmother's grandmother had had more than a drop of Spanish gypsy blood—made one of his so typically un-English replies:

"Of course I'm right. Chivalry depends on a woman's charm, and beauty, and graciousness. And you—" He slurred, was silent.

"And I . . . ?"

"You are—if you will permit me to say it—like one of those lovely symbols which so very rarely a great and good God shapes out of the shoddy stuff called life. Oh, yes—looking at you, I'm quite sure that chivalry still exists."

"You say that because its Paris—and May—and the sky so blue."

"I say it because it's true."

"If it were only true! O—if it were!" She spoke very softly, very seriously. Then she shook her head. "Of course, it isn't," she added, with a little laugh. "I'm afraid you're a romantic young man."

"Decidedly. And, being a romantic young man, I beg you to put me to the test."

"How?"

"Allow me to tilt a lance for the sake of your glove . . . they did tilt lances in the days of chivalry, didn't they?"

"Those were the days when knights rode in armor."

"Well—this knight rides, rather walks, in regrettably shabby tweeds. But the outer man doesn't count—unless you're a snob . . and you aren't a snob, are you?"

She smiled.

He thought: the small, white face of her—how amazingly lovely—how perfectly, amazingly lovely!

She was still smiling. But he noticed that there was no life in her smile. Worry there was—and a certain fear . . . "

"I say!" he exclaimde suddenly, impulsively. "If you should ever need me . . . I assure you I can do the most fantastically reckless things . . ."

"I'm quite sure you can."

"I'm glad you believe in me I—"

"I beg your pardon!" came a voice from the door.

Carmyon spun around, tremendously interrupted. Trelawney had returned, walked upon the girl, and talked to her in an undertone for a minute or two, evidently expostulating.

She stamped her foot. Her words were high and clear and imperious.

"Useless or not—I shall speak to him."

And she entered the duke's room while Carmyon turned to Trelawney.

"Useless—what?" he asked.

"Trying to persuade the chief. He can't help himself. We have our hands full in England—what with taxes rising—unemployment growing—imperialism at a discount . . . we can't afford trouble with Russia—not just now."

"What are you talking about? Who is she?"

"I thought you knew. She's the Sultana of Kivastan."

"O—that's who she is!"

"Right-o. Her Royal Highness Sultana Evelyn . . . only I'm afraid she won't be sultana for very long."

Kivastan is a small independent principality up there in the far, yellow heart of central Asia where three countries—Russia, China and India—meet and swap lies and intrigues and threats and occasional bales of goods.

Doubtless you have heard of Kivastan; doubtless read of it in your school histories. As doubtless you forgot it; relegated it to a back cell in your brain as something fantastic, legendary, romantic. But then, at times, Mr. H. L. Mencken nothwithstanding, romance has a trick of being true—so much more true than mere realism—and Kivastan is a case in point. True the tale of it, as true as there is today in Sarawak a ruling rajah with the prosy bourgeois Saxon name of Brooks; as true as, quite recently, there died a certain kaid, Sir Harry Mclean, commander-in-chief

Are The Men More V

What a Famous Photographer of Celebrities Has to Say About the Fads and Foibles of the Great and Near-Great, Their Conceits and How They Reveal Themselves Before the Camera

Are women vainer than men before the lens of a photographer?

Is beauty the main instigator of vanity?

Are Americans vainer of their looks than foreigners?

Is the younger generation vainer than the preceding ones?

BY KATHLEEN READ-COONTZ.

THESE are some of the questions that flew through the air—without respect to wave length—when G. W. Harris, of the nationally known Washington (D. C.) firm of Harris & Ewing, was approached.

"I thought the subject of vanity belonged to the pulpit!" he protested. For a quarter of a century he has photographed at his studio at Washington virtually every person of importance in America, with a good measure of its beauty and chivalry thrown in, as well as all of the distinguished foreign visitors.

"But who should be able to speak more convincingly upon that topic than one who admits that he must be able to focus mental as well as physical eyes upon his subject in order to produce a sincere likeness?" came the retort. It seemed to touch a streak of vanity in the photographer himself, for when he started to speak it was from the standpoint of his own success.

"Of course, you understand that while the painter unconsciously reveals his own character in his work, the photographer is purely objective in his. Yet there is a pride—call it vanity if you will—in portraying the subject as he appears to his friends—or in the case of a person of importance, to the world. A woman is not only a woman. With her group of children she is a mother; again she is a society queen, or a woman with a career.

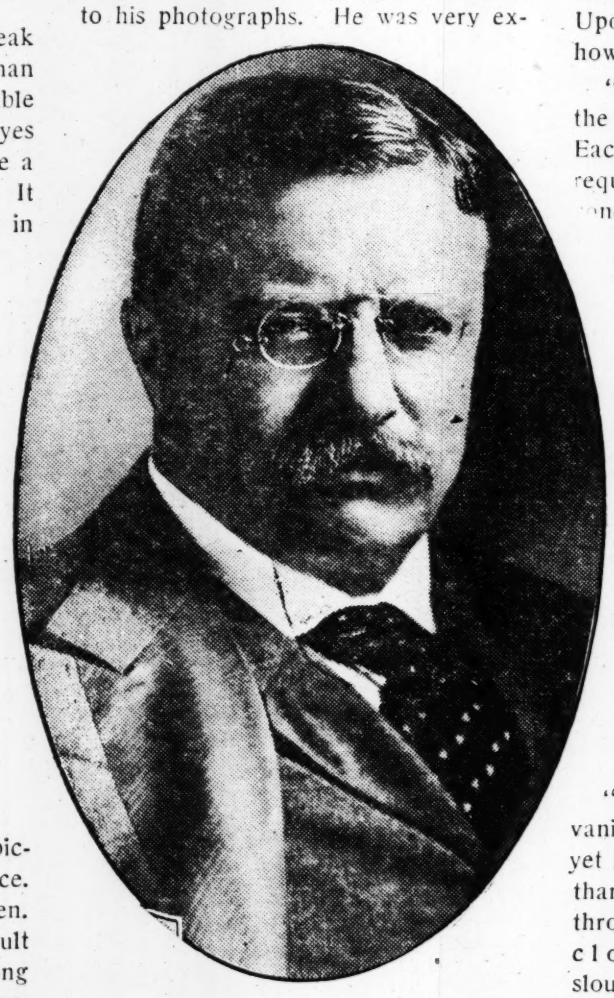

"The person who studies a pictured face likes to find this in the face. The same, of course, is true of men. Success in producing the desired result depends largely, of course, on catching and transfixing the right expression, but it also has largely to do with lighting. In taking a picture of H. G. Wells, the English writer, one might very easily make of him a sort of prize-fighter; that is by focusing the light on the dominant chin.

"With that light focused on the magnificent forehead he is presented to the world in the role that he has won—a great scholar and writer. He was a splendid subject, possessed of many varying expressions, yet almost entirely without self-consciousness. The same might be said of Alfred Noyes."

"Is that generally so of writers—the lack of self-consciousness—vanity?" came the question.

"No, I can't say that it is. Literary people are often much disappointed with their finished likenesses. I don't know whether this is due to any especial vanity or if, after all, they do not build up a likeness of themselves in their minds as they do certain characters in their fiction, and are surprised that the photograph fails to uphold it.

"President Wilson, who was an acknowledged litterateur, was, I think, one of the vainest of people in regard to his photographs. He was very exacting while he was being posed and had to pass absolutely upon every picture given out. Mrs. Wilson, although a beautiful woman, now refuses to pose for photographers.

One of Mr. Harris' best portraits of the the late Theodore Roosevelt, who was entirely without vanity when facing the camera.

"WITH theatrical artists the exact reverse is true. They are very easy to photograph for the reason that their work has rendered them conscious of their every expression and in control of every muscle in their body. They are seldom disappointed in their pictures, having apparently visualized it before it materialized.

"Is vanity prevalent among temperamental people? Well, I would say, no. At least not in the accepted definition of vanity. There are other things besides mere outward appearance in which they set more store in which their so-called vanity is directed.

"Does vanity stalk any one walk of life more than another? If you will limit that to men, I should say that it might be more largely found in the army and navy than any other calling. Upon reflection this is very natural, however.

"Appearance plays a large part in the life of an army or naval officer. Each insigne and button must be in a required place. With such meticulous concern over their appearance they very naturally gain such reputation for vanity. However, I have never had an army or navy officer keep us waiting to 'primp.' Then, too, you must remember, the women's well-known weakness for brass buttons is likely to develop all of the latent vanity in the make-up of a man.

"Marshal Foch was one soldier, however, who had too little vanity to register a good picture. He was extremely hard to photograph. He is timid and would, as it were, withdraw his personality before the camera's focus.

"The average man has too little vanity in regard to his appearance, and yet I should say he is vainer, as a rule, than women. He will throw himself in a chair, clothes askew, all slouched down and demand to be taken 'as is.' 'This is just my natural self, the way I am every day; I want a natural picture,' he will tell you. But wait until he sees his 'natural self' in a picture and all of the vanity in his make-up rises to the top. 'Why, I don't look like that—look at those clothes,' and he will then quietly submit to a photograph directed by the photographer. He has not the unstudied charm he fancied he had.

"President Roosevelt, however, was one of the exceptions to this rule. He wanted a natural picture, had it taken without any arrangement and seldom if ever took the trouble to select the proofs. Which might be said to be an entire lack of vanity.

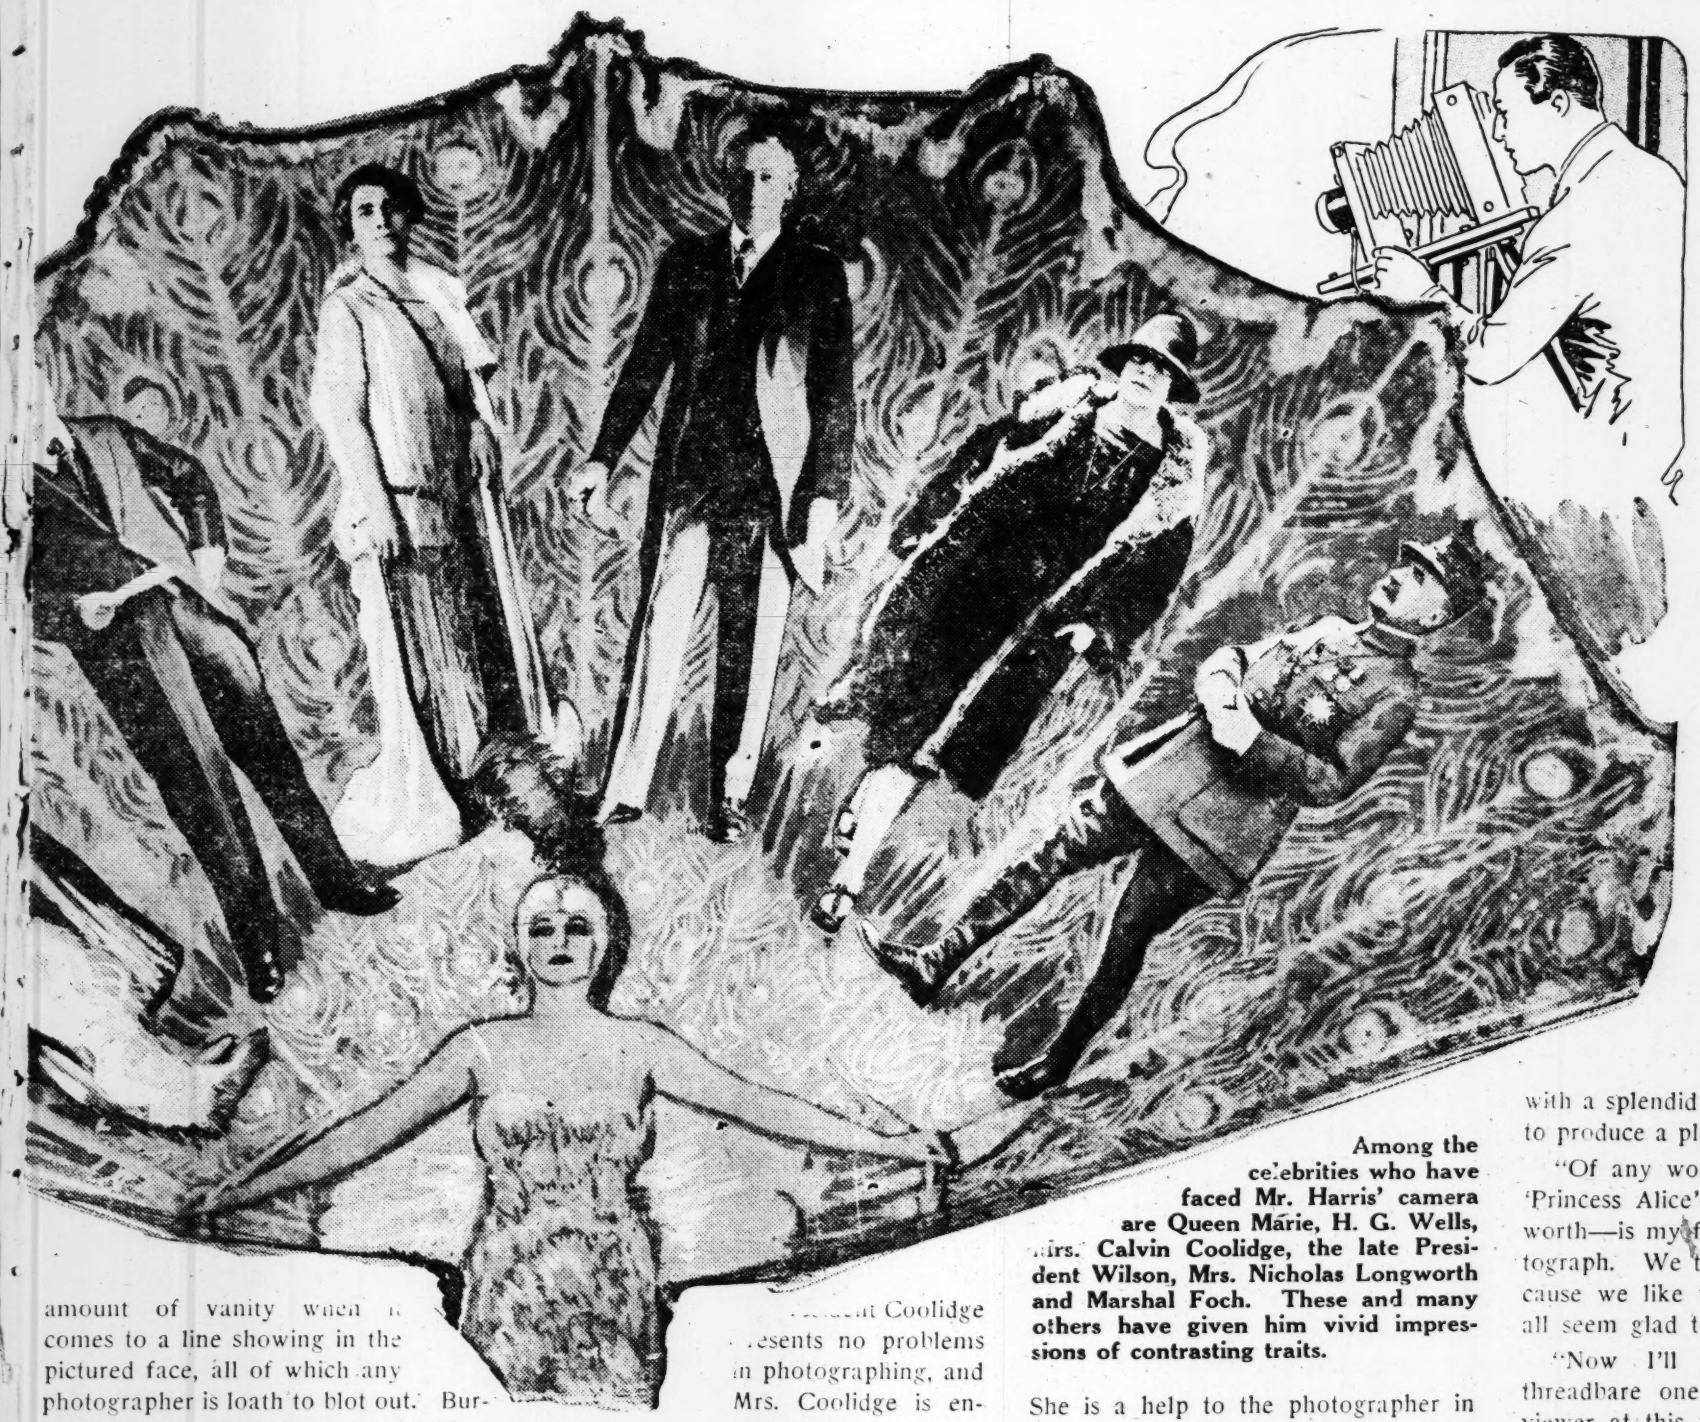

"Senator Reed is another apostle of naturalness and unconcern with the result. You will tell him his tie is crooked and he will reply, 'What if it is? I must wear it that way—then shoot!' And he has no constructive or destructive criticism on the picture when it is done.

"Many persons display a certain

ain Than The Women?

Among the celebrities who have faced Mr. Harris' camera are Queen Marie, H. G. Wells, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, the late President Wilson, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Marshal Foch. These and many others have given him vivid impressions of contrasting traits.

amount of vanity when it comes to a line showing in the pictured face, all of which any photographer is loath to blot out. Burroughs, the naturalist, was one subject —I believe the only one I ever had— who seemed to take a genuine pleasure in viewing the fine network of lines that seamed his face. They might have been his vanity, who knows? Each one represented to him and to the world a careful scrutiny and patient watching of the little feathered folk.

liam Howard chatting in-

"President Harding has left to the world some wonderful pictures of himself, because he so readily yielded to the wishes of the photographer. Many of his biographers have pictured him as exceedingly vain of his looks. Perhaps he was.

"He was the best-dressed president I ever photographed and combined with it a charm that cannot be disputed. No man so admired by the gentler sex often escapes the penalty of vanity.

...t Coolidge ...esents no problems in photographing, and Mrs. Coolidge is entirely willing to let the photographer do the suggesting of the poses.

"It is a great pleasure to photograph the foreigners who come to Washington in the service of their countries, or other distinguished visitors. Unlike our American men, men from the other countries are ready for the camera when they walk into the studio. Everything about them is set. Dress is a matter of great concern to men in high positions, other than American men and no debutante could be more 'bandboxed' in appearance. They are far vainer than the women of their countries, I have observed, who in turn might be said to be less vain than our American women. Perhaps a good deal of this reverts again to the question of clothes.

"American women care more about clothes and know better how to wear them than any women on earth. Clothes figure largely in her vanity. She is a help to the photographer in seeing that the lines of her gown fall where they should. While women from other countries often wear beautiful and expensive clothes, they do not, I think, study their own type as happily as does the American woman.

"There are also many beautiful women in the embassies and legations, but they wear their beauty more as a matter of fact. But this, I think, is true of all really beautiful women. They are not, as a rule, possessed of as much vanity as their plainer sisters. Their beauty seems such an assured, such an unquestioned thing to them that they have dismissed it from the front ranks of their consciousness. Awareness of beauty and vanity are different things.

"Queen Marie might perhaps have seemed at times somewhat concerned about her appearance, but that is often true of beautiful women whose age is gradually removing them from the ranks of the 'beautiful' to that of the 'lovely.'

"The women in the cabinet who, perhaps, make the best all-round photographs are Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Dwight Davis. They unconsciously adapt themselves to the photographer's art, which, combined with a splendid dress sense, never fails to produce a pleasing photograph.

"Of any woman in capital society, 'Princess Alice'—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth—is my favorite subject to photograph. We take her every year because we like to and because people all seem glad to look at her."

"Now I'll ask you another—a threadbare one," ventured the interviewer at this point. "Do photographers prefer blondes—but aren't they much vainer than the brunettes?"

They did.

"No artist or photographer will deny that he prefers to portray a blonde. She radiates the light. For a brunette the lights must be carefully arranged or you will have a drab, flat picture. I think I could say—offhand, even at the risk of wounding the hundreds of brunette beauties who line my walls—that brunettes are vainer than blondes. They seem to spend more time before the mirror preparatory to posing—but maybe not."

As though his paternal pride reminded him of a like pride, Mr. Harris related a pretty incident of a great man who not long ago brought his mother to his studio to select the photograph of him she liked best. There was an array of them from which to choose—important-looking ones, thoughtful-looking ones, clever ones; photographs of every angle of a face well known to the world.

The old woman looked intently at each one and then drew forth one that the man had passed up entirely in his own selection. The photographer, however, was not surprised. He had seen it happen too often before. The

My Lady Far Away — Concluded From Last Week

By God, they had got that other not; must be better plucked ones han he had thought them. Confound hose cartridges. If he could only fire reely he'd have the beggars on the un in thirty seconds. . . . A boat boy began firing wildly. Hugh reached over and clubbed him on the head.

"All together, fire," he ordered. Another volley further diminished his tiny store, and the canoes hadn't been stopped, though they were certainly weakening a little.

No, by Jove, they were not weakening. They were drawing together, preparing for attack. Some one out here must have a head. Some one had seen that the increased pace of the yacht was telling on the paddlers; that it was now or never. The mob spirit was welded into one at last.

The Lahara was doing her utmost, quivering from bow to stern as she urged her way towards the open river. Out there was safety, if only the natives didn't think——

They did; they had. The unseen leader had given his orders and the orders were obeyed. All in a mass, the canoes—as many of them as could find place—drew right across the opening to the river and blocked it. And as the Lahara at top speed drove into them, scores of the headhunters abandoned their canoes and swarmed aboard like bulldog ants rushing on a carcass.

This maneuver was the one thing they had done all together, and apparently the one thing they could do in concert; but they did it perfectly. Hugh and his boys, fighting desperately with knife and rifle butt—the cartridges had failed—were driven toward the middle of the deck by sheer weight of numbers; and over the rail more and more Papuans kept pouring, till it seemed as if the very world were made of human limbs and furious human faces. They were using the short distance arrows now, wide and cruel; they had spears, too, and stabbed as they came. Two or three boat boys were down; Hugh himself was conscious of some injury, but felt it scarce at all. The only thought in his mind was, "Stella and Martha! We can't let them—rather ourselves—but no bullets left now; knife messy work." Then something happened. He could not see what, but it was as if a silent bomb had been exploded in the middle of the swarming warriors, scattering them right and left. And all the yelling they had done up to this was as nothing compared to what now arose from their lips.

They were backing—weakening. Hugh shouted to his boys and charged after the flying natives. Somebody called out to him, "Take care, stand clear;" and Welch passed him, striking right and left with what seemed to be black rope. In another instant Wilsdon saw that the snake tamer had opened his cases and taken out the deadly occupants; that he was actually fighting with them, keeping them, with marvelous art, from touching himself while he swung them through the air at the headhunters.

There is nothing that the Papuan fears like a snake, and Wilsdon knew it.

"Gosh," he thought, "that'll do the trick." He did not dare to join in this new style fighting; he could only carry the cages as they were wanted and keep out of the way, once Welch had smashed in the lids and let the terrible inhabitants loose. His boys had no scruples whatever; they climbed up the masts and remained there, quarreling with one another for room. Black snakes, tiger snakes, brown snakes, pythons, death adders, a flaming mass of poison and death, Welch pulled them all out and slung them at the yelling, terrified natives. He leaned over the side of the ship and cast death adders into canoes; he pitched black snakes with scarlet bellies into the lake and saw them swim up to the shallow ends of the canoes and try to writhe their way in, while the horrified occupants jumped out and dog-paddled wildly away. He cracked a long tiger like a whip in the face of the only man who withstood the attack, and the native—a sorcerer—recognized one greater than himself and fled, crying.

It was over in a minute or two. Faster than they had poured into the ship the headhunters poured out of it, and the movement, taken up by canoes and canoes, one from another, became general even before those on the outskirts of the fleet knew what had happened. The Lahara, bursting her way through a covey of emptied canoes that bumped along her sides as she went, found the passage, worked out into the river, and was away. Not yet were the people defeated. Some of the canoes gave chase; but even though they paddled at an astonishing rate, it was a stern chase now and Wilsdon knew they would not hold the spurt long enough. It was over.

He wiped his face with his sleeve and gasped, "My gosh, that was hot."

"You're pinked," remarked Welch. "Their arrows are filthy; better attend to it."

"It's a bullet wound," pronounced Hugh, examining his leg. "Clean flesh wound, through the muscle. Won't matter much. Shows just what these coastal beggars of ours are worth in the way of keeping their heads. Might have been my head. Hope you haven't left any snakes lying about, by the way."

"I am extremely sorry to say," answered Welch, "that I was obliged to sacrifice my whole collection."

"Awfully decent of you, but I can't say we'll miss them. Will you—may I——"

"Certainly. I'm a poor man, more or less. Charter me the Lahara for another trip."

"What! You're going back to—"

"I am going back," replied Welch, with a certain deliberation, "to the lake. If you have no need for your island and the house on it, I should be very glad to purchase——"

"O, rot; take it as a gift. But, man alive, why do you think of doing such a thing?"

"Partly," replied the other, "because I think of making a new collection, when I've had time to refit. Partly because—she's got me."

"Who? Martha?"

"Certainly not. I can't tell you her name, but I think My Lady Far Away is as near as any one can come to it."

"Please yourself," said Hugh with a stare. He understood, but tried to pretend to himself, as well as to the other, that he did not.

"And now," he added, "I think we'd better let the women out of their black hole. We shall be half way down the river by sundown; this tide is adding knots to our speed."

A year later—quite recently, in fact two couples, visibly honeymooning, encountered each other at that Australian paradise of wedding couples, Jenolan caves. One pair was coming out of the Orient cave, with a private guide, just as the other entered it, similarly accompanied. They looked at each other with some interest; to have a private guide and a private view, in Jenolan, numbers you at once among the elect. . . .

"That's a damn pretty little cat with Lord Wilsdon," remarked the thin, tall, rather distinguished looking man who was walking with the fair-haired and exceedingly well-dressed woman.

"She's just home from school," she said, in a disparaging tone of voice, his bride. "Bread and butter in a lordly dish."

"Damn good," said the man, chuckling. "You mean to make yourself known?" He looked at her as if he knew, and savored, a rich private joke.

"You can introduce me," she told him, meeting his glance with one as hard and shameless as his own. They were, in truth, a very well matched pair.

"Lord Wilsdon," said the man, lifting his hat. "I think I have the pleasure——"

Hugh had met him; but did not remember him at all clearly.

"Certainly, certainly," he said, acknowledging the greeting and wondering how many more idiots were going to interrupt and spoil his honeymoon—it was more of a nuisance to have a title than any one would think who hadn't tried. . . . Then his eyes opened wide as he saw, for the first time, the face of the strange man's partner.

"May I introduce my wife," said the stranger.

"And may I introduce my husband?" put in Martha, "Mr. Lyle."

It took a good deal to astonish Lord Wilsdon, but he remained speechless for quite a good part of a minute.

"I thought," he began. Then he recommenced. "I was—under the impression that——" How could one go on?

Martha saved him.

"We decided on the whole," she said sweetly, "that we liked each other best. And happily, my husband's mother died just before we remarried."

"O?"

"And left my husband ever so much—she died without a will, poor dear, or else I daresay he'd have got——"

"Quite sure," grinned Lyle. "Nothing."

To look at the two, it was very clear they had a good deal more than nothing, as it was. Hugh, later, watching Martha at afternoon tea in the lounge, suffered an odd flash of memory when he saw her daintily eating cakes.

"They are quite happy if you give them plenty of cake. . . .

"I wish her luck," was his thought.

THE END.

Are The Men More Vain Than The Women?

photograph that appealed to the mother heart was one caught off guard, one in which something of the "little boy" had been transfixed. A roguish cast to the eye, a tousled look to the hair. She was proud of his achievement, proud of the name he had won, but in the quiet of her little home it was not the successful man of the world who was to fill a little shrine but a boy that was once her own.

Mr. Harris is full of amusing incidents of experiences in photographing college professors. He admits they are too smart for him. "We can't work our studio psychology on them, because they are always ready with a dose of their own psychology for us. Consequently they get the picture they want, not always the one we want, registered.

"However, every male and female seems to have one vulnerable point in his or her vanity, and ordinarily, the photographer discovers it in the little pasted curls that the flappers wear and in the handkerchief in the breast pocket of the man. The photographer may have to pull down a man's cuffs and straighten out his tie, but that little peak of the 'shower' must loom up at exactly the right angle.

"Thoughtful faces are, as a rule, very satisfactory to photograph. The members of the supreme bench all make excellent portraits. Chief Justice Taft serious and Justice Taft smiling make an equally fine picture, but his smiling pictures are especially realistic. He just has the sort of face that falls readily into an entirely natural, wholesome smile.

"Now there's young Lindbergh. His face was another sort of face entirely. It was deadly serious and it was difficult for him to smile. The only smiling pictures caught of him have been snapped out of doors. When he was posing for us, we tried in every way to get him to smile—the smile of boyish daring and a touch of the insoucience which seemed to typify the lad that [illegible] the fires of hero worship in two continents.

"He was friendly and obliging. He was not bored, nor tired or hot, but 'Lindy' wouldn't smile for us.

"Too, he had very decided opinions of his own regarding photographs. When asked to fold his arms he replied that he didn't think folded arms 'went so well' in pictures. There was no trace of elation over his achievement in his manner, or the slightest vanity. This picture was something to be got through with and must be done as well as possible, and this, I think, is the attitude he has about other things that he goes into.

"AS FOR the younger generation, the girls of today, flappers and all, are far less vain than the girls of yesterday. Their very frank viewpoint on life has largely done away with vanity as it has other things. Where the young woman of a generation or so ago would retire to the privacy of the dressing room to beautify herself, the girl of today makes no bones about her 'make-up.'

"Yes, she darkens and beads her lashes, changes the curves of her mouth if she doesn't like the one nature gave her, even looks like a painted Indian sometimes, but she does it all with an utter disregard of deception. Nor does she deceive herself into thinking the beauty she has fashioned is real.

"She is entirely conscious of her good and bad points, she cherishes no vanity about the one nor regrets about the other. She studies clothes more than her mother—or grandmother, perhaps I should say—ever did and is able to make the most of her possibilities. Really, we have no dreadfully homely girls any more."

He loves to photograph youth, does Mr. Harris. His walls bear witness to his words. They smile down on you—or give you the "once over," debutantes from every corner of the globe who storm the social walls of the Capitol City to be counted a "success" or a "flop."

POLITICS IN 1928

BY MARK SULLIVAN

Author of "Our Times" and "The Turn of the Century"

How Many of the New Year's Really Big Political Problems Will Appear on the Surface? Will Prohibition, Religion or Farm Relief Be Our Outstanding Issue, or Will It Be Something Entirely Unforeseen by the Prophets?

THE editorial specifications to which this article is written consists of a request to state "what will be the chief political problem confronting America during 1928." The request, in short, is for prophecy, a form of writing that on all occasions, and especially about New Year's, is alluring to editors and to readers—and to some writers.

But does anybody, in the Decembers of these recurrent years, take the trouble to go back and check up the prophecies of the Januarys preceding? The writer of this article, as it happens, has had occasion to review many of the prophesies made on the various New Year's days of the last twenty-five years. Few readers, however, ever recall the predictions of a year before, or several years before. Probably it is just as well. The process, if generally indulged in, would make us a nation of ironic skeptics. And it would make writers more modest about assuming prophetic omniscience.

Things were prophecied that never came to pass. Even more striking were the things no prediction alluded to—but which happened, and affected us most vitally. No one on January 1, 1914, predicted a European war that was destined to provide us with our most important political problems within that year and for a decade of years to follow. Then, on January 1, 1916, everybody prophesied—correctly—that the most important political issue of the presidential campaign of that year would be what America should do about the European war then raging, mainly whether we should enter it or carefully remain out of it. That became the issue. Woodrow Wilson ran on a platform phrased in the past tense—"He kept us out of war"—but meaning the future tense, that he would continue to keep us our of war. On that expectation Wilson was elected—but we were not kept out of war.

Another class of events, politically vital, are accidents, impossible to forecast. No one could predict on January 1, 1923, that within the year Warren G. Harding would die and Calvin Coolidge become president, enabling the republican party to keep a lease of power that otherwise it would probably have lost. Nor could any one on January 1, 1901, predict that President McKinley would be assassinated and Theodore Roosevelt succeed him; most of the prophecies of that year dealt with the current issue of expansion or imperialism—and practically none of them came true.

To take a more recent, though less apt, example, no prophet on January 1 last year predicted that heavy rains in the Mississippi valley would provide one of the principal subjects discussed by the present congress. Some similar coincidence of forces of nature during the coming six months, running in a direction beneficent to the Mississppi valley, might readily reverse the agricultural condition which, as it now seems, is likely to make farm relief one of the most important issues of the 1928 campaign.

Almost as dangerous as prophecy is the assigning of relative importance. What, at any moment, is "most important"? The political issues which at the time they raged were described as the "most important in our history" have been as numerous as the books that for three months after publication were hailed as the "most important" of this or that period. That estimate "most important" usually contains surprise at the new, in proportions greater than this quality counts in the more seasoned verdicts of time, time being a court of appeals that takes no account of novelty.

Any one who wishes can amuse himself and add a good deal to the world's stock of irony by reading over the old keynote speeches and platforms in which the two parties have set down what seemed to them the "paramount issues," as well as the conditions to which they "pointed with pride." In 1904 the republicans congratulated the farmers—and themselves—on the high prices of farm land, which, they avowed, always accompanied republican rule. Twenty-four years later, in the coming campaign the republicans will probably find one of their most troublesome questions in the necessity of explaining why the present eight years of republican rule have been accompanied by steadily decreasing prices of farm land, to such a degree that land in the corn belt is actually lower today than it was in 1904.

What parties assert to be the most important issue of a campaign is frequently less important in fact than some underlying trend or other, unrecognized at the time. The trends that really determine history and the issues that have fundamental importance do not emerge to the surface in given years for the accommodation of political leaders who write party platforms or writers who make New Year prophecies. Economic and political trends, as well as the really important events of history, all have an Olympian way of ignoring any necessity of synchronizing themselves with campaign years. They do not separate themselves into such smoothly cut sections as the calendar, nor do the characters of history come into being with any such accommodating regard for those numerical landmarks that are the convenience of historians and of New Year's prophets.

Even the events which at the time actually are indisputably important do not always retain their elevation. Within the last fifteen years we have made four amendments to our federal constitution—direct election of senators, income tax, prohibition and women's suffrage. Superficially, a change in the constitution seems about the most important political event that can happen. But just how important have these amendments been? The first two—direct election of senators and the income tax—came in 1913. The historians of fifty years hence may not estimate them to be as important as those forces, even now still obscure, which in 1913 were working rapidly to bring a European war the following year and our participation in it four years later. The prohibition amendment has given rise to recurrent questions of high political importance, but have the other three turned out to be as important as they were expected to be, both by those who approved them and those who deplored them?

The prohibition amendment introduces us to one of the important political questions of the coming year. Many eminent persons, including Senator Borah, Nicholas Murray Butler and William G. McAdoo, would describe it as the "most important." Important it unquestionably is, and some day we shall have to decide whether we want to keep it or abandon it; enforce it or nullify it or modify the legal interpretation of it. But as respects the coming year it may or may not have an important place in the campaign. It is frequently said that if Governor Smith of New York is the democratic nominee prohibition will automatically become a leading issue. But will it? Logically there can be only one "leading issue." And this is a case where logic coincides with the working facts, for in practice every experienced politician knows that the issues of a campaign commonly simmer down to one, and that election is usually decided by public feeling on the outstanding issue.

But is it certain prohibition will be the one outstanding question in the event that Smith is the democratic nominee?

Some of the same persons who say the nomination of Governor Smith will make prohibition the most important question say in the next breath that religion will be the leading issue. Religion has been a leading issue, a very leading one indeed, on several occasions in history. But also religion has failed to provide any great excitement on occasions when practically everybody predicted it would. In 1896 Canada was approaching a general election. The leader of one of the parties was a Catholic. Sir Wilfred Laurier. Laurier was not only a Catholic, but of the French-Canadian race, a fact which intensified the religious aspect.

In Canada at that time religion was a far more acrimonious aspect of politics than it is now or ever has been in the United States. Most of the politics of Canada centered about the cleavage of the population between French-Canadian Catholics and Protestants of mainly British stock. There were separate schools, separate official languages. Feeling was intense. A previous local election had recently been voided because of clerical interference. Neverthelss, Laurier's party triumphed and he became premier, with the tariff as the leading issue. Canada was sufficiently satisfied with the outcome to keep Laurier as premier for fourteen years.

The figure that religion can play in elections is modified by other conditions. Under some conditions religion can become the leading issue; under other conditions it can be relatively ignored. In 1894 Grover Cleveland appointed a Catholic, Edward D. White, of Louisiana, to the supreme court of the United States. In 1910 President Taft made him chief justice, and he held that exalted office without anybody paying attention to his religion until his death in 1921. If in any of the years when White was chief justice the democrats had nominated him for president he might have gone through the campaign with as little weight given to his membership in the Catholic church as was given to Mr. Taft's membership in the Unitarian.

There is a way of stating the issue associated with Governor Smith which is broader than either religion or prohibition and includes both.

The Shadow

Via Madeira

at the earliest convenient moment to discover from Mary Perella a solution to this private mystery.

"We shall be in Funchal harbor on Christmas eve, by which time it ought to be fairly warm," he told her in the course of the afternoon walk. "It will be rather jolly doing one's Christmas shopping."

"Mrs. Fallowby will be well enough to come ashore by then?" she suggested.

Jeremiah prayed not, but refrained from giving expression to the hope.

The next night they leaned over the rail together and watched the faint star of light which stood for Cape Finisterre sink down behind the horizon: and he told her what a bore life was, and how he hated crowds and people who were terribly resolved to be gay to order. And she reviewed some of her landladies, and told him of a restaurant where one could get a wonderful lunch for 3d or 6d; and once he squeezed her arm to attract her attention to a passing sailing ship, its white sails looking ghostly in the faint light of the crescent moon, and she did not seem to resent that method. Yet, curiously enough, when he took her arm again to lead her to the companion-way, she very gently disengaged herself.

"I hope Mrs. Fallowby will be better in the morning," she said, "and I do hope you will do some work. I feel a great imposter. I haven't done a stroke since I've come on to this ship!"

He went to bed and dreamed of gray eyes and very soft arms that gave under his grip.

The night before the ship came into Funchal bay, and whilst he was dressing for dinner, the purser came to see him, and the tone of that officer was rather short and his manner strangely hostile.

"In what name did you book this cabin, Mr. Fallowby?"

"In my own name," said Jeremiah, in surprise.

"The name I have on the list is Frimley—the same initials, J., A., 'John Frimley.' Are you sure that isn't the name in which the cabin is booked?"

"You've seen my ticket — and really, does it matter?" asked Jeremiah, a little impatiently.

"It does and it doesn't," said the purser. "Who is this young lady you're with, Mr. Fallowby?"

"I am with no young lady," said Jeremiath, with pardonable asperity. "If you mean Miss Perella, she is my aunt's secretary.. Nobody knows better than you that my aunt is somewhere on this ship. I suggest that you should interview Mrs. Leslie Fallowby, who I have no noubt will give you the fullest information."

"There is no person named Mrs. Leslie Fallowby on the ship," said the purser, and Jeremiah stared at him. "The young lady," went on the officer, "states that she is your secretary, and that she is traveling in that capacity."

"My secretary?" said Jeremiah incredulously.

"She says she is your secretary, engaged by your wife."

Jeremiah sat down with a thump.

"Say that again," he said.

The obliging purser repeated his tremendous tidings.

"Now, I don't want any trouble with you, Mr. Fallowby," he said, not unkindly, "or with your wife. I'm going to show you a copy of the wireless we have received from London, and you'll understand that the game is up."

"Which game?" asked Jeremiah faintly.

The purser took a sheet of paper from his pocket, evidently a typewritten copy of a radio that had been received that day. It ran.

"To Captain, London Castle: Believe passenger named John Frimley and his wife are traveling under assumed name on your ship. They book Suite No. 17, but they may be traveling separately to avoid detection. Frimley escaped our officers sent to arrest him at Waterloo and has not been traced. He is a tall, good-looking man, clean shaven, may wear horn-rimmed spectacles . . ."

(At this point Jeremiah quickly removed the reading glasses he had been wearing when the purser came into the stateroom.)

"His wife is pretty, looks younger than she is. If any persons answering this description or occupying Suite 17, hand them to Portuguese police, Funchal, to await extradition."

Jeremiah read the document twice.

"Your wife is already under guard in her cabin," said the purser, "and there'll be a master of arms on duty outside your stateroom to see that you do not attempt to leave until the Portuguese authorities arrive."

Jeremiah gaped at him.

"My wife is what . . .?"

The purser waved a majestic hand and left the cabin before Mr. Jeremiah Fallowby began the exercise of the colorful vocabulary which he had acquired in his travels.

It was in the bare and whitewashed office of a Portuguese police officer that he saw again Miss Mary Perella. He expected her to be carried in, a pallid and wilting wreck whose nights had been made sleepless by the thought of her tragic sorrow; but it was a very healthy and indignant girl who came across the uncovered floor towards him.

"What is the meaning of this, Mr. Frimley?" she asked. Reproach was rather in her eyes than in her voice. "It isn't true that you are a jewel thief?"

"My name is Fallowby," protested Jeremiah.

"You told me your wife was on board and she isn't.

He guessed that this was his real offense.

"I never said my wife was anywhere," said Jeremiah loudly. "I was talking about my aunt, Mrs. Leslie Fallowby. You told me you were her secretary."

"I did nothing of the kind," she stormed. "I told you I was your secretary—that your wife had engaged me."

"But I've never had a wife!" he wailed.

"Attention!" The fat man behind the desk boomed the word. "I know English too well! Now you spik my questions when I ask them!"

"Fire ahead," said Jeremiah recklessly.

He slept that Christmas eve in a stone cell which was very dark and very unpleasant in other respects. He had no acquaintance with the Portuguese language, but he spoke Spanish rather fluently, and he learned that the girl had been taken to a convent. The British vice consul had been requisitioned, but that worthy was not in Funchal. So Jeremiah dispatched long and vehement cables to London . . . and might have saved himself the trouble.

In the early hours of the morning came a wire to the chief of police, announcing the arrest of "Mr. and Mrs. Frimley," whose other name was Vanne, and an apologetic police dignitary of the first class came personally, and in uniform, to offer apologies.

It was from him that Jerry learned of Mr. Vanne's little plot (revealed to the London police by his "wife"); of the engagement of a secretary who was to charm from a susceptible millionaire a view of his diamonds and such information about their safeguarding as she could secure.

Apparently Miss Mary Perella had been similarly informed; he met her halfway up the steep slope which led to the convent and she came running down with her hands outstretched.

"Welcome, and a merry Christmas, fellow convict!" she said, with a gayety that was immensely infectious.

He took her arm as they walked down the cobbled hill lane together and came to a bench that overlooked the bay.

She was beautifully sympathetic—apparently saw nothing in her own experience but a thrilling adventure.

"I knew, of course, that something must be wrong. I couldn't imagine you were a burglar, or whatever this Mr. Frimley was." She sighed. "I've lost a very good job," she said ruefully.

"Let me find you another," said Jeremiah eagerly. "I really am going to write a book—I have threatened to do it for year, and you can come along and correct my spelling."

She half shook her head. Yet apparently she accepted the position, for they went on to the cape by the next mail steamer, and the English chaplain who had married them on the morning they sailed came down to see them off.

POLITICS IN 1928

Smith's candidacy can be described as the city against the country, rural ideals against urban ones, older ideals against newer ones. It is the ideal expressed in the log cabin birth of some former presidents, contrasted with the ideals associated with the city tenement birth of Governor Smith. It is the metropolis against the rest of the country—fundamentally intensified by the fact that in this case the metropolis is made up chiefly, almost wholly, of peoples alien to those who compose the country.

As it has been put, from a point of view friendly to Governor Smith, it is the cry of the "newer immigration" for its place in the sun—not meaning that Smith himself is conspicuously of the newer immigration, for his American ancestry is a little longer than Woodrow Wilson's—but meaning that Smith is the symbol and favorite of New York city, in which the newer immigration is preponderant. If Smith's candidacy be described as the city versus the country, the issue was bound to come, whether with Smith or some one quite different. America during almost all of its history and almost up to the present was predominantly rural, its political ideals mainly rural—the rural interests almost always deferred to by politicians nomination presidential candidates. But America's population has been changing. The farmers and villagers, who once were 60 per cent of the voters, are now but 30 per cent or less. The next reapportionment of congress will increase the number of city congressmen, diminish the number of country ones. That is one reason the reapportionment has been so long delayed. It should have been made immediately after the 1920 census. The postponement is a picture of country districts fearing what will happen when they give up some of the preponderance they have always had.

This thing—shift of population, change in the nature of population, change in its political ideals and economic interests—this is the kind of thing that is really important. It does not happen in any one year and rarely figures in prophecies about "most important questions." It goes on quietly, imperceptibly, until it is definitely done—and then the important political consequences flare into sight. One of the consequences seems destined to be concrete and conspicuous in the coming campaign. The farmer, reduced by a long trend to political minority where once he was the majority, finds himself at the same time subordinated economically. He is an exception to the prosperity and the high standard of living prevailing in the cities.

"Farm relief" will be the superficial phrase for the campaign issue. The true cause is deeper and is tied up with another long trend. This trend and its two expressions, one on the farm and a different one in the cities, will probably provide as a whole the most important political phenomena of the coming year.

To put it in a very deliberate paradox, the most important political events of 1928 were the discovery of power from oil in the 1860's and the discovery of power from electricity about the same time. The injection of several billions of new horsepower into America's economic organism is the cause of most of our present maladjustment between farm and city. Oil and electricity revolutionized industry. They have not and can not affect farming as much. Whoever stands at the point where, so to speak, the pipes and wires carry these billions of new horsepower into our economic and social mechanism, that person is the best equipped to make prophecies about the important questions this year and the coming years.

I suspect the future historian will treat the Coolidge and Harding administrations as one. Probably he will add several future administrations to them and group all as a new era. The symbol of the change he will probably find in an event—the presence for the first time of a man with the letters C. E. (civil engineer) after his name in the higher circles of politcs. The man happened to be Hoover. It might have been some one else. A democrat, Owen Young, would have the same significance. The thing that Hoover symbolized—the recognition of the immensely exalted role of science in social and political organization—that is what will be recognized as constituting a landmark in history.

High Chivalry

of the Moroccan army; as true as, almost until the Indian mutiny war, there lived in Rajputana and the Punjaub mighty, turbaned thakur-rajahs called McGregor and Stewart and McKerr.

Highland Scots, you will notice, descendants from that Gaeldom which, a century or two ago, was pistoled and legislated out of existence by the German—today so English—Hanoverian red coated soldiers and black coated judges.

Amongst these Highland Scots, early in the eighteenth century, was a kilted, landless, lawless gentleman by the name of Colin Mor Macdonnell. Having ambused and killed a great English duke, and with the king's men of law on a trot after him, and the moorland, the heather, and the bogmyrtle giving him but bleak asylum, he left Scotland one fine, dark night aboard a French sloop; disappeared; turned up again a decade later in central Asia, at Ullahbad, the capital of Kivastan.

There he liked it very much. Indeed, we have still in the Bodleian library at Oxford an age yellowed letter in which he writes to his cousin, Lord Ranald Macdonnell:

"The women here are lithe and golden and rounded, with smiles like honey, and the men so strong and cruel and splendid. Mutton is cheap, seven shillings a hundredweight, and there is laughter here, and the grandest silks out of China and Persia, and a fine deal of strife, at which, as you know, I have always excelled. The sultan, Mehemet Alwani, has made me his sipar salar, which means captain-general, and he treats me as if I were his son. So here am I, an honest Scot and Christian gentleman, serving the heathen Mohammedans. And, by your leave, and may the Dear Virgin forgive me, I like it, and the turban which I wear is cunningly in the tartan of my clan. And will you give the enclosed lines to my second cousin, Lady Mary Macdonnell of Barrisdale, and tell her about the mutton costing only seven shillings a hundredweight, but say not a word to her about the golden, lithe women of Kivastan, because I want Lady Mary to come out here and be my wife . . ."

Historians tell us how the old sultan, having no kith nor kin, adopted Colin Mor Macdonnell, who, on the former's death, inherited the throne; who wedded his cousin, Lady Mary, and whose descendants have ruled Kivastan ever since, always seeking their wives in the Highlands of Scotland.

Wisely they ruled, keeping their country independent in spite of Russian and British intrigues . . . "until," said Trelawney, "both Sultana Evelyn's parents died and she came on the throne, the last of her line—and, as I told you, I'm afraid she won't be sultana very long."

"What's the trouble?" asked Lord Carmyon.

"Chap called Iskandar Bek, Sultan of Meryistan—neighboring principality, you know. A while back he unearthed some ancient local law according to which no woman may mount a central Asian throne. Furthermore, he produced what seems to be proof that he's distantly related to the former, extinct line of Kivastan sultans—says he's their rightful successor. I rather fancy he greased hands right and left. For there's a powerful court cabal—nobles and Moslem priests—in Kivastan, upholding Iskandar Bek's claims. And—she had news this morning—told me so while you were talking to the chief—revolution has broken out at her capital."

"Won't England interfere?"

"That's why she came to Europe—to put her case before Great Britain and the League of Nations. Iskandar Bek followed suit. Sent his oldest son—Mustaffa Bek—nice youngster—I know him—educated in Europe. But England's unable to help the sultana."

"Why?"

"Page Mr. Trotzky! The Russians gave us fair warning they'll threw in their influence in Iskandar Bek's favor if we should embrace her cause. Well—Kivastan's outside our sphere of interests . . . and it's hardly worth getting into a fuss with the bolshevists."

"I see." Lord Carmyon turned to go. "By the way, where does the sultana live?"

"At the Violette."

"Never heard of it."

"Ramshackle old hotel—near the Place de Thionville. She's very poor, you know." They shook hands. "So long, Fred!"

"Toodle-loo, old dear!"

* * *

Downstairs Prince Tamerlanoff's first question was ingenuous and direct:

"How much?"

"Not a centime. Old whiskers hasn't changed."

"What did he want?"

Carmyon told him.

"I suppose you were right," admitted the other with a sign. "What are we going to do next? Hold up a rich Armenian—or a Brazilian? What's your preference?"

"Deeds!" Suddenly Lord Carmyon raised his stick and, with a dry, hollow stamping of feet, made a pass at an imaginary foe. "Fabulous and storied deeds!" he added, leveling his stick and poking his friend in the place where once was his watch, now pawned.

"Pardon?" demanded Tamerlanoff, receding a step.

"We're going to make history. Jolly easy — making history — when you're young and reckless. In other words, I've an idea.

"One of your usual mad ideas?"

"Quite mad. Therefore quite logical."

"Mind telling me?"

"Afterwards. I'll tell you and L'Hommedieu at the same time. Are we not the Three Musketeers?"

So they walked home through the golden spring day. They were silent.

Only when they came within sight of the Rue de Turbigo did Lord Carmyon open his mouth, and he spoke words which he should not have spoken, since he was not a Monmartre poet with floppy hat and unkempt heard, but only a titled Englishman in shabby tweeds.

"Mehmet," he said, "once, when I was still a schoolboy at Eton, I fell in love with the headmaster's maiden aunt because she had hair like black silk, and slim, white hands like riddles. And, when I studied at Oxford, I loved a number of blonde, giggling girls whom I met here and there—at Kensington and Hampstead and—God help me!— at Earl's Court. Then, growing ever in taste and wisdom, I fell in love with a brown, blowzy girl—that time I was in Marseilles—and her love was a laugh and a scuffle. But now I know that the only girl whom I can really love must have violet-blue eyes and ruddy hair, and a grace and a carriage to put her aside from all other women—a little girl, you might say, masquerading as a queen . . ."

"Romance, Fred!"

"The privilege of the very rich and the very poor . . . and heaven knows I'm poor enough."

They reached their house, climbed the winding stairs, entered the small room which they shared with Hector Aristide L'Hommedieu.

Then they stopped on the threshold, in utter surprise. For there, on his knees in front of the bed, was the Gascon, his shoulders heaving, mumbling words which sounded suspiciously like prayers and holding high in his hands a little silver crucifix which his brother, a Dominican friar, had sent him at the outbreak of the war.

Quickly he rammed the crucifix into his pocket, quickly rose when he saw his two friends and greeted them with his usual boisterous good nature.

But his gayety was a pose.

"What's the matter?" asked Lord Carmyon.

"Nothing—nothing!"

"What is the matter?" insisted Tamerlanoff.

The Gascon was perfectly serious.

"My friends," he said in a low voice, "my heart is a sore and lacerated thing. My life is a brittle clay toy which has been dashed into many little pieces."

He lit a cigarette and continued calmly:

"I shall probably commit suicide. Do you think that gas is less painful than a revolver bullet?"

Lord Carmyon took him by the shoulder and shook him.

"Don't be silly, Hector. If it's mendable, we'll mend it. What's wrong?"

The Gascon sighed, went on with staggering earnestness:

"It is useless. I think I shall prefer gas. Gas is much less messy."

The Englishman shook him again.

"Tell us what has happened!"

"It is Jacqueline," replied the Gascon with a pathetic expression in his fine, deep brown eyes. "It's the daughter, the only child of that unspeakable master plumber 'round the corner."

"You don't mean to say that she has jilted you?" demand Prince

Tamerlanoff. "That she has married the head waiter at the Pharamond?"

"No, no! She has a heart of gold. Ah—but there is her father—the plumber!"

And he sat down on the bed, his head in his hands."

* * * *

Hector Aristide L'Hommedieu was superbly Gascon. Life to him was a series of picaresque, dramatic happenings. Therefore, having set out to be in despair, he did it properly—slumping there on the edge of the bed, burying his head in his hands, and occasionally stealing a look to see if Prince Tamerlanoff and Lord Carmyon were as impressed as he wanted them to be.

But they knew him of old. Deliberately, heartlessly, they refused to pay attention to him, and conversed pleasantly about this and that and the other thing.

He jumped up. "I shall explain!" he announced.

"Go to it!" They turned.

"Did I mention that my heart is broken?"

"You did. Who broke it?"

"Capitalism."

"O—come—"

"Gold-baited, blood-sucking capitalism! You see—this morning I call on that animal of a plumber, Jacqueline's father. I ask him for his daughter's delightfully dimpled hand. And he—that rich, diabetic rhinoceros—what do you think he gives me?"

"A kiss?" suggested the Russian.

"A drink?" guessed the Englishman.

"Neither. He gives me abuse, full flavored and extremely filthy—and Jacqueline in the room with us. 'How dare you, you little underfed, pigtailed, penniless rat?' he roars at me. 'How dare you, a regrettable specimen of a bottle washer in a low dive, speak of marriage with my daughter? Get out of my house before I throw you out!'" L'Hommedieu paused, inquired: "Rude—hein?"

"Very. What did you reply?" asked Tamerlanoff.

"Not a word."

"Imposs—"

"Not a word, I repeat. But, as becomes a gentleman of the Gascogne, I kiss Jacqueline's hand and lead her out of the room. Then I walk up to her father. I shake my fist under his bloated and indecent nose. I would have pulled it—could not reach—the animal is too tall. So, calmly, I spit in his right eye."

"No!" laughed Carmyon.

"Yes. Twice. He comes towards me with a bellow of rage. I dance away—thus!"—the Gascon demonstrated it, leaping about the room, clearing the bed at a jump. "He cannot catch me—and I tell him exactly what I think of him. I tell him that his face is a vast map of scenic depravity. I tell him that he has the morals of an eel—a fat and unsympathetic eel. I tell him that, but for his daughter, I would squash him under my foot and kick his ears. Then, politely, I bow to him and leave his house. And now—ah—" His voice feathered into a quiver.

"And now—what?" demanded Tamerlanoff.

"My heart is broken."

"So you informed us before," said Carmyon. "But why? Did Jacqueline give you the devil for treating her father the way you did?"

"Not at all. She told me I was right. Told me she would wait for me—a year, a dozen years, a hundred years—until I return," he slurred; went on: "with money."

"Isn't it refreshing," Carmyon whispered to Tamerlanoff, "the way French girls blend sentiment and horse sense?"

Aloud, to the Gascon, he said:

"Well—there you are. No reason to despair. All you need is money."

"How can I earn money—real money?" L'Hommedieu was tragically serious. No longer did he gesticulate. "A bottle washer—that's what I am—that's all I am fit for. That—and maybe a bit of fighting. Dear, blessed Virgin—how I wish for another war!"

"My feeling exactly," approved Tamerlanoff.

"Tell me," inquired Carmyon. "Are you chaps picky and choosy about whom to fight and where and why?"

"Personally," replied the Gascon, "I would fight against the boche—or for."

"And I," said the Russian, "for the bolshevists—or against."

"Excellent!" commented the Englishman. "Listen, my musketeers!"

So this romantic young man told the other two romantic young men about a fair lady in distress and Central Asian intrigues and the making of history, and they listened avidly, enthusiastically, until finally he suggested:

"Let's shake hands on it!"

They did. And in after years Lord Carmyon was wont to explain that but for the setting—the shabby little room in the Rue de Turbigo—they must have looked like a trio out of some heroic Italian opera—the Gascon, the Englishman, and the Russian-Tartar. "Standing there we were," he would say, "holding hands, looking into each other's eyes—like little schoolboys swearing eternal friendship. Quite pompous, impressive and—hang it all!—rather decent—eh, what?"

He raised his stick as if it were a field marshal's grand gilt baton.

"On to the palace of our fair lady!" he commanded gayly. "On to the Hotel Violette!"

He laughed.

"Imagine," he added, "the Hotel Violette, where, doubtless, the chairs creak and they have boiled mutton for dinner three nights a week and old ladies with cork legs whisper scandal about each other. And she—why, my musketeers—wait till you see her. The sort of woman who should always be in simple, glorious, amazing white—and a diadem of seventy black pearls on her head—and a string of seventy black pearls around her throat, with a clasp made of a single blue diamond—and—"

"And cigarets wrapped in rose leaves," cut in Prince Tamerlanoff, "and an emerald green jade bowl for an ash tray. My poor boy, you're in love. Ah—bozhe moy—what a charming lover you would be—if you had a hundred thousand francs a year!"

"Don't be absurd, Mehmet! I could spend that much on orchids for her narrow feet to step on."

They left.

On the street the Gascon recklessly hailed a taxicab.

"Place de Thionville—Hotel Violette!" he directed the driver; continued grandiosely; "An oriental princess awaits us there."

Wrestling Tricks

BY "YOUNG HACKENSMITH"
Chicago Y. M. C. A.
World's Champion Bantam and Featherweight Wrestler.

Among this week's wrestling holds are the "Chancery and Back Heel" and the "Half Nelson."

On the Chancery and Back heel secure your right arm around your opponent's neck, as shown in the photograph, then, stepping in, back-heel his right leg with your right.

Obstruct any movement of his right arm with your left, keeping your left hand against his right shoulder.

With a powerful lurch, force your opponent's right leg forward, and bend him backward and down by means of the Chancery. Keep his head firmly under your right armpit, for he may wrest his head free by pulling away your right arm with his left hand.

Chancery and Back Heel

The Half Nelson.

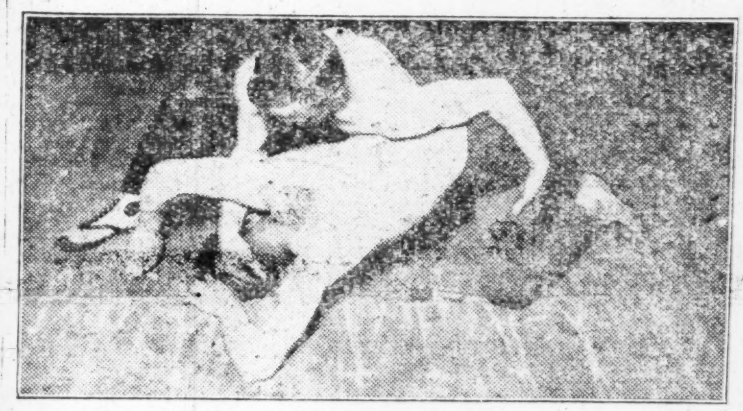

The Half Nelson is one of the most commonly used holds in the wrestler's art. It is used very effectively by those who have considerable strength in their arms.

To obtain a Half Nelson, you must work your opponent to the floor. From, say, his left side, insert your left arm under his left arm, and extend your hand to the back of his head. Powerful leverage is thus obtained.

The idea is to force the under man's head down and to pull it forward you, at the same time raising his left shoulder, so that he will roll over to the right and lie on his back.

If your opponent's head is supported by a muscular neck he may be able to prevent you from forcing his head downward. If this should prove the case, bring your right hand forward and press down on his head, in conjunction with the left. The hold can also be applied on the right side.

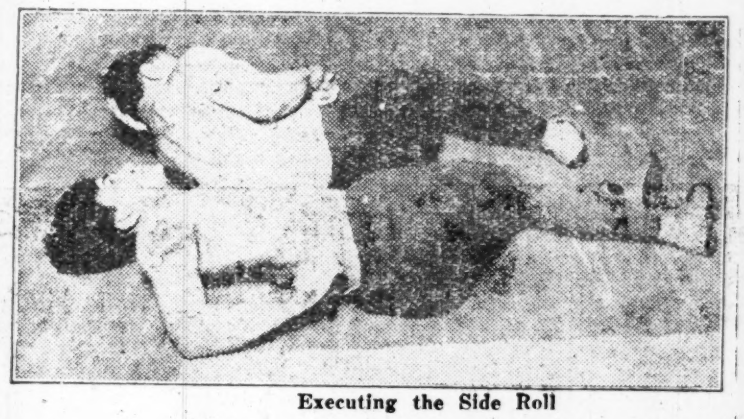

Keep your chest pressed tightly against this left side, so that it can be used in forcing him to turn over. As you raise him bring your chest and shoulders into full play as shown in the illustration.

The Half Nelson

One of the most valuable defensive maneuvers in wrestling is the Side Roll, which is in reality a counter for the Further Nelson, Half Nelson and similar holds.

When your foe obtains, say, a Half Nelson, the under man suddenly clinches his opponent's left arm, with which the Half Nelson is obtained, under his (the under man's armpit by locking that particular arm between his left upper arm and his body.

Executing the Side Roll

When the offensive left arm is locked firmly, turn or roll your body sharply toward the left, throwing your opponent on his back, as in the photograph. Retain the hold on your opponent's upper arm and roll your own body directly on top of him, pressing him flat on the mat.

In executing the Side Roll—you may roll to either side, according to the side on which the attack occurs—be sure to clinch your opponent's arm above his elbow, or he can escape. See the illustration.

The Further Nelson.

The Further Nelson or Further Half Nelson, which is in reality a near Half Nelson, is applied on the side opposite to that on which the offensive wrestler is stationed. He reaches across the under man's back and secures a Half Nelson under his further arm, as in the illustration. He then twists the under man's head away and pulls his body toward him (the offensive wrestler).

In our illustration the defensive wrestler has encircled his opponent's right ankle with his right arm, in order to prevent a fall. This method of stopping a Further Nelson can be used only when an opponent is resting on his feet.

You can sometimes escape from a Further Nelson by bridging yourself over your opponent's back, but you must always be careful in his maneuver, as he may secure a still better hold on you.

FLOWERS UNDER THE SNOW

IT IS EASY TO FORGET FLOWERS BURIED UNDER THE SNOW . . . and birds that have flown souht for the season are but additional proof of the old saying, "Out of sight, out of mind." The sun that shines with such pleasant warmth today is hidden tomorrow under a mask of gray cloud-blankets . . . and we FORGET . . . we put these things away with a careless thought that because they have always returned they will do so again.

It is EASY to overlook the beautiful things in life; its books and pictures, its poetry and friendships. But merely to KNOW they are there for us is not enough; to HAVE them is to USE them and THINK them . . . It Takes Action to Make a Cartoon Good

Some time ago a well-known cartoonist showed you readers of the Boys' and Girls' page how to draw cartoon faces, and later how to draw bodies. This week he is telling you a little about ACTION.

Action makes a cartoon. Without it your figures will be lifeless—they will look as stiff as boards. Note the look of movement in these sketches, even in figures that are standing still. This is obtained by bending joints of the body instead of having them stiff. That may be one trouble with the figures that you draw, and you will notice immediate improvement if you loosen them up by bending the body joints, such as the elbows, knees, neck and wrists.

Note the other points about these drawings that give the effect of movement, such as the "speed" lines and puffs behind the walking man, the noise lines about the cheerleader and the man who is laughing, and the position of the shadows. Practice will enable you to reproduce these effects.

But, above all, remember to bend as many joints as you possibly can. This is the secret of getting action into your cartoons.

MICROBES

There are living things so small that we can see them only with a microscope. They are vegetables and they are known as microbes or bacteria. They are of various shapes and sizes and they do many wonderful things. Some of them are very harmful and produce sickness when they enter the body. They are known as the pathogenic bacteria. Others are harmless and, in fact, may even be helpful to us in many ways. They are the non-pathogenic bacteria.

A few of them are pictured here today. The top row of circles shows the harmless sort. Those in circle number 1 are useful in the dairy. The top ones in this circle make milk sour; the others are necessary in the making of milk and cream. In the second circle we see the microbes in yeast, which are essential in making bread, cakes and alcohol. The microbes in the fourth.

The second row of circles shows a few of the dangerous, pathogenic, robes which make vinegar are in the third circle and those responsible for the making of cheese are in the microbes. Those which cause cholera are in the first circle on the left; the consumption bacteria are in the second and those which cause typhoid fever are in number 3. In number 4 we have the bacteria which cause lockjaw, very dangerous, particularly to children. If ever you cut yourself with a knife, step on a rusty nail or piece of tin; in fact whenever you are bruised, be sure to report it at home. Many a child has died because of the entrance of such bacteria into the blood by way of just such a bruise as anyone may get at any

POSERS!

Any reader who can consistently answer six out of eight posers each week has reason for congratulating himself. That's a mark of 75, and 75 is more than a passing grade in these examinations. Can you reach it on these?

New S. S. Van Dine Story.

The leading feature of the new Scribner's Magazine is the beginning of "The Greene Murder Case," by S. S. Van Dine, whose previous detective story in Scribner's sounded so realistic that it had the New York and Toledo police departments working on its solution. S. S. Van Dine is admittedly a nom de plume and many guesses have been hazarded as to the author's real name. Such distinguished writers as Carl Van Doren, George Jean Nathan, Edmund Pearson and Arthur Train have been suspected. The complete story will be published in four numbers.

How Phonographs Talk

When you try the new record on the phonograph do you ever wonder how the music comes out of that disc?

It's waves that do it. Sounds are nothing more than waves in the air caused by vibrations. When you hit a tin pan it vibrates and sends out waves in the air like the waves on a pond caused by a pebble. We have different lengths—because there are more or less waves per second.

Produce Waves.

Musical instruments are simply devices that can be made to vibrate at certain speeds, so as to produce certain waves—and, therefore, certain tones. In the piano and violin the strings are vibrators. All sounds are the result of something that vibrates. We hear them because they strike a tiny drum in the ear and cause it to vibrate with them.

Use Steel Needle.

To make a record someone sings or plays into the horn of a phonograph whose steel needle is running on a soft wax record. The sound waves, beating upon the drum to which it is attached, cause the needle to vibrate in unison. It, in turn, makes little dents and nicks in the wax. Then the wax is hardened to keep the dents.

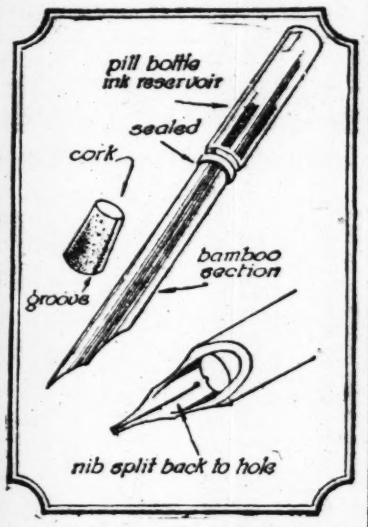

Now, you see, when you play the record you run a needle over it, and hardened dents and bumps set the needle to vibrating and producing the original sounds. The vibrations are increased by the drum of the sounding box to which the needle is attached.

Something to Do

HOW TO MAKE A BAMBOO PEN.

While most of the fun from this pen will come from making it, nevertheless it will give good service afterwards. It can be provided with a fine point which, when well finished, will enable you to write neatly on smooth paper. Or, if the point is left coarse, it will be found ideal for making posters, signs and placards.

The pen consists of a small pill bottle, a length of bamboo and a small cork. The bamboo should be only slightly larger than the neck of the bottle. Carefully dress it down until it is perfectly round. This can best be done with sandpaper. Be sure the section to be used is open all the way through. Dip one end several times in hot paraffin with which has been mixed a little ordinary sealing wax. This will give it body and firmness.

Bob, a London Fire Hound

Leaping flames, smoke-filled rooms and falling walls held no terrors for Bob, the famous London fire dog. When the fire calls came in at the station, Bob was the first to leap to his place on the ladder truck. He could hardly wait to get to the fire and as he watched the firemen put up the ladders at the burning building he barked impatiently and seemed to say: "Hurry up, there's no telling how many people I'll have to save."

When the ladder was adjusted Bob climbed up and plunged into the smoke, searching for any trapped victims. Into all the rooms he went, nose close to the floor. Sometimes sparks fell on him and burned him, but he did not stop.

When Bob found any one trapped or overcome, he made his way back to the street and with a few sharp barks told the firemen that he would lead them to the rescue. The firemen followed him and Bob superintended the affair. He was responsible for 12 rescues.

Sometimes Bob got trapped in a burning building and when this happened he made his way to a window and barked until the firemen held the life net for him to jump into. Bob would jump from a fourth story window into the net without any fear.

A LIGHT LUNCH.

"Bring me another sandwich please."

"Will there be anything else?"

"Yes, a paper weight. That last sandwich blew away."

Water Has More Than 50 Flavors

Water is water, no matter where it is found, yet there are some fifty-seven or more flavors. Various mineral waters are given a peculiar taste by substances held in solution in them, such as salt, compounds of sulphur, calcium and soda. These waters are supposed to have splendid medicinal properties and some of them such as Vichy, Appollinaris, Lithia, and waters from Sulphur Springs, Va., and Hot Springs, Ark., are bottled and marketed.

Artesian water, drawn from artesian wells, is so-called because the first well of the sort in the world was at the town of Artois, in France.

Soda water is made by dissolving marble dust with acid. This makes carbonic acid gas with which the water is highly charged in copper tanks. It is the water with which ice cream sodas are made.

Distilled water is water that has been heated till it forms steam and the steam is then collected and condensed in pipes.

Hits at Scoffers.

Scribner's Magazine, in announcing a new editorial policy for 1928, declares that American literature is passing beyond the "hokum-exposers" and the cynical spirit of scoffing at obvious faults of American civilization, and that the time has come to take a more complete view.

The magazine appears in an entirely new typographical dress, including a cover with decoration by Rockwell Kent and a new type face called Granjon, never before used in an American periodical.

GETTING AN EARFUL.

The doctor found that the delivery boy's ear, which had been paining him was full of water.

"How did that happen?" he asked. "Have you been bathing?"

"No," replied the boy. "Been eatin' watermelon."

NOT SO COMFORTABLE.

Mrs. Flanagan: "Was your husband in comfortable circumstances when he died?"

Mrs. Murphy: "No, he was halfway under a train."

States and Provinces Guessing Game

AROUND the WORLD

SHADOWS ON THE CLOUDS.

It seems that the men in the picture are frightened at the sight of the huge shadows directly in front of them. Perhaps these would frighten you, too, if you were in the same position.

But the shadows that confront these mountain climbers are not those of some monsters hiding behind the clouds and ready to spring on the unwary traveler before them. They are quite harmless and arise from a very innocent source. The shadows are cast by the very men who are so frightened because of them.

Peculiar light and cloud conditions in the Harz mountains of Germany are responsible for this rather startling picture. At certain seasons of the year and when weather conditions are just right, the mountain climber can stand on the ledge of this cliff and see his shadow on the clouds in front.

But what makes this sight all the more remarkable is the fact that the shadow, unlike other shadows, does not remain quiet. It moves backward and forward, and changes shape so that at one time it is short and squat and at other times long and sinuous. Under such conditions it is not always a faithful shadow of the man who casts it but assumes the form of some uncouth monster residing in the storm clouds and ready to strike at the traveler below.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

SUNDAY JANUARY 8th, 1928

HOCH DER FRAULEIN—Tutti Fertig was chosen from hundreds of European beauties of Vienna, Budapest and Paris as queen of fashion in Berlin for 1928. She is from Prussia. (Underwood)

SOUTH CAROLINA'S OFFICIAL FAMILY—One of the most interesting family groups in America today is that of Governor and Mrs. John G. Richards, of South Carolina. This couple has nine daughters, and the entire family is shown here on the lawn of the executive mansion in Columbia. At right are the governor and his wife, while reading left to right are their nine daughters, ranged in order of their age, Johngy, Jean, Mildred, Mrs. M. L. Sauls, Margarette Rehah, Bettie, Mrs. Thomas P. McClure, Mrs. J. W. Todd, Jr. (Tracy Matthewson)

VENUSES FROM VENICES—Hope Dare, southern California's most beautiful girl, meets Marchesa Iside Minceci, recognized beauty from Venice, Italy. (Underwood)

DIFFICULT AND DANGEROUS—In order to test out a new parachute, Mlle. Bonte, daring French girl, made this hazardous leap from the viaduct of Palaiseau on the outskirts of Paris. She landed safely after a drop of only 87 feet. (Underwood)

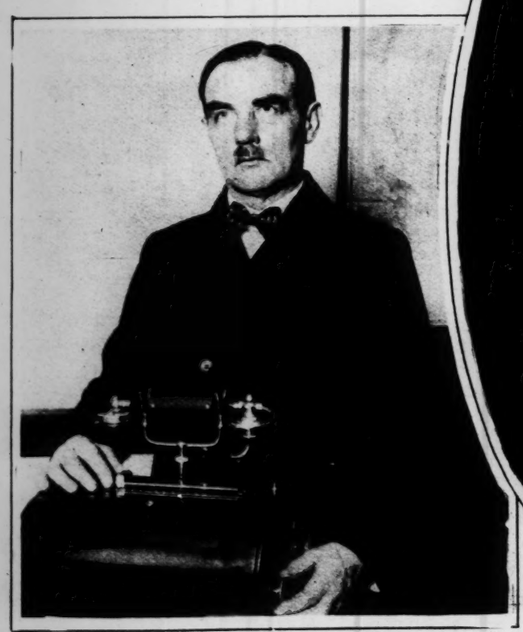

COVERT—A striking view of two wolves in the Grant park zoo peering out upon a wintery world from their rocky den. (Tracy Matthewson)

MOTHER OF "THE FOX" — Mrs. Eva Hickman, who clings to her son despite his confessions of murder, and who has done all in her power to save him. (Associated Press)

"BEAU SABREUR," companion picture to "Beau Geste," is coming to the Howard theater next week. Here's a striking scene from the super-film.

IT WRITES WHILE YOU TALK—J. G. Larsson, noted Swedish inventor, with his latest device, one which records telephone conversations automatically. If it comes into use, persons unable to make communications may speak their messages and the device will repeat them later.

THE NEWSBOY CONGRESSMAN — Meyer Jacobstein, who rose from newsboy to congressman from Rochester, N. Y. Jacobstein is considered a possible democratic candidate for mayor of New York.

"IT NEVER PAYS"—William Edward Hickman, confessed slayer of little Marian Parker and a criminal who covered his tracks for many months, now waits his doom in the realization that crime is its own reward. Here is a picture of the calm slayer in a Los Angeles jail cell. (Underwood)

DEATH VESSEL IN DRY DOCK—The coast guard vessel, Paulding, which rammed and sank the submarine S-4, with 40 men aboard, is in Boston dry dock for repairs with a terrific hole in its bow. (Underwood)

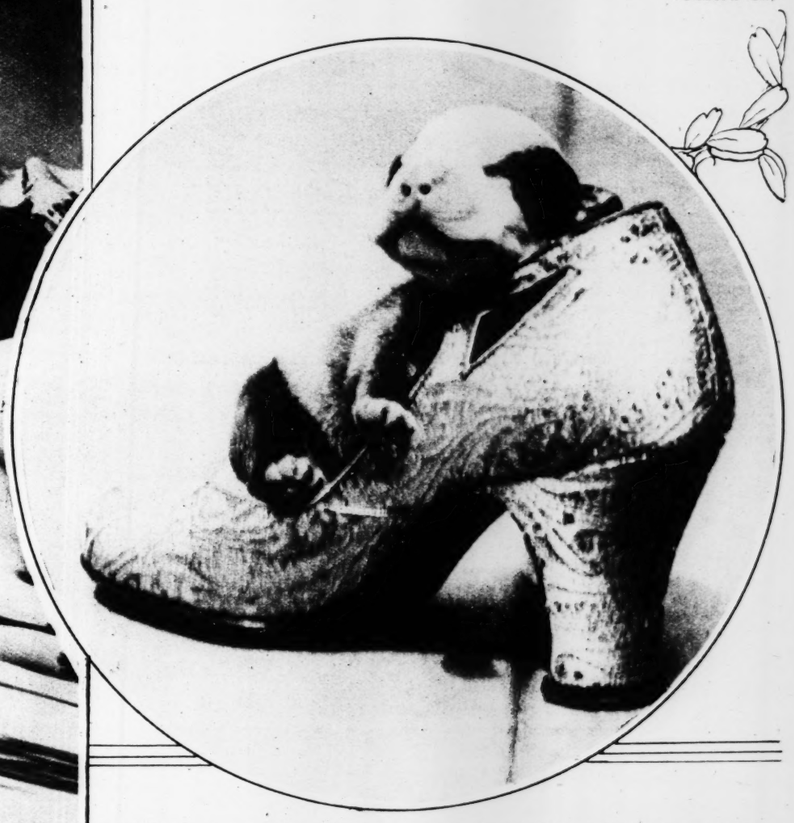

VICTIM OF S-4 TRAGEDY—Fred Michaels, diver who sought to reach the sunken submarine S-4, became entangled in his lines and the air hose was choked. He was rescued by a fellow diver and is in a serious condition. (Herbert)

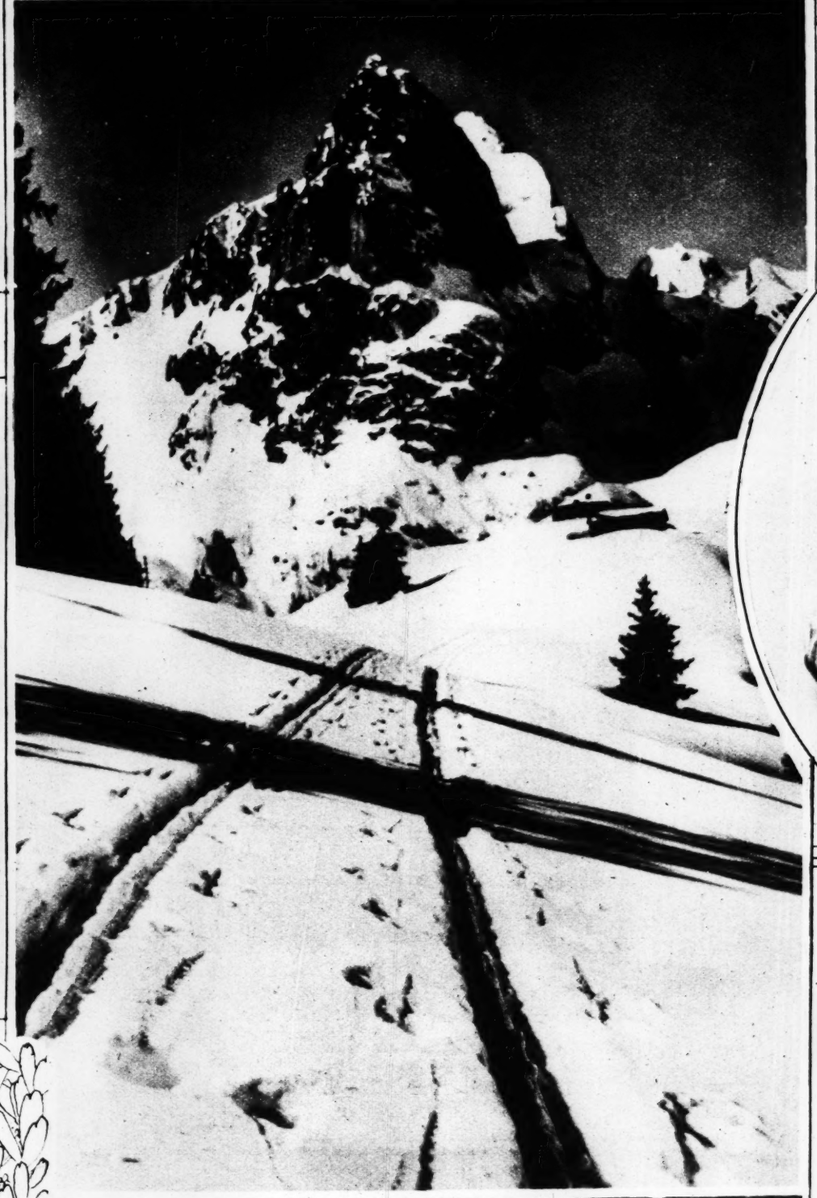

"HERE'S TO YOU, JOE"—The world's champion amateur indoor skater, Joe Moore, does his stuff for the camera while training at Lake Placid club in New York at the international races this winter. (Underwood)

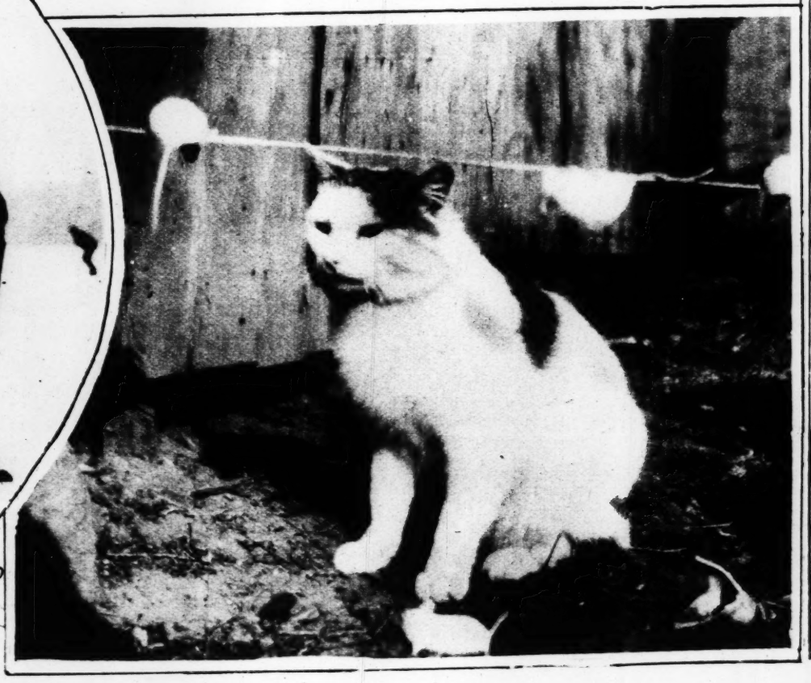

THEY REALIZE IT'S LEAP YEAR, so this quartet of charmers goes in for a little light practice. A camera trick supplied the queer setting for the airy pose (Underwood)

POOR PUP'S ON HIS UPPERS—Here's the latest thing in evening slippers—forlorn Fido, who doubtless wonders what it's all about. (Underwood)

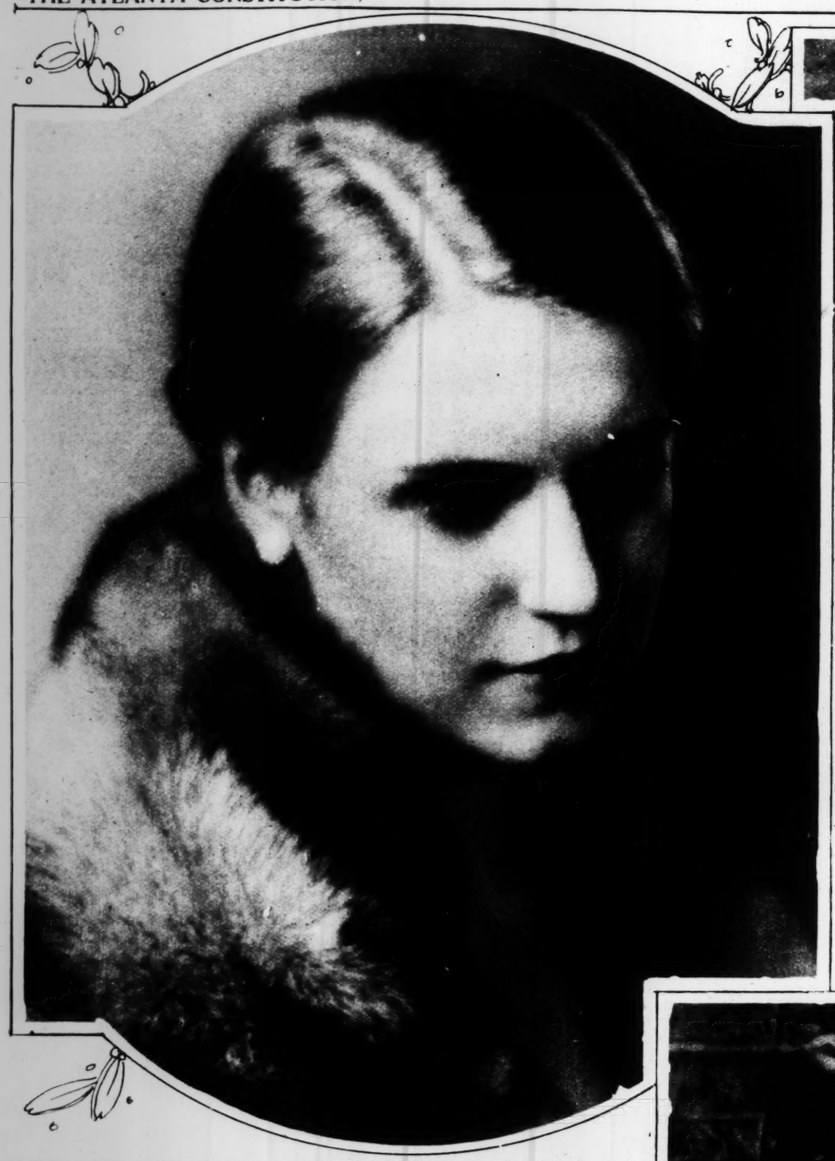

PRETTY NEAR HEAVEN—A gorgeous view of the Swiss Alps, showing sheltered peasants' huts in a world of ice and snow. (Underwood)

COMPANIONATE STUFF—The cat isn't crazy, nor are the mice that play about her feet. They're the best of friends, having been reared together. (Underwood)

CREW OF ILL-FATED "DAWN"—These three fliers braved the frigid weather of a trans-Atlantic flight attempt. Left to right, Brice Goldsborough, Mrs. Frances Grayson and Lieutenant Oskar Omdal. (Underwood)

GEORGIA GIRL GIVES WORLD GIFT OF SONG—Miss Frances Forrest Smith, of Marietta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Kemper Smith, is winning wide acclaim for the beauty of her lyric soprano voice. Her voice has won praise from several outstanding personalities in the musical world who have heard her in different auditions. Miss Smith is in New York continuing her vocal studies under one of America's most famous concert coaches.

CITY IN A BUILDING—The world's biggest building to be erected in Boston by a department store at a cost of $20,000,000. The colossal structure will be a complete shopping center. (International)

FROM GRID TO GRIPS—That's the saga of Johnny Mack Brown, star of Alabama's great "Crimson Wave" football team, shown with Gwen Lee, with whom he plays in the movies.

FLED FOREIGN LEGION—David Harvey John Jones, of South Wales, captured after deserting from the French Foreign Legion and sentenced to prison, was released on appeal of the British government after two years' imprisonment. Whether he must serve out his enlistment is undecided. (International)

ARTIST AND SONGBIRD—Miss Judith Wragg, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. S. Alston Wragg, of Columbus, Ga., and a niece of Miss Parmela Wragg, of Atlanta, has illustrated a child's book of hymns and carols compiled by Margaret G. Weed. She is now singing in a popular theatrical production in Chicago.

MASCOT OF EASTERN STAR—Little Miss Jane Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Austin Dillon, of Atlanta, has been officially adopted as mascot of the Georgia chapter, O. E. S.

TYPICAL AMERICAN BOY COMING HERE—Master Jay Ward, the true type American boy and mascot of the American Legion, shown with National Commander Spafford at the Paris convention of the ex-service men. Young Ward will appear at Keith's Georgia theater here next week.

LINDY SEES ANCIENT AZTEC SCULPTURE—A tour of the Teotibucacan pyramids in Mexico was one of the most interesting features of the flier's visit to that republic. (Paramount)

OF SHADED COWHIDE is this beautiful and unique coat by Blondell of Paris. It is cut in the straight-down and wrap-over pattern and is trimmed with gray cowhide at hem, collar and cuffs. (Herbert)

BEAUTY QUEEN OF SOUTHWEST GEORGIA—Miss Mabel Durr, of Dawson, Ga., who was queen at the fashion show and popularity contest held at the Southwest Georgia exposition.

UNDECIDED about her vote for the president is this winsome miss who shows something new in ear rings. One ear ring says "Cal" and the other "Al."

MUSH!—Commander Byrd, polar flier who plans a flight to the south pole, recently inspected dog teams in New Hampshire which will be used to establish supply bases on the Antarctic journey. In this photo Byrd is shown making a test of one of the teams, each of which will pull a 2,000-pound sled load. (Paramount)

At the "Nine O'Clock's" Ball

Prominent society folk at the brilliant costume ball held at the Piedmont Driving Club as the year 1927 went into history. The photographs are by Kenneth Rogers, Constitution staff photographer.

TYPES—Left to right, Miss Louise Arnold, Mrs. Hunter Cooper, Mrs. Marion Kiser, Miss Doughty Manley and Spencer Calloway.

SMILES—They show that James Hanner and Miss Mary Sadler. Anderson, S. C., enjoyed the Nine O'Clock's ball thoroughly.

MEXICO AND COLONIAL DAYS, as portrayed by Esmond Brady and Mrs. Frances Floyd.

SLIGHTLY RUSTIC were Miss Margaret Elder and George L. Harrison in the denim outfits.

TWO OF A KIND—Misses Martha and Jenny Hodgson.

DAINTY, CHARMING was Mrs. Clairborne Glover in her attractive costume.

PALS OF THE BOUNDING MAIN—Kelley Matthews, Miss Telside Pratt, Mrs. Grady Black and Dana Belser.

A COZY LITTLE GROUP—It includes Jack Disosway, Willard McBurney, Miss Edna Rainey, Charles Northern and Miss Gertrude Harris.

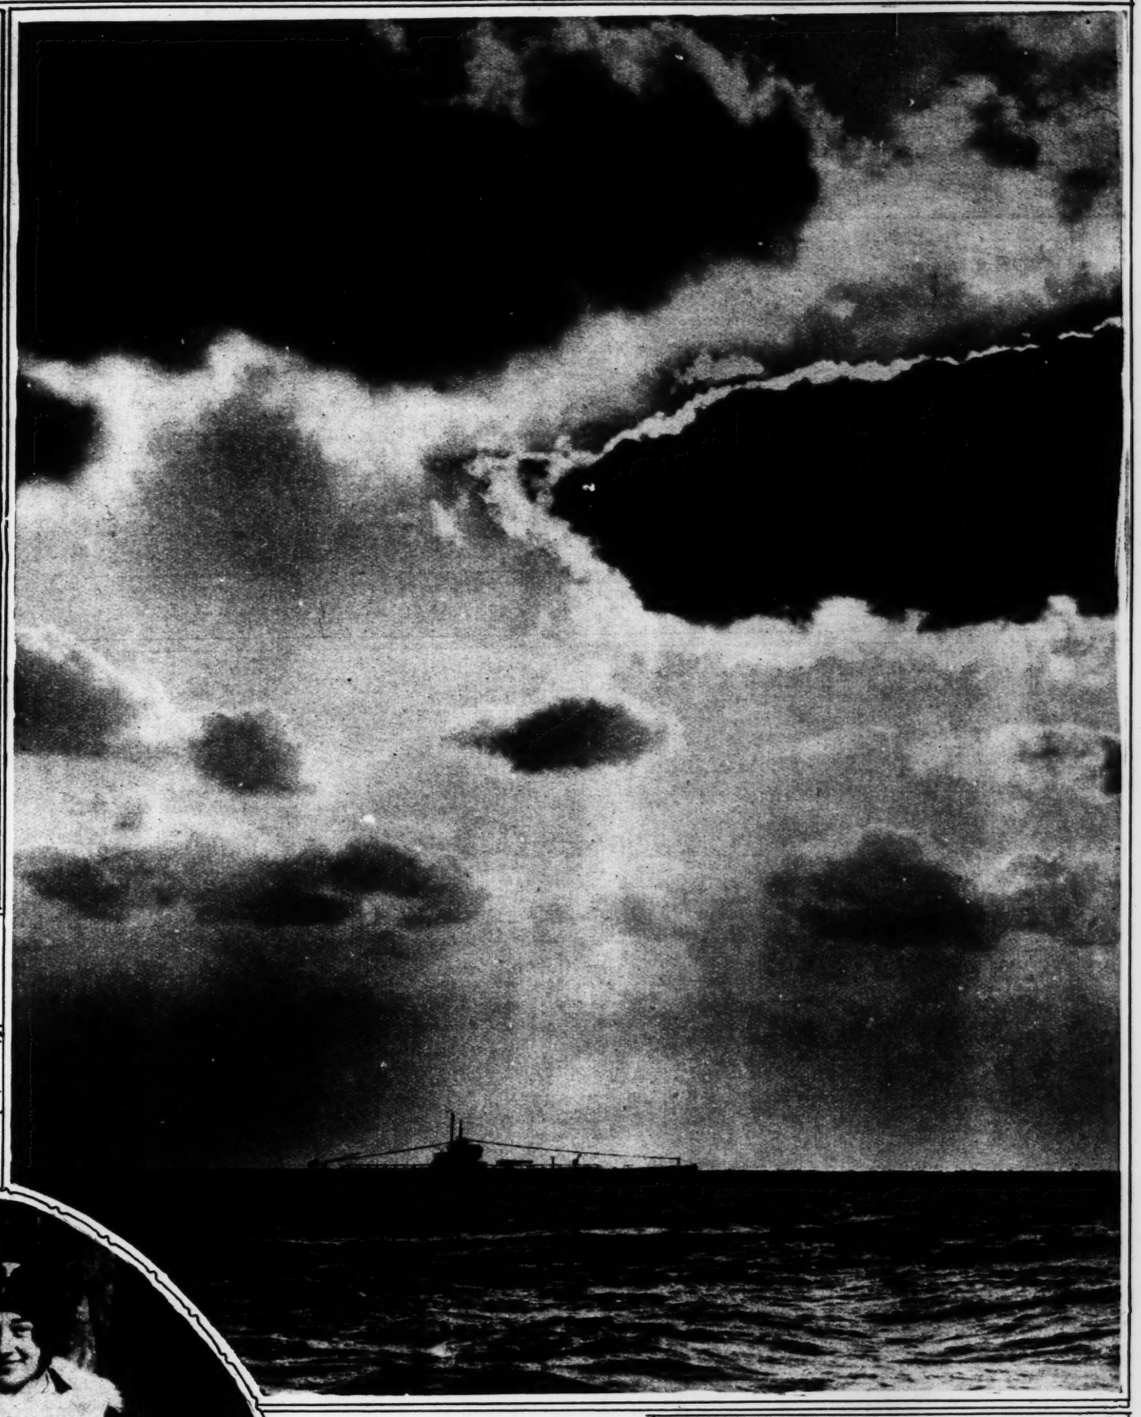

TIME TO RETIRE—Mrs. Carl Ramspeck's costume was a particularly clever one at the Nine O'Clock's ball.

SPENDS HONEYMOON IN JAIL—The former Shelby Worrall, Texas beauty and bride of Pat Somerset, English actor, spent her wedding night in a Los Angeles jail cell when police raided the party celebrating her wedding on complaint of neighbors. (Associated Press)

DESCENDANT OF WASHINGTON HONORED — Wilson Selden Washington, descendant of George Washington, has just been elected Worshipful Master of Alexandria-Washington lodge No. 22, A. F. and A. M., the same lodge presided over by George Washington 138 years ago. (Underwood)

ALL SMOKE AND NO FIRE—When a steampipe below the surface of a New York street burst, it blew a manhole cover high into the air and caused this huge smoke scene. (International)

Lose Fat
in an easier way

Don't over-exert—correct the cause

Some can reduce by starvation or abnormal exercise, but the way is long and hard. Not one in ten of the over-fat has the patience to continue. And even then the best efforts may fail unless the inner cause is corrected.

Over twenty years ago scientific men discovered a great cause of excess fat. They found a substance which Nature employs to turn food into fuel and energy rather than into fat. They proved that an extra supply of that substance could check the formation of fat.

That substance was embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for two decades—millions of boxes of them. Now you can see in almost every circle how much they have done for beauty, health, and vitality. Doubtless some of your friends can tell you. Slenderness prevails today, fat is the exception.

The use of Marmola requires no abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. Users simply take four tablets daily until the weight comes down to normal. They combat the cause.

Try the help which has done so much for so many. You owe that to yourself. You cannot afford to stay over-fat when reduction is so easy and so pleasant. Watch the results, then tell your friends, as people have for 20 years been doing. All your life you will be glad that you know Marmola. Go order now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

The new Ford Tudor Sedan is a great family car because of its smart low lines, speed, safety, comfort, reliability, low first cost and low cost of up-keep. Generous seat space and ample room for all five passengers. Both front seats fold forward giving easy access to rear seat. Deep cushions. Rich upholstery. All hardware in quiet good taste and full-nickeled. Your choice of a variety of two-tone color harmonies.

Greater even than its beauty is the performance of the new Ford car

MILLIONS of people have seen the new Ford since it was first announced on December 2nd and have been delighted with its smart low lines, its sturdy rugged strength, and its beautiful colors.

The art of the master designer is evident not only in the graceful contour of radiator, body and fenders, but in the harmonious relation of all features so that the car as a whole is extremely pleasing to the eye.

In every least little detail, your impression of the new Ford is one of substantial simplicity and richness—a car that is entirely new and modern—yet with a quiet style that is always in good taste in any company.

Motor car beauty of a new and unusual kind is indeed revealed in the new Ford. Yet this beauty, striking though it is, is but one of the many features of this new car.

Your greatest thrill will come when you can sit behind the wheel of the new Ford and know the thrill of driving it. Then you will have a full appreciation of what this car can do. Then you will know that it is not just a new automobile—not just a new model—but the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

For here is the complete car. Here, at a low price, is everything you want or need in a modern automobile . . . speed of 55 to 65 miles an hour . . . 40-horse-power engine . . . acceleration from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 8½ seconds in tests with a Tudor Sedan body and two passengers, and even quicker acceleration in the Roadster, Coupe and Sport Coupe . . . exceptional hill-climbing qualities . . . 20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline, depending on your speed . . . four-wheel brakes . . . Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers . . . easy-riding transverse, semi-elliptic springs . . . typical Ford reliability and low up-keep cost. Even a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield is given you in the new Ford without extra cost.

The outstanding performance of the new Ford is the direct result of the quality that has been built into every inch of it.

Its beauty is not confined to externals only, but goes deep down into every part of the car—even to those hidden, covered parts which you may never see.

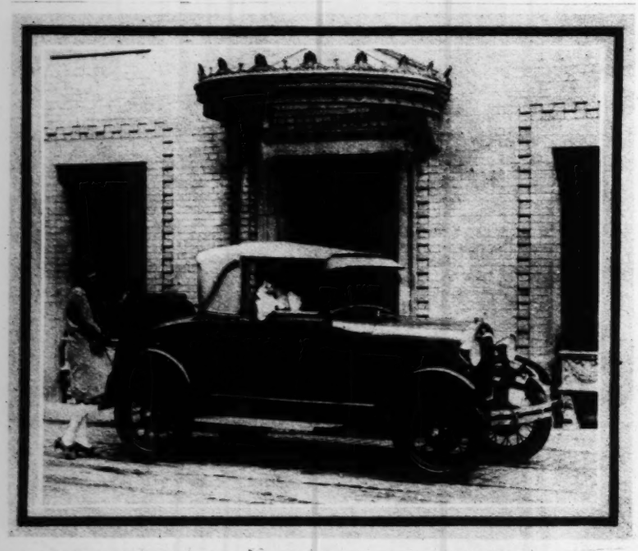

Throughout, the new Ford is an example of fine automobile engineering. Its inside mechanical beauty delights the engineer and technical man, even as its unusual beauty of line and color delights the artist. Many features of it are exclusive Ford developments. Some are wholly new in automobile practice.

So we say to you—make it a point to see the new Ford and arrange for a demonstration as soon as possible.

By its performance you will know that it is the most unusual value ever offered in a motor car. By its performance you will know that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in design, quality and price.

The new Ford Roadster sells for $385; the Phaeton for $395; the Tudor Sedan for $495; the Coupe for $495; the Sport Coupe with rumble seat for $550; and the Fordor Sedan for $570. (All prices are F. O. B. Detroit.)

Standard equipment includes five steel-spoke wheels, four 30x4.50 balloon tires, windshield wiper, speedometer, cowl gasoline gauge, dashlight, mirror, combination stop and tail light, oil measuring rod, complete tool equipment, theft-proof coincidental lock, pressure grease gun lubrication, and Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield.

The new Ford Sport Coupe combines the alert speed of the Roadster with the advantages of a closed car. Roomy, substantial rumble seat included as standard equipment on the new Ford Sport Coupe without extra cost.
